CIRCULARS of INSTRUCTIONS to BOARDS of GUARDIANS and POOR LAW INSPECTORS, issued by the COMMISSIONERS.

EMPLOYMENT of ABLE-BODIED PAUPERS in receipt of OUT-DOOR RELIEF.—Circular of Instructions to Boards of Guardians of Unions to which an Order for Out-relief to the Able-bodied has been Issued.

Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,

SIR,

Miscellaneous.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland desire me to call the especial attention of the Guardians of Union to that part of the order of the Commissioners, authorizing the Guardians to afford out-door relief to able-bodied persons in food, which requires that every able-bodied male person so relieved, shall perform a task of work during eight hours at least of every day for which he receives relief.

The manner in which this important part of the order should be carried into effect, demands the immediate attention of the Guardians; and the Commissioners now proceed to explain the result of their own experience on the subject.

Most of the suggestions which have been made to the Commissioners have reference to the supposed advantage of obtaining productive labour in return for the relief afforded; and many of them involve the proposal of employing the able-bodied applicants for relief in the cultivation of land, on the best terms which can be obtained by the Guardians, from the parties occupying or owning such land.

To every proposal of this nature the Commissioners consider objections to exist which are insurmountable, and they do not contemplate giving their approval to such proposals under any circumstances whatever. One obvious objection is, that such proceedings might interfere with the operation of the legislative measures expressly provided to facilitate the improvement of landed property in Ireland; under which measures, labour will be employed and paid in the ordinary course, without any disturbance of those relations which naturally subsist between the employer and the employed, and which it is of the utmost consequence to maintain, as far as possible, undisturbed.

Among the evil tendencies of a system which permits the recipients of relief, to apply their labour to profitable and productive employment on the property of private individuals, the following are perhaps the most prominent:—

Firstly. Such a system tends to absorb the general stock of employment, and so to bring more labourers on the poor-rates.

Secondly. It tends to lower the market value of labour, to the great injury of the self-relying labourer; since the occupier of land will not contract for the employment of pauper instead of independent labour, unless he can obtain some advantage in the rate of wages.

Thirdly. It tends to spoil the industry and habits of the labourer, who will not work with the same energy in return for relief, as when he has a bargain with a private employer to work for wages; the continuance of his employment and the amount of his receipts depending, in one case, on his industry and the value of his work, and in the other case, on the necessities of himself and those dependent on him for support.

There is no system of obtaining labour in return for relief from the poor-rates, which is wholly free from the above objections. The desideratum, therefore, is the mode of employment which is least open to objection; and this will be found, as the Commissioners believe, in any such employment as shall be least calculated to attract labourers to itself, and thus draw them away from the ordinary employments by which they have been accustomed to maintain themselves.

B

With these views, the Commissioners recommend the Guardians to establish a system of breaking stones by measure, as the most suitable employment for able-bodied males requiring relief. The advantages of stone-breaking are, that it is easy to superintend and regulate as task work,—that the materials are generally available, the implements of labour few and simple,—and, above all, that it is less eligible to the labourer than most other employments, provided that it be vigilantly superintended, and that a full day's labour be rigorously exacted from each recipient of relief.

The Commissioners are aware that such a system cannot be established through a large Union without expense, and without great and persevering exertion on the part of the Board of Guardians; but, on the other hand, the widely-spread distress which, on the representations of the Guardians themselves, has led to the issue of the order authorizing relief in food to the able-bodied, presents the two alternatives, either of such a system as the one now laid down by the Commissioners, or of a system of rations unchecked by any test or condition. But the latter system, even when administered with the greatest care and under the best control, must involve a profuse expenditure, demoralise the population, and by making them independent of their ordinary employments, diminish the productive resources of the country, and accumulate causes of distress.

In every electoral division, therefore, in which the Guardians find it necessary to avail themselves of the power to give rations to the able-bodied, it is their imperative duty, in discharge of the trust which they have received from the rate-payers, to provide a rigid system of task-work, and to appoint a sufficient number of superintendents of labour, under that branch of the order which authorizes them to appoint such officers.

These appointments should be made, not permanently, like those of the regular relieving officers, but for such time only as their services may be required, at a weekly rate of wages of about 10s.; for which amount, there is no doubt, that trustworthy and suitable persons, able to render accounts in writing, may be obtained.

The Guardians will have to determine the amount of labour to be required from each applicant for relief, and the amount of rations to be given him in return by the superintendent of labour, after the performance of the task.

The ordinary relieving officers will present the cases to the Guardians, and take their directions on each case. The result of the decisions of the Guardians may be communicated by the relieving officers to the superintendents of labour in the following duplicate form:—

Name of Applicant.	Daily Task of Work.	Rations.	Name of Applicant.	Rations.

The right-hand portion of the sheet will be detached in slips by the superintendents, and delivered to the parties employed, in the form of tickets, entitling them to receive their rations from the contractor, or from the person in charge of the dépôt, as the case may be. Where contractors can be found to take on them the distribution of the rations, it is obvious that some trouble and expense will be saved in respect of dépôts of provisions and the payment of persons to take charge of them. In either case the tickets brought in will be the vouchers to the Guardians for the consumption of so much food.

The Guardians probably expect from the Commissioners some principles to assist them in determining the task of work and the amount of rations in each case; the Commissioners therefore desire to observe, that it is not necessary the amount of rations should bear any direct proportion to the task ; on the contrary, the order itself requires that each recipient should give a full day's work for every day for which he receives rations ; and it is manifest that the amount of rations must depend on the number of persons who, besides himself, are dependent on him for support.

The justice of this arrangement stands on the following basis :—The food is given, not as the price of labour, but as the relief of destitution. The labour given in return is the condition of receiving that relief ; and if the necessities of the recipient and his family are wholly relieved, it is just that he should give in return the full value of his labour, whatever that may be.

The Guardians, acting on the above principle, will have to determine the amount of daily labour which may fairly be claimed from an adult male of average strength ; secondly, from an adult male of less than the average strength ; and, lastly, from male applicants above 15 years of age, but not yet adult, respectively. The ration, as already observed, will be in proportion to the number dependent for support on the person relieved.

The selection of the places proper for the employment of the applicants, in sufficient, but not too great numbers, the procuring of materials and the conveyance thereof to each depôt, the providing of such implements as may be found necessary to provide for those coming to labour, are points which will necessarily have the attention of the Guardians in due course.

The Inspector of the Union has been especially charged to afford the Guardians all the advice and assistance in his power, to enable them to carry out the order with most effect and advantage ; and the Commissioners request the Guardians will take the arrangements into consideration with the least possible delay.

By order of the Commissioners,

IMPLEMENTS for EMPLOYMENT of ABLE-BODIED.

*Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
January 19, 1848.*

SIR,

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to transmit herewith, for your information and guidance, a copy of a letter from Mr. Trevelyan, of the 14th instant, together with a copy of the Treasury Minute of that date therein referred to, relating to implements belonging to the Board of Works, which are available for the employment of able-bodied paupers, where relieved out of the workhouse ; and I am to request that you will furnish the Commissioners, as early as possible, with an estimate of the numbers of the several descriptions of implements required for the employment of able-bodied paupers in the Unions of in which an Order authorizing out-door relief under sec. 2 of 10 Vict., c. 31, is now in force.

The Commissioners also request that you will be prepared to furnish them, from time to time, with similar estimates in regard to any other Unions in your district, to which similar orders may hereafter be issued.

It will be perceived from the previous Minute of the Treasury of the 4th instant, also transmitted herewith, that any of these implements that may be lent for the purpose in question, are to be returned to the Board of Works when done with.

ENCLOSURES.

GENTLEMEN,

Treasury Chambers, January 5, 1848.

I AM commanded by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to transmit to you, for your information, a copy of a minute of this Board, authorizing the transfer to your officers of such of the tools under the charge of the Board of Works in the different counties of Ireland as may be wanted for the purpose of enabling destitute persons to perform the tasks of work required from them as the condition of the relief afforded to them and their families.

I am, &c.,

C. E. TREVELYAN.

The Poor Law Commissioners, Ireland.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 4th January, 1848.

Write to the Commissioners of Public Works that it is their Lordships' wish that they should place at the disposal of the Poor Law Commissioners, from time to time, such of the tools under the charge of the Board of Works in the different counties of Ireland as may be wanted for the purpose of enabling destitute persons to perform the tasks of work required from them as the condition of the relief afforded to them and their families.

These tools, when transferred to the Poor Law Inspectors or Guardians, will remain under their charge as long as they may be required for the above-mentioned purpose, but when no longer wanted, they should be returned to the Board of Works.

GENTLEMEN,

Treasury Chambers, January 14, 1848.

I AM commanded by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to transmit herewith, for your information, an extract from their Lordships' Minute, dated the 14th instant, and to state to you, that it is their Lordships' wish that the tools referred to should be lent by you to the different Boards of Guardians, as they may be from time to time required, for the purpose of enforcing the labour test; and that the permanent and temporary Inspecting Officers in the several Unions should exercise a general control and superintendence over the care of the tools, to the extent of seeing that they are not used for any purpose which has not the full sanction and approbation of your Board, and that they are taken proper care of; for which purpose they should be occasionally collected and counted, under their superintendence and inspection.

*The Poor Law Commissioners, Dublin,*I am, &c.,
C. E. TREVELYAN.

TREASURY MINUTE, dated 14th January, 1848.

Write to the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland, in reply to their letter dated 11th instant, that my Lords approve of the mode in which they propose to effect a settlement of the cost of the large quantity of tools purchased for carrying on the Relief Works, namely, to charge the several counties, in the shape of a per centage upon the cost of the works, with half the difference between the original cost of the tools and their present value, and that the tools should remain at the disposal of the Government.

Referring to the letter from this Board, dated the 5th instant, their Lordships desire that the Commissioners will immediately confer with the Poor Law Commissioners, and obtain from them an estimate of the entire quantity of tools likely to be required in the different Unions of Ireland during the ensuing year, for the purpose of aiding the proper administration of the Poor Law, by enabling the Guardians to test applications for relief, by annexing to the receipt of relief, whether in or out of the workhouse, the performance of a task of work equal to a full day's labour; and that the Commissioners of Public Works will reserve the tools likely to be required for this important object, keeping them in dépôt in the situations best suited for meeting the wants of the Boards of Guardians in the several districts of Ireland.

SIR,

*Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
January 26, 1848.*

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to transmit herewith, for your information and guidance, a copy of a communication which the Commissioners have received from Mr. Trevelyan, stating that the Lords of the Treasury have desired the Board of Works to return to Boards of Guardians any sums received in payment for tools supplied by the Board of Works; and I am to request that the Commissioners may be informed of any cases in which such payments may have been made, if there be any such in your district.

By order of the Commissioners,

W. STANLEY, Secretary.Each Permanent and Temporary Poor Law Inspector.

ENCLOSURE.

GENTLEMEN,

Treasury Chambers, January 24, 1848.

WITH reference to the letter from this Board, dated the 5th instant, I am commanded by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to acquaint you that the Commissioners of Public Works have been desired to return any sums of money which may have been received by them from Boards of Guardians in payment for tools; and I am to request that you will inform the Boards of Guardians in question that the tools in respect of which these payments were made will be considered to have been lent to them in the same manner as similar loans of tools have been made to other Boards of Guardians.

ADVANCES by the BRITISH RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

SIR,

*Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
January 21, 1848.*

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to transmit herewith, for your information and guidance, a copy of correspondence with Count Strzelecki, in reference to the advances made to certain Unions by the British Relief Association, and their repayment.

By order of the Commissioners,

W. STANLEY, Secretary.

To the Inspectors of Unions to which Advances have been made.

ENCLOSURES.

SIR,

*Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
December 20, 1847.*

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, desire me to express their thanks for your letter of the 14th instant, accompanying a statement of the sums recently remitted by you on behalf of the British Association, as grants to several of the Unions in Ireland, amounting in the whole to 1300*l*.

In the case of the Cavan Union, the Commissioners entertain no doubt that the Vice-Guardians will shortly be in a position to replace the sum of 300*l*., the advance of which has been attended with the greatest convenience and advantage, but which the Commissioners would on no account recommend to be made a grant in aid of the rates of Cavan Union, or any of the electoral divisions thereof.

The Commissioners trust there may be other instances in which sums advanced from the funds of the Association to relieve immediate distress and under the pressure of great emergency, may be ultimately repaid from the rates when collected, and thus increase the resources at your disposal, and become available as grants in other cases.

The Commissioners desire, however, to call your particular attention now to the cases of those Unions, to which the sums remitted may be considered either now or hereafter as grants of money not to be repaid from the poor-rates.

It is intended that such sums should be administered in the same way as the poor-rates; and they will, therefore, be in the nature of funds for dispensing relief to the poor under the Poor Laws, derived from other sources than poor-rates.

It will be necessary in keeping the accounts of such Unions, that credit should be given to the several electoral divisions, or some of them, to the full extent of the sums so granted; for under the Poor Law statutes there is no head of account referable to the entire Union, but every item, both of receipt and expenditure, is brought to the account of one or more electoral divisions.

The Commissioners have deemed it right at once to call your attention to this point, as it is rather for you, than for any party to whom the sums may be remitted, to determine which electoral division of a Union should have the benefit of these grants, and in what proportion each division should enjoy that benefit. In the event, however, of your leaving the appropriation of the grants in the hands of the parties at whose disposal they are placed, the Commissioners beg to suggest, for your consideration, whether it might be expedient to accompany that trust with some expression of your views as to the principle on which the benefit of the grant to any Union should be apportioned among the several electoral divisions.

To Count P. De Strzelecki.

I have, &c.,

W. STANLEY, Secretary.

SIR,

*British Relief Association Office, Dublin,
January 4, 1848.*

As regards that part of your communication of the 20th ultimo, No. 42,138, which refers to those Unions to which the sums remitted by the Association may be considered as grants of money not to be repaid from the poor-rates, I beg to offer the following for the consideration of the Poor Law Commissioners:—

In all cases in which the eleemosynary interference of the Association for the out-door relief is called upon, the agency will be guided in its action by the opinion and recommendation of the Poor Law Commissioners, not only as to the amount of grant required for the exigencies of the Unions, but also as to the proportion in which the grant is to be appropriated or allocated to each of the electoral divisions.

The sum granted will be charged in the agency accounts, for convenience sake, against the Inspector, to whom the money will be transmitted.

Each grant will be accompanied by an advice to this effect, that the grant is to be appropriated by the Inspector to each of the electoral divisions, in the proportion determined by the Poor Law Commissioners, and that those appropriations are to be accounted for to the Commissioners, according to the rules and forms prescribed by the Poor Law statutes.

It would be, perhaps, advisable that a return of advances made by the agency of the British

Miscellaneous.

Association to the Inspector, for exigencies of the divisions composing his Union, be forwarded from time to time to the Poor Law Office, for the purpose of checking the different accounts. In that case you will, perhaps be so good as to inform me whether weekly. or fortnightly, or monthly return will be required by the Commissioners.

Secretary.

SIR,

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 4th instant, respecting advances made to certain Unions by the British Association, which are not required to be repaid out of the poor-rate; and I am to express the Commissioners' thanks for your communication.

The Commissioners desire me also to express their approval of the course proposed by you, which entirely meets their views.

They will be obliged if you will send the return proposed of advances made to the several Inspectors, fortnightly.

RELIEF of the DESTITUTE without regard to previous Residence.

Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
December 29, 1847.

SIR,

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, having observed, that in some instances, relief has been refused to applicants, or discontinued to paupers to whom it had been given, on the ground that they had not previously resided in the Union, or had not resided in it for a certain time, or that they "do not belong to the Union;" I am directed by the Commissioners to point out to the several Boards of Guardians that previous residence in the Union is not, by any provisions of the Irish Poor Relief Acts, made a condition upon which relief should be given, destitution being the sole ground of relief; and that if any applicant be deemed by the Guardians, in the exercise of their discretion in regard to the case, a fit object for relief as a destitute person, such person should be relieved in the Union in which he is or becomes destitute and applies for relief, without regard to the circumstance of his having been previously resident therein or not, or to the length of time during which he may have been resident.

By the provisions of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act (10 Vict. cap. 31), the Guardians are now required to make provision for the relief of all classes of destitute persons, either in or out of the workhouse; and the consideration whether a destitute person has or has not been previously resident in the Union, cannot legally affect his claim to relief, under the provisions of the Acts, although the mode in which the cost of such relief is afterwards to be charged, either to the Union at large or to particular electoral divisions, is to be determined according to his previous residence, in accordance with section 12 of 10 Vict. c. 31.

I have, &c.,
W. STANLEY, Secretary.

The Clerk of the Guardians of each Union.

ALLOWANCES to PAUPERS on removal from Workhouses on Out-door Relief.

Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
January 18, 1848.

SIR,

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland desire to draw attention to the following portion of their Circular of the 14th of August last:—

"Under existing circumstances, it appears most desirable that the present accommodation in the workhouse, should, as a general rule, be reserved for the relief of such able-bodied persons, not falling within the first section of the Extension Act, as may be deemed to be destitute; and the Commissioners are prepared to approve (for the present) the discharge of persons from the workhouse who may fall within any of the three classes specified in section 1, and who may be deemed properly and sufficiently provided for by a weekly allowance out of the workhouse, so long as the causes of their destitution shall continue to exist."

Miscellaneous.

The Commissioners are still strongly of opinion, that the workhouse accommodation should be reserved for destitute able-bodied persons and their families. However the Commissioners are still equally desirous that the Guardians should be cautious in ascertaining that those whom they remove from the workhouse on weekly out-door allowances are properly and sufficiently provided for.

Whenever such allowances, being legal, may be deemed proper for any persons who are at the time inmates of the workhouse, the Board of Guardians should, as a matter of routine, discharge those inmates from the House Register, order them the proper weekly allowance, and cause their names to be entered on the Out-door Register, as well as on the Relief Lists of the respective relieving officers for the electoral divisions in which the allowances are to be dispensed. It will, in every such case, be obvious, that the persons so transferred to the Out-door Relief Books should be given in charge to the relieving officers at the workhouse, and that immediate provision should be made for their subsistence, until the next day for dispensing out-door relief allowances in the electoral divisions to which they are respectively to repair.

By order of the Commissioners,

W. STANLEY, Secretary.

To the Clerk of each Union.

RECOVERY OF POOR-RATES FROM LANDLORDS.

Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
January 14, 1848.

SIR,

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, deem it advisable to draw attention to the modes prescribed by law for recovery of arrears of the poor's-rate due by immediate lessors.

The Act 6 and 7 Victoria, cap 92, sec. 2, points out three courses for this object:—

1. By action or suit in the superior Courts, with consent of the Commissioners.
2. By Civil Bill in the Court of proper jurisdiction.
3. Where the lessor resides in any county, part of which may be in the Union, by complaint to any justice, on non-payment after 15 days' notice, and summons thereupon to appear before such justice in petty sessions.

Whenever application may be made to the Commissioners for their consent to proceed in the superior Courts, it will be necessary to transmit a list of the immediate lessors proposed to be sued in such manner, stating their places of abode, the total amount due by each, and the grounds on which proceeding by action appears necessary.

By order of the Commissioners,

W. STANLEY, Secretary.

PROVISION OF COFFINS FOR PERSONS dying out of the Workhouse.

Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
November 1, 1847.

SIR,

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland to inform you that, in consequence of applications received by them, they have deemed it advisable to obtain counsel's opinion as to the legality of providing, out of the poor-rates, coffins for the burial of poor persons who die out of the workhouses; and I am to annex, for your information and guidance, the following copy of questions submitted to counsel, with his opinion thereon.

Queries.

1. "Whether the Boards of Guardians can provide coffins for deceased persons who were in receipt of out-door relief, as destitute poor persons, at the time of their death?"

Opinion.

1. "I think not. In such cases coffins should be provided by the churchwardens, and the expense assessed upon the parish, under the 7 Geo. IV. cap. 72, sec. 10."

2. "Whether the Boards of Guardians can provide coffins for deceased poor persons not in receipt of such relief, and not in the workhouse at the time of their death?"

2. "I think not."

3. "Whether, under section 3 of 10 Vict., cap. 31, which empowers the Commissioners to regulate and determine the kind of relief to be afforded out of the workhouse, when not directly specified by the Act, and the manner of granting, ordering, and giving such relief, the Commissioners can issue an order empowering a Board of Guardians to provide coffins for the classes, or either of them, of persons referred to in Questions 1 and 2?"

3. "I think not."

To each Poor Law Inspector, &c.

I have, &c.,

CIRCULAR to TEMPORARY INSPECTORS as to the State of the Workhouses.

Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
February 12, 1848.

SIR,

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, are desirous of calling the attention of all the Temporary Inspectors to the importance of their constantly inspecting the workhouses of the Unions in which they respectively reside, and of their taking care that the Commissioners' rules and regulations are duly observed in them.

The public will expect, that the workhouse of an Union in which there is a Temporary Inspector, should be a model of good ventilation, cleanliness, and order; and this cannot fail of being the case, if the Guardians, the officers of the workhouse, and the Inspector, perseveringly do all which it is in the power of each to accomplish.

The Commissioners would suggest, that each Inspector in visiting the workhouse should carefully go over the workhouse rules and regulations, and should consider whether any of them are not duly observed.

If the Inspector discovers that any are violated or neglected, he should consider with whom the blame really rests.

If the blame rests with the master or matron, he should make a special report on the conduct of either the one or the other, or of both, as the case may be; and it will become a subject for consideration with the Commissioners, whether they will allow them, or either of them, to continue in their present office.

If the blame rests with the Guardians, as will almost necessarily be the case if there is not a sufficient stock of bedding, clothing, and of the other supplies required in a workhouse, the Inspector should bring the subject pointedly under the notice of the Board of Guardians, and respectfully urge them to remedy the evils which are complained of.

If the Board of Guardians disregard the representations which may be made to them by the Inspector, the Commissioners request that the Inspector will make a formal report on the subject to this office, in a separate and distinct communication.

At the same time, the Inspectors should not fail to continue impressing upon the Visiting Committee the paramount importance of their complying with Article 57 of the Workhouse Regulations, in reference to their carefully examining the workhouse of the Union once in every week at the least, and reporting the result of their examination to the Board of Guardians, in the Visiting Committee's Report Book.

By order of the Commissioners,

To each Temporary Poor Law Inspector.

Secretary.

CIRCULAR to TEMPORARY INSPECTORS as to the Workhouse Buildings.

SIR,

IN connexion with the Circular of the 12th instant, which is forwarded to you by this day's post, I am directed by the Commissioners for administering the CIRCULAR as to SURRENDER of LAND to enable Applicants to receive Relief under section 10 of 10th Vict. c. 1.

February 15, 1848.*

SIR,

THE attention of the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland having been directed to cases arising under section 10 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act (10th Vict. c. 31), in which applicants for relief who held more than a quarter of a statute acre of land had offered to surrender the land to the landlord or his agent, who, however, refused to accept the surrender unless the applicant also gave up a house held with the land which the applicant refused to do; to cases in which an unsuccessful attempt has been made by the occupier to surrender his land, even though no such condition was attached to the proposed surrender as that above mentioned; and to cases in which the husband being absent from Ireland in search of employment, the wife and children continue in the occupation of his cabin and land, in which cases relief has been refused by Boards of Guardians on the ground that the wife could not effect a legal surrender, though willing and desirous to do so;—the Commissioners have deemed it right to submit a case to Counsel for his opinion on the subject. A copy of the questions put to Counsel, together with the opinion of Mr. Henn, Q.C., thereon, are now transmitted herewith for the information and guidance of the Guardians in regard to the administration of relief in such cases; and the Commissioners desire to observe, that the Attorney-General for Ireland agrees in the opinion given by Mr. Henn.

By order of the Commissioners,

W. STANLEY,
Secretary.

To the Clerk of each Union.

QUESTIONS AND OPINION above referred to.

Queries.

1. Whether the refusal of the surrender by the Landlord disqualifies a destitute person from receiving relief under the section of the Act above recited?

2. Whether a person occupying more than a quarter of an acre of land, would be excluded from relief by the provisions of that section, in consequence of a legal incapacity to surrender the land?

Opinion.

1. I think not, provided the party applying does not continue in the occupation of land of greater extent than the quarter of a statute acre.

2. I think a person continuing to occupy such quantity is excluded by the statute, whether capable of legally surrendering his interest in the land or not.

The Guardians are not, in any case, compelled to grant out-door relief. They may always exercise a discretion where the party applying is one to whom such relief may be granted, and grant relief to such person, either in or out of the workhouse, as to them shall appear fitting; but in cases coming within the 10th section, the Guardians are prohibited from granting any relief, either in or out of the workhouse. In my opinion, the occupation or non-occupation of the quantity of land mentioned is made the criterion of destitution, and the Guardians are warranted in relieving any person who is not in such occupation, and they are not bound to investigate title at all, or ascertain whether the tenant's interest has been legally determined by surrender or otherwise.

SIR,

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland having had under consideration the expediency of publishing from time to time, for the information of the rate-payers generally, lists of the persons receiving relief in the several Unions, whether in or out of the workhouse, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that it appears to them advisable that lists should be made out of all the persons receiving relief in the Union, distinguishing those in the workhouse from those receiving out-door relief.

Such a list should be made for each electoral division separately, and be divided into townlands, so arranged as to specify opposite each townland in the division the names of the persons receiving relief in such townland.

The lists should be posted at the usual places of posting public notices in the respective electoral divisions; and each list might be affixed to the police stations in the electoral division and townlands to which it relates. In fact, every possible publicity should be given to the lists, and information respecting the circumstances of persons receiving relief should be earnestly invited and be readily received, from all employers of labour and all trustworthy persons in the Union.

The accompanying form may be adopted for the purpose; and the lists be printed for posting accordingly.

The Commissioners recommend that the lists should be made out and posted at the beginning of every fortnight.

To the Clerk of each Union.

By order of the Commissioners,
W. STANLEY, Secretary.

APPOINTMENT of additional TEMPORARY INSPECTORS.

The POOR LAW COMMISSIONERS to Mr. TREVELYAN :—January 12, 1848.

THE Commissioners direct me to forward herewith, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have received from Mr. N. Loftus Tottenham, Chairman of the Board of Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union, representing the necessity which exists for the appointment of a Temporary Poor Law Inspector for that Union. The Commissioners have to request the sanction of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, to the appointment of a Temporary Inspector for this Union, and also one for the Dingle district of Tralee Union.

The Commissioners are of opinion, that the case of Dingle does not call for any special observation. However, in reference to the Manorhamilton Union, the Commissioners in addition to what is stated by Mr. Tottenham, have to observe that the Union is a very poor one, and in fact poorer than the adjoining Union of Sligo, which has an Inspector; the net annual value of the Manorhamilton Union, being 47,284*l.* and the population 45,990. The Manorhamilton Union is further west than the Mohill Union, and it was merely from unwillingness to propose a Special Inspector for a Union, if the necessity for such an officer could be ultimately avoided, that the Commissioners did not apply for an Inspector for the Manorhamilton Union in the first instance.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. TOTTENHAM, Chairman of the Board of Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union, to the POOR LAW COMMISSIONERS:—January 11, 1848.

I BEG leave to call to your notice the necessity of appointing an Inspector to the Manorhamilton Union, county of Leitrim, for the following reasons.

The business is so heavy since the commencement of the out-door relief, that two days per week would not suffice to go through the relieving officers' books, as they should be examined, as well as their accounts, and the other matters.

The admission of paupers every Board-day consumes most of the day, and the routine business of the Union, without leaving time to go through the collectors' books, and forcing them to do their work and get in the rates; and a fever hospital is now to be looked after also; added to this the master and matron and schoolmaster have had fever, and are not yet able to do anything, and the interior economy of the house is going to ruin fast.

And you must be aware, no unpaid parties will give up more than one day of the week to the business. Moreover, considering the distance the Guardians have to come, and the shortness of the days at present. If an Inspector was appointed for six months, even so as to get the whole machine fairly set going, we might then be able to manage without him from thenceforward, but unless some such person be sent there for a little time, I and most of the Guardians conceive the whole thing will be one scene of confusion, mismanagement, and waste, and the rates will not be collected.

TREASURY MINUTE on the above.

January 14, 1848.

Write to the Commissioners, that my Lords are pleased to authorize the appointment of a Temporary Inspector to the Manorhamilton Union, and of another to the Dingle division of the Tralee Union, as recommended by them.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. TREVELYAN:—January 19, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to request the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to give them permission to appoint, with the previous approbation of His Excellency, Temporary Relief Inspectors in Unions wherein out-door relief to able-bodied men has become necessary, and in which great distress prevails.

The reasons for this request are, that the Commissioners are convinced, by experience, that they cannot reckon on out-door relief being properly administered to able-bodied men in any Union in a distressed district, unless an Inspector constantly resides there, to stimulate the Guardians, to prevent abuses, and to see that the Commissioners' regulations are duly observed.

The Commissioners do not mean to express an opinion that such an officer will always be necessary; but they are satisfied that the new system of poor-laws will not have a reasonable prospect of success, unless for a while there is constant local inspection and supervision.

The Unions to which the Commissioners, if they received the sanction of the Treasury, would at once appoint Inspectors, are Nenagh, Thurles, Cashel, in the county of Tipperary, and Kells Union, in the county of Meath. But the Commissioners would wish to be empowered likewise to appoint such officers for

Oldcastle,	Ennis,
Granard,	Dunshaughlin,
Tipperary,	Gort,
Mullingar,	Naas,
Callan,	Roscrea,

in all of which the order authorising out-door relief to able-bodied men has become necessary, and has been issued by the Commissioners.

TREASURY MINUTE on the above.

January 21, 1848.

Write to the Poor Law Commissioners, that my Lords are pleased to authorize the appointment of Temporary Poor Law Inspectors to any of the 14 Unions named in their letter to which, in their opinion and in that of the Lord Lieutenant, it is necessary that such Inspectors should be appointed; but their Lordships do not consider it advisable to give a general authority for the appointment of officers of this class.

The COMMISSIONERS to Sir DENIS LE MARCHANT—Financial State of Unions:—
February 19, 1848.

THE Commissioners have the honour to state, for Sir George Grey's information, that the collection of poor-rates in Ireland, during the month of January, 1848, is now known to have exceeded 190,000*l.*

A statement in the usual form is in preparation for that month, and will be forwarded in due course when completed.

The series of similar statements forwarded already extends to the close of the year 1847, and the Commissioners take this opportunity of reviewing the collection of rates in Ireland during the past year, and of placing before Sir George Grey some particulars not contained in their previous communications to him on this subject.

The total amount of poor-rates made in Ireland during the year 1847 appears to have been 1,618,240*l.*, giving an average throughout the Unions of 2*s.* 5½*d.* in the pound.

The total amount of the rates previously made, but uncollected at commencement of the year, was 243,384*l.*

The total amount, therefore, which was in progress of collection during the year was 1,861,624*l.*; of this total, there was collected within the year 970,318*l.*, giving an average throughout the Unions of 1*s.* 5½*d.* in the pound.

The fact that less than half the rate which was in collection in 1847, was collected within that year, will be explained by the following statement of the account of rates made in each month, whereby it will appear that of the total arrear which remained uncollected on the 1st January, 1848, viz., 890,639*l.*, no less than 715,693*l.* consisted of rates made within the preceding four months:—

The Rates made in the Month of	Amounted to
January, 1847	£60,008
February „	75,451
March „	38,570
April „	147,734
May „	121,315
June „	116,943
July „	192,487
August „	149,372
September „	199,707
October „	168,852
November „	147,353
December „	199,781
Total in the 12 months	£1,618,240

The average period heretofore usually bestowed on the collection of rate in Ireland appears to have been about six months; this length of time is owing partly to the provisions of the original Act, which contemplate a half yearly rating in each Union, and partly to the great extent of the collecting districts, which comprise, on the average, 45 square miles each, the entire number of collectors being 699.

The amount collected in January shows an increased ratio in the progress of the collection as compared with the amount on the books; and the Commissioners have every reason to believe that in the present month the collection is also satisfactory.

The Commissioners have deemed it right to submit these remarks to Sir George Grey, inasmuch as they are aware that the large amount returned in the column uncollected in the recent monthly statements has led to a supposition that a large portion of that amount is likely to fail of being collected, which, looking to the present ratios of progress, the Commissioners have no reason to suppose will be the case.

STATEMENT relative to the COLLECTION of POOR-RATE in UNIONS, in which Vice-Guardians have been appointed.

Miscellaneous.

OF the 17 Unions in which paid officers were appointed, prior to the close of January last, there are five, namely, Galway, Trim, Kenmare, Athlone, and Carrick-on-Shannon, in which the appointments were made in January, and in which the interval, since the appointment of the Vice-Guardians, has not enabled the results to be fairly developed in the collection of the rates.

Statements of the collection in the remaining 12 Unions, of which the following is a summary:—

1. CAVAN UNION.

In the Cavan Union, the Vice-Guardians were appointed on the 8th December, 1847, and before the close of that month a rate of 3s. in the pound (previously adopted by the Board of Guardians, after strong opposition, and under threat of dismissal,) was put in collection, amounting to 16,757*l*.

In eight weeks, ended the 31st January, the sum of 10,616*l*. was collected, or about two-thirds of the rate; the amount collected in the month of January alone being 8950*l*., a larger amount than was ever collected in a like period in any Union.

Contrasted with the above collection, the collection in the 12 months prior to the dissolution of the Board, was 5379*l*. (or an average levy of about 10*d*. in the pound), and 5000*l*. less than their expenditure—a deficiency, in fact, almost equal in amount to the year's collection.

Some opposition has been offered, but has been resolutely met by the collectors; the result has been that the Vice-Guardians have collected sufficient to pay a debt of 5000*l*. due at the time of their appointment, and to provide for the current expenses of relief; there remaining a balance in the treasurer's hands on 31st January, of 5944*l*.

2. KANTURK UNION.

In the Kanturk Union, as in the Cavan Union, the collection has been signally successful.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed on the 16th November, 1847, the Union being then encumbered with a debt of 6680*l*.

On the 27th November a rate (adopted by the late Guardians) of 3s. in the pound (in one division 4s.), was signed, and on 30th November was put in collection, its amount being 16,837*l*.

There was collected in December	5,677
And in January	5,936

Total collection in two months	11,613

being more than two-thirds of the entire rate.

The collection by the late Guardians in the 12 months ended 30th November, was only 10,342*l*. being an average levy of about 2s. in the pound), and, as above shown, 6680*l*. under their expenditure.

The collection of two months has placed at the command of the Vice-Guardians, sufficient to meet the expenses of relief, to defray their debts, and to leave a large balance available for the relief of the poor, there being on the 31st January in the treasurer's hands, the large sum of 5111*l*.

3. SCARIFF UNION.

The proceedings of the Vice-Guardians in the Scariff Union, with reference to the rates, have been highly satisfactory.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed on the 28th October, 1847, the Union being at that time burthened with a debt of nearly 6000*l*. (5888*l*.), which would alone absorb a rate of more than 2s. 6*d*. in the pound.

The late Guardians had proposed a rate prior to their dissolution, which, after deducting the amount of their debts, would have left but very little to support the destitution of the Union.

The Vice-Guardians, however, having duly considered the lowness of the existing valuation, and the exigencies of the Union, adopted a rate of 7s. 6*d*. in the pound, calculated to yield 16,776*l*., and, including former arrears, 17,353*l*. This rate they signed on the 3rd December last.

Miscellaneous.

The rate was not in course of active collection until the latter end of December; and the Vice-Guardians, on the 28th January, reported that they expected, at the close of that month, that the whole collection would amount to 6000*l.* (it having at the date of their report considerably exceeded 5000*l.*), and they expressed a hope that in a very few weeks, the whole outstanding cheques (which had been drawn by the late Board on the treasurer, without providing funds to meet them) would be liquidated.

On the 5th February, the Vice-Guardians reported that the sum of 1232*l.* on account of these cheques had been actually paid, the amount of outstanding cheques, exclusive of the other debts left by the late Board, being thereby reduced to 2069*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.*

Captain Hart, the Temporary Inspector of the Union, informs the Commissioners that he has intimated to the collectors, that he expects they will complete their collection during the present month.

The collection by the Vice-Guardians, contrasted with that by the late Guardians, is most remarkable.

The late Guardians collected—

In the year ended September, 1846 £1714
And in the year following, down to their dissolution . . . 1551

Total collection in two years £3265

The collection by the Vice-Guardians in the two months of December and January last was about 6000*l.*, or more than one-third of a 7*s.* 6*d.* rate.

4. LOWTHERSTOWN UNION.

The collection of the rate in the Lowtherstown Union was commenced under the disadvantage of the Vice-Guardians being appointed to levy a rate for repayment of Government advances, which the Guardians had opposed.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed on the 18th September; on the 6th October they signed a rate of 6461*l.*, and on the 13th of October put it into collection.

A decided and general opposition to the collection was manifested in the beginning.

The collection progressed as follows:—

In October £156
In November 374
In December 787
From 1st January to 12th February . . . 2039
Leaving uncollected on the 12th February . . . 3105

This arrear is considerable; and the Vice-Guardians, at their meeting of the 2nd instant, required the collectors to lodge the arrear within the present month.

The decided improvement in the collection during January, as compared with December, justifies the expectation of the collection being brought near to a close within this month; that is to say, within four months after its being put in active collection.

This rate of collection compared with that of the previous rate is very favourable. The late Guardians collected in eight months previous to dissolution, of a rate of 1443*l.*, only 1083*l.*, leaving debts due to contractors alone, amounting to 964*l.* This debt the Vice-Guardians have already raised funds to liquidate, as will be seen by the subjoined comparison of collection and expenses:—

November	374	214
December	787	467
January 1 to February 12	2,039	721
Total four months . .	3,356	1,620

Thus the excess of collection over expenses down to 12th February, was 1736*l.*; the debts at the date of appointment of Guardians, 964*l.*; showing that the collection has covered the debts and current expenditure, leaving a surplus balance to the credit of the Union; the money in the treasurer's hands on the 12th instant being 1028*l.*

5. CAHIRCIVEEN UNION.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed in the Cahirciveen Union on the 24th December, 1847.

The rate was made by the late Guardians about the middle of November, at 3*s.* in the pound, amounting to 3578*l.*

The warrants were issued about the middle of November, but little of the rate was lodged in November. In December 620*l.* was collected. In January about 782*l.*, being more than one-fifth of the entire rate, and showing a favorable increase on the previous month's collection; the collection of the two months amounting to 1402*l.*

The late Guardians collected only a shilling rate, amounting to 1217*l.* during the whole of the previous year, leaving debts to the amount of 1649*l.* at the close of November.

6. BANTRY UNION.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed in this Union on the 19th October, 1847.

On the 12th November, they made a three-shilling rate, amounting to 6285*l.*, and with the arrears to 6884*l.*

The warrants were issued for the collection in part of the Union, in the middle of December, and in the rest of the Union towards the close of the month.

The collection during the month of December was 771*l.*, and during the month of January, 1242*l.*

The temporary Inspector reported at the close of January, that notwithstanding the opposition encountered, the collection was proceeding favorably.

The collection down to the 31st January, amounted to 2013*l.*, or more than one-fourth of the entire rate, the amount collected in the year preceding being only 1084*l.*, whilst the debts left due by the Guardians were 3879*l.*

7. ROSCOMMON UNION.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed on 31st December last; there being then an arrear of rate uncollected amounting to 1695*l.*

The total rate collected in the previous year by the Guardians was only 3620*l.*; debts remaining at the close of the year to the amount of 6874*l.*

A rate of 3*s.* in the pound had been previously agreed upon, but the collecting books were not ready for issue until the close of January. On the 31st January the Vice-Guardians reported that the collectors had applied for assistance, and on the 9th instant they reported that praise was due to the collectors for their great exertions.

444*l.* was lodged in the week ended 5th instant, and the prospects of the collection, under the above circumstances, are favourable.

8. MOHILL UNION.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed on the 10th December, 1847, there being 1326*l.* uncollected of a rate made in December, 1846, which rate, with arrears, amounted to 3457*l.*; showing that, in the entire year, only 2266*l.* was collected; leaving debts to contractors alone amounting to 2443*l.*

The Vice-Guardians, early in January last, made a rate of 3*s.* in the pound on a portion of the Union, but, owing to the difficulty of getting the revision of the valuation completed, and in appointing collectors, they were unable to bring the entire rate into collection before the close of January, and therefore no return of the success of the collection has yet been received; the new rate is calculated to yield 8665*l.*, exclusive of arrears.

9. BALLINA UNION.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed in Ballina Union on 24th December last; they commenced their duties on the 27th December; and they made it one of their first acts to direct their solicitor to apply to the immediate lessors who had not paid their rates; also, to urge the collectors to proceed against occupiers.

The state of the collection at the date of their appointment was as follows. The rate was made in July, 1847, amounting, with arrears, to 13,869*l.*; of this, a sum of 9353*l.* remained uncollected at the time of their appointment; only 4500*l.* having been collected in the preceding six months, leaving debts to the amount of 1741*l.*

The amount collected in the month of January last was 1600*l.*, leaving 7609*l.* uncollected. Of this arrear, the Vice-Guardians have estimated that a large portion is irrecoverable from the present occupiers.

At the same time they report that many defaulters seeing that it was the intention of the Vice-Guardians to put the law in force, had paid up their rates.

10. BALLINROBE UNION.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed in July, 1847; on 15th October following they made a rate of £14,126

The amount collected to 31st January, was 3,333

The arrear being 10,793

The collection in December was 994

And in January 2,180

Showing a very favourable increase in the last monthly collection, the collection of the two months amounting to 3,174*l.*

The amount collected in the previous year by the late Guardians was only 2,584*l.*, leaving debts to contractors alone, amounting to 2000*l.*

11. CASTLEBAR UNION.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed 13th July, 1847; they made rates varying from 3*s.* 1½*d.* to 5*s.* in the pound on 9th October following, amounting with arrears to 9947*l.*

In the last three months the collections was as follows:—

November £516

£1,639

Leaving uncollected 8308*l.*; the collection of 1639*l.* in the three months contrasts favourably with the former collection in the Union; the total amount collected in the two preceding years being only 2673*l.*, and in the latter year only 448*l.*, leaving debts to the amount of 4000*l.*

According to a return down to the 5th February, the total amount collected was 1805*l.*

Proceedings are being taken against all defaulters; the collector failed in his proceedings at first, owing to informality in the notices. This error, however, having been remedied, the arrears may be expected to be reduced speedily.

12. WESPORT UNION.

The Vice-Guardians were appointed on 16th August, 1847; on 1st November they made a rate of 7335*l.* and with arrears (1051*l.*) 8386*l.*

The amount collected in December was £876

Total in two months £2096

Scarcely any rate was collected by the late Board of Guardians in the year preceding their dissolution, and they left a debt of nearly 3000*l.*

GRANT for the ERECTION of OVENS in remote or distressed Unions.

Miscellaneous.

Mr. TREVELYAN to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 1, 1848.

THE Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury having had under consideration a communication from Sir R. Routh, dated Dublin, the 29th instant, relating to the construction of ovens in certain Unions on the west coast of Ireland, with a report from the Architect's Department of the Poor Law Commission Office, dated 28th instant, upon the subject, I am commanded to transmit for your information copy of a minute of this Board thereon.

ENCLOSURE.

TREASURY MINUTE:—December 31, 1847.

WRITE to Sir R. Routh that their Lordships are of opinion that, with a view to secure a successful trial of the experiment of constructing ovens for the purpose of baking bread for out-door relief, the best course of proceeding will be to place a sum of 500*l.* at the disposal of the Poor Law Commissioners, to be employed by them under the superintendence of their architect in the erection of ovens at two or three workhouses, at which the means of baking bread on an extensive scale are most urgently required, and at which the experiment is most likely to succeed; but their Lordships desire that it may be fully understood that whatever the result may be, any further expenditure which it may be desirable to incur must be incurred by, and at the expense of, the Unions, without any assistance from the Government.

Sir R. Routh is, therefore, authorized to pay the sum of 500*l.* to the Poor Law Commissioners in Ireland in such proportions as it may be required; and he will also place them in possession of all the information which he has collected on the subject, and give them any other assistance which may be in his power in carrying out this useful object.

The COMMISSIONERS to their Architect, Mr. WILKINSON:—January 3, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland to enclose herewith a copy of a communication received this day from the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury relating to the erection of ovens in certain Unions; and I am to state that the Commissioners are anxious to commence at once the erection of ovens in Berehaven in Bantry Union, and at Binghamstown in Ballina Union; and the Commissioners request your earliest attention to the subject.

The COMMISSIONERS to Sir DENIS LE MARCHANT—Payment of Poor Rates in the Ballinrobe Union by Sir R. L. Blosse :—December 24, 1847.

THE Commissioners forward herewith, for the information of Secretary Sir George Grey, a correspondence respecting the payment of poor-rates in the Ballinrobe Union, by Sir R. L. Blosse.

The Commissioners desire me at the same time to state, that Sir R. L. Blosse has expressed a wish that the whole correspondence should be printed, and they are of opinion that the request is reasonable, and should be complied with, unless Sir G. Grey sees any objection.

Owing to the great pressure of other business, some delay has taken place in copying this correspondence.

Sir DENIS LE MARCHANT to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 30, 1847.

I HAVE laid before Secretary Sir George Grey your letter to me of the 24th instant, with its enclosures, respecting the payment of poor-rates in the Ballinrobe Union, by Sir R. L. Blosse, and I am directed to acquaint you, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that Sir George Grey thinks it most reasonable that information should be laid before Parliament disproving the former statement with regard to Sir R. L. Blosse; but Sir George Grey wishes the Poor Law Commissioners to consider whether this object might not be obtained without presenting and printing the whole of the voluminous correspondence which accompanied your letter, and as Parliament is not now sitting, there will be time to consider this suggestion before any further papers can be presented.

The COMMISSIONERS to Sir DENIS LE MARCHANT, in reply :—
January 15, 1848.

THE Commissioners concur in the suggestion of Secretary Sir George Grey, that it is not necessary to present to Parliament and print the whole of the voluminous correspondence relating to this matter.

The letter of the Commissioners to Sir R. L. Blosse, dated 17th July, 1847, briefly recapitulates the whole transaction, and conveys the views of the Commissioners regarding the conduct of Mr. Otway, Assistant Commissioner, and Mr. Bowen, collector of the poor-rates, against each of whom Sir R. L. Blosse preferred complaints.

A copy of that letter, and of the subsequent correspondence between Sir George Grey and the Commissioners on the subject, will, the Commissioners think, suffice to place the matter before Parliament in its proper light.

ENCLOSURE.—The COMMISSIONERS to Sir R. L. Blosse:—July 17, 1847.

THE POOR LAW Commissioners have received Mr. Ball's report of his inquiry into your complaint of Mr. Bowen's conduct as rate collector in the Ballinrobe Union, in improperly representing to the Commissioners that you were a defaulter for poor-rates, which representation was made public, by Mr. Otway's observations upon it having been included in certain correspondence presented to the House of Commons by command of Her Majesty during the present Session of Parliament.

This representation was contained in a letter from Mr. Bowen to the Commissioners, dated 28th December last, and was in the following terms:—

"Mr. O'Reilly, land agent to Sir R. Lynch Blosse, has also declined to pay for his tenants under 4*l.*, alleging that he cannot get in the rents."

The observations of Mr. Otway, endorsed on a paper containing a resolution of the Ballinrobe Board of Guardians the 7th January, are as follows:—

"Mr. Bowen, the rate collector, in his letter to the Commissioners, mentioned rate as due by Sir R. L. Blosse and Mr. C. Kenny, J. P., who lives in the town of Ballinrobe." (The inaccuracies in the printed correspondence have arisen in the press.)

In your letter to the Commissioners of the 16th ultimo you state, that you cannot concur in their opinion that Mr. Otway's conduct was justifiable and proper; and you complain that Mr. Otway selected your case and did not give the names of all persons, who were represented by Mr. Bowen as owing rates.

The Commissioners now assure you, for your further satisfaction in regard to Mr. Otway, that no other names than those of yourself and Mr. C. Kenny, were mentioned in the letter of Mr. Bowen to which Mr. Otway's observations apply. Those observations were made to the Commissioners in a shape entirely confidential, were not intended, and were not likely to be made public, and in making them Mr. Otway did not assert or affirm any fact regarding yourself, but merely recited the effect of Mr. Bowen's communication.

The Commissioners cannot doubt that you will feel satisfied with this statement as regards Mr. Otway; but, in any case, they now repeat their opinion that his conduct was perfectly justifiable and proper, and that you have no ground of complaint against him for referring, as he did, to this communication of Mr. Bowen's, in his confidential correspondence with the Commissioners.

In reference to your complaint against Mr. Bowen, his statement regarding yourself appears to have been derived by Mr. Bowen from a person named Glynn, employed by him in the collection of the rates. From the evidence taken by Mr. Ball, the Commissioners are satisfied that Glynn did give that information to Mr. Bowen, and that the latter in making the statement believed it to be true.

If the evidence of the person named Glynn could safely be relied on, it would appear that at the time Mr. Bowen wrote his letter of the 28th December, your agents were avoiding payment of the rates on other grounds than those alleged by them, namely, their objection to pay all that was alleged to be due. Contradicted, however, as Glynn was, by the evidence of other witnesses, and not meriting, as the Commissioners believe, the confidence which appears to have been placed in him by Mr. Bowen, the Commissioners cannot consider the allegation borne out by proof, that either yourself, or the persons acting on your behalf, had refused to pay poor-rates for which you were legally liable; and the Commissioners are well satisfied that your own desire was, that your agents should punctually pay on demand the poor-rates which were due on your account.

The Commissioners, therefore, while acquitting Mr. Bowen of wilful misrepresentation in his letter to the Commissioners of the 28th December, can by no means excuse him for not informing himself better of the facts of the case, and for making and reiterating assertions injurious to yourself upon information supplied to him by a person not deserving his confidence, when, by direct communication with yourself or your agents, Mr. Bowen might have avoided all misunderstanding on the subject.

The Commissioners will communicate their views to Mr. Bowen, and they will request him, while acting as collector of poor-rates, to be careful as to the facts which he may repeat to the Commissioners, and the character of the parties whom he employs, and from whom he derives his information.

SLIGO UNION.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 15, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday.

A great part of the able-bodied paupers who were admitted to the poor-house last day of meeting have since gone out, with the expectation of getting out-door relief, but their vacancies have been filled up by those admitted yesterday. There are now upwards of 1400 in the house.

In consequence of the weather having been so wet during the past week, the sheds in progress of erection could not be completed, as was expected; the Guardians had therefore, for want of room, to send back to their respective divisions the large crowd of applicants, and as their destitution was most manifest, it was considered necessary to place them on out-door relief till next day of meeting, when accommodation can be obtained.

A deputation, formed by the mayor and clergymen of Sligo, waited on the Guardians yesterday, and requested them to take some steps for the immediate relief of the able-bodied in this town, 1500 of whom (all men able to work) they represented as being without employment or means of subsistence. The deputation was advised to apply to the Commissioners of Public Works for money, sufficient to complete two unfinished roads in the neighbourhood of the town, in order to give those men employment for the present.

After the intended additional accommodation is occupied, and if found insufficient, a special meeting of the Guardians will be called, to take into consideration the propriety of applying for permission to place the destitute, specified in the 2nd section of the Act, on the out-door relief.

There was lodged by the collectors in the hands of the treasurer, the sum of 1228*l.*, rates collected last week; in some of the electoral divisions, the attendance of the military was required to protect the collectors, and was found useful in making an example of the refractory rate-payers. I have recommended to Colonel M'Arthur, commanding officer in this district, the necessity of applying for additional troops for the use of this Union, as I fear their services will be required; there is but a very small party quartered in this town, and none in any other part of the county.

REPLY to the above :—December 16, 1847.

THE Commissioners regret to observe, that in consequence of the destitution of a large number of applicants, for whom there was not room in the workhouse, the Board of Guardians, at their last meeting, felt it necessary to give those destitute persons out-door relief until next meeting.

The Commissioners desire to observe, that if the persons so relieved are not of the classes described in the 1st section of the Act 10 Vic., c. 31, the relief is not legal without an order, under the 2nd section of that Act.

This, however, is not stated with a view of inducing an application for such an order, but in the hope that the Guardians will be prompt in the adoption of means for extending the in-door accommodation for the classes that cannot legally be relieved out of the workhouse.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 22, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians for this Union yesterday.

The poor-house was as usual, surrounded by paupers, mostly able-bodied, who were exceedingly clamorous for relief; 542 were admitted, who entirely filled the new sheds and other accommodation, afforded by the removal of the orphan children to the house provided for them.

From the crowded state of the house, fever and dysentery are on the increase; two additional fever sheds are to be erected immediately, to meet this advance of disease.

Having been unwell myself last week, and unable to attend personally to the collection of the rates, that especial part of my duties has not progressed as well as usual: 253*l.* was lodged with the treasurer during the past week.

I have been unable to impress on the minds of the Guardians, the subject of your communications of the 13th and 17th instant, relative to the appointment of assistant relieving officers, in lieu of the additional salary proposed to be given to the permanent officers; and they object to make such appointments for the reason set forth in their resolution, to be submitted to you by the Clerk to the Board.

It has been found very difficult to carry out the system of the New Poor Law, from the laxity of the Guardians, a few of whom only can be made attend.

Mr. Wynne, the Chairman, Mr. Wood, and some few more gentlemen, deserve the highest credit for their assiduity and labour, meeting at 11 o'clock in the morning, and from that hour until 7 o'clock and late in the evening; perseveringly endeavouring to perform the very onerous duties imposed on them, and meeting frequently more than twice the same week, with the most indefatigable spirit. I would suggest the necessity of the Commissioners' interference in this respect, and a letter from them would, I am sure, have the effect of drawing the attention of the Guardians to the trust for which they were appointed, and to the wants of their poor, which otherwise, and at their own cost, must sadly be neglected.

REPLY to the above:—December 24, 1847.

THE Commissioners have caused a circular letter to be addressed to each Guardian of the Union, drawing his attention to the statements contained in your report as to the number of persons applying for admission into the workhouse, and the difficulty experienced in carrying out the system of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, from the neglect of the Guardians to attend to the duties of their office.

I am at the same time to state, that if the Guardians, notwithstanding that circular, still neglect their duty, the Commissioners are prepared to consider their responsibility and powers under the 18th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 29, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians for this Union yesterday.

The poor-house still continues full, and is incapable of containing more. To meet the pressure of able-bodied applicants, it was recommended to appoint a Committee of five Guardians, and empower them to rent a large house in the town, and remove the lunatics and infirm thereto, under proper care.

The large building occupied at present by the lunatics being adjacent to the fever hospital, can then be made available for further hospital accommodation, as the daily increase of fever and dysentery in the house requires much more room than can be at present commanded.

The Committee were also ordered to hire another house for the able-bodied paupers, in order to diminish the applicants for out-door relief. A contract for the erection of two more sheds has been entered into. Every exertion is being made to prevent the necessity of placing the destitute of the 2nd and 3rd sections of the Act, on the out-door list.

The collection of the rates is steadily progressing; 1030*l.* was lodged in the treasurer's hands during last week.

REPLY to the above:—January 1, 1848.

I AM to request that you will have the goodness to furnish the Commissioners with an immediate communication as to whether additional workhouse accommodation in the Union can be procured, about which it appears that there should not be any further delay.

Sligo Union.

I am at the same time to enclose herewith, for your information, copies of orders extending the powers of the Board of Guardians for giving out-door relief; and I am to request that you will report to the Commissioners, as to the necessity which now exists for the issue of either of these orders, in the Sligo Union.

The Commissioners conclude that all the persons hitherto relieved in the workhouse, who come within the classes specified by the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, have been discharged and relieved out of the house, with a view to the accommodation being exclusively used as a test of destitution of able-bodied applicants for relief, and of classes not coming within those provisions.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 30, 1847.

I BEG to acquaint you, that from the difficulty opposed to the enforcing of the collection of the rates, and the threats held out to all who assist the collectors, it is impossible almost to procure carts at any price to remove the corn seized from the defaulters.

Under these circumstances, I am induced to apply to you for an order for six artillery or commissariat waggons and horses from Athlone, it being the nearest depôt. There is sufficient room in the Sligo barracks for 12 horses. The resident magistrate coincides with me in the belief, that were such a step adopted, it would make a salutary example of the refractory rate-payers, and be a means of the more speedy collection of the outstanding rates.

The COMMISSIONERS to Sir W. M. SOMERVILLE, Bart., M.P:—
January 1, 1848.

I AM directed to forward to you herewith, a copy of a report which they have received from Captain Gilbert, Temporary Poor Law Inspector of Sligo Union, applying for the use of some artillery waggons, for the conveyance of goods seized by collectors of poor-rate, and I am to request that you will be so good as to submit the application for the consideration of his Excellency the Lord-Lieutenant.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 5, 1848.

I HAVE to state that the additional workhouse accommodation, as stated in my report of the 29th ultimo, has been procured. A large storehouse on the quay, surrounded by a wall, and capable of containing 700 people, has been hired. One-half of the building will be ready for occupation on the 7th instant, and the remainder in about a month.

The sheds mentioned in my preceding report, are also in progress of erection.

Two hundred and seventy-five of the able-bodied were admitted to the poor-house, in room of that number who declined entering after having been admitted last day.

Three hundred of the same class were also ordered to be admitted; and the heads of families were sent home for their wives and children; but, as on other occasions, it is probable they will decline the test.

430*l.* rates collected was lodged with the treasurer during last week.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 12, 1848.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians at the poor-house yesterday.

Two hundred able-bodied paupers were admitted, and 100 more were ordered admittance, and sent home for their wives and children.

The additional accommodation intended to be procured by the Guardians has not been yet obtained, as the owner of the large store they endeavoured to rent, is at present in England, and until he returns there must be some delay in the proceedings.

There are at present 1542 paupers in the house, 344 of whom are sick, principally of fever and dysentery, there being of these two diseases an increase of 70 since my last report: 31 deaths occurred during the past week—one of fever, and the remainder chiefly from dysentery. This unusual spread of disease in the house, was reported by the medical officer yesterday, to arise from the stagnant and offensive state of the sewers and cesspools attached to the building, and the want of a proper supply of water.

To remedy this serious evil, I applied some time back to the Board of Works for a supply of tools and implements from their store-house here, to employ the able-bodied paupers in cleaning the sewers, and for laying down pipes for the conveyance of water, which must be brought a distance of a mile and a half. Up to this time the tools have not been obtained, as there was some delay in the pricing of the articles; but I expect in a few days to have them, and to set a number of men to work, with the double advantage of employing the able-bodied, and improving the health and cleanliness of the house.

There is an improvement in the state of the collection of the rates; 1100*l.* was lodged with the treasurer last week.

REPLY to the above:—January 14, 1848.

THE Commissioners have drawn the attention of their architect and of the Board of Works, to that portion of your report, which relates to the sewerage of the workhouse and the supply of water for the inmates.

As regards the number of persons admitted into the workhouse, the Commissioners trust that care will be taken not to overcrowd the establishment, as disastrous results have invariably followed the reception of a larger number of persons into the workhouse buildings than they could properly contain.

With a view of enabling the Guardians to make additional room for the relief of able-bodied applicants, the Commissioners will issue an order authorizing the Guardians to afford out-door relief to widows with one child, and to children both of whose parents are dead. By relieving these classes and the classes coming under the first section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, out of the workhouse, much accommodation will be obtained.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 19, 1848.

I ARRIVED here yesterday, in time sufficient to attend the meeting of the Guardians for this Union at the poorhouse.

On my arrival I found the election for the situation of relieving officer for the electoral divisions of Ballintogher and Ballinakill, had terminated in favour of John Morrisson, who appears a very fit person in my opinion for the appointment, and fully capable of performing its duties.

The Commissioners' permission to place the second class of the destitute on out-door relief is not easily made available, as the option of relief outside has been offered to the orphans, but not one of them wished to leave, as they had no friends to take them, and no place they could claim as a home; the Guardians, therefore, did not wish to act uncharitably or use compulsion in this case.

For the present demand for relief by the able-bodied there is adequate room. All of that class who applied yesterday were admitted.

The house mentioned in my former reports the Guardians intended hiring, has been refused them. The Committee appointed to rent a large house succeeded in obtaining another comparatively commodious, and at a much cheaper rate, 6*l.* per month; there is accommodation for about 100 able-bodied paupers besides the lunatics (40), who are to be removed thereto.

The present idiot wards must then be turned into fever wards, as the fearful advance of disease requires much more hospital accommodation than can be afforded. One of the new fever sheds is completed, and will be occupied so soon as the walls are dried. The other shed will be finished in about 10 days, which I fear will also be required for hospital accommodation.

The number at present receiving out-door relief is 7275, which, with the numbers in the house and sheds, and the children in the house hired for them, makes a total of about 9500 receiving relief, equal to one-twelfth of the population of the Union.

Captain GILBERT to Count STRZELECKI:—January 20, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to transmit herewith, a return for the week ended 16th January instant, of the issue of relief to the juvenile destitute through the medium of the schools, in this Union. This return is the eighth transmitted to you since 20th November, 1847, from which time the poor children have been benefiting by the benevolence of the British Relief Association.

The numbers have gradually increased to 10,700 daily, the present number, which I think will be the maximum, although should I see absolute necessity, I will increase the numbers according to your kind permission.

There have been, during the past week, 64,470 rations issued, at an average expense of less than three farthings. Those rations, which consist, in general, of bread, are dearer than where I am enabled to give soup, and where the cost is little more than one farthing. In all cases, however, a substantial ration is given, whether of bread composed of rye, Indian and wheaten meal, or good meat soup well seasoned and thickened with meal and vegetables.

I need not remark on the material benefits this system of relief is to this Union; they are most manifest in decreasing the clamour and demand for relief amongst the adult and able-bodied of the destitute, who would, were not this aid afforded them, become a burden on the poor house, and an additional taxation to the already impoverished rate-payers. Many of the paupers have left the workhouse, on finding their children would be supported at the schools, and with this responsibility taken away, have endeavoured to shift for themselves.

Although from the quantity of business I have to transact in this Union, I can afford but a limited part of my time to this important point, yet every exertion in my power shall be given to further the benevolent intentions of the British Association; and I trust, that what has been already effected, will meet your approval.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 26, 1848.

ALL the able-bodied who applied for relief and were willing to enter the poor-house were admitted at the meeting of the Board of Guardians for this Union yesterday; but although the severest destitution prevails amongst this class, in some districts, still there is a disinclination to enter the poor-house more than usually manifest; the paupers urging as their objection, the dread of fever, and I regret to have to say, with some justice, for the diseased state of the house is very alarming. In my opinion, so long as steps are not taken to remove the infection of an hospital from the premises, the workhouse can never be safe or healthy. I pointed out some time ago the benefit that would accrue from the transmission of the fever and dysentery patients to the old District Temporary Fever Hospital, now occupied by the children of the poor-house: this arrangement would leave the children still in the poorhouse, afford the same amount of accommodation, besides the incalculable benefit of removing contagion from the remaining inmates. The Guardians, however, did not accede to it; and until the additional fever accommodation now in progress is completed, no sanitary measures can be adopted.

The large store-house hired for the able-bodied, will be ready for occupation in a few days.

I have to inform you, with regret, that the depôt for the Tubbercurry district was broken into on the night of the 21st instant, and 7½ cwt. meal taken away. The police have arrested several persons on suspicion; one of them, it is probable, will turn evidence against the remainder, and I hope that the punishment inflicted on them will prevent such disgraceful outrages for the future.

I have to state, in conclusion, that my strenuous exertions to enforce the collection of the rates have been more successful, and the dismissal of the collector, Jackson, by the Commissioners, has been a salutary example to the remainder. 1,142l. were lodged with the Treasurer last week.

REPLY to the above:—January 31, 1848.

THE Commissioners desire to know your own opinion as to whether there is material danger of infection from fever to destitute persons, who may receive relief in the Sligo Union workhouse at the present time.

If this be so, the Commissioners would suggest that you should make a formal application to them for an order, authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men, as the Commissioners deem it unjust that destitute persons seeking relief should be compelled, as a condition of such relief, to run any peculiar risk of losing their lives from fever.

The Commissioners entirely approve of not receiving fever patients into the workhouse, in the present state of the Union; and if the Guardians persist in refusing to obtain accommodation for them elsewhere, under the 16th section of the Irish Poor Law Amendment Act, the Commissioners cannot think that the Board of Guardians are performing their duties effectually.

The Commissioners desire you to bring the whole subject pointedly under the notice of the Guardians, at their meeting to-morrow.

The Commissioners have great satisfaction in learning, that there is an improvement in the collection of the rates in Sligo Union.

DONEGAL UNION.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 29, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to make my first Report of the Union of Donegal, which you have placed under my inspection.

At the meeting of the Board of Guardians on Saturday, the 27th, no able-bodied person presented himself for relief, but several cases of fever were admitted to the temporary fever sheds.

The Union house, arranged for the reception of 500 inmates, has now vacancies for 275.

The Board of Guardians, being fully alive to the necessity of the poor-rate, struck in April last, being completed in collection before any fresh rate be attempted to be made, has specially summoned the attendance of all the collectors on Friday next.

A full attendance of the Board of Guardians has also been especially required on Saturday next, the usual day of meeting, to consider whether the time has not arrived, in which the several relieving officers (already appointed and "approved of") should be ordered to commence their duties in their respective electoral divisions.

I am anxious to see these arrangements commenced, and systematically carried out, in order that, being forewarned, the Union may be fore-armed to meet any pressure that may arise, as the severer part of the winter approaches.

I am much gratified in not having yet witnessed any immediate symptoms of distress.

REPLY to the above:—December 2, 1847.

WITH reference to your remarks respecting the collection of the poor-rate, I am to state, that you are doubtless aware that it can be collected at the present season more readily than at any other period of the year, and that you are, therefore, fully alive to the importance of having the old rate closed, and a new one placed in course of collection with the least avoidable delay.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 6, 1847.

I DO myself the honour to furnish, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, my weekly report of the Union of Donegal.

In my inspection of the Union workhouse, I have had every reason to be satisfied with its cleanliness, with the propriety of everything being in its allotted place, and with its general internal economy.

The Board of Guardians has not yet granted any out-door relief.

Two able-bodied men, applicants for relief, were admitted, as also other applicants strictly under classes 1, 2, and 3, which still leaves 188 vacancies.

Three of the four collectors of the poor-rates having attended with their accounts, which were not deemed satisfactory, proper measures have been adopted to inflict the fine of 5*l.* upon them; the fourth was reported to be ill.

One of these collectors, with a small arrear, stated to be in his possession, importuned very earnestly for a yet longer time, 28 days, to produce his money; I granted him but 24 hours, and as he had neglected to keep his appointment, is one of the three under summons.

But I confidently expect the arrears of the old rate will be early forthcoming, particularly as the Board of Guardians, seem cordially disposed to support me, by a firm line of conduct and a determination to enforce a rigid discharge of the duties of the several collectors.

The Commissioners may be assured, I do not undervalue the importance of another rate being struck with the least avoidable delay; for though the markets produce large quantities of cereal food, and a good supply of fish is still caught, fresh herrings being sold at 8s. per thousand, there yet remains the fact of not one pound of potatoes being exposed for sale.

Hence it is incumbent for all our energies to be directed to the collection of the rates, to be fore-armed.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 13, 1847.

SINCE I had the honour of making my last weekly communication, I have inspected some of the townlands which are in the electoral divisions of Mount Charles, Clogher, and Laghy; in the two latter employment being found for the peasantry, there were no symptoms of destitution; but in Mount Charles there were all the symbols of approaching want not to be misunderstood; all there seemed to be in search of employment, and with the exception of young females from 9 to 15 years of age, who were taught in various industrial schools to supply needlework for small pecuniary emolument, I may state, from appearances and inquiry, the search by able-bodied men for employment had been fruitless.

On the affairs of these industrial schools I am in communication with Count Strzelecki, the agent to the British Relief Association.

At the ordinary meeting of the Board of Guardians on Saturday, measures were instructed to be taken to summon the collectors of the poor-rates for a breach of the instructions, under Sections 100 and 102, with the view to levy the fines therein specified. Without some such stringent measures to enforce on the part of the collectors, the correct discharge of the duties they have voluntarily undertaken to perform, the legal provision of the poor will become inoperative; the delays of the law, however, will for a time postpone the correction to be applied to the neglect of these duties, but the Commissioners may feel assured no endeavours will, on my part, be withheld to stimulate and exhort the collectors to collect the poor-rates.

So large an arrear as nearly 1200*l.*, uncollected from a rate struck in April last, has left the proceedings of the collectors without the smallest shadow of excuse.

The Commissioners will be gratified to learn that only one able-bodied pauper presented himself for relief, and was admitted into the Union house; a few cases of women and children were also admitted, leaving still 167 vacancies.

The Board of Guardians have not yet administered any out-door relief, and as the resident proprietors are fully alive to the advantages of reproductive labour being afforded to the peasantry, instead of unproductive idleness in a workhouse, I entertain sanguine hopes that the workhouse will not be filled for some time.

If there were required any fresh proofs of the benefit which arises to landed proprietors from the improved cultivation of the soil, I beg to report that Mr. Hamilton, a resident proprietor in the vicinity of Donegal, drained and sub-soiled in the spring, a few acres of ground considered as of little value, at a cost of fifteen pounds per acre, including seed; and having sown these acres in April last with Swede turnips, he is now realizing in December, no less a sum than 28*l.* 15*s.* for every acre thus sown.

From the experience gained by Mr. Hamilton, it is scarcely necessary for me here to state that he is now draining very largely with advances of money furnished by the Crown.

I have unbounded satisfaction in being enabled to report that the conduct of the whole population continues as heretofore, peaceable and orderly.

Captain HERBERT to The COMMISSIONERS:—December 20, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acquaint you, for the information of the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, that owing to the employment found for the population generally in the Union, (except in the electoral divisions of Inver and Mount Charles,) three able-bodied men only became applicants for relief during the week, and were admitted into the Union poor-house.

Donegal Union.

A few additional cases of women and children were also admitted, leaving still 119 vacancies.

No out-door relief has yet been granted.

Being fully sensible of the expediency of a new rate being made with the least avoidable delay, the Board of Guardians have been specially summoned to attend on Thursday next, the 23rd instant, with a view to strike a rate of 3s. in the pound throughout the Union.

The Commissioners may be assured every available means will be taken to place the new rate in an accelerated course of collection.

Under these assurances, the Board of Guardians have considered that the relieving officers might blend, with great advantage to the Union, their present services with those of collecting the poor-rates; and that such an admixture of duties, with a small poundage for collection, would operate as a stimulus to the relieving officers, and prove economical to the Union.

A communication to this effect will be submitted to you by the Chairman, and as I have every reason to consider it will answer and work well in this Union, I have to record my approval of the measure.

The weekly markets have been well attended with cereal food, with a large supply of turnips and cabbages.

REPLY to the above:—December 27, 1847.

WITH reference to the proposal to cause the relieving officers to act as collectors of poor-rate, I am to state that the Commissioners think that the two offices ought not to be united, as each requires the whole time of an active individual.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 26, 1847.

HAVING still 118 vacancies, no out-door relief has yet commenced. During the week, one able-bodied person had been admitted.

The Board of Guardians were specially summoned for the 23rd, to take into consideration the necessity of striking a new rate of 3s. in the pound, throughout the Union, adopting for their proceedings the "substance of instructions" from the Treasury, forwarded in a circular, bearing date the 16th September, 1847.

With every disposition to have a uniform rate of 3s. struck, it was represented in forcible terms, that such a rate would operate injuriously on any electoral division which had supported its own poor without having received any advances from the late Relief Commission, and the meeting was adjourned for further deliberation, till the 30th instant.

It is gratifying to state that, employment being generally afforded to able-bodied persons, except at the electoral division of Inver and Mount Charles, destitution is comparatively kept at bay.

At the weekly market a large supply of cereal food exchanged ownership, as well as an abundance of turnips and cabbages.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of GUARDIANS:—December 28, 1847.

I AM to state, for the information of the Board of Guardians of Donegal Union, that they have received a report from their Inspector, Captain Herbert, in which he states that the Board of Guardians was specially summoned for the 23rd instant, to take into consideration the necessity of striking a uniform rate of 3s. in the pound, adopting for these proceedings the substance of instructions from the Treasury, in a circular of the 16th September last, and that it was represented that such a rate would operate injuriously on any electoral division which had supported its own poor, without having received any advances from the late Relief Commissioners, and that the consideration of the subject was adjourned to the 30th instant.

In reference to this report, I am to state that the instructions from the Treasury had reference only to electoral divisions from which sums were due on account of advances under the Temporary Relief Act, and accordingly, in deciding on the amount of rate to be levied in the several divisions, the Guardians will only be required to levy such an amount of rate as would suffice for the ordinary expenditure under the Irish Poor Relief Acts in those divisions from which no sums are due to the Relief Commissioners, but in the cases of divisions which owe any sums to the Relief Commissioners a rate of not less than 3s. in the pound will be required, if the sum requisite for ordinary expenditure, together with the sum due to the Relief Commissioners, would equal or exceed 3s. in the pound.

I am at the same time to forward herewith, for the information of the Guardians, a schedule showing the amount of the loan to be repaid by each electoral division.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 3, 1848.

THE Board of Guardians, on the 30th ultimo, unanimously struck a rate of 3s. in the pound throughout the Union, excepting the electoral divisions of Loghy and Lough Derg, on which a rate of 1s. 6d. was struck, being sufficient to meet their proportion of probable expenses for the current year. The Guardians have likewise given directions for the rate to be accelerated in its collection by every available means, and will advertize for other collectors.

Legal measures have been taken against the present collectors, for wilful disobedience of orders, in not appearing every week to have their accounts audited.

Eighty of a number of defaulters of the poor rates were summoned at the petty sessions, at Balintra, last week; 30 of them paid their rates before the day, 25 on the very morning of the sessions, and five paid actually in Court, leaving but 20 to be proceeded against.

In the face of such facilities to procure the poor rates the conduct of the several collectors appears the more reprehensible.

The Union poor-house having still many vacancies no out-door relief has yet commenced.

The markets still continue to be well supplied with grain.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 8, 1848.

In my last report I mentioned a rate of 3s. in the pound had been struck throughout the Union, except on Laghy, and on Lough Derg, whereon a rate of 1s. 6d. in the pound had been considered sufficient.

For Lough Derg, it should be the Electoral Division of Templecam, and I beg the favour to allow the correction to be made.

The clerk of the Union reports that, at the petty sessions held at Donegal on Donegal Union. the 5th instant, the under-mentioned collectors of poor-rates were fined the several sums as noted against their names, for disobedience of the orders of the Board of Guardians, viz. :—

Mr. Hoey, 20s.
Mr. Michael Griffin, 20s.
Mr. Thomas Reed, 20s.
Mr. M'Laughlin, 1s.

These measures will, I trust, tend to convince the collectors of the error of their conduct, and satisfy them, the law is powerful enough to meet their case.

At the weekly market there was a large supply of cereal food, with an abundance of excellent Swedish turnips, and also cabbages.

The Union workhouse having still many vacancies, no out-door relief has been granted.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 15, 1848.

I do myself the honour to state, that being enabled to attend the ordinary meeting of the Board of Guardians, I was much pleased to find the Union workhouse had still 126 vacancies.

Much destitution is stated by the relieving officers to prevail in the electoral divisions of Inver and of Mountcharles; but still the destitute refrain from seeking admission to the workhouse, and struggle on to hold their little plots of land.

The Board of Guardians, fully sensible of the importance of keeping the workhouse as the test of destitution, have been seeking to hire premises for the children at present in the house, but hitherto without success. The next consideration will be, therefore, for Classes 1, 2, and 3.

The medical officer of the Union having reported many cases of diarrhoea of a severe type among the inmates, the Board of Guardians very humanely ordered rice to be mixed with the daily food.

Diarrhoea and influenza are at present very prevalent throughout the Union.

The weekly markets continue to be well supplied with grain, with excellent Swedish turnips, and with cabbages.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 17, 1848.

I do myself the honour to forward the enclosed return of the schools in the Union of Donegal, for the information of Count Strzelecki, the Agent at Dublin for the British Relief Association.

The Board of Guardians are making every exertion in carrying out the operation of the Poor Law; and I do certify that any assistance afforded to the school children will tend greatly to ameliorate the destitution now spreading in many of the electoral divisions.

Donegal, January 18, 1848.

GEORGE F. HERBERT, Commander R. N.,
Inspector of Poor Laws for the Union of Donegal.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 22, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state that other collectors for the poor rate having offered themselves in pursuance of public notice, at poundage rates, varying from 6*d.* to 9*d.*, their names will be shortly transmitted to the Commissioners for approval.

I am much gratified in being enabled to report the Board of Guardians have been unanimous in requiring the collectors for the new rate recently struck, to find bonds and solvent securities, that the rate be collected by the 1st of May.

Donegal Union.

The former collectors have been called upon to close their books by the 27th instant, and to present them to the Board on that day, with the view of having the arrears, small I believe in amount, entered on the new rate books.

I avail myself of the occasion of a fair attendance of the Guardians to impress upon their minds the necessity of setting a good example, individually, of an early payment of their rates; and to the chairman as a magistrate of influence, I ventured to appeal for his good example in particular.

The laudable conduct of many of the resident gentry, of finding reproductive labour for the able-bodied persons, rather than permit them to have recourse to the workhouse, is highly to be commended, and has materially benefitted the Union. These advantages would yet extend to a wider sphere if Mr. Brook of Lough Eask, the diligent chairman of the Board of Guardians, could receive his first instalment under the "Land Improvement Act," the requisite papers, as represented to me, having been lodged in office some time back.

A refractory disposition having manifested itself among the able-bodied men in the workhouse, on being called to their work on Thursday morning last, the master very properly selected one of the most prominent, and confined him in the refractory ward. This had the immediate effect of restoring order, by the people resuming their labour.

It is not requisite for me to enlarge upon the absolute necessity of disorderly or refractory symptoms being checked in its earliest bud; and as this has been the first, I trust the firmness displayed by the master on this occasion may prevent a recurrence.

The Guardians continue their exertions to find a house suitable for the reception of the children, that increased room may thereby be afforded, and the test of the workhouse be invariably used for applicants claiming relief. At present we have vacancies for 107 in the house.

The weekly markets continues to be fairly supplied with grain and with excellent Swedish turnips.

REPLY to the above:—January 25, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners will forward to the Board of Works an extract from your report in regard to Mr. Brook's application under the Land Improvement Act.

Captain HERBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 29, 1848.

VARIOUS difficulties having occurred in procuring out-door accommodation for the children at present in the Union workhouse, the experienced eye of Mr. Otway, who was present at the last Board-day of the Guardians, recommended some of the under rooms at the workhouse might be converted into rooms for the children; and, accordingly, a Sub-Committee of the Guardians are progressing in the necessary arrangements.

The severity of the weather has brought into the workhouse a few more destitute, but not many able-bodied persons; the vacancies have now dwindled down to 83.

Four or five cases of sickness have occasioned temporary out-door relief to be granted for the first time.

The new rate-books are ready for the entry of the arrears of the old rate, and measures have been adopted to procure the old books from the collectors.

The weekly market had a very thin display of anything, to be attributed rather to the severity of the weather, and the depth of snow on the roads, than to any other cause.

REPLY to the above:—February 2, 1848.

IN reference to your statement that it is proposed to convert some of the under rooms of the workhouse into rooms for the accommodation of children, I am to request that you will be so good as to state precisely what rooms it is intended to convert into rooms for the children, how they are intended to be occupied, whether as day rooms or dormitories, and what additional accommodation is expected to be gained by the arrangement.

The BOARD of WORKS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 31, 1848.

Donegal Union.

WITH reference to your letter of the 26th instant, calling attention to an extract from report of Captain Herbert (which you annex), respecting the application of Mr. Brooke, of Lough Eske, for a loan under the Land Improvement Act, I am directed to acquaint you that an order has been made for a loan of 1000*l.* to Mr. Brooke, and only awaits the receipt of the bond for the due application of the loan, previous to issuing the certificate for the first instalment of the loan.

BALLYSHANNON UNION.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 2, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report the proceedings of the Guardians of this Union at their ordinary meeting, held on the 27th ultimo, and also at a special meeting which was held on the 1st instant.

Upon the 27th ultimo, according to advertisement to that effect, five Relieving Officers were elected; a proposition was made by one of the Guardians that they should not enter upon the duties, nor be put under pay, till a future period; but this I negatived, stating that it was alone on the condition that they, at once, enter on their duties, that the Commissioners had consented to the change of districts, as recommended by the Guardians, and also to the reduction of the aggregate amount of salaries.

I laid before the Guardians the estimate for the support of the fever hospital, whereupon they ordered a cheque for 30*l.* to be drawn in favour of the treasurer of the Relief Committee on account, and that the payment of the balance should be deferred till Wednesday the 1st instant, when the accounts could be examined more minutely, and if a greater sum appeared due, payment should be made.

Yesterday, the 1st instant, a special meeting of the Guardians was held, for the purpose of making inquiry and investigation as to the solvency of the persons who had been named and proposed, as securities for the Relieving Officers; and after a scrutiny of each, those offered by Mr. Michael Daly were objected to as quite insufficient, and consequently repudiated by the Board, and the Clerk was directed to inform Mr. Daly that he must procure others to present for their approval, at their ordinary meeting to be held upon the 4th instant.

The Finance Committee having audited and passed the accounts of the temporary fever hospital, and forwarded them to the Guardians, it was agreed that the balance appearing due after the payment of 30*l.* already made, should be supplied, and also the funds necessary for its future support.

I find there are at present in the workhouse many married females with families, whose husbands are in England or Scotland, and some actually employed in this country, whilst their families are being supported by means of rates. This latter class can be proceeded against under the Vagrant Act, but the former it would be almost impossible to find, migrating as they do, in search of employment. The Guardians have been considering the propriety of discharging these families altogether, and I request information whether this course may be permitted.

There is another point on which I have some difficulty, which is, the admission to the workhouse of persons having no fixed residence within the Union, or who may have lately come to reside within it. The Guardians invariably refuse to admit such persons on the ground that this is not, or may not be, strictly speaking, the Union to which they belong, and yet some whom I have seen refused under these circumstances were evidently in abject distress; and I must confess, it appears to me a hardship that a man is liable to a prosecution for begging, and yet be refused the means of obviating the necessity to do so.

Throughout the country generally, the people present the most wretchedly, squalid appearance, and it is evident that those who are endeavouring to support themselves at home are not half fed; a great number are at present living on turnips, and as that description of crop is fast disappearing in the country, I apprehend in a month or two hence, very general and severe distress. Dysentery is very prevalent in the workhouse, and on the increase, and I think it is in some degree attributable to the want of shoes and stockings, the yards not having been stoned, or any means provided to carry off surface water; the damp of course adds to the evil.

Many of the able paupers that I had put to break stones, for the purpose of laying over and improving the yards, have been taken into the infirmary, in consequence of dysentery. The doctor is of opinion that the dietary requires to be changed, and he also thinks the want of covering for the feet has increased the tendency to this disorder.

I have again to report the very wretched state of the sewerage connected with the workhouse and yards. It is impossible to conceive anything more filthy or obnoxious than the female side of the house from this cause—the sewers empty themselves into a sort of cesspool, immediately outside the yard wall, and as there is no means of this discharging itself, the effluvia arising from it is most offensive, and must be calculated to engender disease.

REPLY to the above :—December 3, 1847.

IN reference to your request for information, as to whether the Guardians may be permitted to discharge from the workhouse, the families of men who are in England or Scotland seeking employment, or who are in employment in this country, I am to state that if the parties are destitute, the Commissioners think that the Guardians would not be justified in discharging them from the workhouse, but the Commissioners think that the relief given in all such cases should be by way of loan; at the same time, every effort should be made to discover the husbands, and, wherever practicable, proceedings should be taken against them under the 10 and 11 Vic., c. 84.

As regards the refusal of the Guardians to admit applicants for relief, on the ground that they do not belong to the Union, although such applicants are in a state of abject distress, I am to state that the Guardians are by no means justified in refusing relief on such a ground. The Union in which a person is found destitute is the Union in which relief ought to be administered; and the Commissioners think that the provisions of the Vagrant Act to which you refer, are founded upon this supposition.

The Commissioners will again communicate with the architect on the subject of the sewerage; they rely, however, upon your urging the Board of Guardians to take such steps as may be in their power in regard to this and the several other matters adverted to in your report, and especially to press upon them the importance of being guided by the advice of the medical officer in providing whatever may be necessary to maintain the workhouse inmates in a healthy state.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 13, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report concerning the proceedings of the Guardians of this Union, held on the 11th instant.

It will be perceived, on reference to the minutes, that the views and instructions of the Commissioners are now more likely to be carried out than heretofore, and I have every hope that the business of the Union will, in future, be conducted on a different system to that which has hitherto been pursued.

I shall after the meeting of the house committee, which is to meet for the first time on Wednesday next, report what steps are to be taken to improve the very wretched condition the workhouse is at present in; until then there is nothing that calls for special notice save the intention of the Board to remove the children of the workhouse to a separate establishment, and on this point I shall be anxious to hear from the Commissioners their views and wishes.

It would ill become me to detail to the Commissioners the difficulties and many personal annoyances I have experienced in carrying out their instructions and inducing their adoption by the Guardians, but I shall feel myself amply repaid, if the course I have pursued will enable me to succeed in having the law administered in a more satisfactory manner, and with a Board hitherto so inimical.

REPLY to the above :—December 14, 1847.

I AM to express the satisfaction of the Commissioners at the statements contained in your Report of the 13th instant. With reference to the proposed removal of the workhouse children to a separate establishment, I am to state that the Commissioners fully approve of the proposal; and, as regards your request to be informed of the views of the Commissioners on the point, the Commissioners will be ready to furnish you with any instructions you may require, on being informed of the specific points on which such instructions are required.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 16, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report, for your information, the proceedings of the house, or visiting committee, of which I obtained the appointment on Saturday, the 11th instant, at the ordinary meeting of the Board of Guardians held that day.

The following gentlemen, members of the Committee, visited the workhouse with me on the 15th instant, Messrs. Davis, Brady, Bloomfield, and Allingham, and I took that opportunity of pointing out to them the heavy and serious responsibility that devolved upon the Guardians, to whom the management of a Union formed for the relief of the poor is confided, and that their duties were of a two-fold character, independent of the many minor matters of detail which need not be noticed in this Report, but which nevertheless tend in their proper discharge to increase the onus which devolves on Poor Law Guardians: the first of these duties consisting in the extension of wholesome and sufficient relief to all destitute persons, so that none of their fellow-creatures should be lost from want of necessary food and raiment; the second, that the distribution of that provision and relief should be as economically afforded as was compatible with the due performance of the first.

After considerable discussion on these points, and combating the opinion of Mr. Brady in particular, "that no matter how badly kept they were, that it was preferable to their previous state of life," we proceeded to examine the internal condition of the workhouse, and the state of its inmates.

On entering the male and female schools, the children, I regret to say, presented a sickly and attenuated appearance, and we found a want of proper clothing, particularly shoes and stockings; and I pointed out that an alteration in the dietary, and a supply of warm clothing suited to the inclemency of the approaching season was requisite.

Upon inspection of the infirmary, we found a considerable portion of the workhouse inmates suffering from dysentery, the number of patients on that day being 94, which confirmed my view that a change of food was necessary to adults as well as to the children; and turning towards those employed in breaking stones, and laying over the yard, we remarked the same want of shoes and stockings, which must greatly increase this disorder.

Upon examination of the yards, they were found in a most neglected state, except the women's, at which I have had the able paupers employed since my arrival; but so many have been taken to the infirmary from time to time, that the completion has been delayed; however, at the farthest now, another fortnight will, I trust, finish it; and I am convinced that the yards having been heretofore in grass, and therefore holding the rain-water, the exhalations from them, added to the damp under foot, have acted prejudicially on the health of the inmates.

The sewers from the women's yard were originally carried only through it, and allowed to discharge immediately outside the wall, and a most offensive effluvia from the cesspool, so formed, is wafted through the house. I pointed out the necessity that a covered drain should be made to convey the water to a distance from the house, and a cesspool then properly sunk at its termination, which might be allowed to waste itself amongst the fissures of the rock upon which the workhouse is built.

I pointed out the necessity of at once having this done, as greatly tending to promote the sanitary condition of the workhouse, which was one of the most imperative and paramount duties of the Guardians, not alone as regards it, but in connexion with the community that reside about the workhouse, as the prevalence of any epidemic there, must eventually spread itself through the town.

I urged the Committee to impress upon the Guardians the sound policy of instituting a system of out-door relief to old and infirm persons now in the workhouse, as calculated to afford much additional accommodation, and thereby prove a test to able-bodied paupers seeking relief.

In conclusion, I impressed upon the Committee that they should induce the Board of Guardians, by every means in their power, to encourage employment both by their example and advice, as it is alone by the increased productiveness of the country, and the absorption of surplus labour in attaining this end, that they would be enabled to meet the altered circumstances of this part of the kingdom, and avoid the ruinous taxation that must otherwise be imposed upon them to support so dense and unemployed a population.

The fruits of my endeavours will be found in the report which emanated from the Committee, and which will be transmitted on the minutes of the proceedings of the Board of Guardians at their next meeting; and it is a remarkable fact, that this is the first Committee of the sort that has been appointed since the formation of the Union.

I would beg to remark that, although I have much difficulty in managing this Board, for, taken as a whole, it is the most parsimonious I ever met, yet some members are most willing to co-operate with me; and the assistance I have received from Mr. Bloomfield in particular has materially aided in directing even the small advances which have been made, in the right direction.

That an idea may be formed of the manner in which the paupers of this Union were kept I would beg leave to notice, that shoes and stockings have been hitherto unknown as articles of necessary clothing, and this day the Committee have directed that 80 pairs should be ordered. The dietary is to be changed, and a substantial meal of rice given daily, and the drain I have so frequently urged the necessity for is to be made. I trust that by means of this Committee, I may be able to effect much good; but it will require time to overcome the prejudices of the Guardians, and to complete the improvements which I have already projected, and which are so essential to the well-being of the workhouse and Union at large.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 19, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to forward my report of the proceedings of the Guardians of this Union upon the 18th instant.

On reference to the minutes of that day it will be found, that the accounts of the temporary Fever Hospital are again referred to the Workhouse Committee, which meets next Wednesday, with an order that they shall be sent forward in a more regular and business like manner.

A schoolmistress in room of the late mistress, who resigned, was elected by a majority of the Guardians; and from the respectability of her personal appearance, and the high character I have heard of her, I consider her the fittest of any who offered to fill the situation.

I have intimated to the Count Strzelecki that very numerous applications have been made to me from Manorhamilton Union, for assistance in food to their schools, and I have every reason to believe the representations which have been made of the existence of very severe distress. Should he wish to extend any relief of that sort to them, I should be happy, with the permission of the Commissioners, to undertake its management; the persons who applied were induced to do so hearing of its being introduced in this Union, and not knowing that I have alone the charge in this, and supposing it might apply to them also. The orders which I have already received from the British Relief Association, I have informed the Guardians I shall not use, until they complete the arrangements for immediate commencement of the duties of Relieving Officers and take the necessary depôts for them; and which arrangement is absolutely necessary at once, as I never witnessed greater wretchedness and starvation than was apparent in the appearance of the applicants for admission to the workhouse the last Board days; and I would respectfully suggest, that a letter from the Commissioners to the Board, informing them that it would be necessary that these officers should at once enter upon their duties, would enable me to press the matter to a conclusion.

Considerable dissatisfaction was evinced by the Guardians, at the sealed order for the increase of 5*l.* to the salary of the Protestant chaplain; particularly by Mr. Brady, an elected Guardian, whose violence and impropriety of conduct I think it my duty specially to notice. The circumstances are as follow:—

Two of the collectors were before the Board, and I thought it a good opportunity to impress upon them the necessity of a vigorous collection of the rate, and explaining to them that the Circular of the Commissioners to collectors dated the 27th of October last, showed that it was the opinion of the law officers

Ballyshannon.
Union,

of the Crown that they could at once proceed to levy a distress upon occupiers under their warrants, and not suffer two months, as heretofore, to elapse before they proceeded in that way; and further I stated, that I expected that within two months, they should have all the rate collected, and that they should show neither favour nor affection, and above all, should not be afraid to perform their duty, and that the Guardians should be amongst the foremost, who, from their position and station, should set the example of payment, the first applied to by the collectors.

Mr. Brady then started up, using the most violent gesticulation and language, and "dared them, or me, or the Commissioners, to levy a distress upon him; "that he would like to see who would sell his cattle, or who would buy them, "and told me that I might at once prepare military, and that they should come "before he would permit it, and that he would not pay his rate these six months "to come;" and at the same time using the most opprobrious epithets to me as the representative of the Commissioners. Some members of the Board are as willing to carry out the law as any Guardians can be, but the systematic obstruction and violence of this person tend greatly to prevent them in their endeavours; and in my mind, he is urged on by others to this conduct, who perhaps do not wish to appear in the matter, as a large portion of the lower class of Guardians act with him. The course he is pursuing is seriously detrimental to the operation of the law in this Union. If it is permitted that a Guardian should thus outrage propriety, and by his violent language intimidate collectors, and with impunity incite to opposition of the law, it will be impossible in districts already sufficiently predisposed to opposition, that rates can be collected.

The COMMISSIONERS to the GUARDIANS of BALLYSHANNON UNION:—
December 22, 1847.

I AM directed to state, for the information of the Board of Guardians of Ballyshannon Union, that they have received a report from their Inspector, Mr. D'Arcy, in which he states that at the meeting of the Guardians on the 18th instant, he took the opportunity of impressing upon two of the collectors who were present the necessity of a vigorous collection of the rate, and that the Guardians should be amongst the foremost who, from their position and station, should set the example of payment, and be first applied to by the collectors, when Mr. Brady, a member of the Board, said that he dared them or the Commissioners to levy a distress upon him; that he would like to see who would sell his cattle, or who would buy them; that Mr. D'Arcy might at once prepare military, that they should come before he would permit it, and that he would not pay his rates for the next six months.

In reference to these observations, I am to state that it is of the utmost importance at the present time that the Guardians should set a good example by paying the rates which are due from themselves, and the Commissioners rely on the Board taking active measures to enforce the payment of rates by every individual of their own body, however unpleasant it may be to their feelings.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners do not doubt that the Guardians will perceive that if the rates payable by the Guardians remain unpaid to any extent, it will be the duty of the Commissioners to consider their responsibilities and powers, under the 18th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 2, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from the Commissioners, dated the 27th of December, enclosing me copies of letters addressed to the clerk of the Guardians of this Union, adverting to my report of Mr. Brady's conduct upon the 18th ultimo, and also a copy of that addressed to the collectors respectively; and I beg leave to state that nothing could possibly be more opportune; and I am convinced that the prompt notice taken of this circumstance by the Commissioners, will have a salutary effect upon the collection of the present rate.

There is not a doubt on my mind, that a very great disinclination is entertained by some of the Guardians to the payment of the rate, and by Mr. Brady in particular, who did not pay the rate of 6d. in the pound made on the 23rd of January, 1847, until the last week in the October following, and his name was actually returned as a defaulter upon a list made by Kelly, the collector, just as I arrived here; but he (Mr. Brady) came in, scratched it out himself, and paid the money then nearly nine months due. Within the last week, he further evinced his disinclination by endeavouring to induce the clerk to erase his name out of the rate-book, and substitute his son's for a considerable part of his rate, as he paid a portion for the place he resides, and wished to evade paying for a farm he holds at a distance from his house, and at the same time appear upon the return to be made by the collectors to the Commissioners, as one of the Guardians who had paid up his rate.

Total amount of rate collected in the Union up to 29th

Thus averaging 537*l.* for each half-year.

To rate-payers and Guardians accustomed to such small rates and so tardy a collection, it may be easily supposed how unpalatable the amount of the present rate must be, and the rapidity of its collection, 996*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* in three weeks, being widely different from 921*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* in six months.

I am more alive to the necessity of making Guardians set the example of payment, and of propriety of language, as not a sentence which transpires in the Board-room is not, immediately the Guardians separate, bruited abroad by the lower class of them, and with particular emphasis, should it be a severe thing against an Inspector, or calculated to throw any disparagement upon the law.

Upon the 17th of December, 1847, Wilson, the collector for Churchhill division, stated to me in the clerk's office, and in his presence, that, as he had come up that day, to use his own phrase, "a well-wisher of his had strongly advised him to resign this collection, for that lives would be lost about it;" and turning to me said, "to tell the plain truth, sir, they lay the blame of the big rate, and the hurry that is on them to you;" and he said, too, that "you had better mind yourself." These were his words verbatim. On the 22nd of December, after the House Committee had separated, Mr. Dickson, an ex-officio Guardian, came up to me in the street of Ballyshannon, and said, "Mr. D'Arcy, I think it but right to tell you that you should take care of yourself; for yesterday, at a fair in Leitrim, I heard one man say to another, 'This is a curious Commissioner that has come to Ballyshannon, nothing will do him but collecting the rate at the point of the bayonet;'" and Mr. Dickson went on to say that I should be careful not to be out late, &c., &c. Under these circumstances, it is not matter of surprise that I should strongly deprecate conduct such as Mr. Brady has constantly exhibited, and the coarse and violent language he makes use of; as I feel from the ignorance of the people that the big rate, as they call it, is attributed to my arrival here, and that I am a marked man. One other instance I shall give of the feeling that is abroad in regard to it. I had at one time an idea of taking a house for my family in Bundoran, three miles from this, and Mr. Cockburn, the hotel-keeper, asked me, "Is it true, Mr. D'Arcy, you are about to take a house in Bundoran." I replied, I had been thinking of it; and he said, "I would advise you, Sir, to remain in Ballyshannon. I doubt if it would be safe for you going in and out late; and I would not say this if I had not reason."

I should not have occupied so much time in detailing these personal matters, were it not that they are useful in giving the Commissioners a clear view of the mischief that may arise from the conduct of Guardians, who may express themselves violently either as against the law or those employed to administer it; and I trust the Commissioners will therefore excuse what would otherwise be egotistical.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. D'ARCY :—December 27, 1847.

I AM to forward to you the enclosed copy of a report which has been transmitted to them by the Under Secretary, relative to the death of Thomas Robinson at Carragan; and in reference thereto I am to request that you will be so good as to inquire and report on this case to the Commissioners.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. H. ROWAN to the INSPECTOR GENERAL :—December 30, 1847.

ON the 18th instant Thomas Robinson was found dead on the public road in the townland of Carragan within three miles of Belleck. The coroner held an inquest on Sunday, when the following verdict was returned :—

"We find that the deceased, Thomas Robinson, came by his death from weakness and want of daily support, and the inclemency of the weather; and we find there is no mark of violence on him, and that there is no blame attached to any one."

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 4, 1848.

REFERRING to the discovery of the body of Thomas Robinson, and the verdict of the coroner's jury thereon, I have to submit the following report :—

The deceased, with his mother, brother, and sister, had been admitted to the Ballyshannon workhouse upon the 23rd of October, 1847, and continued in it until the 12th of December following, when they requested their discharge, that they might look after some bedding and articles of furniture which remained in their house at Canakeel, which is commonly called Callagheen, and is a townland of the electoral division of Inismacsaint, and not of Boho, situate about two miles off the high road and in the hills.

On visiting the spot, I found the body had been discovered in a standing posture under a bush in a ditch; and it appeared that the deceased had there taken shelter from the storm and rain, which was very violent upon the day he is supposed to have died, which was Friday, the 17th; the discovery of the body by the police having taken place on the 18th of December.

About 12 o'clock on the 17th of December, his mother had sent him with one penny to purchase its value in meal, which he had done, and in addition, received from the person selling it, some turnips as a gratuity, and was returning when his weakness and the remarkable severity of that day occasioned his death: there can be no doubt entertained he died from weakness and destitution, hastened by the inclemency of the weather.

Anne Robinson, the mother of Thomas Robinson above referred to, with a son and daughter, are at present in the workhouse. Last evening, on my return from Canakeel, I went there to ascertain the dates of their previous admission and discharge, and found she had been re-admitted provisionally upon the 31st of December ultimo. I questioned her, and received the same information I had previously from the peasantry in the vicinity of the spot his death took place.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 9, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward my usual weekly report of the state of the Union, condition of the workhouse, and proceedings of the Guardians at their ordinary meeting, held Saturday, the 8th instant.

The causes of the difficulties that are experienced in the management of this Union are by no means few, and are increased by the want of energy and zeal amongst the Guardians generally; although some few are most active, yet, in the present crisis, it requires more than can be effected by individuals: and the possession of these qualities, in combination, by a Board of Guardians, as a whole, is almost indispensable to the working of the law—carrying out its provisions with cordiality, and to the advantage both of the rate-payers and recipients of relief.

The first cause of the difficulties above mentioned is the large amount of debt which the Guardians have contracted; and this has chiefly been induced by the very small rates they hitherto were in the habit of making, and which a slow and spiritless collection rendered less tangible; six months were consumed in receiving what should have been done in one; the current expenses still accrued, and the liabilities already incurred were farther than ever from liquidation.

This course having been pursued from the formation of the Union, had at last reached its climax, when, to heighten the dilemma, the failure of the potato crop occurred; advances were required, and received, under the Relief Commission, and

4,100*l.* was added to the debt already due. On the 6th of November, 1847, after having devoted much of the previous week to unravel the actual condition of the pecuniary affairs of the Union, I found them to be as follows;—

Amount of outstanding cheques	£900
Sundry accounts, including salaries	150
Due Poor Law Commissioners for advances	1,300
Due Relief Commissioners	4,100

Total amount liabilities £6,450

To rates sufficient to repay this large sum it appeared necessary to add, as the probable cost of relief in the workhouse for the next six months, the sum of 2,817*l.*, making a total of 9,267*l.* The Treasury Minute not requiring a larger rate than 3*s.* in the pound to be made, gave the Guardians an opportunity of refusing to strike one sufficiently large to pay at once all debts: thus, in some of the divisions, even were the whole rate collected, a balance would remain due; and to exhibit this I send a tabular form:—

—	Amount of Rate struck.	Amount it will produce.	Amount which will still remain due, if foregoing was even collected.	Amount of Rate which would have been required to meet all liabilities.
Bundoran	0 3 0	1,406 0 0	347 0 0	0 3 3
Ballintra	0 2 11	646 0 0	..	..
Kinlough	0 3 0	590 0 0	150 0 0	0 4 0

I have constantly endeavoured to explain to the Guardians that a speedy collection of the rate will mainly contribute to extricate them from their difficulties, and reduce future expenditure, as one-third at least has been added to the market price on every article they purchased, on account of their want of cash or credit.

The collection has, however, progressed better than I anticipated; and were it not for the illness of three of the collectors, it would have been even farther advanced. The first time I attended the meeting of the Guardians, I fancied, from the readiness with which they struck the rates that I showed them would be required, and the fair promises they made of compelling collectors to do their duty, that I had to deal with a Board anxious to meet their engagements, prepared to look their difficulties in the face, and set about overcoming them like men. But I regret to say, I have since learned by experience how incorrect was the estimate I had formed. Day after day resolutions, excellent in themselves, were put on their minutes; but they seemed to think they had done enough by recording them, without ever putting them into execution.

One instance, however, of a desire to aid in the collection of rates, and support the law to its fullest extent, I shall give in the case of Mr. Bloomfield, of Castle-caldwell, an ex-officio Guardian, who was absent from home, and could not attend the meeting of the Board the day the rate was struck. On his return he called at the house of the collector, asked what the amount of rate was he was liable for, immediately discharged it, and told the collector if he needed assistance, on application to him as a magistrate, he would at once afford it. Shortly after a rescue took place, the collector applied to him, warrants were issued; one of the parties is arrested, and the other has absconded.

There is a part of the district where difficulty had always been experienced in the collection of even smaller rates in better times, and Mr. Bloomfield told the collector that the day he proposed to go to those townlands he would accompany him and his driver, which he accordingly did, and being a man of great nerve and determination, and the representative of considerable property, the course he has pursued has produced the best results; so much so, that the collector told me, that if he called at a house now for rate, and that he resolved on driving for it, the people would aid him in driving their own cattle to the pound. Nothing can possibly be more deserving of praise than this conduct, and I feel pleasure in drawing the special attention of the Commissioners to it.

The condition of the workhouse is not yet by any means what I could wish, and the progress has not been made in laying down the yards with stone that I had hoped, but this is attributable to the awful amount of illness which pervades the establishment. Each day in the past week I visited it, and found that from three to five men only were able to labour out of 643 individuals; in fact, the house is one vast infirmary; and so crowded has been the hospital, that separate beds could not be provided each patient.

The pressure for workhouse relief is, as I anticipated, becoming greater, and I so stated my opinion in a previous report. Turnips are and have been almost their sole food, and as they are becoming scarce and rising in price, the people are constrained to look for relief. I think nothing can more forcibly impress the mind with the distress of the country than to see each market day the poor creatures crowding round carts of turnips with their bags, and purchasing them in stones and half-stones, as formerly they did meal. Unless rate-payers and proprietors can be induced to exert themselves, I cannot see where it is to end. Some few have availed themselves of the opportunity afforded by the Land Improvement Bill; Captain Johnston, of Kinlough, has already commenced; and Mr. Bloomfield is anxious to do so, having applied for a thousand pounds, or thereabouts, some time since, and I understand all the preliminaries have been arranged, and yet I regret to say he has not obtained the money. Were his improvements in operation, in addition to Captain Johnston's, it would greatly relieve the pressure.

I have no doubt that a little exertion of this sort on the part of the rate-payers would enable them to avoid the provision of out-door relief for able-bodied; and I have constantly laboured to get the Guardians to put in operation the clearing the house of all who may legally receive out-door relief. Were this done, and the children removed, there would be room made for at least 300. The great obstruction which has stood in the way has been want of funds; and although a very large sum (that is for this Union) has been collected in the last four weeks, yet so many persons held unpaid cheques of the Guardians, that no sooner did the treasurer receive with one hand than he paid with the other. I hope, however, to remedy this in some degree, by inducing the Guardians to stop the issue of further cheques till they have funds to meet them.

Already confidence has been restored, by the determination to make a speedy collection of the rate—and this is evinced by the numerous offers the Guardians received on the 8th instant, from persons anxious to become contractors, who two months since would not have trusted the Board for one pound's worth; and in consequence of this, and of the offer contained in the advertisement I forward, to pay weekly or monthly as required, they have been enabled to contract for two months' supply of Indian meal, at 10*l.* 5*s.* per ton; for oatmeal, 11*l.* per ton; and the four-pound loaf of best flour, at 7*d.* The saving which will be thus effected is considerable; meal of both descriptions, since my arrival, up to this, having cost 15*l.* per ton.

It will be perceived by the minutes of last day's proceedings, that the relieving officers are at once to enter on their duties, and that a special meeting of the Board is to be held on Monday, the 10th instant, to discharge those who are eligible to receive out-door relief, and who are willing to take it, and thus reduce the present over-crowded state of the house to proper limits.

Depôts are to be taken for the relieving officers; the children to be removed; and I trust the initiative steps taken to render the fullest relief at the least possible cost to the Union.

I trust the Commissioners may approve of these steps, and of the course I have taken to carry out their views.

ENCLOSURE.

THE Board of Guardians of the Ballyshannon Union will take tenders, on Saturday next, the 8th instant, from persons wishing to contract for one or two months, to supply the workhouse with oaten and Indian meal, and good loaf bread, per 4 lb. loaf; the payment for which will be made weekly, or monthly, as required.

By order,

Board-Room, Ballyshannon, January 3, 1848. JAMES M'GOWAN, Jun., Clerk to Union.

REPLY to the above :—January 13, 1848.

Union.

THE Commissioners approve of the steps taken, as detailed in your report, for removing those inmates of the workhouse who may receive out-door relief, and for bringing the workhouse and the affairs of the Union generally into a more satisfactory state; and the Commissioners rely upon the continuance of your exertions in this respect.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 11, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to communicate the proceedings of the Guardians of this Union, at a special meeting held yesterday, the 10th instant.

This meeting was appointed in consequence of my urging upon them, at their ordinary meeting held on Saturday the 8th instant, the necessity of taking immediate steps to put the relieving officers in requisition, and by giving out-door allowances, clear the workhouse of a portion of its inmates, as well as admit those provisionally received on Saturday, and which the lateness of the hour precluded completing that day. The Guardians who live at a distance (the course itself having been unanimously resolved on) left it to those in and near the town to carry out.

When I was proceeding to the workhouse I met Mr. Dickson, an ex-officio Guardian, who resides ten miles from Ballyshannon, and in his presence asked Mr. Davis, the deputy vice-chairman, whom we met, and who lives in the town, to accompany us, but he said he could not. We then went to the workhouse, and no Guardian being in attendance, we occupied ourselves examining the state of the house and inspecting the schools. The female portion being some time without a mistress, the additional labour thus thrown on the matron is very considerable; a schoolmistress has been selected, but has not yet received the consent of the Commissioners. Having done this, we returned to the Board-room, and finding no attendance of Guardians likely to take place, I despatched the porter to some that I knew were at home, and might attend if they pleased, and so finally I obtained a Board.

On the chair having been taken, I pointed out to the Guardians that it was a matter of the last importance that their duties should be efficiently discharged, and if steps were not at once taken in the present crowded state of the house to make room, it would become my duty to report the remissness to the Commissioners; and that if I saw further apathy evinced, it would also be my duty to state my opinion to them, that the business of the Union was not duly discharged by the Guardians, and that I conceived, both on the score of humanity to the destitute as well as concern for the interest of the rate-payers, that a paid Board should be substituted for them. Notwithstanding this, I was obliged to watch them lest they should leave the room and not return, and as one or other did leave, as he said for a short time, I addressed him to show if he did not return and give us his assistance, that we should not have a Board, and could not continue the transaction of the matters on hand.

We commenced by selecting the strongest of the boys, who are this day to be removed to the new school-house, and then took into consideration ninety-two cases of individuals eligible to receive out-door allowances, and willing to leave the house. We were occupied from 11 A.M. till past 6 P.M., in making these inquiries and the necessary arrangements.

A circumstance was mentioned by Mr. Dickson, which tends to show the state the county is in, and how likely distress unrelieved will be to increase the disorganization of the lower orders. On Saturday night last the cow-house of a steward of Captain Johnson, of Kinlough, was maliciously burned, and three fine cows which were in it. Mr. Dickson, as a magistrate, examined the scene of the outrage, and found the half-burned sod of turf that had been used to ignite the thatch.

The Board of Guardians adjourned to this day to complete the business we had in hand, and which is most urgent, as the workhouse, built for 500, last night contained 705, with still a great pressure for admission.

I shall report to-morrow the proceedings of this day.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 16, 1848.

I DEFERRED reporting the proceedings of the Board of Guardians at their special meeting, held by adjournment from Monday the 10th instant to Tuesday the 11th, intending to combine that and my remarks upon the proceedings of the house committee, which was to have met on Wednesday the 12th; but the death of Captain Johnston, of Kinlough, prevented all attention to public business that day; and, indeed, his loss will be severely felt in that district where he was the only resident landed proprietor, and one who, in the employment of the labouring population, most worthily performed his duty.

I have now the honour to forward my report of the proceedings, both upon Tuesday the 11th, and Saturday the 15th instant. When I arrived at the workhouse on Tuesday I found no Guardian present; and the business being of an urgent nature, I directed the porter to go for a sufficient number of Guardians to constitute a Board. I sent him to the Vice-Chairman, Mr. Davis, first, who said he could not come; and at last, after a delay of an hour or more, four Guardians presented themselves. I again represented the very onerous duties they had taken upon them to perform, and the obligation that rested on them to discharge such duties with zeal and activity, and not unwillingly or languidly; and pressed on them the propriety of holding a second meeting in the week, as it was impossible one day would suffice; and, accordingly, on their minutes will be found a resolution calling for a full meeting of the Board on the Saturday following to consider the matter.

I have attended the past week, daily, at the workhouse, and, in fact, in addition to the duties of Inspector, have been performing those of an assistant master. In truth, it is almost impossible for any one man, unaided, under the existing pressure, satisfactorily to discharge the various duties connected with the situation of master.

On Monday and Tuesday, the relieving officers were in attendance, and each day I took care to explain and enlarge fully upon the nature of their duties. I saw them make the first entry in their books of the persons we were discharging on allowances from the workhouse, and, as far as lay in my power, rendered them every assistance.

The male portion of the workhouse children have been removed to the temporary school-house, which had been taken for them. I myself superintended their removal; and I hope in a week hence, when some small matters tending to the finish and improvement of the establishment shall have been completed, that it will be both healthy and commodious.

The destitution of this Union is rapidly on the increase, and it is miserable to witness the importunity of the wretched crowd that daily throng about the workhouse door, clamorous for admittance.

The relieving officers have, in a few cases, assisted persons in urgent distress; but the majority of the Guardians are so averse to increase the expense, that these functionaries are almost afraid to exercise a discretion. I shall give an instance. On Friday, the 14th instant, I was visiting the workhouse school, and a very miserable and infirm man applied to me for relief; I directed him to Mr. M'Intyre, the relieving officer for the Ballyshannon district. I then left the town to visit schools at which I had that day commenced the distribution of bread rations, from grants of the British Association; on my return Mr. M'Intyre met me, and said he had not yet gone to the man's house to see exactly the state of his case; I said I would accompany him if he was prepared then to go, and accordingly, having followed the man down a lane off the main street, we arrived at a sort of cellar, and nothing I can write would convey an adequate idea of the squalid misery that presented itself, as my sight became accustomed to the darkness the place was enveloped in. On either side a fire-place, insensible and, apparently to me, in the last stage of fever, were stretched two young women, literally naked, a little straw under them, and the remains of a blanket over; their clothes had all been disposed of to procure food and the necessaries they had stood in need of; there was no furniture in the room, save a pot and three-legged stool, and in every way they were steeped in misery. I gave the father some silver, and desired Mr. M'Intyre never for one instant, to hesitate in affording relief to cases even approaching this in destitution, much less where such abject misery existed.

A section of the Guardians of this Union I only do justice to, when I state them to be ready and willing to afford sufficient funds to provide relief for the distressed, and prepared to go with me in making the changes in the mode of administering it, which the altered circumstances and increased destitution of the country require. Messrs. Dickson, Allingham, and Bloomfield, I would always except when making any general statement regarding the Board: but so large a portion are opposed to them, and actually incapable of entertaining the comprehensive views which are necessary for the management of the Union, not alone in providing relief, but in shaping the arrangements attendant upon it, that I at times despaired of being able to effect the objects for which I have been sent here by the Commissioners. Each progressive step I could make, an obstacle presented itself, and to overcome or remove it wasted much valuable time, retarded the improvement of the condition of the Union, and only tended to what the Guardians so much deprecate, that is to say, "increased expenditure." I have constantly endeavoured to disabuse their minds of the idea, that I had the slightest wish to increase their outlay, and have shown them that the present rate is, for the most part, to repay liabilities they themselves previously incurred, and that but about one-third is appropriated to defray the current expenses of the Union in relief, &c., for the next six months. Still I am daily met with arguments, the fallacy of which I have fully and repeatedly exposed before; and this is the more disheartening as I feel, were I to omit attending the meeting of the Board for one day, that improvements I had laboured for a month to establish might be in an hour rendered nugatory.

I have for some time past had under consideration a scheme, which, with the permission of the Commissioners, I think might beneficially be put into operation, and would be attended with many advantages to the rate-payers, and aid in diffusing amongst the lower classes an improved knowledge of agriculture. Nothing can be more melancholy than to see the rising population growing up in ignorance of the proper management of the land they live on; and the labour that can alone be applied in a workhouse, as a test, by breaking stones, will not fit them at any future period, or when they arrive at man's estate, to contribute to their own support or the wealth of the country at large, which would be undoubtedly increased by the extension of agricultural knowledge, not alone amongst the higher classes, but also the operatives of the country, most of whom from their deficiency in this respect, are unfit to take employment with any farmer or gentleman who wishes to cultivate an improved description of husbandry. Lads reared in a workhouse will be alone fit for a workhouse, and thus become a perpetual incubus on the rates of a Union.

From the experience I have obtained whilst Inspector under the Relief Commissioners and Board of Works, I am perfectly aware of the difficulty of obtaining a good system of public work; but what I am about to recommend for the consideration of the Commissioners, is not open to the objection that it would be upon a large scale, and therefore likely to get above control; nor would it be employment for wages, but merely as a test of destitution.

I found on examination that the cost of milk supplied to the Ballyshannon workhouse during the past week, amounted to 18*l.* 15*s.*, and will be likely to average in future 18*l.*, amounting per year to 936*l.*; now, the quantity of milk to supply this consumption could be produced off a 12 acre farm cultivated by spade husbandry, and cropped judiciously with the various green food and esculents best calculated to feed cows. The plan I would propose is, to rent such a farm; employ the able-bodied paupers in its cultivation—and above all, the school-boys who would be able to perform light works, such as weeding, thinning, and hoeing, and so obtain that knowledge which is at the present moment so great a desideratum, and thus qualify themselves to fill the situation of farm servants. The more advanced of the girls might be employed in milking, cleansing vessels, and the various duties attendant upon a dairy.

In addition to the advantages the Union would derive from the saving effected by this plan, it would greatly increase the means of diffusing agricultural knowledge generally and practically through the country, and be better calculated than any other measure that could be adopted to produce so desirable a result.

The supply of milk from this dairy would effect a clear saving of over 700*l.* above rent, loss in purchase of cows as springers, and sale as strippers, &c. &c.

Ireland has no manufacture to employ her surplus population; the land is her raw material, and the amount of manipulation it receives might yet be so much increased as four-fold to enlarge its produce. Were it possible to make a workhouse a self-supporting establishment, and at same time diffuse knowledge, and apply labour as a test of destitution, it would in my humble judgment, materially improve the general condition of the country.

The collection of the rate in the week ended the 8th instant, not having been as large as I expected, and believing that if proper exertions were made by the collectors, that it might have been doubled, I therefore addressed the following letter to each collector.

"SIR,

Ballyshannon, January 10, 1848.

"THE Board of Guardians have had much cause to be dissatisfied with the collection of last week, as it was not at all commensurate with the requirements of the Union, or the large amount of outstanding rate still due.

"I take this means of repeating what I so frequently have urged upon collectors, and which I specially warned them of when undertaking the collection of this rate; that is to say, that the whole rate must be collected by February, as, if it remained outstanding till March, and the seed sowing commenced, it would be impossible to raise then much that could now be collected.

"I have shown each collector that he can drive on his warrant, without delaying to summon, and have informed him should any difficulty arise, on application to me, I shall be ready to give every assistance and support in my power to the collectors in the discharge of their duty.

"Under these circumstances, unless a much larger sum shall be paid to the treasurer this week, and more active exertions made and persevered in for the future, it will be my duty to report to the Commissioners the propriety and necessity of dismissing the present collectors, suing their securities on their bonds, and appointing persons likely to be more energetic in the discharge of their duty.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

"JOHN S. D'ARCY."

The amount collected in the week ending Saturday the 8th was 265*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*, and that paid to the treasurer in the past week, ending the 15th instant, was 598*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.*, which shows what may be effected by properly stimulating the collectors; the increase on that week over the previous being 333*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*

I forward two threatening letters received by Flanagan, one of the collectors. In one of these letters I am directly threatened by name, and the other alludes to me, though I am not mentioned. I trust I need hardly tell the Commissioners that they have not the slightest weight with me, but they certainly have had with Flanagan, who actually shook like an aspen when speaking of them to me. I have told him that if he applied to the magistrates for assistance, I would attend to back his application.

Saturday, the 15th instant, there was rather a full attendance of the Guardians, and my recommendation to the Guardians, to meet a second day in the week, has been resolved on. This having been the first day that the relieving officers attended, very increased duty devolved upon the clerk; and the press of business was so great, that the Board could not go into their books till Monday, the 17th instant, when they are to be examined and confirmed by the Board. On the whole, a better spirit was evinced; and perhaps this result may be traced to a rather lengthened discussion, which took place when the Guardians first met. I explained at some length, and as clearly as I was able, their duties and responsibilities, and the impossibility of their discharging them properly, if they did not, as I had recommended the Board on Tuesday, meet at least twice a-week; and then, in place of spending their time cavilling at the law, and taking exceptions to any step in advance, if they would cordially apply themselves to work it out as it stood, that they would find it in the end the most economical, most comfortable, and praiseworthy course. Mr. Dickson then stood up, and said, he feared that neither two, three, nor four days would be sufficient; and that the mass of destitution in Glenade and part of Bundoran was so great, that no relieving officer could get through it, nor the Board control or relieve it, and that he thought paid Guardians might better be at once appointed.

I replied that the will appeared to me more wanting than the ability, and that I knew no two gentleman more capable of performing those duties Mr. Dickson would delegate to others, than himself and Mr. Bloomfield; and I also remarked, that I had commenced to supply bread to the children in the school from grants of the British Association, and that this would relieve the pressure upon the Guardians in a great degree. Mr. Bloomfield agreed with me, and said, he was willing to sit daily, if necessary, in that Board-room, and he put it to the Guardians if they would brand themselves with incompetency; at length it was resolved unanimously, that they would exert themselves in earnest, and see how far they could succeed.

A reference to their minutes will show that an auxiliary workhouse is to be taken; that depôts have been rented for the relieving officers; that shoes have been purchased for the paupers; that Wednesday is to be henceforth an additional Board day; that a special meeting is to be held on Monday for the purpose of examining the books of the relieving officers, and setting them fairly afloat; that an assistant is to be employed to aid the clerk to whom they so long objected to pay an increased salary; and in fact much that, from the temper previously exhibited by the Board, I had almost feared I should never have got accomplished, was done and projected.

This report has extended to much greater length than I intended, and I trust the Commissioners will excuse my being so prolix, but my anxiety to inform them fully on all these matters must plead my apology.

ENCLOSURES.

SIR,

Kilcock, the 6th, 1848.

WE the people of the district that you collected the Poor Rates in, in either Boush or Innismacthesaut, or any other part that you collect the Poor Rates in, or take up any distress, or drives any person's cattle for the Rates, we will be under the necessity of shooting you in the open daylight, for we may as well loose our lives as to loose our support; so if you don't like this warning we give you, take your own advice, for we are determined to stop you or any other person that will come to collect them till the times mend.

JAMES FLANAGAN,
There is your doom,
so if like it

SIR,

TAKE notice, that if you attempt to collect any more Poor Rate that you will only loose your life by so doing, as we, the inhabitants of Baha division are determined not to pay any more Poor Rate, as we refer you to the Marquess of Sligo's letter in the paper to the government, showing that the landlords should pay all Cess and Rates, therefore we will not pay until government decides the matter at their next sitting. Do you think we will give all our little support to you in rates and leave our families starving, as we cannot even pay our landlords until harvest next; should you not comply with this notice, so help our God you will be shot, and this is your last notice. You were often told verbally to stop, but now you must. You state that Mr. D'Arcy insists on the collection, let him try it himself, and he shall meet the same fate. We will keep our cattle in the house, try will you break our doors.

Date, January, 1848.

JAMES FLANAGAN, Collector,
Baha Division.REPLY to the above:—January 19, 1848.

IN reference to your remarks on the conduct of the Ballyshannon Board of Guardians, the Commissioners desire to state that it will give them great satisfaction if the Board for the future will meet regularly twice a-week at least, and will discharge efficiently the important duties which are devolved upon it by the legislature. If, however, notwithstanding the zeal and ability of individual Guardians, the Guardians as a Board, should not hold regular meetings as often as the necessities of the Union demand, or if they should in other respects make default in the discharge of their duties, the Commissioners would suggest to you the propriety of making a separate report to them on the subject, in reference to the provisions of the 18th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act.

The Commissioners deeply lament the destitution which you describe as existing in the Ballyshannon Union, and the due relief of it will require systematic and continuous energy on the part of the Guardians both in enforcing the payment of the poor-rates, and in carrying out their administrative arrangements in such a manner that the destitute shall not be allowed to perish from want. In regard to the relieving officers, however, it is to be observed that their legal powers independently of the Guardians are limited, and that they have no authority, except under an order of the Board of Guardians, to grant relief on any case of necessity which is not sudden as well as urgent. Their proper course with any other case is, to make themselves thoroughly acquainted with all the circumstances, and to bring it before the Board of Guardians for their decision.

Ballyshannon

In regard to your proposition for taking land, and establishing a dairy connected with the workhouse, the Commissioners have to thank you for your suggestions, but they have to state that propositions of this kind have long since been fully considered in reference to workhouse management, and have been deliberately deemed unadvisable; in fact, there are few subjects on which, in England, there has been such extensive and decisive experience.

In regard to the pauper children, it is very desirable that such arrangements should be made as may enable them to receive instruction in field labour; and the Commissioners do not object to the Guardians hiring as much land to be occupied with the workhouse, as may enable the Guardians to carry out this object. The Commissioners, however, would much prefer that this should be effected in a separate and distinct workhouse for pauper children, in accordance with the suggestions contained in the Commissioners' circular of the 26th of August last.

In conclusion, the Commissioners have to express their entire approval of the course taken by you in order to compel the collectors to perform their duty; and the Commissioners sincerely regret that there should have been any attempt to intimidate you by threatening letters, or otherwise, in the discharge of your duty. The Commissioners, however, do not doubt that if you deem the matter of sufficient importance to make representations concerning it to the local magistrates, you will receive the fullest protection of the law.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 18, 1848.

MAY I request that the threatening letters which I forwarded yesterday to the Commissioners may be returned, as Mr. Bloomfield thinks it probable if they are, he may succeed in tracing them to the writers; and as he is a most active magistrate, and knows minutely the divisions they refer to, I think, from circumstances he has mentioned to me, he may succeed.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 18, 1848.

YESTERDAY, the 17th instant, after returning from Belleek division, where I had been arranging for the baking of bread for schools, I attended a special meeting of the Guardians, and have the honour to forward to you my report.

The books of four relieving officers were gone through, and two of them produced their application and report books, kept in a very creditable form: the persons I allude to are Messrs. Scott and Johnston. Messrs. Daly and M'Intyre made some mistakes, but they were explained fully to them, and I should hope there will not be a recurrence of them. Mr. Rogers had been permitted to remain out with his books till the 22nd instant.

The propriety of granting assistance to the master of the workhouse was discussed, and a notice put on the minutes that it should be considered, at the Saturday meeting of the Board.

The house which was offered by proposal to the Guardians on Saturday, the 15th instant, has been taken, and will afford a considerable increase of accommodation; but still I fear that no house-room can be provided in Ballyshannon, which will be at all commensurate with the destitution, and out-door relief to those at present eligible under the Poor Law Extension Act must be provided to a very considerable extent. The workhouse is again becoming overcrowded, and I purpose directing the medical officer to report to the Board the number he thinks the house can now contain with safety; and I hope to induce the Guardians to resolve upon the number, at which the workhouse and its auxiliaries shall be considered full.

The clothing for the paupers is both scanty and bad, and I have directed the master to make a report of what he thinks is required. The water for the use of the workhouse is costing weekly rather a large sum in carriage; and some time since I forwarded a plan for conveying the water from the roof of the house to the tanks, for the consideration of the Commissioners' architect, but have not yet received a reply.

I shall not be able in future, to attend so constantly to the workhouse or the meetings of the Guardians, as I shall be greatly occupied with the rationing of children in the schools; and if my constant attention were not directed to that, I fear that abuse would exist to a considerable extent. The power to ration children, and the means afforded me, have had considerable influence on the Guardians in conducing to a better order of things, as I refused to commence till they had done their part in taking depôts for the relieving officers, and made the preliminary arrangements contemplated by the Poor Law Extension Act; and the commencement of both systems together has been attended with satisfactory results. This week, the greater portion of the Union will be in receipt of rations for schools, and I hope the whole, next week.

WITH reference to that part of your report in which you state that the workhouse is becoming overcrowded, I am to state that on receiving the medical officer's report, and your own views on the subject, the Commissioners will be prepared to fix a maximum number for each building by a sealed order. They are desirous of doing this in every case; and they will thank you to report to them after receiving the medical officer's report, and after conference with the Guardians, the estimated extent of accommodation afforded by

1. The original building.
2. Additional accommodation provided therein.
3. Detached sheds or temporary buildings on the workhouse site.
4. Permanent fever hospital.
5. Other buildings not on workhouse site.

The Commissioners rely upon your attending the Board of Guardians as frequently as possible, and they trust you will not allow the distribution of relief afforded by the British Association so far to engross your attention as to prejudice the due supervision and inspection of the ordinary affairs of the Union, which the Commissioners consider to be your primary duty. The Commissioners will call their architect's attention to the plan for conveying water from the roof of the workhouse.

MR. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 21, 1848.

I ATTENDED the first Wednesday's meeting of the Board of Guardians upon the 19th instant. Their minutes will show that according to my instructions, the master sent in a report of the clothing necessary, not alone for the present inmates, but for the increase that we are sure to have the moment the auxiliary workhouse shall be prepared to receive them.

On Wednesday, there were 750 on the workhouse books, which deducting 92 that are in the temporary school-house, left 658 domiciled in the workhouse itself; and much as I wished them to give admission to numbers of miserable applicants, I was obliged to represent to the Guardians the necessity of refusing further admissions, in the present state of the house. I have requested the medical officer to report on Saturday, for the information of the Board, the number he thinks the house can contain without danger of disease, or of spreading what may exist.

I am happy to state that the mortality is greatly checked, since the change of diet. A fortnight since we had 12 and 15 deaths a-week—now they are but two. The alteration to a bread diet has produced this improvement; and yet, in conjunction with the medical officer, I was for weeks urging the propriety and humanity of it before it was adopted.

In the present state of the liabilities of the Union, the outlay for clothing will be severely felt: it would be a great matter if anything could be done to assist in this respect.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed extract from a report which they have received from Mr. D'Arcy, the Temporary Inspector in charge of the Ballyshannon Union, in which he refers to the clothing requisite for the inmates of the workhouse; and in reference thereto, I am to request that you will be so good as to inform the Commissioners whether there are any articles of old military clothing and bedding in store, in the neighbourhood of Ballyshannon, which could be made available for the purposes of the Union.

WITH regard to your remark, that in the present state of the liabilities of the Union, the outlay for clothing will be severely felt, I am to inform you that the Commissioners have forwarded your observations to Sir R. Routh, and have requested him to inform them whether there are any articles of old military clothing and bedding in store, in the neighbourhood of Ballyshannon, which could be made available for the purposes of the Union.

I DEFERRED reporting upon the proceedings of the Guardians at their ordinary meeting held the 22nd instant, that I might combine my report of that and the special meeting held Monday, the 24th.

Mr. Otway attended on Saturday, and afforded the Guardians many valuable suggestions; and his advice and assistance to me were most useful, not alone as regarded that particular day, but with a view to the future management of the Union and workhouse. A plan he laid down for the increase of the workhouse accommodation at a small expense, by throwing a roof over the small yard adjoining the entrance, and behind the porter's lodge, was unanimously resolved on.

The Guardians went through the cases eligible for out-door relief, and ordered the discharge of 50 persons. Many cases came before the Board of people who had sought admittance, evidently with the hope of immediate discharge, that were refused; and some have since left the house in consequence, which confirms me in the opinion that although very great distress exists, still the present pressure on the workhouse exceeds the necessity, and is induced in the hope of an out-door allowance. On Monday evening, having remained to see the worst cases get admission, this fact was proved to demonstration. I stated to the paupers that I trusted they had not sought admission in the expectation of being put out shortly on allowances, and that if so they were mistaken, as an additional house had been taken, and that the workhouse was to be enlarged, so that they should remain inmates of one or other of these houses. Upon this a woman with five children, who had been most clamorous for admittance, at once left the house, and six others followed her example; and I am satisfied did the Union possess workhouse accommodation for a couple of thousand persons, that its expenditure would be lessened by one-half at least.

On Monday, the 24th instant, four of the relieving officers were in with their books; and the Guardians, though they sat from 11 A.M. till 6 P.M., could not complete their decisions. I recommended an adjourned meeting to this day; and I trust that by the ordinary meeting on Wednesday all the work done since the commencement of the relieving officers' labours, will appear on the minutes, and be transmitted to the Commissioners.

I strongly recommended the Guardians to adopt the system of giving food in place of money, as I think the pressure would be thus much relieved; but they fear the expense of an increased staff.

I shall wait for a short time longer to see whether or not the pressure may become less, and the Guardians, from increased practice, more competent to discharge the serious duties that devolve upon them; but if matters should continue as at present, it will become my duty to report the necessity of their dismissal. At the same time I am bound in candour to say, that they are much more willing to endeavour fairly to do their duty now than they have been; but I fear their inability as a body.

The workhouse of this Union was originally built to contain 500 paupers, and the fever sheds 50. The medical officer is of opinion that the house and sheds may with safety accommodate 650.

The temporary school-house taken for the boys, he thinks, may afford room for 100, and the auxiliary workhouse taken, but not yet sanctioned by the Commissioners, 120; thus giving workhouse room for 870 persons in all; and my opinion entirely coincides with his.

Ballyshannon
Union.

REPLY to the above:—January 28, 1848.

WITH reference to your recommendation to the Guardians that out-door relief should be given in food in lieu of money, and to the grounds on which the Guardians declined to adopt that suggestion, viz., the expense of an increased staff, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they believe that arrangements have been made in other Unions for administering relief in food, without any increase in the staff of relieving officers. This is done by an arrangement with the contractors, who undertake to deliver the meal at certain stations; and the relieving officer, instead of giving money, gives an order on the contractor for a certain quantity of meal. If, however, relief in cooked food is contemplated, the case would be different. However, the Commissioners do not lay down any regulation on the subject, it being considered most advisable to leave this point to the discretion of the Board of Guardians, as is done in England.

Adverting to your observations as to the extent of accommodation likely to be afforded by the workhouse and other additional buildings in the Union, I am to inform you that the Commissioners propose to issue an order, specifying the number of persons that may be accommodated in the workhouse and additional buildings; and they will, before doing so, give your observations in regard to the numbers due consideration. They presume that the auxiliary workhouse to which you refer as capable of accommodating 120 persons, is that described in the Guardians' minutes of the 17th instant as Miss Thompson's house, the renting of which has been this day sanctioned by the Commissioners.

I HAVE the honour to inform you that in Belleek division Mr. Armstrong, receiver under the Courts over Major Bloomfield's property, has refused to pay the rate for the tenants under 4*l.* rating, and also for unoccupied farms deserted by the tenants. I do not know whether I am right or not in my opinion, but I think the desertion of the lands by the tenants necessarily renders the landlord liable. Surely there must be some owner.

REPLY to the above:—February 1, 1848.

WITH reference to the refusal of the receiver to pay for tenants under 4*l.* annual value, I am directed by the Commissioners to suggest that the attention of the receiver should be drawn to the order of the Court of the 12th November, 1845 (a copy of which is enclosed), declaring it to be the duty of the receiver to pay in such cases.

As regards the rate in respect of farms which have been deserted by the tenants, the Commissioners desire to observe, that the rate may be recovered from any subsequent occupier, in accordance with the 71st section of the Irish Poor Relief Act.

ENCLOSURE.

November 12, 1845.

ORDERED,—That in all cases where, under the existing Poor Laws, payment of the poor's rates devolves exclusively on the landlord, it is the duty of the Receiver, Guardian, Committee, or Sequestrator, who shall be in the receipt of the rents of any landlord so liable, to pay to the person duly authorized to receive the same, all such poor's rates without any rule or order for that purpose.

EDWARD B. SUGDEN, C.

Mr. D'ARCY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 30, 1848.

SATURDAY, the 27th instant, I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians for the fourth time during the past week, and have now the honour to make my report for the information of the Commissioners.

The chief matters of business that occupied the Guardians each day were, the Application and Report Books of the relieving officers, which, from the pressure, had got into arrears, but now are, and not without difficulty, examined and initialed by the Chairman up to Saturday last, on which day I did not leave the workhouse till seven o'clock in the evening.

Room having been provided on Wednesday last, by the immediate removal of paupers into the auxiliary workhouse, which was done upon the suggestion of Mr. Otway (although the sanction of the Commissioners had not been received); the pressure for relief has greatly diminished, as numbers most urgent in their demands for it, having been offered the workhouse, refused to accept it.

The Guardians I found could scarcely get through the heavy labour latterly imposed upon them; and I have recommended that they should meet on Friday, as well as Wednesday and Saturday, in each week, whilst the pressure lasts; and they have adopted my suggestion, and will do so in future.

An assistant to the master (Sergeant Healy) was chosen by the Guardians temporarily on Wednesday; and they proposed, and advertised so to do, to proceed to an election on Saturday the 29th instant, of a person to fill that situation permanently; but no one at all eligible having offered, it was agreed that he should be continued for the present. He was colour-sergeant in the 64th Regiment, has received the highest character, and seems a very steady respectable man.

The collection of rate has, up to this, progressed very fairly; and a sum greater than I some time since anticipated is collected weekly; and if the proceeding of collectors and Guardians of this Union heretofore in that respect is contrasted with the present, it will exhibit a very remarkable difference. The first payment of the new rate was made on the 18th of December, 1847; and up to the 29th instant, a sum of 2,997*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.* has been paid to the treasurer. I have used every means in my power to stimulate collectors, and am almost daily in personal communication with one or more of them, and urgently impress the necessity of energy and activity in their collection. Had the system hitherto pursued in this Union been followed, that is to say, to serve a six days' notice, and then proceed by summons, I am convinced one-half of the sum received would not have been made available, as three weeks, or perhaps more, would have elapsed in that way before a collector could compel payment.

From the commencement, I directed the collectors to drive on their warrants in the electoral division of Belleek. On one occasion, having found that the collector had applied for 26 summonses, I at once directed him to countermand them and drive, which he did; and the result not alone in that, but in the other divisions, has fully answered my expectations.

GLENTIES UNION.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 22, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to submit for your consideration a letter from James Hamilton, Esq., of Fintown, regarding a rate of 3s. in the pound which has been struck in his electoral division, as well as in all the other electoral divisions of the Union.

Mr. Hamilton's statement with respect to his supporting his own electoral division all last year, is quite correct; and I also know that he has employed, and is still employing, all the able-bodied labourers on his property in the Fintown electoral division.

I have further to state, that I have no doubt that Mr. Hamilton would support his own electoral division this winter if a rate were not exacted from him.

* ENCLOSURE.

Mr. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 19, 1847.

I FIND that the Board of Guardians of the (Glenties) Union has resolved on making a rate of 3s. in the pound to meet the expenses of the out-door relief over the entire Union. I represented to them that, during the last year, I had allowed no rate to be made for out-door relief under the Temporary Act, as I had kept the division up by employing a great number of persons by my own means, and by money raised from the Board of Works under the Treasury Minute, and now carrying on under the Land Improvement Act, and that I intended to do so this year too, and that I was at present engaged in laying out work for the winter, to commence almost immediately. The rate of 3s. would oblige me to reduce my number of men, as I have to pay nearly the entire rate myself, on account of the most of the occupiers being under 4l. They agreed fully that it would be a hard case, as they fully admitted the truth of my statements, and their belief that it would not be required, but said that directions had been received to strike the rate, and it must be done, but begged me to refer the case to you. I should wish to have no rate struck; and I think, Gentlemen, you will allow the Guardians to exercise their discretion in striking a rate on the Fintown division.

I forward this through Captain O'Neill, your Inspector, who will add any remarks he may think proper, and hope you will excuse my troubling you about this.

I AM to state that a 3s. rate ought not to be made in the electoral division adverted to, if it is not required either for the repayment of Government advances or for the relief of the destitute in the division.

The Commissioners have written to this effect to the Board of Guardians, and have forwarded a copy of Mr. Hamilton's letter to them.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 27, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that Mr. Cumming, Commissariat Clerk at Killybegs, came here on Monday last, the 22nd instant, and told me it was the intention of Government to build an oven in the workhouse for the purpose of baking bread for that establishment, and also to supply those who will become entitled to out-door relief. I fully concur in opinion, that this would be a most excellent plan to adopt, but I could not give my sanction to such proceedings without an order to that effect from the Commissioners, as it might invalidate the insurance on the workhouse. May I, therefore, request the Commissioners will furnish me with instructions on the subject.

I beg also to draw the attention of the Commissioners to the necessity of erecting ovens in different parts of this Union, for the purpose of administering cooked food, in the shape of bread, to those paupers entitled to out-door relief, as I am convinced it would be a great saving to the Union; in the mean time the Board of Guardians have resolved to issue meal, and have for that purpose selected different places throughout the Union for stores. The rate of relief generally, is six pounds of meal in the week to full grown persons above 15 years of age, and from eight to twelve ounces daily to those under that age.

As I have received instructions from Count de Strzelecki, agent to the British Association, to establish a bakery here, as a model one, for the purpose of issuing rations to the children belonging to the different schools in this locality, I have engaged with a regular baker in this village, who has a very good oven, and has undertaken to supply fuel, baking utensils, a good store for the bread, and to bake himself, and also to give instructions to any number of women from the different electoral divisions whom I may order in to be made acquainted with the art of baking, and who will be ready to undertake a bakery in those divisions where an oven may be established; so that there will be a sufficient number of women ready trained to commence operations as soon as the ovens are erected.

The Guardians have also passed a resolution to advertise for contracts for meal, to supply the out-door relief for six or nine months; also for a supply of clothing. This last-mentioned article, I fear, will press very hard upon this poor Union; and I should respectfully suggest to the Commissioners, (if it were possible,) that Government would grant a supply as the inmates of the workhouse are very badly off, for that necessary article, particularly now on the approach of winter, and I fear all the rates that will be collected will scarcely be sufficient to support the demand for out and in-door relief.

I beg to draw the attention of the Commissioners, to the apathy that is apparent in this Union as regards the cultivation of the land. There is not one farmer from one end to the other of this district, that is employed draining, trenching, or subsoiling his farm; all is left until the spring of the year. No preparations are making in any one place, even with those who are able to do so, and the people appear to be lazy, idle beggars, all looking forward to some assistance from Government or some benevolent society or association.

I respectfully beg to point out to the Commissioners the necessity of sending a good practical agriculturist through this Union, to point out the manner that the farmers should proceed in, and also to hold meetings for the purpose of delivering lectures to them on an improved system of cultivation; for, as I have already said, there is not the slightest attempt in any part of this Union to drain, trench, or subsoil the land, and from every inquiry that I have made, it appears that the farmers in this district never attempt to do anything to their land until the months of March or April.

There are constant applications for admission into the workhouse from women with large families of children, whose husbands have deserted them and gone to Scotland or elsewhere, which will be seen from the fact, that out of 500 at present in that establishment there are only 44 able-bodied men above 15 years of age in the house. As an instance of the tricks that are practised,—on Friday, the 19th instant, a woman, of the name of M'Hales, applied for admission, alleging that her husband had gone to Scotland; but I caused her to be rejected, having heard that he had been seen two or three days before in this town begging. After the Board had broken up, this same woman came forward with her husband and demanded admittance, which was granted by the master. The fact was the husband of this woman was skulking behind the walls of the house in the dark, and when he found that his wife would not be taken in without himself he then came forward.

It is a singular fact, that notwithstanding the alleged poverty of the island of Arranmore, there have been but few instances of admission into the workhouse, since the relieving officers have commenced taking down the names of applicants for out-door relief; and the way I account for this is, that most of the poor on this island hold some land, and many of them are begging all over the country. There are, however, a great number of women and children in the workhouse belonging to that island whose husbands have deserted them and gone to Scotland. Those, at present, have been admitted some time ago.

I beg leave to suggest to the Commissioners the propriety of employing the girls in the workhouse. This could be done by allowing a teacher of embroidery to be employed, and in the course of three months, a girl could be taught to embroider sufficiently well that she could earn 6d. per diem. I would propose, when a girl could earn a livelihood in this way, that she should be discharged from the workhouse at once. I do not, by any means propose, that any of this work should be disposed of for the benefit of the house or its inmates, but merely to instruct the children in some useful employment.

I know there is a commercial gentleman in Killybegs who has got up a number of those schools, and I have heard that he offered, some time ago, to send a teacher to the workhouse gratuitously to instruct the children there. I do not know this gentleman's name, but should the Commissioners be disposed to allow such instructions to take place in the house, I shall make every inquiry into the matter.

I think it would be most desirable to bring up the children in the workhouse, so that they might be able to earn their bread as servants, or in some sort of useful employment; but the system of education that children get in a workhouse (at least in the Glenties) is not of that description that qualifies them for any sort of domestic work.

It is only lately that six wheels were introduced into the Glenties workhouse to spin wool, and those employed at this work are only a few of the able-bodied women. There is a great field for the employment of the able-bodied of both sexes, but the Union is so wretchedly poor, there are no funds available to purchase the necessary articles to set the paupers to work.

The Board of Guardians have given instructions to their attorney to take legal proceedings against the Marquis of Conyngham, Mr. Johnston, of Laputa, and others, to pay up a disputed rate amounting in all to 92*l*. When this is recovered it will only leave 253*l*. of an uncollected rate, which is a very small sum, when it is considered that this is one of the poorest Unions in Ireland, with a great amount of destitution existing all over it. The collector has told me that he expects to collect all the old rates very shortly, and that he does not think there will be more than 20*l*. deficient.

IN reference to the erection of ovens, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they approve of the erection of ovens in different parts of the Union, and also on the workhouse premises, if a convenient spot for the purpose can be selected. The Commissioners will request the opinion of Mr. Wilkinson on the latter point; but at any rate they would not object to an oven in Glenties, detached from the workhouse, for the purpose of out-door relief, under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

With reference to your recommendation of a grant of clothing, I am to request that you will be so good as to procure, and forward to the Commissioners, a statement of the clothing required.

The Commissioners will forward your remarks respecting the neglect of cultivation, and the want of a practical agriculturist in the Union, to the Agricultural Improvement Society of Ireland.

Your statement respecting the woman who first professed to be deserted by her husband, and who afterwards, when refused out-door relief, came with her husband into the workhouse, shows the importance of adhering strictly to the rule of granting relief to deserted wives in the workhouse only.

The Commissioners have no objection to the instruction of the workhouse children in embroidery, if there is a steady market in Glenties Union, or its neighbourhood, for females engaged in this occupation, otherwise the Commissioners would prefer that the children should be instructed in some industrial pursuit, less liable to the fluctuations of fashion and taste; but they leave this subject to your discretion and the discretion of the Guardians.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. WILKINSON, Architect to the Commission:—
December 2, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to inform you that they have received a communication from their Temporary Inspector, Captain O'Neill, in which he states that he has been informed by the Commissariat Clerk at Killybegs, that it is the intention of Government to build an oven in the workhouse of the Glenties Union for the purpose of baking bread for that establishment, and also to supply those who will be entitled to out-door relief.

Captain O'Neill approves of this project; but he expresses apprehension that it might invalidate the insurance.

The Commissioners have stated to Captain O'Neill that they approve of the erection of an oven in the workhouse, provided a convenient spot could be selected; and on this point the Commissioners request you will be so good as to favour the Commissioners with your opinion.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 4, 1847.

I PROCEEDED on Monday last, the 29th ultimo, to Killybegs, Kilcar, and Glencolumbkille, for the purpose of making inquiry into the state of the different schools all over this district of country, so as to be able to make a report to the Commissioners on their actual state, and I find the numbers now pressing for admission into the school-houses, because they have heard that there is gratuitous relief about to be administered, is fearful.

I shall here give one instance which will at once prove to the Commissioners the want of accommodation.

I went into the Roxborough-school-house with the Rev. Edward Labatt, rector of the parish of Kilcar. The room was a small one, and could accommodate about 90 children. In this I found 174. The heat and vitiated air were so bad that I could not remain more than a few minutes in it; I requested Mr. Labatt would at once give directions to the schoolmaster not to admit more children than the school-room was built for, and to direct all the children who had come merely for the purpose of getting food to be sent home until I should make a report to the Commissioners on the subject. I have not as yet, issued any gratuitous relief from the funds placed at my disposal by Count De Strzelecki, agent to the British Association; first, because I have not got in correct returns; and, secondly, because now that the out-door relief has partially commenced, I think it better to have correct lists of the probable numbers that will require relief before any provisions are issued; this will check fraud.

I would beg leave to suggest that a barn or good out-house should be hired, and a common teacher employed to give instruction to those poor children who are both in want of education and food, as if this class are indiscriminately admitted into the established schools, it will be the cause of driving the more respectable description of children out of them.

I shall make a report of this to Count De Strzelecki, should the Commissioners approve of it, with a view of getting some funds placed either at my disposal, or that of some of the clergymen, to hire such a place for the destitute children, and also for a small remuneration for the teacher, and to buy books.

The out-door relief has partially commenced, but from the difficulty of getting the meal carted over bad roads to the different stores which have been taken, and the contract for supplying the meal for the above purpose not being yet complete, it was found impossible to carry that measure out all over the Union at the same time; but I am in hopes that we shall be able to relieve all those on the relieving officers' books, by Monday next the 6th instant.

The following are the numbers on the books of the relieving officers for out-door relief up to Friday the 3rd December :—

Electoral Divisions.	Relieving Officers.	Number of Persons entitled to Out-door Relief.
Ardare	John O'Donnell	164
and Menavelly		107
Lettermacward	Anthony Hanlon	6
and Dungloe		8
Rutland	John Boyle	13
and Mulleghdug		2
Derryloughan	Hugh O'Donnell	74
and Fintown		Nil.
Glenties	Carroll Mulloy	104
and Navan		221
Kilcar	James Hagerty	105
and Malinbeg		31
Killybegs	James Cunner	127

It will be seen that during the first week, 962 are actually returned for outdoor relief, and from what the relieving officers have stated I think this number will be very much increased, as many are anxious to get meal who would not be so urgent if cooked food were established.

Hence I think if ovens were erected, and good wholesome brown bread issued, the number of applicants would decrease considerably.

I beg to draw the attention of the Commissioners to the number of stores which the Guardians have established, at an expense of six pounds a-year for each.

A store has been taken at Kilcar, another at Carrick, and one in Glencolumbkille; the two former places are within three miles of each other, whereas, in my opinion, the one at Carrick would do for the electoral divisions of Kilcar and Glencolumbkille, thereby causing a saving to those two electoral divisions of 12*l.* a year for two stores, viz., the one at Kilcar and the other at Glencolumbkille. There are also two stores taken in the electoral division of Killybegs, within four miles of each other, whereas I think one would do (at Killybegs town), where there are police to protect it in case of an attempt at robbery. The reasons assigned by the Guardians for establishing so many stores is, that the people would have too far to come for their provisions; but when this very well known fact is considered, that several of them have gone five and six miles out of their way when they wanted to buy a peck of meal, to save two pence, I do not think it any hardship for them to travel eight or even nine miles, to get a week's provisions at once. As an instance, when cooked food was issued last summer I knew a man who came seven miles every day for one quart of stirabout, and he was very thankful to get it; and this same man returned home every day. Besides, there are but very few of them that would have to travel one quarter that distance, and it is not to be supposed, in a poor district like this, that stores can be made available for all the paupers who are spread over a wild mountainous district.

I should therefore respectfully suggest to the Commissioners, to allow only one store for every two electoral divisions, and that to be placed in the most central part, and as near a police station as possible.

There have only been eight additional able-bodied men admitted into the workhouse during the last week; but it is extremely difficult to get them to give up their small farms of land, although they have not a particle of any sort of crop to support them, nor are they able to pay rent or supply themselves with food from the land they hold. I must confess I never met with a more lazy, idle, lying set of people than the generality of the lower orders in this Union. Their wants are but few, and if they can eke out the most miserable existence they would prefer it to working for a fair day's wages and a sufficiency of food.

I have made inquiry from Mr. Russell, agent to the Marquis of Conyngham, relative to the piece of land to the westward of the workhouse for the fever hospital. Mr. Russell told me that he was prepared to grant a lease of 61 years, which was the utmost he could do, or sell at 25 years' purchase at 10*s.* an acre. Mr. Hill, who is in possession of this land, has offered to take 40*l.* for his goodwill of it. I should recommend that preparations be at once made to commence the hospital, as it is very much wanted from the many cases of fever that are constantly taking place, which endanger the health of the inmates of the house.

REPLY to the above:—December 9, 1847.

IN reference to that part of your report which relates to the relief afforded by the British Association to children attending schools in the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners are desirous that relief should be given to the utmost reasonable extent to children in the Union; but, at the same time, as the expenditure of the funds is not under the control of the Guardians, the Commissioners do not deem it within their province as a public Board to offer any opinion on the regulations, as long as they do not interfere with the proper working of the New Irish Poor Law.

The Commissioners will communicate with the Guardians on the subject of the stores adverted to in your report.

The COMMISSIONERS to the GUARDIANS of GLENTIES UNION:—
December 9, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state, for the information of the Board of Guardians of Glenties Union, that they have received a report from Captain O'Neill, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, in which he states that a provision store has been taken in each of the electoral divisions of Kilcar, Carrick, and Glencolumbkille, and suggests that, in consequence of their proximity to each other, the store at Carrick would answer for the three electoral divisions. He also states that two stores have been taken for the Killybegs electoral division, and that, as these stores are only four miles distant from each other, he considers that one store at Killybegs, where there are police to protect it, would be sufficient for the wants of the electoral division. The Commissioners concur in this view, and they think that one store for two electoral divisions would be found amply sufficient; the store to be placed in the most central part, and as near a police station as possible. The Commissioners believe that the adoption of this suggestion would not render it necessary for the people to proceed any inconvenient distance weekly, in order to obtain out-door relief; and the Commissioners think, therefore, that they would not be justified in sanctioning a larger number of stores than above stated. They request, however, to be furnished with the views of the Board of Guardians on the subject.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 11, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Commissioners that yesterday, Friday, being the Board-day, tenders were received for supplying Indian meal for the out-door relief, when Mr. M'Devitt, of this town, got the contract at 14*l.* per ton for six months, to supply the electoral divisions of Narin, Derryloughan, and Glenties. The former contractor would not undertake to supply Indian meal for any part of the Union under 15*l.* per ton, therefore he was, as a matter of course, rejected.

It would be most desirable if the Commissariat at Killybegs would undertake to supply the workhouse at the market price of the day, as it is almost impossible to get any of the merchants to contract on moderate terms; from the credit of this Union being so bad, and from the contractors' fear of having to be out of their money so long.

Indian meal is now selling at Derry, 40 miles from this, at 10*l.* 10*s.* per ton, still the Guardians cannot get a contract under 14*l.*, but then the carriage from Derry to this place would be 2*l.* per ton.

The market town of Ballybofey, 19 miles from this, is reckoned one of the cheapest in this part of the country, and the Indian meal was selling there within this last few days, at 11*l.* per ton, and 10*s.* per ton cartage to this place.

The contract entered into with Mr. M'Devitt is conditional (that is) in case the Commissariat department at Killybegs would undertake to supply what would be required for out-door relief, the engagement with him at once ceases.

It will be seen that the number of applicants for out-door relief is rapidly increasing. Since last week, 287 have been taken on the relieving officer's books, and several of them told me that this number would in many electoral divisions be double next week. The following are the numbers at present on for out-door relief, belonging to the different electoral divisions in the Union:—

Electoral Divisions.	Number receiving Out-door Relief.
Genties	84
Navan	90
Derryloughan	79
Lettermacward	8
Dungloe	16
Rutland	38
Mullaghaderg	10
Ardara	335
Menavilly	267
Killybegs	48
Total	1217

Number of inmates in the Glenties workhouse on Friday night, December 10, 1847:—

Glenties Union.

Able-bodied men above 15 years .	60
Able-bodied women above 15 years	138
Boys under 15 and above 2 years .	123
Girls under 15 and above 2 years .	141
Infants under 2 years	10
Aged and infirm	14

Admitted Friday, December 10, 1847:—

Able-bodied men	10
Able-bodied women	6
Boys under 15 and above 2 years .	8
Girls under 15 and above 2 years .	7

The pressure for out-door relief is now become very great all over the Union; many able-bodied men and their families, who some time ago would not enter the workhouse when there was room, are pressing for admission into it, because they find it full.

It will be seen from the enclosed return, that there are 138 able-bodied women in the house, the greater part of them have been deserted by their husbands, who have gone to Scotland or are begging about the country; whereas there are only 59 able-bodied men in the house; now if those women who are at present in the workhouse could be got rid of in any way, there would be a sufficiency of room for able-bodied men.

There are also about 70 orphans in the house, who could be put on the out-door relief, to make room for the able-bodied men, if the Commissioners would sanction it. This is the only way that I can see to meet the difficulty, and I should feel obliged by the Commissioners giving me further instructions on the subject.

A resolution was passed by the Board of Guardians to apply to the Commissioners for an Order under their seal, to be permitted to administer relief out of the workhouse to the able-bodied, from the number of applicants for admission on the last Board day.

This resolution I cannot recommend, as I am sure, and indeed I have every reason to suppose, that if there were room in the workhouse not one out of every ten would take advantage of it. Hence the necessity of having room in the house as a test to the able-bodied.

As an instance, an able-bodied woman applied for out-door relief, but she was told it could not be granted, as there was room in the house for her. She at once refused, saying that she never was in the workhouse, and never would enter it; that there were others getting out-door relief who were in much better circumstances than what she was, and as she could not get relief out of the house she never would enter it.

Mr. Quigley, the rate collector, has written a query for the decision of the Commissioners, as to the barracks occupied by the police. The premises are rated, but the immediate lessor claimed an exemption on the plea that the buildings are occupied by the police, and therefore are not liable to be rated.

The Marquess of Conyngham's agent, Mr. Russell, has, on my remonstrating with him, agreed to pay up the disputed arrears of rate amounting to 67*l.*, as also Mr. Johnson, of Laputa, near Ballyshanon, 11*l.* There remains now to be collected of the old rate, including the above, 320*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.* which the collector expects to get in immediately.

The grounds about the workhouse being nothing but a swamp and bog, I have got all the able-bodied men at work, draining and improving them; and I expect, in the course of the spring, to have them all laid out in good gardens. The female yard was also in a very bad state, from the centre being higher than that part next the building, which caused the house to be flooded in wet weather. I have got at least from 3 to 4 feet taken off, so that there is now a fine fall from the building for all the rain-water to run off. The females are employed knitting stockings for the use of the house, and spinning wool; and when some more wheels are procured, I think the paupers will be able to manufacture a good deal of their own clothing.

I have been informed by Mr. Carr, who is a Guardian, that, in three townlands, called Drumnaho, in the electoral division of Killybegs, and belonging to a Mrs. Skean, who lives at Bundoran, near Ballyshannon, seven families have given up possession of their farms, alleging that the rent was too high. Last summer, the tenants on this property were receiving one-sixth of the gratuitous relief which was distributed to the Killybeg's electoral division.

REPLY to the above:—December 15, 1847.

WITH reference to your suggestion that the Commissariat at Killybegs, should undertake to supply the workhouse at the market prices of the day, I am to state that the Commissioners do not know what the Commissariat arrangements are, in reference to the Glenties Union; but they will forward an extract from your report to Sir Randolph Routh for his information.

With reference to your observations, as to the pressure upon the workhouse, the request of the Guardians for an order to authorize out-door relief under the 2nd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, and the necessity of having room in the workhouse, as a test for the able-bodied, I am to state that the Commissioners have given directions for the preparation of an order authorizing out-door relief, in food, to destitute persons of the following classes:—

1. Widows with one child dependent upon them.
2. Children whose parents are both dead.
3. Able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families dependent on them for support, are affected by severe sickness, or serious accident.

The Commissioners trust that, if the Guardians remove from the workhouse all the present inmates who may be considered as coming within either of these three descriptions, and all to whom out-door allowances may be legally given under the 1st section of the Act, they will have sufficient workhouse accommodation at their disposal, for the relief of all the destitute able-bodied poor who will be willing to accept relief in the workhouse.

The Commissioners have not received Mr. Quigley's query, to which you refer, as to the rateability of police barracks; they may state generally, however, that they believe, premises which are occupied exclusively as police barracks, are exempt from poor rate.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS of the Glenties Union:—
December 15, 1847.

ADVERTING to the resolution passed by the Board of Guardians of the Glenties Union, at their meeting on the 10th instant, in which they request the Commissioners to issue an order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that they are unwilling to issue such an order, until it is manifest that the relief of the destitute able-bodied cannot be otherwise provided for, as they are of opinion that the issue of such an order would tend to increase the burthen upon the industrious rate-payers to a very serious extent. The Commissioners are therefore desirous that every means should be tried, to render the workhouse available for the relief of all the able-bodied applicants for relief, and with this view they have directed that an order be prepared, authorizing out-door relief in food to destitute persons of the following classes:—

1. Widows with one child dependent upon them.
2. Children whose parents are both dead.
3. Able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families dependent on them for support, are affected by severe sickness, or serious accident.

The Commissioners request that the Guardians will remove from the workhouse, and grant out-door allowances to all the present inmates who may be considered as coming within either of these descriptions, and all to whom out-door allowances may legally be given under the 1st section of the Act.

The Commissioners trust that the adoption of this course will place at the disposal of the Board of Guardians, a sufficient amount of workhouse accommodation for all the destitute able-bodied poor who may be willing to accept relief in the workhouse.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 18, 1847.

THE following are the numbers receiving out-door relief, as taken from the relieving officers' books on the 17th instant for the several electoral divisions, viz. :—

Electoral Divisions.	Name of Relieving Officer.	Numbers Relieved last Week.	Number of Applicants for Relief in the ensuing Week.
Ardara	John O'Donnell	292	145
Menavelly		229	49
Lettermacward	Anthony Hanlon	17	50
Dungloe		23	45
Derryloughan	Hugh O'Donnell	89	20
Fentown		Nil.	..
Malinbeg	James Hagarty	125	44
Kilcar		137	11
Rutland	John Boyle	41	..
Mullaghadery		17	..
Killibegs	James Cunner	106	23
Navan	Connel Mulloy	172	62
Glenties		82	18
Total		1,330	467

It will be seen from the above statement that the total number at present receiving out-door relief amounts to 1330, and in the ensuing week this number will be increased by 467 more, which will make a total of 1797, exclusive of what is in the workhouse, and from what the relieving officers have stated I fear this number will very much increase shortly; but there are numbers of women with large families whose husbands have deserted them in the workhouse, and I fear some of this class are getting relief out of it, as there is not room in the house for the number of applicants, and I wish to make the house the test for the able-bodied men.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 19, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to submit, for your consideration, a letter from Mr. Russell, agent to the Marquess of Conyngham, relative to the island of Arranmore, requesting that this island may be made into an electoral division of itself.

This is a course I should strongly recommend, as it is the most miserable and wretched part of the electoral division it belongs to, and of the whole Union, and is at present a heavy burthen upon both.

The case is evidently different from any application of the kind that has hitherto been made to the Commissioners.

I understand that Mr. Chorley, of Belfast, who is the person he alludes to, intends building and residing on the island, and exerting himself in every way to improve the condition of the people.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. RUSSELL to Captain O'NEILL:—December 10, 1847.

A CAPITALIST has offered to purchase the island of Arranmore in Glenties Union, and purposes employing all the population there, provided it can be formed into an electoral division of itself. I need not state to you, who know the condition of the islanders and the burden they are on the electoral division, of which the island at present forms a part, all parties concerned are anxious that this arrangement should be made; and by your representing it in the proper light to the Poor Law Commissioners, have no doubt but the request will be granted.

REPLY to the above :—December 21, 1847.

THE Commissioners have received an application from Mr. Chorley on this subject, and they have requested the views of the Board of Guardians thereon. On receiving the observations of the Board of Guardians, the Commissioners will give the subject their best consideration.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 24, 1847.

THE Board of Guardians have passed a resolution to the effect that the Island of Arranmore would be made an electoral division of itself, should the Commissioners be pleased to approve of the same; and from the want of a resident landlord living in that island, I should say it would be the most desirable to get a gentleman with capital to improve the island, and give employment to the people, as there certainly are great destitution and misery existing in it.

I beg leave to forward the resolution of the Board of Guardians, marked No. 1.

The Guardians have also signed the collectors' books and the warrants for collecting the rates, which I shall urge the collectors to get in as fast as possible.

The following are the numbers receiving out-door relief for the week ending the 24th December, 1847 :—

Electoral Divisions.	Names of the Relieving Officers.	Number receiving Relief.	Number of Applicants for ensuing Week.
Ardara	John O'Donnell	305	76
and Manavally		264	29
Derryloughan		109	4
and Fintown	Hugh O'Donnell	Nil.	..
Glenties		138	8
and Navan		236	33
Kilcar	James Hagarty	160	86
and Malenbeg		176	59
Killybegs		173	52
Sellermacaward	James Cannea	67	14
and Dunglae		65	53
Rutland		41	..

It will be seen from the above, that the numbers receiving gratuitous relief are rapidly increasing, as there are 1751 now actually receiving out-door relief, and 414 on the relieving officers' books for the ensuing week, showing an increase of 421 since my last report of the 18th instant.

The Guardians have accepted tenders for the supply of 47*l.* worth of clothing for the female children belonging to the workhouse, for girls' shifts and frocks.

In conclusion I beg to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that I have got all the able-bodied men employed in draining the grounds belonging to the workhouse, and I am in hopes of being able to have it laid out in good gardens, by the latter end of April or beginning of May, and to have a supply of vegetables for the house, and also to plant some ornamental shrubs in it. Mr. Brady, the agriculturist, has examined it, and he highly approves of the manner the work is laid out and executed.

ENCLOSURE.

RESOLVED,—That in reply to the Commissioners' letter of 15th instant, enclosing a copy of Mr. Chorley's letter, relative to having the Island of Aranmore made into an electoral division, the Guardians beg leave to inform the Commissioners that they unanimously agree to have the Island of Aranmore made into a separate electoral division, as it would be of great relief to the Rutland electoral division, as also to the Union at large.

Resolved,—That a contract for bread and groceries be advertised for. Tenders to be received this day fortnight.

Glenties Union.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 13, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state for your information, that the want of a resident magistrate in this locality has induced several gentlemen of this Union to request that I should be recommended to the Lord Chancellor for that appointment, as there is not a single magistrate within eighteen miles of this town, but one who lives upwards of ten miles from this.

Sir James Stewart, Vice-Lieutenant of this county, has accordingly recommended me for the Commission; and I last night received a letter from the Secretary to the Lord Chancellor, stating that his Lordship had given directions to have me appointed a magistrate for this county. I have therefore, to request the Commissioners will be so kind as to let me know if they have any objection to my accepting of such an appointment, which shall not in any way, interfere with my duties as Temporary Poor Law Inspector.

I beg leave to add, that the want of a resident magistrate in this town, is severely felt by all classes in the neighbourhood; and I should feel obliged by an early reply to this communication, so that I may give an answer to the Lord Chancellor.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state, that if they had been consulted previously, they would have objected to your being appointed resident magistrate while you were Inspector of the Glenties Union, inasmuch as cases may be easily imagined in which your duties as magistrate and Inspector might clash with each other.

Still the Commissioners do not wish to interpose, except to state, that they rely on your not permitting the time which you devote to the duties of Inspector to be curtailed by your new appointment.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 17th instant, and I hope you are aware that I am not to receive any pecuniary reward for my services, should I be appointed a magistrate for this county.

I shall take very good care should such an appointment take place, that it shall not in any way interfere with my duties as Temporary Poor Law Inspector. My only reason for allowing myself to be put in nomination for the appointment was, that as there is no resident magistrate within 14 miles of this place, that the ends of justice are frequently defeated for want of a magistrate to sign summonses or warrants.

Captain O'NEILL to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 29, 1848.

At a meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, when Mr. Otway was present, five resolutions were passed. The first resolution was to take into consideration the Temporary Fever Hospital at Dungloe.

Second resolution, relative to the number of stores taken for out-door relief.

Third resolution, relative to a contract to be taken for out-door relief, for those electoral divisions where there is no contract for at present.

Fourth resolution, directing advertisements to be published for tenders to build the Fever Hospital.

Fifth resolution, appointing a committee to examine into the inmates of the workhouse, to see if there are still any that could be discharged on out-door relief, to make room for the able-bodied paupers. A copy of resolutions herewith transmitted.

The collectors have lodged in the treasurer's hands, within the last week or ten days, about 600*l.*, and I have urged both collectors to press the rate-payers to pay up their rates at once, and I have every hope that a similar sum to that stated above will be got in by the first or second week in February.

The workhouse, I am glad to say, is in an excellent state, clean and orderly, and the number in the infirmary only amounts to seven; not a single case of fever amongst the inmates of the infirmary or the house, and all appear perfectly healthy.

The number in the house up to this date amounts to 535, and those receiving out-door relief to 2904, making a total on the rates of the Union for in and out-door relief of 3439.

I intend proposing to the Guardians to take a house in this village, and fit it up for the accommodation of the male children, which will relieve the house very much, and make room for about 70 or 80 able-bodied men. And if the Commissioners would approve of it, I shall get the Board of Guardians to pass a resolution to cover in one of the small yards at the entrance of the building, which would answer as a school-room, and turn the present school-room into a dormitory for sleeping in, thereby making room for at least 100 more paupers. The medical man states that there is sufficient day room for 200 more than the house is calculated to hold, but he does not think there is sufficient accommodation for more than the house was built for, for sleeping apartments; and he appears to think that this would be an excellent plan. The pressure for out-door relief still continues to a great extent; this alteration could be made for a mere trifle, and any sacrifice would be better than to have recourse to the Commissioners' sealed order to grant out-door relief to the able-bodied paupers.

I have to report that I have got all the ground belonging to the workhouse now thoroughly drained, and I intend, as soon as the weather permits, to employ the able-bodied paupers in digging and subsoiling it, but this will be of little use without a wall is built to enclose it, as it is at present completely exposed to the public, there being no fence of any description round the grounds. Might I therefore request that the Commissioners would be pleased to grant a loan to the Union for carrying out this desirable object. Should the Commissioners be so kind as to comply with my request, I think that a wall 5 or 6 feet high could be built at a trifling expense, and I shall take care to have an advertisement for proposals to be sent in for the building of it, so that no irregularity may arise.

THE Commissioners fully approve of your intended proposal to the Guardians, to take a house for the purpose of affording additional workhouse accommodation, but in regard to the proposal to cover in one of the yards to answer as a school-room, the Commissioners will consult their architect, and address you again on the subject.

The Commissioners regret that it is not in their power to obtain a loan from Government, for the purpose of building a boundary wall to the grounds of the workhouse, but, at the same time, they desire to observe that if a loan from the treasurer could be effected, the repayment of it by instalments, with interest, might be secured by charge on the future rates of the Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain O'NEILL :—February 3, 1848.

WITH reference to that part of your report of the 29th ultimo, in which you propose to cover in one of the small yards of the workhouse of the Glenties Union, for the purpose of increasing the workhouse accommodation, I am directed by the Commissioners to forward, for your information, the enclosed copy of observations of Mr. Wilkinson on the subject.

ENCLOSURE.

OBSERVATIONS of Mr. WILKINSON above referred to :—February 3, 1848.

THIS plan has not been found successful elsewhere. I would advise the workhouses being used only as they were originally intended, for, from experience, I believe that nothing is gained by departing from such arrangement.

I think the proposition to take an old house is good, and at such premises I would advise any temporary buildings to be erected instead of at the poorhouse.

COMMISSIONERS:—November 28, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians at Ballina on Friday the 26th instant, and with reference to the resolution adopted by that Board authorizing their Committees in Erris to take Mr. William Bingham's house at Binghamstown, as an auxiliary workhouse for the reception of paupers from that district, I can only say that I will do all in my power to make it available for that purpose, with the least possible delay, and see that it be managed as well as can be, under the peculiar circumstances of the case; but the Commissioners must be aware of the difficulties under which I shall labour in managing this establishment, until proper officers be appointed to superintend it, and the requisite articles of furniture supplied. The distress of about 300 able-bodied applicants on the relieving officer's books, who have been approved by the Guardians as fit objects for relief, is of such an urgent nature, that I feel I should not be doing my duty unless I provided immediate relief for them, so as to prevent their dying from starvation; most of these people are those who were refused admittance at the Ballina workhouse on the 1st of this month, and who have lingered on since that, in the greatest state of destitution, no relief having been given to them, except what I gave from funds placed at my disposal by the British Association.

Out-door relief has been given to the classes on the relieving officers' books who were entitled to it, under the first section of the Act, the administration of which I superintended myself; and in order to prevent imposition, I have no doubt but it will be requisite to put the most stringent checks on relieving officers in giving out provisions.

I do not expect much co-operation from the Committee of Guardians, as they are principally men in the lower rank of life, whose occupations would preclude their devoting much time to public business.

I shall make most minute inquiries with respect to the Commissioners' request conveyed in your letter of the 24th instant, regarding the number of farmers in this district, whose holdings are of an extent to require hired labourers, and who have means of employing such; but I may remark from what I already know of this district, that there are many farmers holding large tracts of land now waste, and but very few, if any, who could afford to pay labourers for the proper cultivation of their farms.

I have been doing all in my power to persuade the proprietors of this barony to take advantage of the Land Improvement Act, and trust I shall be able to succeed to a certain extent; but up to the present time, Mr. Atkinson (who has a small property close to this town) is the only proprietor who has obtained any money under the provisions of that Act; and he is doing a vast deal of good on his estate, nearly all the poor on it being employed. I have been most cautious in holding out no hope of relief other than through the Poor Law; and have done all in my power to persuade the people to exert themselves for their own benefit.

REPLY to the above:—December 2, 1847.

THE Commissioners recommend that immediate application should be made by you to the Board of Guardians, to appoint officers for the additional workhouse at Binghamstown, and to provide requisites for affording relief in it.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners approve of your checking the dispensing of relief by the relieving officers.

COMMISSIONERS:—December 4, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians at Ballina on Friday. The state of the poor in Erris having been discussed, it was decided, after a considerable degree of opposition on the part of the majority of the Board, that the resolution adopted at their previous meeting, authorising Mr. Bingham's house to be taken as an auxiliary workhouse in Erris, should be confirmed.

K

Ballina Union.
Erris district.

In consequence of Mr. Carney, the architect employed by the Board, having estimated the cost of completing the unroofed portion of the building and erecting sheds, at 954*l.*, (as will be seen by the annexed plan and estimate,) I thought it advisable not to make any conclusive arrangement with Mr. Bingham, until I brought the subject again under the consideration of the Board of Guardians; more particularly as the number of applicants for relief had increased from 600 to 1100, and it was impossible to obtain workhouse accommodation for such increasing applications.

I hesitated in recommending the Board of Guardians to incur at this critical period, so heavy an expense as 954*l.*, still I felt called upon to urge on them, in the strongest manner, the necessity for taking Mr. Bingham's premises, and appropriating them in their present condition as a test of destitution; and I have no doubt that, with a little management, the building might be made available for a larger number of paupers, by a much smaller outlay than Mr. Carney's estimate contemplates.

With reference to the Guardians' resolutions, requesting the Commissioners to authorise out-door relief in Erris to the able-bodied, I have only to state, that if a proper local machinery existed, such an alternative might perhaps, be deferred for some time longer; but, under existing circumstances, having due regard to the preservation of human life, I have no other course to recommend.

I feel it but due to myself to state, that the existing staff in this district, for carrying out any extraordinary measures of relief is quite insufficient; and to attempt any system without a properly organized staff, will only lead to a repetition of the notorious abuses which existed in this locality last summer. I have only two relieving officers in my district, which comprises an area of 175,090 statute acres; and independently of their ordinary duties, these men have to attend a meeting of a Committee of Guardians as well as a Board at Ballina, 40 miles distant. I brought this subject particularly under the notice of the Board of Guardians at, their two last meetings.

There still exists every inclination on the part of the majority of the Ballina Board, to throw the entire responsibility of the support of the Erris paupers off their own shoulders; and there is no doubt that if the people had been left entirely at their mercy (although there are several Guardians anxious to do all in their power for the poor in that district) deaths from starvation must have occurred, had it not been for the provisions placed at my disposal by the British Association. This I have in no way made known to the Board of Guardians.

I consider it my duty to inform the Commissioners that, so far as I can see into the prospects of this district, two-thirds of the population will shortly be applicants for relief, and the remaining third without either the means or the inclination to assist them.

REPLY to the above:—December 8, 1847.

As it appears by the plan of the building proposed to be adapted for a workhouse, some weeks will be necessary to render it fit for occupation, the Commissioners will be prepared to issue an order for out-door relief in the interval, pursuant to the 2nd section of the Act 10 Vict., cap. 31; and they, therefore, request that you will propose to the Board of Guardians on the 10th instant, the arrangements to be made by them for that object, both in respect to a temporary increase of the number of relieving officers, and the providing of supplies of food. I am at the same time, to observe that until these arrangements are made, and shall be reported to the Commissioners (who should be at the same time, apprised of the period necessary for completing the additional workhouse), the issue of the order will be deferred, with a view of enabling the Guardians to be fully prepared.

I am also to state, that for the purpose of expediting the alterations necessary for the workhouse, and their being completed in a suitable and economical manner, Mr. Wilkinson, the Commissioners' architect, will immediately inspect the existing building, and confer with the Board of Guardians, for which object he proposes to be in Ballina on the 10th instant.

With respect to your observations as to the duties of the relieving officers, I am to state, that as the persons applying for relief do not attend before the Board of Guardians at Ballina, it is not necessary that the relieving officers in the Erris division should go there weekly, and that the Board can order relief on the Committee's report, which the Act directs to be made. Ballina Union.

Erris district.

The Commissioners request that the mode of issuing relief in food, the places of issue, and the means of checking abuse, may be proposed to the Guardians at their next meeting.

Lieut. HAMILTON, Temporary Inspector at Ballina, to the COMMISSIONERS:—
December 4, 1847.

I ATTENDED the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, as usual. The proceedings were retarded by certain members who were anxious to have everything their own way, consequently there was a very small amount of business transacted; a great deal of talking, and a great deal of important business left undone, owing to the day having been wasted in fruitless discussions.

I am exceedingly sorry to trouble the Commissioners with so unpleasant a report, particularly as there are several Guardians on the Board who are most anxious to act, in accordance with the Commissioners' instructions; but in a Union like this, it is impossible to transact the necessary business with justice both to the rate-payers and the applicants for relief, unless all co-operate and make the best use of the one day in the week, which is appropriated to business.

In my last report, I alluded to the increasing pressure on the workhouse, and I stated my intention of consulting Mr. Bourke, Poor Law Inspector, as to the best mode of meeting it. We agreed to make the workhouse continue to bear the pressure until the next Board day, and then to urge on the Guardians the immediate necessity of providing additional accommodation, which you will perceive by the minutes has been authorised.

This morning, in company with three of the Guardians, I hired a store for 50 guineas a-year, capable of containing 300 paupers, which number will be this day removed to it from the workhouse. This will, for the present, prevent the having recourse to extreme measures at this early period; but it is impossible to say how long this will be adequate, for the increasing applications. There is another small store, which I am in hopes of being able to obtain.

I have now been through the greater portion of my district, and I have little hesitation in stating that, although very great destitution exists among certain classes, and to an extent which it is very questionable whether the present powers of the Guardians can effectually meet much longer, yet up to this period, it is by no means general, and there is a considerable portion of the population who may safely be left to their own resources, for some months to come. There is another portion, who are subsisting almost exclusively on turnips, who will very soon, either from disease or the exhaustion of their stock, have to be provided for; the remaining portion, who are subsisting either by plunder or begging, are still holding on in the hope that out-door relief must be granted; and there are many who encourage them in such a hope.

It is evident to me, from what I have seen, that no system of relief can be carried out in this district without considerable abuses, and the more extensive the relief, the greater will be the abuses; consequently, if the Commissioners should, from the amount of distress of the classes to which I have alluded, be obliged to issue an order for out-door relief, I am afraid that the present machinery of the Poor Law will prove quite inadequate, as a sufficient check upon the imposition which will be attempted, and which, if not properly checked, will require funds to an amount of which no estimate can be formed.

So far, I have alluded only to the portion of the Union which is in my district; but the state of the district of Erris has been so repeatedly before the Guardians (the majority of whom seem inclined to treat it as a distinct district), that I think it right to call the attention of the Commissioners to the embarrassing position in which the Inspector there is placed; thrown on his own resources, and loaded with a responsibility which I am sure, it is not the Commissioners' intention should be exclusively borne by him.

REPLY to the above:—December 7, 1847.

I AM to express the Commissioners' approval of the measures you have taken for providing additional workhouse accommodation.

Lieut. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 5, 1847.

WITH reference to my letter of yesterday's date, in which I stated that 300 paupers were to be removed yesterday from the workhouse to the store, which a Committee of the Guardians had taken in the morning, I beg to acquaint you that notwithstanding the greatest exertions on the part of the officers of the workhouse, it was found impracticable to move them earlier than this day; consequently 1698 persons had to be provided for last night in the workhouse.

I was at the workhouse early to-day, and had every possible precaution taken against infection.

The applicants for admission are in the most miserable and filthy state; there is neither bedding nor clothing for 600.

I am now going to see the Chairman of the Board, with the view of summoning a special meeting of the Guardians.

I must say, I think that the Guardians ought to have been earlier prepared. On the 8th November, I requested them to make arrangements for giving outdoor relief to persons legally entitled to it, but this step was deferred until it was too late to be of any use. Unless the Board meet more frequently, and give more time to business, it is impossible that they can carry on the business of this large Union properly.

REPLY to the above:—December 7, 1847.

I AM to refer you to a recent letter of the Commissioners to the Board of Guardians, with respect to the delay in providing for the accommodation of an increased number of paupers.

I am at the same time to request, that you will be so good as to suggest to the Guardians, at their next meeting, the necessity of the Board's sitting more than once a-week, during the pressure of distress in the Union.

Lieut. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 11, 1847.

I ATTENDED the usual weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union yesterday, and an adjourned meeting this day.

Without at all questioning the good intentions or capabilities of the Guardians individually (which, as regards a large majority, I have no reason to do), I feel that I should very much mislead the Commissioners, if I were to hesitate any longer, in stating my decided opinion that as a Board, they have failed to carry out the law effectually, and that the sooner paid Guardians are appointed the better, both for the rate-payers and the destitute poor.

It is with very great regret, that I submit this opinion for the Commissioners' consideration, but at this critical period, deeds, not words, are required; and I think very few of the Guardians will deny, that useless discussions occupy their principal time.

I beg to annex a letter which I received yesterday from the medical officer, relative to the state of the workhouse and infirmary; I lost no time in requesting the Board to have some looms removed from one of the temporary fever sheds, with the view of increasing the hospital accommodation. The Board at once ordered their removal. On going round the infirmary this morning, I found that the looms had not been removed, and on inquiry I learned that one of the Guardians, had directed that they should not be disturbed. The doctor informed me that he had been obliged to refuse to take 40 sick persons into the infirmary. At the adjourned meeting to-day, I protested against any Guardian being allowed to take so unwarrantable a step as that adopted; and I think it would be well if the Commissioners were to express their disapproval of individual Guardians interfering with orders of the Board. There is one of the resolutions in the minutes of yesterday's proceedings, which I stated to the Guardians, would not meet with the sanction of the Commissioners, viz., that "authorising food in the house, and one penny per head, "to upwards of 600 applicants for relief, in order to provide a lodging for the "night." It was, however, a case of extreme emergency, and could only be justified by the fact, that many of the applicants had come several miles, and were in a state of the greatest destitution. These cases were again brought before the Board to-day; at my suggestion a selection of the few able-bodied were made to undergo the workhouse test, which in every case, was most gladly accepted by the poor creatures, and a week's supply of provisions was issued to the remainder. I saw no other means of saving human life.

Mr. Wilkinson, the Commissioners' architect, inspected the workhouse, the auxiliary workhouse, and a building, which was this day offered to the Guardians. The proprietor subsequently wished for time to consider, whether he will let it or not, therefore the subject is deferred until next Board day. This last building could be made available for 600 children, at an expense of 100% or 150%. The rent demanded is 85% per annum. I shall strongly recommend the Guardians to take this building if they can get it.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. DEVLIN to Lieut. HAMILTON :—December 10, 1847.

I AM just now returned from visiting the patients in the infirmary. They are suffering much, in consequence of the numbers that are crowded into it.

I have no hesitation in saying that, unless additional accommodation be procured for the sick, many lives will be sacrificed; indeed, in order to keep the house in a healthy state, several hundreds of the present inmates ought to be removed; and may I beg that you will call the attention of the Guardians to this subject.

REPLY to the above :—December 14, 1847.

THE Commissioners require that specific acts of neglect of duty on the part of the Guardians, should be brought before them, before they will feel themselves warranted in exercising their powers, under the 18th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act. If you will place on record such instances, the Commissioners will feel no difficulty in complying with your recommendation.

With reference to the resolution of the Guardians, to allow one penny a-night lodging money to 600 applicants for relief, to be fed in the workhouse, I am to state that the Commissioners are prepared to issue an order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied in this Union, if you recommend such an order; but the course pursued by the Guardians, previously to the issue of such an order, was illegal.

As regards the building which you state, could be made available for 600 children, and which you recommend should be taken by the Guardians, I am to express the Commissioners' sanction of the proposal to rent, and fit up the building referred to, as an auxiliary workhouse.

WITH reference to the Commissioners' letter of the 8th instant, I beg ^{Erris.} to report that I brought the subject of out-door relief in Erris, before the Board of Guardians, at their meeting on the 10th instant, and you will perceive by their minutes, certain resolutions were adopted, appointing an additional relieving officer, with some assistants, together with a few matters of detail, and again expressing their inability, from want of local knowledge, and I may add, local interest, to provide for the wants of that district.

As the auxiliary workhouse will almost immediately be available for the reception of about 200 paupers, I suggested to the Board that it should at once be applied as far as possible, to test destitution, by reserving it exclusively for able-bodied men: those from distant portions of the district to have a preference, as to house accommodation, and those residing in the locality, to be fed and employed on the premises, during the day, and at certain hours, to be allowed to retire to their own homes for the night. I recommended that a school should be erected on the most economical principle, on the premises; a master and mistress appointed; the children fed and educated during the day, and in the evening allowed in like manner, as the men, to return to their homes for the night. With regard to the adult female paupers, I do not see how they can be relieved, except by giving them a weekly supply of provisions. I am of opinion no machinery can be found by which the paupers in Erris could be supplied daily with food; and no matter what checks are put on the distribution of out-door relief, I am certain abuses to a great extent must exist.

I propose going down with Mr. Wilkinson, early to-morrow, in order to show him the house the Guardians have taken at Binghamstown.

I find the greatest difficulty in bringing the applicants on the relieving officers' books, before the Committee of Guardians, in consequence of the crowd of people who collect round the door; and at the meeting last Wednesday several hundreds burst into the room, thereby putting a stop to all further proceedings.

Lieut. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 12, 1847.

WITH reference to my letter of yesterday's date, I beg to acquaint you, that on visiting the workhouse this day, Sunday, I found that nine cases of fever had appeared since yesterday; and that, owing to the crowded state of the infirmary, and there being no room in the fever hospital, the doctor had found it impossible to separate them from the other patients, and was obliged to leave some of them in the body of the house among the paupers.

It appeared to me that there was no further time to be lost, in taking precautions to prevent a repetition of last year's disease and mortality in the house; I therefore on my own responsibility authorized the master at once, to discharge such of the women and children who have been recently admitted into the house for shelter, but for whom there was neither bedding nor clothing, and to give them the out-door allowance offered by the Guardians, to persons who come under the 1st section of the Act. I desired him not to force any of them out of the house, but to allow such as would accept a week's supply of provisions, and had any place to go to, to leave the house, until the Guardians can provide suitable relief for them. I likewise directed the looms to be removed from the fever shed. By these arrangements the numbers in the house will be reduced by about 300, and additional infirmary accommodation provided for 50 or 60 patients.

I am aware that I have taken a very grave responsibility upon myself, but I hope the Commissioners will not think that I have done more, than the urgent and immediate necessity of the case called for. I have not discharged any men; the women and children in question have been in the probationary wards, and in one of the fever sheds, without bedding, without any clothing but the filthy rags which they came in, crowded together in a tainted atmosphere, and liable to infection from being mixed up with half-cured fever cases; they were admitted solely, because it was considered that of two evils, it was less than turning them away from the house to perish. So long as their health did not suffer, I thought it better not to embarrass the Guardians further than by constantly calling their serious attention to the state of the house, and repeatedly requesting them to visit the house and judge for themselves. But it would be inhuman to let these poor persons perish from disease; and I hope the Commissioners will approve of the steps which I have taken with the view of saving not only their lives, but the lives of the regular inmates of the house.

I beg to annex a letter which I have received from the doctor on the subject; it is a statement in writing, similar to that made verbally by him to me, before I authorized the discharge of the paupers this morning.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. DEVLIN to Lieut. HAMILTON:—December 12, 1847.

THE number of inmates at present in the workhouse, makes its condition so very alarming that I feel myself bound to call on you, if you think you have authority to do so, to remove from the house, in such way as you may think best, the extra number beyond what it was built to accommodate.

There are at present, as I understand, 1500 individuals in a house intended, as you are aware, to contain not more than 1200. I found, on going through the house to-day, that fever has become very prevalent among the children. The manner in which the paupers are crowded together in their sleeping apartments, is so very frightful that I apprehend the most shockingly fatal consequences will be the result of a continuance of such a state of things. I feel the strongest possible conviction that, if matters be allowed to remain so, much longer, the entire house will be included in one terrific mass of disease.

I have been obliged to refuse several applications, on this day and yesterday, from persons really in want of hospital accommodation, for whom I had been unable, by any possibility, to make room.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS of Ballina Union:—
December 15, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of an order which they have issued to day, in accordance with the recommendation in a report made to them by W. J. Hamilton, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, authorising you to afford out-door relief under the second section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act in the Ballina Union.

In reference thereto, I am to draw your attention to the circumstance, that no relief under this order can be legally given to persons in employment, that such relief must be in food only, and that no able-bodied man should receive relief except in return for work.

With regard to the nature of the work which should be offered to able-bodied men, the Commissioners have to state, that the making of roads and stone-breaking are two modes of labour which have been suggested as expedient for employing persons receiving out-door relief.

The Commissioners are desirous that the question of employing the able-bodied paupers of the Union on the roads left unfinished by the Board of Works, or in the making of any other roads, should not be raised at the present moment, and as road-making has been proved on a very extensive scale to be no adequate test of destitution, the Commissioners would strongly recommend the other test which has often been found effectual, namely, stone-breaking; and they suggest the making preparations for obtaining a large supply of hard stone, and for employing able-bodied paupers at stone-breaking by task-work in return for the rations to be supplied by the Union.

The Commissioners have further to state, that they are anxious strictly to prohibit and prevent the granting relief on account of the insufficiency of wages to persons occasionally in employment during the week.

It appears to the Commissioners that there is no rule of greater importance in the administration of out-door relief to able-bodied men, than that they should be maintained either wholly by their employer, or wholly by the Board of Guardians, and that the strongest line should thus be drawn between relief and wages.

In setting able-bodied men to stone-breaking by task-work as a condition of relief, much will depend on the knowledge, firmness, and discretion of those who may be appointed to superintend stone-breaking, and the Commissioners cannot too strongly urge you to be peculiarly careful in permitting yourselves to be influenced by no other considerations than those of personal fitness in selecting candidates for that highly important office.

The Commissioners will take this opportunity of observing, that in specifying the period of eight hours at least, in the day, during which, every able-bodied pauper should be required to work, they have made allowance for the present season of the year, and for the possible circumstance that some of the able-bodied paupers may come to the stone-breaking from a considerable distance. It is not, however, by any means intended to prevent the Guardians from requiring work, during a still longer period of time. The period of eight hours is in fact, merely the minimum space of time in the day, during which, every able-bodied pauper should give the value of his labour to the Union.

In conclusion, the Commissioners desire to remind you, that the out-door relief order is merely temporary, and that every possible exertion should be made to render the workhouse available almost exclusively, for the relief of able-bodied men with their families, and that it is also advisable to promote further workhouse accommodation, by every means which the Union may present, for affording in-door relief as far as practicable to all classes of the destitute poor.

WITH reference to my report of the 11th instant, and the request of the Commissioners to furnish them with specific instances of neglect of duty on the part of the Guardians of this Union, I beg to say that I can only point to the unprepared state which I found the Board in, for meeting any extraordinary distress; which state they have remained in, notwithstanding my repeated applications to them to take active steps, instead of allowing the distress, at this early period, to get a-head of them.

I now see no alternative but out-door relief, in order to save life; but I am nevertheless of opinion that, if the Guardians had taken proper steps in time, they might have proceeded for some weeks without having recourse to so ruinous a course; and one (to judge by what I have seen of their proceedings) they will be quite unequal to carry out.

I have reason to know that the most influential of the Guardians contemplate communicating with the Commissioners on the subject of their resignation, owing to their inability to cope with the distress any longer. I think it will be very desirable that the object should be attained, through that course. I had not mentioned the subject to any one, nor did I know until Monday last, that such a step was contemplated; therefore I saw no other course open to me for the public good, but to recommend the dissolution of the Board, on the grounds of their not having taken steps in time to provide for distress, and their general unbusiness-like proceedings as a Board; neither of which charges I could make against them individually.

If the communication from the Board relative to their resignation, be not speedily forwarded, and the Commissioners should be of opinion that I have given sufficient general grounds in my communications on the subject, I have not the least objection to those communications, together with this, being referred to the Board, which will bring matters to an issue.

I ATTENDED a meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union yesterday. Owing to the extreme severity of the weather, there was a smaller attendance of Guardians than usual; the proceedings were less noisy, and I wish I could add that they were of a more practical nature; but really, with the exception of passing resolutions, nothing was done.

I think that there could not have been less than 2000 applications for relief, of which about one-half were extreme cases; the remainder, in my opinion, would require a strict scrutiny, to prevent imposition. In order to afford shelter from the weather (and, I feel bound to add, with every charitable feeling), the Guardians directed that the crowd should be admitted into the dining hall, and that four days' provisions should be issued to all who had tickets from the relieving officers; but such was the dense mass of human beings, that the master, the relieving officers, and the inmates of the house, found it impossible to keep any order: finally, the police were sent for, and the scene of confusion can only be realized by those who witnessed it. As soon as the Guardians adjourned (six o'clock), Mr. Howley, Mr. Hamilton, Poor Law Inspector for Erris, and myself, went down; it was by the greatest good fortune that persons were not crushed to death: this painful scene ended by the house being cleared. A few of the most destitute looking objects were ordered some relief, for the night.

The Board met again this day; a few Guardians attended; and I think that the proceedings were much more satisfactory than I have witnessed for some time.

I need hardly say that the real difficulties of the case are increased tenfold, by the fact, that it is not considered any crime by those who are not in want, to take the bread out of the mouths of poor starving creatures.

The Guardians are perfectly paralysed; many of them are, comparatively speaking, in great want, their properties lying waste, and likely to remain so next year; with whole tracts of country similarly circumstanced, the prospect before them is not cheering. There appears to be no limit to all this relief; it is only, therefore, from those men who look upon the salvation of human life as their first duty, that one meets with any disinterested co-operation.

I confess that, under such circumstances, I do not see how cases of starvation can be prevented; but, at the same time, admitting all the practical difficulties of carrying out the law at a time when the country is in a state of insolvency and social disorganization, I think that at present any such cases must be attributed to breaches of the law, and not to its defects. It is only fair to those gentlemen who are willing and anxious to carry out the law and overcome difficulties, that I should mention that all their exertions are counterbalanced by the impossibility of finding, in a Board composed of 66 members, that unanimity which will insure for the law, a firm and impartial administration.

IN consequence of the Commissioners' order for out-door relief in the Ballina Union, I attended the meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, for the purpose of seeing what arrangements they proposed to make for complying with the Commissioners' instructions. Erris.

The Board, as usual, expressed their anxiety to give me every assistance, and passed resolutions similar to those adopted at their previous meetings, some of which may lead the Commissioners to suppose that I receive great practical assistance from them, which is not the case, as most of their resolutions remain dead letters. I may remark, that the Erris auxiliary workhouse has not as yet been supplied by them with any one requisite, for the purpose of making it available as a test of destitution, although I have been invariably informed, at each meeting, that the articles required should be forthwith forwarded; I have provided everything which could be obtained in Erris for the use of this house, but from the remoteness of the locality, it is impossible to get some of the most necessary articles.

The Guardians, after some discussion yesterday, authorized the expenditure of a small sum, for the purpose of making a portion of the building available, for which I submitted an estimate, approved by Mr. Wilkinson; however, from the tone of some of the Board, and the disagreeable remarks I am subjected to, regarding the expenditure of money on the premises, as well as for the support of the Erris paupers, I feel it will be quite impossible to go on with any improvements, unless I am in some way supported. The Board on all occasions, express their anxiety to afford me every assistance, but, at the same time, invariably state, that they are perfectly unable to deal with the district; consequently, I lose two days in the week, attending their meetings, without deriving any benefit.

I am now returning to Erris with a cheque for 100*l.* in my pocket, a portion of which is to pay the expenses incurred on the building, the remainder to provide for between two and three thousand persons on the Relieving Officers' books. I have no staff on which I can place any confidence, to assist me, and as far as the Committee of Guardians is concerned, the Commissioners may judge of the assistance I receive from them, when I mention that the only member who attended the meeting of the Board, as I am informed, for a considerable period (on the occasion of the appointment of officers to the Erris Workhouse), stated, they would soon be applying for relief themselves.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to acknowledge the receipt of your Report of the 11th instant, and to state that as the Board of Guardians is to be dissolved, and an order has been issued for out-door relief in the Union, the Commissioners now find it necessary to address you only with regard to the number and conduct of the persons applying for relief on the 8th instant.

In reference thereto, I am to state, that the Commissioners consider that it is of great importance that the system of granting relief, through the application and report books of relieving officers, alone, should be observed, and they presume that the police authorities of Belmullet would, if applied to, afford due protection against interruption by the paupers.

Ballina Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Lieut. HAMILTON and Mr. RICHARD HAMILTON respectively :—December 21, 1847.

THE Commissioners have given directions for preparing an order for the dissolution of the Ballina Board of Guardians.

The Commissioners deem it right to make you acquainted with their intentions, but they do not wish you to communicate on the subject, with any person in the Ballina Union, until the order actually arrives.

The COMMISSIONERS to BOARD OF GUARDIANS—Dissolution of the Board:—December 22, 1847.

THE Commissioners had under consideration, reports of their Temporary Inspectors, Mr. W. Hamilton, at Ballina, and Mr. Richard Hamilton, at Belmullet, with other documents relative to the relief of the destitute poor in Ballina Union.

On giving their deliberate attention to these reports and documents, and on taking a review of the present position of the Union, the Commissioners have arrived at the conclusion that the duties of the Ballina Board of Guardians have not been duly and effectually discharged, according to the intention of the Irish Poor Relief Acts, either in respect to the collection of rates, or in providing proper workhouse accommodation, with bedding and clothing for the destitute persons recorded as receiving workhouse relief; while in consequence of timely exertions not having been made to prepare auxiliary workhouse accommodation, large numbers of destitute poor persons have received no relief at all, or relief inadequate to their necessities.

The Commissioners are fully sensible that many individual Guardians of the Union have bestowed much time and attention on the affairs of the Union, and by their valuable services have deserved well of the rate-payers. At the same time, the difficulties of the Union have been too great to be met by individual exertions, at a time when the perils of the emergency required the steady and systematic energy of all the Guardians acting as a Board; and the Commissioners regret to state that the Board of Guardians appear to have been unequal to the discharge of their important functions.

The Commissioners therefore have felt themselves called upon to exercise their power under the 18th section of the Act 10 Vic. cap. 31, by dissolving the Board of Guardians, and appointing paid Guardians to carry into execution the provisions of the laws for relief of the destitute poor. An order to that effect, under seal of the Commissioners, is accordingly enclosed herewith, and will be shortly followed by an order containing the appointment of paid Guardians.

I BEG leave to report that I attended at the Ballina workhouse this day, when the sealed order for dissolving the Board was read, and entered on the minutes. The Guardians present being of opinion (in which I concurred) that, under the terms of this order, they were rendered incapable of any longer acting in their capacity of Guardians, retired from the Board-room, and it then became necessary for me, in conjunction with Mr. W. Hamilton, to make provision for the support of the destitute poor, during the interval preceding the arrival of the paid Guardians.

Upon examining into the affairs of the Union, I found that the workhouse contained its full number, and that the additional building at Ardnaree was not yet in a condition to receive paupers. I also found that each of the relieving officers' Application and Report Books contained names varying in number from 50 to 1000, and amounting I should think in all to upwards of 5000 (exclusive of Binghamstown and Belmullet), all of which had been inspected; and in the large majority of instances, recommended as very urgent cases requiring instantaneous relief. About one-third of these had been submitted to the Board of Guardians on their last day of meeting; but instead of investigating each application, and entering on the books the quantity of relief to be given, I observed with surprise that the Guardians had contented themselves with ordering every one who appeared on the books to receive four days' rations, leaving no record of the provision to be permanently made for them.

Under the circumstances it appeared to me that, without some special order from me, the 5000 persons on the books of the relieving officers must be deprived of all support, as the power possessed by relieving officers of affording provisional relief does not extend beyond the next Board day after the application for relief, which period had in all the cases expired. I therefore issued an order to the relieving officers, in which Mr. Hamilton joined, whereby we directed them to continue for one week, the provisional relief ordered by the late Board of Guardians, and to afford a corresponding amount of food to each of the parties subsequently entered on their Application and Report Books; and whom, on going over their books with the officers, we learned were urgently in need of immediate relief. For this purpose, we authorized them to obtain the necessary quantity of meal from the contractor at Ballina, and we instructed them how to bring it to charge in their several books, so as to avoid a confusion of account. In the same manner, we provided for the necessary wants of the workhouse for the ensuing week; and I trust you will consider that in thus acting we have not exceeded our duty, and have been justified by the necessity of the case.

I am conscious that much of the relief thus sanctioned will be distributed to able-bodied persons, and that by not exacting from them a certain task of work, I have violated the provisions of your sealed order; but though I had drawn out a plan for carrying out these directions, and meant to have proposed it to the Guardians for their adoption, if they had continued in office, I found it impossible to bring it into operation in time to be available for the present distribution of relief; and I was deterred by the representations of the relieving officers and others, from deferring the issue of food until the machinery for setting to work could be brought to act. I have, however, made some preparations for carrying out your views as to employment, and I hope that on their first Board day, the Vice-Guardians will be in a position to exact a task of stone-breaking from every able-bodied male receiving the out-door relief.

The total neglect on the part of the Board during the last three weeks, in examining applications for relief, and recording their decision on the books of the relieving officers, together with the indiscriminate manner in which they ordered out-door relief to be administered, have not only produced an immense arrear of applications which must all be investigated before they can be permanently decided on, but have furthermore commenced the system in so lax and unguarded a manner that it will require a large amount of labour to reduce it to order, and a resolute course of conduct to narrow the relief within the proper limits, beyond which it should never have been allowed to extend.

Under these circumstances, therefore, I cannot too strongly urge upon you the advantage of securing the immediate attendance of the paid officers who are to succeed the late Board of Guardians; and I am happy to see, by the papers referred to me this day, that Mr. Drought may be expected to arrive immediately.

I hope to meet Mr. W. Hamilton and Mr. Richard Hamilton in Ballina to-morrow, and to communicate to you our views upon some other matters connected with the further administration of the law in this Union.

REPLY to the above :—December 29, 1847.

IN the difficulties created by the neglect of the late Board of Guardians, in not having investigated the applications for out-door relief and made a definite order in each, whereby large numbers were transferred indiscriminately to the charge of the relieving officers for provisional relief, there appeared to have been no other course available for the maintenance of the destitute poor, pending the meeting of the Vice-Guardians, than that adopted by you and Mr. Hamilton, as described in your report, and the Commissioners therefore approve of it.

THE POOR LAW INSPECTORS to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 25, 1847.

THE experience of the last few weeks having shown us the difficulties of effectually carrying out the provisions of the Poor Relief Extension Act in this Union, we think the present a favourable time for submitting our views and pointing out the manner in which we conceive these difficulties may to a certain extent be met.

The population of this Union, according to the Census of 1841, was 120,787, and the number of persons receiving rations during the week ended the 4th July last, appears to have been 93,612, exclusive of the Belmullet and Binghamstown electoral divisions, from whence no return was received. When it is remembered, that the supply of food is greater now than during the past year, and that employment for the poor is not more abundant, it may naturally be expected that the demand for relief from the rates, though perhaps it may not reach the same extent as during the last summer, will yet be very considerable. In confirmation of this opinion it may be stated that at present there appear on the books of the relieving officers for the different electoral divisions, exclusive of Belmullet and Binghamstown, the names of upwards of 5000 individuals who have been visited and reported on as fit objects for relief, whilst in the two last-named divisions alone the numbers amount to nearly 4000. These cases have been selected from an infinitely larger number of applications made to the relieving officers, and have been reported on by them as requiring instant relief.

The difficulty experienced in dealing with the poor of Belmullet and Binghamstown, distant upwards of 40 miles from the town of Ballina, made it necessary at an early stage of the proceedings to appoint a Committee for those divisions, under the 6th section of the Relief Extension Act, and the large increase of applications soon after, compelled the Guardians to engage a building in Binghamstown, which is now under repair for an auxiliary workhouse.

The Board of Guardians being now dissolved, the Committee has also ceased; but as the causes which led to its appointment still continue, some corresponding plan must, in our opinion, be adopted by the paid officers. The assistance afforded by this Committee was little more than nominal, and Mr. Richard Hamilton found that the labour and responsibility of determining on the different applications for relief was entirely thrown upon him, and that owing to the extent of the distress and the disposition both on the part of the relieving officers and of the poor to impose (which his unacquaintance with the district rendered him unable to detect) the important duty of selecting fit objects for relief, was most unsatisfactorily executed. In the Ballina Board, we regret to say, that the duty of investigating the cases brought before them was for the last three weeks completely neglected, and that relief was indiscriminately afforded to every one appearing on the relieving officers' books.

Both these circumstances will impose a vast increase of trouble on the paid Guardians, who will have to determine not only on the current applications brought before them, but on the long arrear left behind by the Ballina Board and the Erris Committee.

By an order under seal, which has this day reached us, we perceive that you have appointed two paid officers to carry into execution the provisions of the law in this Union, and we very much fear that, under the circumstances we have just detailed, it will be found impossible for so small a number duly to perform the duties of Guardians in this extensive Union.

Assuming the principle still to prevail which actuated the appointment of a Committee in Binghamstown, it will be necessary for the paid officers, or one of them, to attend there once in every week. Two days will be occupied in travelling, and at least an equal number in investigating the circumstances of each applicant,—thus leaving but two days in the week for the discharge of the ordinary business of the remaining electoral divisions, at the Ballina workhouse. Our experience yesterday, when we examined the books of the relieving officers without calling in the applicants themselves, has satisfied us that the duty cannot be effectually performed in less than three days, and that it might very well occupy four; whilst the other important business connected with the management of the workhouse, and the details of the labour test, will also require a considerable time both in Ballina and Binghamstown.

Under these circumstances we think it right to state, for your information, our mature opinion that a third officer will be indispensably necessary for the due execution of the duties of the Guardians of this Union; that he should reside in Binghamstown to act in conjunction with the Temporary Inspector as a Committee for receiving applications, and also as a visiting Committee for the regulation of the house, and that at certain intervals a Board should there be held. We have already seen enough to satisfy us that it will require much energy and unremitting attention to check imposition and fraud, and we feel convinced that two officers, however diligent, will be found insufficient to perform the mass of duties which will devolve upon them in this extensive Union.

Ballina Union.

REPLY to the above :—December 29, 1847.

IN accordance with your recommendation, the Commissioners propose appointing a third paid Guardian for the Union, and have offered the appointment to Mr. J. D. Waters, of Athy.

Mr. R. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 1, 1848.

DURING the past week I have gone through this district, for the purpose of ascertaining the localities best adapted for employing gangs of able-bodied paupers. Erris.

In consequence of the great extent of these two electoral divisions, and the immense number of able-bodied applicants for relief, I am fully persuaded it will be requisite to have at least eight or nine stations for this purpose, as it cannot be reasonably expected that any man will be able to walk a greater distance than three miles to the place at which he may be employed.

Binghamstown Division is upwards of 20 miles from end to end, and by the census of 1841, contained 9428 inhabitants, who are scattered in a vast number of small villages lying at short distances from each other, nearly in a direct line north and south. The relieving officer for this district has already 1500 applicants on his books, 400 of whom are able-bodied.

Belmullet Division, by the census of 1841, contained 13,345 inhabitants, widely scattered over an area of 145,598 statute acres, and there are upwards of 2000 applicants on the books, 500 of whom are able-bodied.

I should have recommended the Guardians as far as possible, to make the auxiliary workhouse exclusively a test for all doubtful applicants, but owing to a proprietor in the immediate vicinity (Mr. Walsh), having during the last week unroofed the cabins belonging to nearly all his tenants, and turned about 80 families from the village of Mullaghroe adrift, without covering almost of any kind, I am afraid we shall have no alternative but to fill the house with these people, although they were a class of paupers who I should have considered, the best entitled to out-door relief. I visited this village a month ago, and found the greatest destitution existing in it; but on going there again the day before yesterday, I was not a little astonished to find nothing but the walls of the houses remaining, the inhabitants being scattered through the country, seeking shelter where they could best find it.

As the supply of turnips, on which a large proportion of the population in this district has been subsisting for some months past, are now nearly exhausted, the distress has become of a much more urgent nature; consequently I had no alternative, in order to prevent deaths from starvation during the last fortnight, but to allow the relieving officers to give a small supply of meal to the most distressed persons on their books, until proper arrangements could be made by the Guardians, for carrying out the Commissioners' instructions regarding the administration of out-door relief to the able-bodied.

I have no doubt that if overseers can be found, who will be firm in making each pauper complete his task of work before he shall be entitled to his ration, a great reduction will almost immediately be made in the number of applicants, as I am fully aware of many parties on the books who have means of earning a subsistence for themselves.

To give the Commissioners some idea of the state of mendicancy to which all classes in this district are reduced, I may mention that no later than yesterday, a lady who is proprietor of upwards of 300 acres of land, applied to me to have her name put on the relieving officer's books for out-door relief.

I am very happy to state that several of the small proprietors in this district have at last decided upon applying for advances, under the provisions of the Land Improvement Act. Mr. Carter (who is one of the principal proprietors) has applied for 6000*l.*; and I think the drainage on his estate will be commenced almost immediately, which will afford a vast deal of relief to the most distressed portions of the two electoral divisions.

REPLY to the above :—January 4, 1848.

I AM to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 1st instant, relating to the Ballina Union, in which you state that in the Belmullet district it will be necessary to have, at least, eight or nine stations at which to employ the able-bodied paupers in the receipt of out-door relief; and I am directed to request that you will have the goodness to state whether you have made this suggestion to the Vice-Guardians, whose duty it is to make the necessary arrangements, and to whom, therefore, you should propose whatever you consider advisable.

MR. R. HAMILTON'S REPLY :—January 8, 1848.

UPON the dissolution of the late Board of Guardians, I made such arrangements, in conjunction with Mr. Bourke and Lieutenant Hamilton, as we considered would best meet the exigencies of our respective districts.

On the arrival of the Vice-Guardians, I received a communication from Lieutenant Hamilton, in which he stated, that the Guardians proposed visiting the Erris district on the 3rd instant; but, at the same time, expressing his doubts whether they would be able to fulfil their intentions, owing to the arrear of business left by the late Board.

Finding that the Guardians did not arrive on the 2nd instant, I wrote on the 3rd to Lieutenant Hamilton, stating that, unless some decided steps were taken by the Guardians for the proper administration of relief in Erris, I anticipated the worst consequences; and, among other subjects connected with the district, I mentioned that nine stations, at which to employ able-bodied paupers, would be required.

I received a reply from him, stating he had laid my letter before the Guardians, who requested him to mention that, as Mr. Waters (the Guardian specially appointed for Erris) was hourly expected, they would supply him with funds, and request he would place himself at once, in communication with me.

Immediately on receipt of this, together with your letter, I determined upon starting for Ballina, in the hopes of meeting Mr. Waters, and conferring with him and the other Vice-Guardians. I was fortunate enough to meet them, and am happy to add, they have approved of all the steps I was compelled to take on my own responsibility, with regard to the preservation of human life.

I have laid before them my suggestions as to carrying out the Commissioners' instructions, respecting the administration of out-door relief to able-bodied paupers, in which they coincide.

Mr. Waters and myself purpose going this day to Belmullet, with a full understanding as to our future proceedings.

MR. R. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 9, 1848.

IN my letter of yesterday's date, I briefly detailed the proceedings during the interval which elapsed between the dissolution of the late Board of Guardians (and consequently the Committee which was deputed to act for this district) and the arrival of the Vice-Guardians.

I have only to add that Mr. Waters and myself will lose no time in taking the necessary steps to place matters on a more satisfactory footing than has hitherto existed; and with this view, notice has been given to each of the relieving officers, to warn all applicants to attend at stated places on appointed days during the ensuing week, in order that their cases may be properly investigated.

ON visiting the auxiliary workhouse at Binghamstown yesterday, I found the doors surrounded by several hundreds of the most miserable looking objects seeking admittance, and stating they had no place whatsoever to shelter them at night, or a morsel of food of any description to eat: however, as the available portion of the building was quite inadequate to accommodate such a number of paupers, I had no alternative but to refuse taking them in, at the same time giving them to understand that they should be admitted as soon as accommodation could be provided for them.

Under these circumstances, together with the certainty that it will be absolutely requisite to provide in-door accommodation for nearly 1000 persons in the district, I think it would be most desirable that the unfinished portion of the buildings attached to the workhouse should, with the least possible delay, be made available, and likewise that a range of temporary sheds for day-rooms, school-rooms, &c., should be erected in the outside yard; but, in order to carry on any extensive work on the premises, I would suggest that the Commissioners should send down a person who had some previous knowledge of building, in order to take a general superintendence of the works, and keep accounts of expenditure, &c.; as from the experience I have had of the parties at present employed, I consider they have not energy sufficient to complete any task of work.

At my suggestion, Mr. W. Bingham (proprietor of the house) was employed by the late Board of Guardians, at 1*l*. per week, to take charge of the premises until proper officers should be appointed; but, as no officers have as yet arrived, he still remains.

There are upwards of 30 orphan children at present in the auxiliary workhouse, most of whom I sent there myself, in order to prevent their dying on the roads for want of shelter. No other class of persons has been admitted, or indeed could be admitted, until a proper division is made to separate the males and females.

I may remark, with reference to the admission of paupers, that fever has greatly increased in this district within the last few weeks; and should it break out in the workhouse (which is more than likely), there is no hospital or place for the reception of patients nearer than Ballina, a distance of upwards of 40 miles.

WITH reference to your suggestion, that a competent person should be sent to superintend the additional buildings proposed to be erected at the auxiliary workhouse at Binghamstown, I am to state that Mr. Wilkinson received instructions, in accordance with your suggestion, to employ a clerk of works, and to forward the plans for the temporary buildings necessary, pending the erection of the permanent workhouse.

The VICE-GUARDIANS of Ballina Union to the COMMISSIONERS:—
January 5, 1848.

WE beg leave to submit to you the present report.

1st. As to the state of the house, everything has since been satisfactory, with the exception that on Friday last, a refractory spirit was manifested by the able-bodied inmates who refused to work. We immediately went amongst them, and by ordering some to be dismissed forthwith and all allowances to be stopped, succeeded in bringing them to a sense of duty.

2nd. As to collection of rates, we have with the solicitor revised all the collectors' books, and directed proceedings to be commenced against all defaulters for various amounts, making in the aggregate about 400*l*.; first sending to each person to whom we deemed it necessary a printed letter, a copy of which is enclosed. The names of the defaulters, the sums due by each, the nature of the proceedings ordered to be taken, and the reasons for adopting the particular mode of procedure in each case will shortly be submitted for your approval with the result so far.

3rd. With respect to the revision of the lists, we have, in every case where it appeared indispensably necessary, subjected each applicant to personal examination; but owing to the neglect of the late Guardians in not revising the relieving officers' books, and owing to the immense amount of destitution apparently existing in the country the applicants for relief have increased to an enormous number : and from all accounts we hear, we are led to believe, that though much imposture is practised, still many are in that state, that if all relief is withheld they undoubtedly will perish, and consequent odium attach to us as Government officers.

We are perfectly aware of the immense advantage to be derived, from the personal examination of all applicants for relief, and the consequent facility of offering the best of all tests, that of the workhouse. This we would willingly do at any amount of labour to ourselves ; but it is evident that if we did so in all cases, many weeks would elapse before those applicants whose names have been returned up to this time, could be examined, and consequently before they could be relieved, and in the mean time, the numbers on the list would be daily increasing.

It, therefore, appears that there are only three courses open to us.

1st. To permit relief to be granted to all applicants till time would permit us to sanction it by personal examination. This would be to act illegally.

2nd. To withhold all relief, until we have examined each applicant personally and approved of him. This would endanger many lives.

3rd. To revise for the present, without personal examination, all the names now on the lists ; and judging from the representations made by the relieving officers as well as from other sources, and also by putting ourselves in a position to offer the workhouse test wherever we may deem it necessary, to approve of such as may seem fit to us, restricting the amount of relief afforded as much as possible, until time will permit us to revise the lists more strictly by personal examination, which course we propose adopting in every case, as soon as the arrears are disposed of.

No doubt much abuse may arise from adopting this course, but under all the circumstances, we apprehend it will be the evil of the least magnitude ; and we must feel that any amount of evil so arising, is in a great measure to be laid to the charge of the late Guardians, who did not take steps to prevent such an arrear of business and such consequent destitution.

We have placed ourselves in a position to offer freely the workhouse test. It has answered our expectations, and much imposition has been checked, and considerable destitution of principle manifested.

We have commenced the labour test ; the details and machinery have been arranged, so as to afford sufficient checks on all parties, and can be submitted for your approval if necessary.

Mr. Bourke's suggestions have been highly valuable in this instance.

In conclusion, we confidently expect that by being able to offer the tests of the workhouse and of labour, the expense of out-door relief will not be so enormous as has been feared.

We may remark that our difficulties have been considerably increased, owing to the arrears into which the clerk's business has fallen, since the commencement of out-door relief.

REPLY to the above:—January 18, 1848.

I AM directed to request your attention to the provisions contained in the 58th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, and to the Commissioners' regulations for the punishment of disorderly and refractory paupers. The Commissioners consider it to be more expedient to resort to the means authorized by the Irish Poor Relief Act, and the general regulations for the punishment of disorderly or refractory paupers, than to punish them by dismissal from the workhouse.

I am at the same time to state, as regards the allowances referred to, that the opinion of the Commissioners is unfavourable to giving extra rations to paupers, as whatever services they may be required to perform are due, and should be given without reward.

The VICE-GUARDIANS of the Ballina Union to the COMMISSIONERS:—
January 12, 1848.

Ballina Union.

WE beg to forward our report as to the collection of the rate, and also a schedule showing the amount that was due by each party; the proceedings that we have directed in each case, and the results so far. We have in many instances, been obliged to resort to proceedings in the superior courts, for the following reasons,—1st. From the time that we were appointed we were not able to take the necessary steps to enable us to proceed before the Barrister at sessions, as 12 days' notice was necessary. 2nd. Magisterial summonses have not been hitherto effective, nor are they likely to be so, the magistrates being in the constant habit of postponing the sessions, and thereby causing delay. We fear this is done intentionally, and are of opinion, that the resident magistrate should be required to adjudicate at the next sessions, 1st of February, if the local magistrates will not act. The local magistrates are also, as is reported to us, in the habit of decreeing for a much less amount than what may be due, upon any trivial cause shown, which renders appeals, and consequently delays, necessary. Two collectors reported this to us yesterday, they having lost seven weeks owing to postponements, having summoned defaulters for several hundred pounds. The amount paid in since we came, from the 28th December to 11th January, was 973/. The preliminary steps for taking proceedings in the superior courts, have in many instances effected an immediate settlement; but in all such cases in which it appears by the annexed schedule, that such steps have been taken, it is necessary for us to get special leave from you to commence actions; and we are anxious that such permission should be granted, without delay, to enable us to obtain execution in as short a time as possible, the 20th of January being the last day for filing declarations.

In many instances, even the stringent proceedings we have directed may fail, owing to the inability of defaulters to pay; but we thought it our duty to leave no stone unturned to effect a collection of the rates, and hope for your sanction of our proceedings so far, and your special authority to continue the same, where such authority is necessary.

We will forward another report upon the state of the house and the labour list, showing the details of the system we have established.

ENCLOSURE.

A LIST of POOR-RATE DEFAULTERS in the UNION of BALLINA, showing the Amount remaining due by each, and the Directions of the Vice-Guardians in reference to the recovery thereof.

Names, &c.	Amount due.	Directions of Vice-Guardians for Recovery of Rate.
Lord Clanmorris, (lessor)	£. s. d. 9 15 11½	The last rate has been paid by the agent of the present nobleman. Ballina, January 11, 1848.

THOMAS MACANDREW, Solicitor.

LIEUT. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 17, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward to you the annexed letters which I have received from Messrs. MacAndrew and Irwin, rate collectors, complaining of the constant adjournments of the Ballina Petty Sessions.

I have to request, that the Commissioners will have the goodness to communicate with the proper authorities, in order to prevent a recurrence of this very just cause of complaint.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. MACANDREW to Mr. W. HAMILTON :—January 14, 1848.

I BEG leave to acquaint you, that I have had a large number of summonses served upon defaulting rate-payers for the last three weeks, and there has been no Petit Sessions' Court here since, to dispose of those cases. The last Court was held on the 21st December, and during the interval between that time and the present date there have been two days appointed for holding a Court, one on the 4th January, and the other on the 11th; but on each day one magistrate only attended to adjourn the Court. I stated to the one magistrate that did attend, that he alone could adjudicate on poor-rate summonses, but he declined doing so without the aid of a second magistrate. The Court now stands adjourned till the 1st of February.

Mr. IRWIN to Captain HAMILTON :—January 15, 1848.

It is quite impossible for a collector to bring in rates, especially out of a poor district, in consequence of the non-attendance of the magistrates at the Ballina Petit Sessions. We had no Court there since the 14th December, nor shall have until the 1st of February next. We had two or three adjournments since the last Court.

REPLY to the above :—January 22, 1848.

LIEUT. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 17, 1848.

WITH reference to the loan of implements, &c., I beg to say that it will be necessary to take precautions to prevent wilful damage to such implements, as, on two occasions last week, overseers reported to me that the workmen employed under them broke their hammers, &c., designedly, the moment the overseers' backs were turned. On the last occasion I found 17 hammers broken, I told all the workmen that if I found them playing that game, I would recommend the Guardians to try the effect of shot drill (as practised at some of the military prisons under Colonel Jebb's superintendence). I gave them some idea of what kind of work they would find it, and I think so far the threat has succeeded.

I will feel obliged by your acquainting me whether the Commissioners consider such a punishment objectionable, and, if so, what you recommend to be tried.

THE Commissioners consider that all such persons who do not conduct themselves in an orderly manner at the work which they are required to give in return for the food supplied to them, cannot really require relief, and should, therefore, be struck off the relief lists.

The Commissioners recommend that the Vice-Guardians should give notice to this effect, through all the Relieving Officers.

LIEUT. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 17, 1848.

I HAVE attended the meetings of the Vice-Guardians as frequently as my other duties would admit of during the past week, some portion of which I spent in visiting schools.

I can report favourably on the state of the workhouse, and bear testimony to the anxiety of the Vice-Guardians to do their utmost to relieve distress and check imposition, but I am sorry to say that in every respect the affairs of this Union are daily becoming more difficult to deal with.

Ballina Union.

The Relieving Officers are overwhelmed with applications for relief; nearly the entire population received relief last year, and nothing less will satisfy them this year.

It is painful to witness, day after day, distress, disease, and demoralization in their worst forms, and the last exists to such an extent that I greatly fear it is almost hopeless to expect success in every instance, in affording timely and effectual relief to those who really are in want of it.

REPLY to the above:—January 18, 1848.

I AM to suggest that the Vice-Guardians should at once consider the expediency of remodelling the relief districts of the Union, with a view to the increase of the number of the districts, and the appointment of additional Relieving Officers, so that each Relieving Officer may be responsible for the discharge of such an amount of duty as he may reasonably be expected to perform. By this means, relief will be more duly afforded where distress is not simulated, and imposition will be better detected in other cases.

The Commissioners request you to direct your earnest attention to the making such arrangements as will prevent the deaths of the destitute from starvation. However great the destitution is, it must be grappled with, and relieved as far as is permitted by the law.

DURING the past week, Mr. Waters and myself have continued, as far as possible, our personal examination of the applicants for relief in different portions of the district; but owing to the ignorance of the people, and the imposition attempted, we find that a longer period will be required for a proper selection and classification of paupers, than we at first anticipated.

From the general emaciated appearance of the people, together with the horrifying sights coming under our immediate observation, we deem it absolutely necessary to make arrangements for affording relief on a more extended scale than heretofore; and as from experience we are quite convinced that food can only, with safety, be given in a cooked form, we purpose erecting boilers in the most central parts of the two electoral divisions.

I shall communicate with Count Strzelecki, before any of the boilers belonging to the Association in this district are removed, but the localities in which they are at present situated are not adapted for our purposes.

There are at present 50 orphan children in the auxiliary workhouse, and I regret to say there are 17 cases of dysentery, which are to be principally attributed to the change of diet, after the privations these poor little creatures had previously undergone. The healthy children have been separated to a detached portion of the building, and every precaution to check the progress of disease has been made.

OBSERVATIONS of Mr. W. J. HAMILTON on a Communication from the Board of Health relating to the increase of temporary hospital accommodation in the Ballina Union:—January 17, 1848.

As the Vice-Guardians are not at all satisfied with the tenure of the ground, on which the fever sheds were erected under the authority of the Board of Health, they decided on advertising for tenders for a house or houses capable of containing 50 patients; however, no tenders have been received. The Vice-Guardians have, therefore, directed that the hospital attached to the auxiliary workhouse at Ardnaree, should be exclusively devoted to fever patients; and they purpose, if the Commissioners have no objection, to turn the Ardnaree workhouse into a fever hospital, and endeavour to procure a store, called Casement's store, to be used as an auxiliary workhouse.

I think that no persons, except paupers, should be admitted to the fever hospital, and charged on the rates. At present, I am informed, that every applicant is admitted.

The sooner that these fever hospitals are placed more under the control of the Guardians the better.

I have not received any communication from the Board of Health.

Ballina Union.

REPLY to the above:—January 28, 1848.

AN extract from your observations has been forwarded for the information of the Board of Health.

As regards your suggestion, that no persons but paupers should be admitted into the fever hospitals, and charged on the rates, I am to state that it is not necessary that a person should be destitute to entitle him to relief, if affected by fever, or other dangerous contagious disease; and I am to request your attention to the 15th section of the Irish Poor Relief Amendment Act, and to the Fever Acts, on this point.

With reference to your observations, as to the expediency of having the hospitals placed more under the control of the Guardians, I am to state, that in the present state of the law, the fever hospitals established under the Board of Health are to be supported by the Boards of Guardians out of the Union funds, upon the estimates furnished by the Relief Committees, when such estimates have been allowed by the Finance Committee, and countersigned by the Inspector of the Union.

The Commissioners trust that by this means, a sufficient check may be kept upon the management and expenditure of the temporary fever hospitals.

WE beg to annex the accompanying communication which we have received from the Rev. Richard St. George, vicar of Crossmolina.

We fear that in this extensive Union, it will not be possible to provide adequate accommodation for all fever cases. We therefore beg to suggest, that the subject be referred to the Board of Health, with a view of having their opinion as to the best course to pursue under such circumstances.

We have this day decided upon at once appropriating the auxiliary work-house in Ardnaree as a fever hospital, in consequence of the great increase of fever.

ENCLOSURE.

The Rev. Mr. ST. GEORGE to the POOR LAW GUARDIANS of the BALLINA UNION:—
January 24, 1848.

ALLOW me to call your attention to the awful state in which the poor of this extensive Union are placed by fever, without any means of administering to their wants or giving them any relief, or removing those in a state of fever from those who are not as yet unaffected. When the Relief Committee was in existence I brought the subject before them. The only person who was willing to assist me, or join in the application, was the Roman Catholic clergyman, Rev. Mr. Costello. The consequence is, that during the past twelve months, but more especially during the last three months, fever has been on the increase, and much more malignant in its character than heretofore; and I assert, that unless some means are afforded of giving relief and removing the infected, the whole population will be swept off. I would have gone into Ballina this day, but I have parish duties to attend; but I hope some means may be devised to have the sick attended in this neighbourhood, or removed into Ballina.

REPLY to the above:—January 28, 1848.

THE attention of the Board of Health has been drawn to your communication.

Lieut. HAMILTON and Mr. R. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—
January 29, 1848.

HAVING been in communication for the past week as regards the present state and future prospects of our respective districts, more especially with a view of considering how long the Vice-Guardians will be able to meet their weekly engagements, we feel anxious to lay before the Commissioners a brief statement of our views on this latter subject, as we are apprehensive that much confusion and increased difficulties may shortly arise from the present financial state of the Union.

We feel we cannot conscientiously recommend any gratuitous assistance from the funds of the British Relief Association, so long as the rate books exhibit their present list of defaulters, there being still uncollected about 7500*l.* of the rate made last July. The Commissioners are aware that every step has been taken to enforce payment, and we do not despair of being able ultimately to recover a considerable portion of this sum; however, we cannot reckon upon weekly lodgments sufficient to cover the weekly expenses, which, according to the following rough estimate, we calculate to be about 630*l.*, viz.—

In-door relief	£120
Rent	3
Fever hospital	30
Out-door relief	415

The present liabilities of the Union, including the amount advanced by the Commissioners last year (but not taking into account the advances under Act 10 Vict., cap. 7, for which no rate has been struck), amount to about 2500*l.* Supposing 4000*l.* of the uncollected rate to be recovered, there will be sufficient funds to carry on until the end of February.

It is not easy to calculate what the probable expenses of the four following months may be, but assuming that there will not be much increase on the present expenditure, a sum of 10,000*l.* will have to be provided. We feel that to attempt to raise this amount by striking a new rate would not only be unfair towards many who have made great sacrifices to pay the present rate, but would have the effect of keeping the entire Union out of cultivation, and paralyzing any exertions which may be made.

We are, however, of opinion that a rate ought to be struck in July, being a year from the date of the last rate made, and that the amount of such rate should depend upon circumstances; that is to say, if no exertions be made in the mean time by landowners and farmers to help themselves, and we should find the information we have received to be correct, viz., that some proprietors have taken a nominal surrender from their tenantry, in order to get them on the out-door relief lists, and that public opinion should not be brought to bear against such conduct, we feel that it will be useless to attempt to assist the Union, in which case we would suggest the striking and enforcing a rate sufficient to cover all expenses.

We shall feel much obliged by your acquainting us with the Commissioners' views on this subject.

We have only to add that fever and dysentery continue to increase to an alarming extent. Mr. Bingham, proprietor of the auxiliary workhouse in Binghamstown, and the person placed in temporary charge of the premises by the late Board of Guardians, pending the appointment of the necessary staff, died this morning of fever after a few days' illness.

We beg to call the Commissioners' attention to the remarks made on Mr. and Mrs. Cormick's appointment as master and matron, as it will be necessary at once to procure some person to take charge of the establishment.

It is exceedingly difficult to procure proper persons for subordinate situations in this Union, every candidate is so strongly recommended that strangers are apt to be misled. It would be very desirable, therefore, to send down a few competent persons to the Vice-Guardians if such can be easily procured.

The Vice-Guardians have allowed each relieving officer an additional assistant for one month, which we hope will have a good effect.

P.S.—Since writing the foregoing we have visited the auxiliary workhouse at Binghamstown, which we found in confusion in consequence of Mr. Bingham's death. We lost no time in requesting Mr. Waters, Vice-Guardian, to appoint a person pro tem., to take charge of the premises, &c.

We have likewise received by this evening's post your communication respecting Mr. and Mrs. Cormick's appointment not being sanctioned by the Commissioners. We agree that no other course could have been adopted, as it would not be desirable to place Mr. Cormick in such a situation of trust; his conduct does not appear to have given satisfaction to the respectable portion of the late Relief Committee, to which he acted as Clerk.

It is perfectly true that Mr. Cormick has strong testimonials, but we are not disposed to place them in the balance with disinterested testimony, being aware how easy it is to get a character.

REPLY to the above :—February 3, 1848.

THE Commissioners observe that of 7500*l.* due under the rate made in July last, you do not reckon on the recovery of more than 4000*l.*, which will be only sufficient to defray the current weekly expenses, about 630*l.*, to the end of February, and pay debts of the late Board amounting to 2500*l.* exclusive of advances by the Relief Commissioners, &c. You at the same time state that you do not think it would be advisable to levy a further rate in the Union until July next, the amount of which should in your opinion be determined by circumstances.

The Commissioners recommend the most strenuous exertions to be made by legal proceedings, and otherwise, for enforcing payment of the outstanding rate by all persons known to possess any means of paying it.

The Commissioners approve of the steps taken in providing for the management of the auxiliary workhouse, pending the appointment of a master and matron. They recommend notice to be published in one of the Dublin morning newspapers, as also in a weekly paper, when Union officers are required.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 4, 1848.

WE are most anxious to learn, at your earliest convenience, the manner in which you wish us to act under the following circumstances :—

Persons holding from one to five or more acres of land with a house make application to their landlord to take a surrender from them of the land, and at the same time refuse to give up the house; the landlords naturally refuse to accept such as a surrender, feeling that if they did so, those persons might at any future time successfully claim the land again on the ground that that surrender, being only a portion of one certain letting, was not legal, and they, at the same time, warn us not to relieve such persons, they being still in possession.

We have at all times given relief to destitute landholders who have bonâ fide endeavoured to act up to the spirit and meaning of the Act of Parliament, by endeavouring to divest themselves of possession (as appears by a resolution in the minutes of our proceedings), and in cases where a landlord refuses a tender of possession of the entire merely on the ground of arrears of rent not being paid, we give relief if the party is destitute, as we consider this a bonâ fide endeavour on the part of the tenant to divest himself of possession.

But we cannot conceal from ourselves, that the offering possession of part only is not endeavouring to act up to the spirit of the Act. We have often suggested to landlords a method of obviating this difficulty, and at the same time protecting themselves (which is acted on by Mr. Symes, the Earl of Arran's agent), viz., by taking possession of the entire, thus accepting a legal surrender, and at the same time acting humanely, by permitting the tenants to re-enter the houses as caretakers; but many landlords will not do this, and many tenants refuse, fearing to trust their landlords. Our difficulty is this—we wish to act humanely in not forcing people to part with their houses and become homeless, but the 10th section of the Act is imperative, and we feel if we act as humanity suggests, we would directly infringe an Act, the provisions of which we are appointed to carry out.

As the cases we allude to are very numerous, and daily becoming more so, we think it better to seek for instructions without further delay, in the meantime, our relieving officers know their responsibility too well to permit any one to starve.

REPLY to the above:—February 7, 1848.

THE mere refusal of a landlord to accept a surrender of land does not disqualify a person, who has ceased to occupy more than a quarter of an acre of land, from receiving relief.

By the 10th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, it is merely the occupation or non-occupation of a quarter of an acre of land which is made a criterion of destitution, provided that an applicant for relief may otherwise be deemed entitled to it.

Hence the Guardians, as far as that clause is concerned, are warranted in relieving any body who is not in such occupation; and they are not bound to investigate the title at all, or to ascertain whether the tenant's interest has been legally determined, by surrender or otherwise.

Lieut. HAMILTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 6, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward to you my usual weekly report.

Erris.

I think the interior economy of the workhouse is gradually improving. I have constantly visited the house at uncertain hours, and generally found matters to my satisfaction.

The schools appear to be well managed; and the infirmary, considering its crowded state, is very clean and regular. The mortality has been trifling; only two deaths last week out of between 1500 and 1600 inmates.

I think it is very desirable that the last half-yearly accounts of the Union should be audited. I know that owing to Mr. M'Nunn's (the late clerk) neglect, there has been a difficulty in the way, but as the correspondence has not passed through my hands, I am not aware of the particulars.

Mr. M'Nulty, the Clerk, has recovered from fever, and resumes his duties. I am quite satisfied he is doing his utmost to pull up his brother's arrears, and I think the Vice-Guardians are right in giving him a fair trial.

I am glad that the Commissioners have dismissed Mr. Toody. If Mr. Irwin and Mr. Corcoran do not collect a larger amount of rates next week, I shall request the Commissioners to dismiss them likewise.

Several of the relieving officers (especially Mr. John Palmer) are doing their duty well; others I have little or no confidence in; but in the absence of any proofs of their neglect of the interests of the poor or the rate-payers, and owing to the very great unwillingness of the latter class to give any information worth having, we must only make the best of them until they commit themselves.

Mr. Bluett, the superintendent of overseers of working parties, appears most zealous; and, to judge by the frequent absence of persons from the working parties, the labour test has been most successful. There has been some difficulty in getting tools, owing to the exorbitant demands made by store-keepers for storage; but Mr. Brett, the county surveyor, will be here to-morrow, and I have no doubt that he will arrange everything satisfactorily.

The Society of Friends have authorized me, in conjunction with the Rev. Mr. Lees, to take some lands, which Colonel Vaughan Jackson and Mr. Orme have placed at their disposal rent free. The Agricultural Society have directed Mr. Martin, the practical agriculturist, to render us every assistance. We purpose giving employment next week in the electoral divisions of Bucks, Ballina, Kelfyan, and Crossmolina. I hope that, as this undertaking will be a great assistance to the Union in many ways, the Commissioners will approve of my giving up a portion of my time to see it carried out.

I think there has been some little attempt at ploughing, digging, &c., during the last few days.

The British Relief Association are giving relief to 12,000 children daily at the schools in my district. This great boon has been most thankfully received by persons of all religious persuasions; and, taking everything into consideration, the experiment has succeeded beyond my most sanguine expectations.

I have so far only alluded to my district of the Union, in which there is nothing like the distress which I witnessed during my recent visit to Erris. The condition of the poor in Erris is very frightful. I accompanied Mr. Richard Hamilton through parts of the electoral division of Binghamstown. We witnessed the ruins of Mullaghroe, once a village on the estate of Mr. Walsh, of Castle Hill. This gentleman is a defaulter of poor's rate, to the amount of 63*l.* 16*s.* 1*d.* (being 48*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*) for two years' rates in Erris, and 15*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* for one year's rate in Crossmolina electoral divisions); it is almost unnecessary I should add, that legal proceedings have been taken against him.

I was informed that 80 families had been ejected within the last two months by Mr. Walsh, their houses destroyed, and the unfortunate outcasts left to seek shelter where they could find it. I rode through the ruins to try if there were any human beings to be found, but I only saw one family. I inquired what had become of the other inhabitants, and was informed that some were in their graves, others under the ditches, others begging shelter from house to house, and plundering whatever they could lay hands on.

In alluding to this very distressing subject, I beg to say that in my first report from this Union, I stated that "I had been much struck with the number of "roofless cabins throughout the Union;" but so long as I was satisfied that the proprietors had paid their rates, and by so doing had contributed towards the support of their wretched tenantry, I considered that my duty consisted in endeavouring to assist the Guardians to provide relief, and not in inquiring into the humanity or inhumanity of landlords towards their tenants; however, from being constantly on the spot, I have necessarily become acquainted more or less with the circumstances of many of the evictions which have taken place, and I take the opportunity of stating, that several (I wish I could say all) of the landlords have acted with the greatest forbearance and liberality. I may mention the Earl of Arran, Colonel Wingfield, Colonel Vaughan Jackson, Mr. Orme, and others whose names do not immediately occur to me. I am not aware whether Mr. Walsh has been worse treated by his tenantry than other landlords have been; I presume he has, for I never before saw such wholesale desolation, and I hope I never may again. I am in daily correspondence with Mr. Richard Hamilton; in one of his last letters he says—"I visited Mul-laghroe again to-day, in order to try to make some provision for the people "turned out of it. I saw worse sights than the Geraghty's; it was neither more "nor less than horrible."

The Geraghty's were a wretched family we visited at Farrane, where we found the father lying dead, and the mother and five children huddled together on the floor, all bowed down by disease; none of the family had been able to go for their rations. However, we ascertained from the relieving officer at Binghamstown, that he had sent their rations to them.

P.S. I must add, that Mr. Walsh is pulling down houses in the electoral division of Crossmolina; his tenantry are all through the miserable town, which is full of fever.

REPLY to the above:—February 9, 1848.

With reference to your request to be allowed to devote a portion of your time to superintend the employment of poor persons on lands placed at the disposal of the Society of Friends by Colonel Jackson and Mr. Orme, I am to state that the Commissioners do not wish in any way to impede the benevolent exertions of the Society of Friends, for whom the Commissioners entertain the highest respect.

I am at the same time to state, that, for general reasons of policy into which the Commissioners deem it now unnecessary to enter, they are desirous that you should not associate yourself with the proposed project for employing poor people on the lands of the Society of Friends.

The Commissioners do not wish, however, that you should infer that they are opposed in any manner to the plan of the Society; they merely deem it advisable that their Inspectors should not be instrumental in carrying it out.

LURGAN UNION.

Sub-Inspector LITTLE to the INSPECTOR-GENERAL:—November 8, 1847.

I HAVE to report that a labouring man, named John Kearns, a native of near Lurgan, in this district, on his way home from Scotland, took ill at Lurgan, and died there in a lodging-house on the 4th instant. An inquest was held on the 6th instant, by the coroner on view of the body, and the following is a copy of the verdict found, viz.—“We find that the said John Kearns died of starvation at Lurgan, on the 4th day of November, 1847.”

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON:—December 1, 1847.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration, the report of Sub-Inspector Little, which was referred to them on the 11th instant, relative to the death of a labouring man, named John Kearns, who was stated to have died of starvation at Lurgan on the 4th instant.

The Commissioners have procured from the coroner a copy of the depositions taken by him, at the inquest held on the body of John Kearns, and they now forward, for the information of his Excellency the Lord-Lieutenant, a copy of that evidence.

From this evidence it will be seen that there is nothing, except the opinion of the medical man, founded on the emaciated appearance of the body, to lead to the conclusion that John Kearns died of starvation. On the contrary, it appears from the evidence of John Costelloe, that he went out and bought apples the night before his death, and it seems hardly probable that this description of food would have been preferred by a hungry man. There is nothing to show that he complained of hunger, and the emaciation of the body might be the result of internal disease.

It does not appear that the deceased at any time applied for relief to any of the persons entrusted with the administration of relief to the destitute poor in Lurgan Union.

Daniel Costello, of Lurgan aforesaid, lodging-house keeper, being sworn on the Holy Evangelist, deposeth and saith,—That he was not acquainted with deceased until he came into his house looking for lodging on last Wednesday evening; deceased was then sober, but appeared somewhat delicate; deceased went out of deponent's house and bought apples, which he eat on his return to deponent's house; deceased went to bed and became unwell, was moaning. A woman asked deceased, was he not unwell; he did not reply; this was about ten o'clock; deceased continued unwell all night, and died at seven o'clock on last Thursday morning.

OBSERVATIONS of Mr. SENIOR, Poor Law Inspector.

Lurgan Union.

THERE is nothing to show that the deceased died from want of the necessaries of life. He is stated to have bought apples the night before his death—a description of food a hungry man probably would not have preferred; he does not appear to have complained of hunger, and it is not stated whether any money was found on his person. Emaciation of person is, of course, very often the result of internal disease.

SWINEFORD UNION.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 24, 1847.

I HAVE to lay before the Commissioners the result of the meeting of the Board of Guardians held yesterday. The attendance, owing, I presume, to the weather, which has been very severe, and the long distances the majority of the Guardians have to come, was very small; from these causes, also, the desire to get away again was very manifest, and, indeed, by four o'clock, when the meeting broke up, it had become almost dark.

I drew the attention of the Guardians to the disproportionate number of women and children with husbands and fathers in the house, to those without; suggested that a list should be furnished to me of these separately classed, that upon any of the latter leaving the house, as they most probably will, on the return of their husbands, the relieving officer may be cautioned to be on the alert to enforce the 2nd section Act 10 & 11 Vict. cap. 84.

In reference to the subject I formerly adverted to, respecting the Vagrant Act, the chairman, who is also a member of the Gaol Committee, stated there was not room in the gaol, for the commitments already made for other crimes; and the bridewell here, although finished, is not available, as some dispute has arisen with the contractor and it has not been taken off his hands. What is to be done under such circumstances?

The amount of money paid in by the collectors was only 25%. Three only of the four collectors attended, and one of them neglected attending on Saturday, to audit his account. They were all cautioned that upon the next dereliction of duty, they would be summoned and fined; and also, that if they did not exert themselves more in collecting the rates, and make examples of some of the defaulters, they would render themselves liable to be dismissed.

The property of this Union is unfortunately situated. Upon obtaining a list of the highest rate-payers, I find there are no less than six properties in Chancery, and out of a return of nearly 70 names, from 50 to 60 are non-resident; the tenantry proportionately neglected, or, I might say, abandoned, for in few cases is the agent resident either.

I feel the necessity is arrived of some onward move on the part of the Guardians, in order to secure the collection of the rates; and I shall strenuously call upon them to exert their powers upon the principal defaulters next week, should, as most probably will be the case, the rates have not been paid up. I was on Monday engaged in obtaining information respecting the schools in this Union.

I have to mention that a resolution was made yesterday, to issue no more orders on the treasurer. It appears to have been the custom to have given drafts upon the Bank when there were no funds in hand; these drafts are in circulation (of course at an enormous discount), and the system was so evidently fallacious, that it was very desirable it should be discontinued. Some applications for admission were entertained, and several admitted.

It will shortly, I fear, be necessary to consider the steps to be taken to meet the numbers applying for relief. Upon this subject I shall, I hope, be able to offer a suggestion for the Board's approval, in conformity with their views, should it be found necessary to increase the accommodation.

REPLY to the above:—November 26, 1847.

WITH reference to your observations as to the small attendance of Guardians at the meeting of the Board on the 23rd instant, I am to state that the Commissioners trust, that under the critical circumstances of the Union, the members of the Board of Guardians will provide for the discharge of the important duties devolved upon them, and by an arrangement for the occasional attendance of each member, secure the presence of a sufficient number for business at every meeting.

As regards the number of women and children in the workhouse, the Commissioners recommend that the wives of men who are not in the workhouse, should be required to swear informations before the magistrates against their husbands for desertion, with a view to proceedings being taken under the Vagrant Act.

The Commissioners cannot point out the course which the magistrates should take, in consequence of the bridewell not being available for the punishment of vagrants; but they presume that if any temporary place could be provided, to which paupers could be committed and kept to hard labour, for only a day, as often as found begging, the practice would be checked.

I REGRET to say the weather this week has totally prevented my visiting the country portions of the Union. It has never ceased pouring since I last wrote to you, and has on some days prevented my getting as far as the workhouse.

Since I last wrote to you, one of the collectors, in the execution of his duties, made a seizure of some cattle, when a rescue took place under rather serious circumstances (as sworn in the informations), a sword-stick having been drawn and threats used. The parties were arrested and brought before the Petty Sessions Court yesterday, but the solicitor of the Union had the case postponed until the 17th proximo, in consequence of one of the principal witnesses being absent, he having been previously summoned to attend at a Manor Court in a distant part of the country.

I have directed the collectors to proceed against the better class of rate-payers who either refused or neglected to pay the sums due by them. I regret to find such men as Lord Lucan, Lord Claremorris, Sir Roger Palmer and others among the defaulters. I trust, however, when they find proceedings have been commenced, they will spare me the painful necessity of having their property seized, and that it will duly operate on the other classes who, as yet, have not settled their rates; at all events, I have determined no pains shall be spared in collecting the rates, for it is evident all our powers must be neutralized if the funds are not forthcoming, at a season when it is probable the demands will be highest on the workhouse. Having found a few spades and shovels, I have commenced in the yards to trench the borders, &c., and have undertaken, if the tools are ordered, to drain and subsoil the land attached to the workhouse, which will be a useful practical lesson to the able-bodied, who, I hope, may be induced to apply it elsewhere.

I have been employed chiefly, in investigating cases in the workhouse, and have sifted out many who ought never to have been admitted. In one case, a woman and her child have been in since October, her husband living at Foxford in the Union at the time. I imagine this arose from want of sufficient scrutiny at a period when there was much accommodation in the workhouse, which probably induced carelessness in inquiry into the cases admitted; most of the women situated as represented in my letter of the 24th, state themselves either to be widows or having husbands in England. One man, this week returned from England, called at the house and took away two children (the one six, and the other three years old); his wife, it appears, had died in his absence, and the children were put into the house. I have ordered him to be applied to for their cost of maintenance, and in case of refusal to have him summoned.

REPLY to the above :— December 1, 1847.

THE Commissioners fully approve the most active steps being taken to effect the collection of the rates, with the least possible delay.

The Commissioners also approve the steps which you have taken to have the workhouse inmates employed, and the Commissioners are of opinion that it will be advisable to direct the special attention of the Guardians to the necessity of applying the test of labour to the destitution of the workhouse inmates, by keeping them employed, according to their capacity and ability.

As regards the cases to which you advert, in which relief has been afforded to parties whose relatives, liable for their support, are not inmates of the house,

Swineford Union.

Swineford Union.

the Commissioners approve the course which you are taking, of scrutinizing the relief lists; but they do not think that legal proceedings against the parties liable for the support of such inmates, with a view to the recovery of the cost of relief afforded, will be successful, if the Guardians did not, at the time of their relief, declare the cost of such relief to be by way of loan.

The Commissioners suggest that proceedings should be taken under the Vagrant Act, against the parties punishable under the 2nd section of that Act.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 1, 1847.

THE meeting that took place yesterday of the Board of Guardians for this Union, was better attended than any previously held since my arrival at this place.

I therefore took advantage of this circumstance, to bring before them the subject of uncollected rates. I pointed out to them the necessity of at once taking steps to ensure their payment, particularly amongst the larger rate-payers and principal immediate lessors. I also pointed out the impropriety of allowing these rate-payers to stand over, whilst the former were made to pay, as it tended to induce a belief that there was one law for the rich, and another for the poor. I pointed out to them the proper course in my mind, to pursue—to ascertain critically the liabilities of every description of the Union, and then to face their difficulties like men, with a determination to overcome them. I also told them, that if they expected to get over their difficulties without some sacrifice on their parts, they would no doubt be mistaken, and that it was far wiser to reconcile themselves to this at once, than to attempt to stave it off from time to time. With this view, they consented to appoint a local committee to confer with me, and to assist me in collecting the rates. Orders have been given from time to time, to the solicitor of the Union, to commence proceedings against certain individuals, and in his absence, it would have been unsatisfactory to proceed by summary means, in all cases. It has therefore been decided to request his attendance on Friday next, on which day this sub-committee is to meet, and on ascertaining exactly what steps he has taken, and how matters stand, we shall then be in a better position to determine on the future.

The case of the master of the workhouse was again brought before the meeting, in consequence of the letter from the Commissioners, desiring that they should proceed to elect another, by advertisement. I was called upon for an opinion of him since I joined the Union, and having found him intoxicated yesterday, on visiting the workhouse, I strongly urged his removal at once. I understand he is an unfortunate man, who having inherited a nice little property has managed to muddle it all away, and that he is nearly connected with many members of the Board of Guardians, who naturally, it may be urged, would screen him. Still I feel from the situation he holds, as master of the house, the total destruction of all moral example he sets the inmates, renders it imperative he should be at once removed, and I trust the Commissioners will be firm in their determination of having him superseded.

The case also of the schoolmistress was brought again before the Guardians. From what I have seen she seems a respectable nice young woman, desirous of doing her duty, taking pains with the children, and, if one may judge from her letter to the Board of Guardians, of superior education. I have also observed a kindliness of manner to the unfortunate children not to be overlooked.

The Guardians gratefully accept the offer of the French hand-mill, if the Commissioners will kindly have it sent down.

Tools have been purchased to a small extent from the Board of Works, by an order made this day, and spades and shovels have also been ordered to be provided.

I regret again to have to revert to the timber the contractor is using in building the new fever hospital, and do not hesitate to say it is a disgrace to him as a tradesman; I recommend some stringent step to be adopted to secure proper materials being used in the construction.

The admission of several paupers took place; amongst others brought before the Board, was one of a woman and her family of four or five children. She had formerly belonged to this Union, she had, however, been 12 years absent in England, and had only returned to this country three months, she was refused admission. I again drew the attention of the Board to the Commissioners' letter of the 18th instant, requesting their views of appointing a medical officer under section 5 of the Poor Law Extension Act; it was again postponed until this day week.

I trust, after our meeting on Friday, to be able to report a favourable result on the subject of enforcing the rates still uncollected.

Swineford Union.

REPLY to the above:—December 3, 1847.

THE Commissioners approve the advice which you gave the Board of Guardians, with reference to the state of their affairs, and of the course which has been adopted with a view to the speedy collection of the rates in the Union. The Commissioners await your further report on that subject.

As regards the master of the workhouse, I am to state that the Commissioners will issue an order under seal for his dismissal, unless he immediately quits the workhouse.

The Commissioners have requested Mr. Wilkinson's attention to your observations relative to the timber which the contractor for erecting the fever wards at the workhouse, is using.

The Commissioners presume, that in the case of the woman referred to in your report as applying for relief, the applicant was not considered to be in destitute circumstances

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 9, 1847.

I HAVE to report to the Commissioners, the result of the meeting of the Board of Guardians for this Union, held this day.

The resignation of the master of the workhouse was accepted, and the porter intrusted to perform his duties, until a new master is appointed. I brought before the notice of the Guardians, the case of the younger children, who from being confined hitherto in their meals to the stated hours for the adults, were left 18 hours at one spell without food, and an order for 4 ounces of bread each, at night, was ordered in addition, for those between two and seven years of age.

The sealed order from the Commissioners, ordering no more than 750 persons to be admitted into the Swineford Union workhouse, led to some discussion. The fact of there being nearly 400 children included in the above number of the present inmates, suggested the idea of having them removed to the new shed which was built last year, but never occupied by fever patients, which would give much room in the house. These sheds are reported by the contractor as executed, according to his specification. They have not been covered with any material to keep out the weather, and are altogether useless, on account of letting in the rain and weather at every crevice. I am requested to ascertain from the architect to the Commissioners, whether in the price specified in his printed circular (which was the one adopted by the Guardians), covering the roof with asphalte felt was included. It is not quite so clearly specified as not to admit of a doubt, and I shall feel obliged by an early answer; because if it was not, the contractor is entitled to his money, whereas if it was, he is clearly liable to the expense attached to covering it, to render it wind and weather-tight, which it most decidedly is not at present. Should a pressure exist for the next month, I would suggest that the elder boys might be allowed to sleep in hammocks in the school-rooms, which, by a simple contrivance, might be made available, and thus afford much space. The contractor, who arrived here last week, has admitted the whole of the timber I condemned was most improper; and that, if he himself had been here, he would not have allowed it to be used: this, however, confirming my report, is no justification for his not employing a proper person to look after it in his absence. The accident alone of my being here has, I do not hesitate to say, saved the Union some hundred pounds.

I wish to draw the attention of the Commissioners to the state of the officials in this workhouse on my arrival. The master, who has just been got rid of, is brother to the matron; the medical officer is brother-in-law to both; the whole either cousins or connected with three or four of the Guardians. Now, without wishing the least in the world to find any fault with the individuals, the tendency of these connexionships is adverse to the proper working of the system.

O

Swineford Union.

It is obvious, if any of these parties neglect their duties the other would not be in a position to report faithfully any neglect; and it might be worth the consideration of the Board, in any future appointments, to guard against a system injurious to the pauper and detrimental to a fair working out of the Poor Law.

I am very desirous to be supplied with the Ordnance sheets of this Union on the large 6-inch scale. It will not be necessary they should be mounted in the superior form; simple sheets sent in a tin case will answer all my purposes, and I trust they may be supplied, including the portion of this Union in the county Sligo. I also request some common note books; those about $7 \times 4\frac{1}{2}$ in., with blotting-paper between the leaves, I have always found the most convenient size.

Upwards of 60 cases were admitted this day; among the others, a woman with nine children in extreme want.

REPLY to the above:—December 10, 1847.

THE Commissioners approve of the alteration which you have proposed in the dietary of the workhouse inmates.

Your observations with respect to the sheds which have been built on the workhouse premises will be immediately referred to the Commissioners.

The Commissioners concur with you in thinking, that near relationship between officers of a workhouse, who are intended to a certain extent to keep a check upon each other, is not desirable; and that, in making appointments of such officers, it would be well that these circumstances should be taken into consideration by the Board of Guardians, in whom is vested the appointment of the workhouse officers.

The sheets of the Ordnance survey comprising the Swineford Union will be sent to you with as little delay as possible; and the memorandum books which you require have been ordered from the Stationery Office.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain BROUGHTON:—December 10, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward herewith, for your information, a copy of a report which they have received from their architect, relative to the execution of the contract for building the fever-ward to the workhouse of the Swineford Union.

I am at the same time to state, that steps have been taken, with a view to having the timber in the fever-ward, to which you objected, removed.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. WILKINSON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 4, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of an extract from a report of Captain Broughton, referring to the use of inferior timber in the new fever hospital of the Swineford poor-house, and also the communication No. 40,004, D./47, of your Board of yesterday's date accompanying it.

In reply to the instructions of your Board for giving immediate attention thereto, I have to state that I have this day seen the contractor, and he explains the defects to be owing to the use of some timber with too much sap. He informs me that he has given orders for its immediate removal; if this be the case the clerk of works will be able to report accordingly to Captain Broughton.

I may here state that it appears to me satisfactory that the Guardians should accept Captain Broughton's proposal to inspect the building; it will be advantageous also to the contractor, if he proceeds properly with the work, to have his payments made with as little delay as possible.

The contractor has expressed a desire to suspend some of the works till better weather; my opinion is in favour of his so doing, and I believe the building will be thereby better executed and sooner ready for occupation.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 11, 1847.

I REGRET much to say my Sub-Committee could not be formed yesterday, on account of the non-attendance of three members.

I have now arranged to employ every man, young or old (capable of being set to work), in the workhouse; and on Monday they will be in full employment.

A curious state of things occurs in the workhouse at this moment; on taking the return of inmates, out of 84 borne on the books as able-bodied there are only 15 really able-bodied men, 24 who are only fit for breaking stones, and 45, in fact, only children, who, by calling themselves 15, thought to avoid school, and as the weather has been dreadfully severe, and very little out-door work capable of being done, preferred roasting themselves over the fire in the men's wards to going into school; however, I had them all sent into the school-room.

Sixteen are in the infirmary or hospital, and 21 are either so infirm or bed-ridden as to be unable to perform any work, and are, in fact, waiting their time to die in the usual course of nature; making a total of adult males in the house of only 60. I mention the above, in reference to the Board's sealed order, forbidding more than 750 to be admitted into the house, which from the above state, would appear to require the modification of sexes, for whilst the female wards are pretty well filled, there remains one ward on the male side quite empty, and some accommodation in those that are occupied still available, unless indeed the male wards could be made available for a portion of the females, which appears never to have been done, nor is it indeed desirable.

The abstract of the state of the house at present would be—

Adult Males.	Adult Females.	Girls.	Infants.

and 251 boys, 45 of whom only are about 15 years old, the rest quite children.

The knowledge that tools have been provided and work insisted on, has already sent some out and deterred others from coming in. The system of allowing women and families into the house, during the period when there was much spare room, (alluded to in my report of 27th ultimo,) has, I fear, been more extensively acted upon than I had imagined, and I shall desire a list to be furnished for each electoral division, to the respective relieving officers, for inquiry, which I hope will result in discovering some of the parties who may be in possession of holdings, which they would have had to have given up if their coming into the workhouse with their families had been insisted upon.

It is my intention to employ the 45 boys alluded to (as men) in breaking stones in a separate yard, when the weather permits, and they are not in school, and to propose to the Guardians to erect sheds, available either for work or play in bad weather.

I AM to suggest whether the boys could not be transferred to some of the men's apartments, and the girls placed in the boys' wards, the girls' ward being then applied for the use of the women.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 14, 1847.

THE Board of Guardians met this day. I brought before their notice the recommendation of the Commissioners, as conveyed in their letter of the 9th instant, in reference to having the books for the rate agreed to on 20th July completed, by entering the arrears from the old rate; but the solicitor not having had quite sufficient time to enter his proceedings, it was decided to wait until he had the opportunity and the result made known. I must say, in justice to the Guardians present, there was no disposition whatever to put off the rate, by way of avoiding it, on the contrary, they expressed their gratitude to the Government for all that had been done for them.

I brought before the Board the necessity of at once entering into contracts for keeping the house in repair, in conformity with the specifications forwarded to the various services concerned, which was agreed to, and circulars ordered to be printed and distributed. The leakages in the roofs in various places are becoming very serious and require immediate looking after.

A shed for children to play under in bad weather was also approved of and a contract to be made for its erection; some bedsteads, forms, and tables, were also sanctioned.

I was obliged to bring before the Board the conduct of the schoolmaster, Eugene McGuire, who, in passion, brutally assaulted a poor little child, only about seven years of age, leaving a cut extending from his eye to his mouth, and laying open his cheek. He has been forthwith dismissed.

It does not appear that this person's appointment was ever confirmed by the Board.

A person of the name of Kelly (as I am given to understand) was recommended by the Board, for the situation, who has been acting as assistant in the workhouse pending the decision of the Board, but he also has not been confirmed. I recommend his approval to be sent.

Much dissatisfaction has been shown at being obliged to work, but by a little firmness this has been overcome; some have left rather than submit, which of course was not objected to.

I have to acknowledge with many thanks the receipt of the Ordnance sheets of this Union on the 6-inch scale.

REPLY to the above :—December 17, 1847.

THE Commissioners fully approve the dismissal of Mr. M'Guire, who has been employed as schoolmaster in the workhouse.

The Commissioners will send the usual questions for answers, to be signed by the clerk of the Union, and Mr. Kelly, whose appointment as schoolmaster you recommend them to confirm.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 18, 1847.

THE adjourned petty sessions took place yesterday, and the case of rescue adverted to in my report of 27th ult., was disposed of before sending the parties for trial to Ballina quarter sessions.

It having been blowing a perfect hurricane the last three days, no one attended at the sub-committee at the workhouse.

I had an opportunity to-day of meeting the solicitor to the Board relative to the portion of the rates intrusted to him for collection; he stated, from letters he had received, that a great portion of the rate will be settled before a fortnight. I again urged upon him the importance of immediate collection.

It appears to have been a system in this part of the world to collect rents, county rates, and other fiscal dues at certain fixed periods, after certain fairs, &c., a usage of so long standing as to have become almost law. The same view seems to have been applied to poor-rates, forgetting that a rate is liable to be called for at any time when the necessities of the Union render it imperative, independent of any periods applicable, in a certain extent, to other fixed rates. I am led also to imagine, but I wish to guard myself in saying so, that a tacit acquiescence in the non-payment of rates is, in some measure, tolerated until the rents are secured, when, should anything remain, they are called for and left to a somewhat precarious collection. Another tact in this Union renders the collection of the poor-rate difficult, and results from the state of property in the Union, and non-residence of the proprietary, as mentioned in my report of the 24th ult. Most of the holdings are under 4*l.* annual value, and hence proceedings cannot be taken against the tenant until four months elapse, and another month's notice is given at the expiration, under section 3, Act Vic. 6 and 7, cap. 92. Not being a lawyer, I am afraid I may not always make myself understood, but trust to the Commissioners' indulgence.

I have been lately much occupied again in endeavouring to organize the relief contemplated by the British Association through the existing schools; but really the state of things has become so monstrous, I have been obliged to refer to the Count de Strzelecki for his views. For instance, in the electoral division Killeadan, where three schools were named to me by the Inspector under the National Board, as existing and containing, on the 18th of last month, 56, 79, and 41 pupils respectively; a return has been sent me of 17 schools with 2138 children in this electoral division alone. They seem to have sprung up like mushrooms under the shower of relief to be afforded, whilst not one shilling is forthcoming for the purposes of management from any local source.

Swineford Union.

THE Commissioners desire me to observe, in reference to your statement respecting the delay unavoidable in recovery of rates due on holdings under 4*l*. value, that it is not necessary or advisable to await the lapse of the time after which the occupiers may be called upon to pay the rate, but that the immediate lessors should be called upon by notice in the first instance, and, on failure of payment, should be sued by one of the courses pointed out in the Act 6 and 7 Vict., cap. 92, section 2.

I am also to state that, if the property be under the Courts of Chancery or Exchequer, the receiver, or other party in charge, should be called upon for the rates.

I am further to observe, that it is considered of great importance to press forward the collection of the rates in the Union now, as the means of payment may otherwise soon pass out of the hands of the occupiers.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 21, 1847.

I HAVE to report, for the information of the Commissioners, the result of this day's meeting of the Board of Guardians for the Union of Swineford.

I laid before them the Commissioners' communication, dated December 17, 1847, relative to the collectors of poor-rate, it was decided to call the Guardians together on Tuesday next, together with the solicitor, and to take into consideration the collection of the rate struck on 20th July last; the result will be made known to the Commissioners.

The applications for admission into the workhouse to-day were very few, but the house being full, I brought before the Board the necessity of making room for them, and proposed, in order to effect this, that those women with families, who it is supposed have their husbands in the country, so often alluded to in my correspondence, should be discharged with a week's provisions to seek their husbands; this was acceded to, and the result has been the turning out (with rations) nearly 80, who were never legally admitted, and whose cases, if they return, may be again considered and put, if thought proper to re-admit them, upon a legal form, by way of loan; at the same time, a list of them has been provided to each Relieving Officer, to scrutinize, and make distinct inquiries as to their husbands being in the country, and holding land or otherwise.

The house in this way has been reduced below the complement allowed. If necessary, the suggestion of the Commissioners shall be acted upon, by placing some of the boys in the men's wards, and giving up the boys' wards to the female children, which will have a good effect. I am again urged to request an answer to my letter of the 7th instant, requesting information from the architect of the Board as to the forms of the contract for building the temporary fever sheds. The contractor is clamorous for his money, which, if he has fulfilled his contract, should be paid him. Taking into consideration the circumstances of this Union, and that they never put themselves under the Fever Act, and consequently drew no funds from the Government for this purpose (which, in all other cases, was eventually a gift from the Government), I would beg to recommend this fever shed might be allowed upon the same footing as those to whom grants were made, and which were presented by the Government, and as would have been the case had they formed themselves into a Fever Committee under 10 Vict., cap. 22.

I would request an answer to this proposition before next Tuesday. I think it founded upon reasonable grounds, and would have a favourable effect in the decision of the Board on the question of the rates on that day. I beg, however, distinctly to state to the Commissioners, they have in no way been compromised if they think otherwise, as I have not mentioned the subject to any individual.

WITH reference to your observations as to the discharge of some of the women in the workhouse whose husbands are supposed to be living, I am to state that it is only in the cases specified by the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act that the Guardians are authorised to give out-door relief;

Swineford Union. and that if the women referred to do not come within those provisions, the cost of the food with which they were supplied on being discharged from the workhouse will be a doubtful charge upon the poor-rates.

I am, at the same time, to forward for your information an order which has been issued in some Unions extending the powers of the Guardians for providing out-door relief.

A copy of a report which the Commissioners have received from Mr. Wilkinson relative to the contract for erecting the temporary sheds on the workhouse premises for the accommodation of fever patients is enclosed herewith; for your information; and I am to state, in reply to your remarks on this subject, that a loan of 1250*l.* has already been obtained for the Guardians, for the purpose of erecting temporary and permanent buildings for the accommodation of fever patients; and that there are now no funds which could be appropriated as a grant to the Board of Guardians of Swineford Union, with a view to placing them on the same footing as other Boards of Guardians to whom grants of money have been made for expenses incurred in the relief of persons affected by fever, even if that course were deemed expedient in the Swineford Union.

ENCLOSURE.

To the Guardians of the Poor of the ——— Union; to the Clerk or Clerks to the Justices of the Petty Sessions, held for the Division or Divisions in which the Townlands and Places comprised within the said Union are situated, and to all others whom it may concern.

WHEREAS it has been shown to our satisfaction, that, by reason of the want of room in the workhouse of the ——— Union, adequate relief cannot be afforded to destitute poor persons, being widows with one child dependent on them respectively, or to destitute poor persons, being children whose parents are both dead, or to destitute poor persons, being able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families, dependent on them for support, are affected by severe sickness or serious accident:

Now, therefore, we, the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, do hereby authorise and empower the Guardians of the said Union, for the period of two months from the date of this order, to administer relief out of the workhouse, in food, to such destitute persons as aforesaid, being widows with one child dependent on them respectively, or being children whose parents are both dead, or being able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families, dependent on them for support, are affected by severe sickness or serious accident.

Sealed with our seal, this fifteenth day of December, in the year of our Lord One thousand eight hundred and forty-seven.

(Signed) E. T. B. TWISLETON.

WM. STANLEY, Secretary.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 28, 1847.

THE meeting of the Board of Guardians took place this day, and was fully attended. I am happy to report, I had the advantage of Mr. Burke's presence in the consideration of some subjects of importance, which were brought before the notice of the meeting.

The principal points discussed were the condition of the rates, and the propriety of signing the books for the collection of the rate agreed upon on 20th July last; the election of a new master to the workhouse; the referred petition of the Rev. Mr. Durcan, P. P.; the claim of the contractor for building fever sheds; and discussions on other subjects of minor importance. I propose to take them seriatim; before doing so, however, I desire to inform the Commissioners I suggested at the last meeting the adoption of brown bread, or bread made from whole meal, in the workhouse, in lieu of that made from the finest wheat flour, which was agreed to by the Guardians. The difference in price is from 18*l.* to 10*l.* per ton, and thus a great saving will be effected, whilst a more wholesome article is furnished. It has always appeared to me to be one of the many anomalies of this country, that one finds the poorest peasantry perhaps in Europe, feeding on bread made from the finest and most expensive material, and I do conceive that a great benefit would be derived to the community at large, by the general adoption of this brown bread. I omitted mentioning this in my last report.

With regard to the rate, after a very full discussion it has been determined, that the collectors be called upon to complete their collections within one month, of all the sums not given over to the solicitor for his collection; and in default of so doing, that their securities be made available, and that at the expiration of that time, a new rate be signed under any circumstances. This appeared to be the best arrangement that could be entered into, under all the considerations forced upon the meeting, and appeared to meet the concurrence of Mr. Burke. Out of five candidates for the mastership of the workhouse, two were selected for competition, viz., Michael Henry, who obtained eight votes, and Martin Sheridan, who obtained five votes. The former was elected, subject to the approval of the Commissioners. I am bound to say that I do not consider either of the candidates, whether as regards position, education, or local connexion, calculated to make an efficient officer to the institution; the person selected is perfectly ignorant of his duties, was a Guardian to the Swineford electoral division, and resigned to enable his brother to occupy the situation of relieving officer, which he at present holds. If a retired sergeant of some regiment, accustomed to discipline and organization, could be found sufficiently active and steady to fill these offices, I cannot but think great benefit would be derived to the institutions generally.

Swineford Union.

With regard to the memorial referred to me, so numerous signed in this district, I do not consider it warranted by the circumstances of the Union. At the present time much individual suffering may occur, but as yet we have not had recourse to any out-door relief, and the workhouse at this time is not full. It is remarkable, that concurrent with this petition was an influx of paupers into the house, which crowded it a little for a few days, until the abuses I complained of were got rid of; and also that a verdict of a coroner's inquest was represented as finding a case from starvation to have occurred, which, as far as I have as yet been able to make inquiry, was on the body of a stranger passing through, and who never made any application to any relieving officer, or elsewhere, for assistance, although the relieving officer of the district attended regularly at the appointed places, and at the appointed times; nor do I, as far as I can see my way, hesitate to say, I shall be able to overcome any probable difficulties that may arise within this Union. The rigid adherence to work as a test (hitherto not insisted upon in the workhouse), is operating most beneficially in its results, as the inmates are no longer allowed to sit idling over the fires.

The contractor's claim for the money due to him, on Mr. Wilkinson's representation, has been acknowledged; but it has been requested that the money may be sent to me, in the first instance, as it appears he has had 6*l.* advanced to him by the Guardians, and has left many of his mechanics and labourers unpaid in this vicinity.

Out of the persons sent out to seek their husbands, as reported last week, only three families returned this day.

REPLY to the above:—January 8, 1848.

WITH reference to the proposed substitution of brown bread, for the bread hitherto supplied to the workhouse inmates, I am to state that the Commissioners have no objection to this change, but they consider that the medical officer should be consulted with regard to any alteration of the workhouse dietary.

As regards the postponement of the new rate for a month, to enable the collectors to complete the collection of the old rate, I am to state that it will be advisable in the mean time, to have the rate-books and collectors' books filled up for the 3*s.* 1½*d.* rate, so that nothing may remain to be done but to insert the arrears.

With reference to the election of a master for the workhouse, I am to state that the Commissioners have objected to the proposed appointment of Mr. Henry, and have recommended the Guardians to proceed to the election of another person to the office of workhouse master.

With reference to the balance due to the contractor, for erecting the additional buildings at the Union workhouse, and the sums due by him to tradesmen and others, I am to state that the money due to the contractor will be forwarded to you; but the Commissioners are not aware how far the Guardians may be justified by the circumstances, in interfering with the fulfilment of agreements made by the contractor with other parties.

With regard to your observations, as to the persons you would recommend for the office of workhouse master, I am to state, that discharged non-commissioned officers of the army, have been found in other Unions to make efficient masters of workhouses.

Swineford Union.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 11, 1848.

I REGRET to have to say, it has been with some difficulty I was able to attend the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, from my suffering still from the effects of a rather severe attack of influenza.

The meeting did not take place till nearly 2 o'clock, from the circumstance of a road sessions being held at the court-house, and was occupied until nearly 4 o'clock, with discussion arising out of the Commissioners' dismissal of the matron. The meeting was unusually large, and it appeared as if it had been expressly collected to bolster up this person's cause, and to resist the order for election of master sent down. The view the Commissioners arrived at in respect of the matron, has been fully borne out by the discussion this day; for it turns out, the permission was given to her at the time when the inmates were on a potato dietary. I referred to the peelings and waste at that time.

By the time the various admissions were gone through it was past 6 o'clock, so that I was totally unable to bring before the consideration of the Guardians, any of the important subjects referred to in the Commissioners' letters of 8th instant.

I trust the state of my health will be a sufficient apology for so short a report on the present occasion, but it has really been with some difficulty I have done so much.

Captain BROUGHTON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 21, 1848.

I HAVE to report that I had the advantage of meeting the sub-committee to-day. Contracts have been agreed to, for providing the requisite furniture for completing the dormitories and refectory; as also for supply of turf and straw to the building.

I brought before the notice of the Sub-Committee the propriety of obtaining a detailed list of the inmates, with the view of selecting such as would be proper persons to whom to apply the out-door relief under the 1st section of the 10th Vict., c. 31; and I intend to propose, with the sanction of the Commissioners, that each relieving officer be provided at his depôt with, say, one ton of meal, and a list of those to whom he is to issue relief in the proportions marked against their names. By this means, no great abuse could exist, as the relieving officer would be held accountable to the full extent supplied him. This leads me to suggest to the Commissioners, to embody in their next General Order, the General Rule of "mustering" on the 1st of every month, the inmates of each workhouse, when by comparison with the books, no fraud on the establishment can remain long undetected. The state of the workhouse at the present time (the detail of which I will forward in my next report) would, I think, fairly lead to the conclusion that the workhouse of this Union is not sufficient for the demand likely to be made periodically upon it. The power of extending is easily arranged by sheds, capable of holding any number of either sex, either of infirm or children, against the boundary walls on either side, or both. Lodges might also be erected at the entrance, one of which might be converted into a bakery, with an infant school-room above, whilst the other might be available for a porter's lodge and dwelling, with a good store-room above—an arrangement I should prefer to the proposed sites for these essentials. Sixty-nine pounds were collected this week.

I regret to say the grand jury at the quarter sessions held at Ballina, ignored the bill against the parties accused of rescue, and from whom the sword-cane was taken.

REPLY to the above :—January 25, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' approval of the arrangements made for providing food to the destitute persons entitled to out-door relief in the Union.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners are in communication with Mr. Wilkinson, as regards your suggestions for providing additional workhouse accommodation.

LOWTHERSTOWN UNION.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 27, 1847.

WE are in receipt of your letter of the 24th instant, referring to our last week's report. The confidence we then expressed, as to the collection of the rates, is not abated, although the weekly lodgment (82*l.* 10*s.*), upon the 20th instant, has proved less than any we have lately had to report. It is based on our observation of the district, which is sound and well-disposed notwithstanding exceptions, and our opinion of the collectors themselves, which continues unchanged.

We are in frequent communication with them, and we shall henceforward (as they are earnest in desiring of us) mark out for each, the course to be taken from one day to another in the prosecution of the collection. For his next lodgment, to have been made this day, but which for reasons to be found in the letters, of which a copy is herewith forwarded, will not be made until to-morrow, the collector, Alexander Robinson, has in his hands a sum approaching to 200*l.*, and which will be considerably augmented by the levy we have directed him to make this day in Lowtherstown and its immediate neighbourhood. This part of the district had, with many others, been hitherto untouched, and it seems desirable that he should follow up the example made within the past week of the recusant rate-payers, mentioned in our last report, by the immediate intimation, which will be best given at the head-quarters of the Union, that the rate will now be got in from each and all as fast as it can be applied for, and we have provided him against the possible expectation of indulgence in any particular case, with a signed requisition of the Board to this effect.

The rate-payer in question whose high position made it the more indispensable that he should be promptly and effectively dealt with, persisted, as we learn, in his refusal, but happily succumbed on the collector's actually driving his cattle.

The letters, of which a copy is herewith forwarded, will furnish the best account of the proceedings of the other collector, speaking at once to the character of the man and of the district. The suggestion conveyed to him by the unknown, but unquestionably friendly hand (to bring the police, and rid or sweep for rate any single townland where menaces have been loudest), we cannot but consider to be, under the circumstances, a perfectly necessary one; as it will be, however, the first manifestation of the kind on our parts, we would gladly receive from you any instructions you may think suited to give better effect to the measure.

With respect to the sale of seizures to go forward, as noted in the letters this day, at Pettigo (if the collector should be driven to that alternative), due precaution has been taken to conduct it effectively.

The assault referred to in our Minutes is to be heard, not to day, but on Monday next, the 3rd of January. Our resolution to employ an attorney upon the occasion, has, for its object, rather to evince our sense of its importance than to add anything to the strength of the case, which is sufficiently clear, and there can be no question of an exemplary sentence being obtained.

These indications, though they may give matters an unfavourable aspect for the moment, were, we need hardly say, to have been looked for, so soon as the levying of the rates should be taken in hand in earnest; and there need be little apprehension as to the result, on their being promptly and firmly met, while the evidence so afforded of the strength of the law cannot fail to conduce to the general peace and order of the country.

We think, indeed, that this is an argument well entitled to have weight with the more influential residents of the Union; and should the current week exhibit any increase of menaces or rescues, it may not be inexpedient that we should address an emphatic circular on the subject by post to each.

As regards the collection and the collectors, the particulars now noticed will be found to furnish better grounds for coming to a definite opinion than any we have had to submit to you in former reports; and we have some confidence that your judgment, formed upon them, will be in confirmation of our own.

With respect to the state and management of the house, it will appear by your last minutes that any material amendment is not to be expected until a new master and matron shall be appointed; at the same time it is only just to Mr. and Mrs.

Lowtherstown
Union.

Somerville to state that the recently exhibited spirit of insubordination among the paupers has altogether subsided, nor do we hear of any further murmurs or complaints on either side. It is undeniable that both master and matron show themselves to take an increasing interest in their charge, and to be at all times laboriously occupied with it: but the method is wanting; and without this the best dispositions must be ineffectual. The resignation of both Mr. and Mrs. Somerville was duly tendered and accepted on the 23rd instant; and we expect to learn by every post, when the parties with whom we have been in treaty, but whom, on account merely of this uncertainty, we have not as yet finally engaged, as their successors, would be able to enter on the duties.

We shall earnestly hope for your approval of the appointments suggested in our last report of an assistant schoolmaster and an assistant schoolmistress for the younger adults, and to be otherwise generally useful in the conduct of the establishment under the master and matron.

Should you sanction these new officers, we propose procuring fit parties from the training institution of the National Board of Education, instead of advertising as we first contemplated.

We have also to request your instructions on the subject of medical certificates in outlying cases of fever or other severe sickness, bringing the applicant for out-door relief within section 1 of the Act, the dispensary surgeons declaring themselves under no obligation to attend on the requisition of the Board.

The certificates in question can at the same time be ill dispensed with.

Our own medical officer is most willing to assist us to the extent of his ability and opportunities; but considers it impracticable to report fully on such cases, even within his own dispensary district.

The number of applicants for relief on the last Board day showed a sudden and large increase, as we anticipated so soon as the out-door allowance should be extended to others besides fever cases.

There was evidence in nearly all the cases of increasing destitution.

The numbers approved of for out-door relief were 158; for admissions to the house (including, for the first time, the father with the family, were 102; to admit whom we found ourselves enabled to discharge 53 of the actual inmates as eligible to out-door relief.

The house at present contains 535, with few so eligible remaining in it; so that we may find ourselves somewhat at a loss on the next Board day. We have happily some prospect of procuring accommodation in the town for one of our two schools, the female, which is the side of the house most thronged. Every way by which an addition to the building, temporary or permanent (but the latter preferably on all accounts), can be expected will have its importance.

For the employment of the able-bodied labourers of the Union, we cannot learn that there is any extra work in contemplation with either farmer or proprietor. As our official position may warrant parties in looking to us for some details of the actual destitution, though the residents of each locality cannot fail to be already cognizant of its extent, we have directed the relieving officers to furnish us with returns of all holding less than the statute rood in the several townlands of the Union. An abstract of these returns we hope to be in a condition to make public by the end of the first week in the new year. By a statement of this description, those who are liable for the support of such destitute will, it is to be hoped, be influenced to come to some general determination, which may save the Union from an alternative which it is admitted on all hands cannot be too strongly deprecated.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. THOMAS ROBINSON, Collector, to Mr. JOHN IRVINE, Clerk of the Union:—
December 23, 1847.

On Thursday I met a deal of opposition, and rescues committed. I thought to have went upon yesterday to make a statement of what had passed the day before to the Guardians, but night came on, and I was afraid to travel. Houses locked against me. I never had cause to apprehend danger till now. The men I took with me proved traitors; had they acted as I, we would have made good the seizures. Let the Guardians know of this. I was down in the Dromore division yesterday; got no money, could make no seizures.

I got a letter last night from a ratepayer of that division, desiring me not to come to that locality without police. The letter states,—I have known the minds of all that come near me, and they say, as long as I do not attempt to seize, I may pass on. The person that wrote the letter has paid me the rate, I believe. I got no name to the letter, but that person, from what he said on a former occasion, I believe to be the writer. The writer said, I would have told you personally, only if I could be brought to prove this, I might leave the country. Nothing less than the police will do. A respectable man told me yesterday, if I were to bring the police one day, and read a townland, and charge the ratepayers with the expense, he thinks I would have no trouble. I expect to hear from you by to-morrow's post, as I have to be in Pettigo to auction cattle seized.

Mr. THOMAS ROBINSON, Collector of Poor Rates, to Mr. JOHN IRVINE, Clerk of the Union:—
December 25, 1847.

As Christmas has come on the week at a close, I have exerted all in my power—making seizures, getting little money, cattle yet under seizure. I don't wish to travel collecting to-day, and as a number of respectable men who have large sums to pay (some of their cattle under seizure), my friends think it advisable to stop in this neighbourhood to-day, as they and I think they'll release them to-day; if not, I am determined to sell on Monday. What I have under seizure amounts to upwards of 40*l*. The country presents an awful appearance. I have exerted all in my power, late and early, so much, that many tell me I'll rue it one day or other. Sir, I believe it will be out of my power to lodge money sooner than Tuesday, from the way I am situated; I hope to have a large lodgment to make then. I'll be up on Monday evening. I enclose to you the notice I got. If you have anything particular, let me hear by the boy.

The enclosure has been served by a person whose name I don't know. Not knowing the nature of the enclosed at the time he handed it to me, I asked no questions, and he walked fast away before I had time to read it.

MR. ROBINSON,

December 20, 1847.

SIR,—On yesterday I had something to tell you, but fearing that I should be brought to prove what I heard, if I told you personally, I believed my duty to let you know by writing the minds of those who come under my acquaintance. I saw you yesterday in our neighbourhood, and from what I heard, they done as they said, that is, as long as you do not seize, they'll let you pass on; but to prevent you from seizing cattle, they were locked up. As a friend, and one who paid you the rate, don't come here for the purpose of seizing till you have assistance. I heard you would call on police. A respectable neighbour, and one who paid you the rate also, he and I were talking about you. He said, if you were to bring police one day, and read a townland, and charge them with the expense, you would have no further trouble for the time to come. If the priest, Mr. Owens, has not paid you, it is first to commence with him. You have called on him. I understand he has some aversion, nor will he pay until you drive; then you may expect opposition.

I remain a friend, and one who will assist you all in my power. Don't come again, I entreat, without police.

In reference to any attempt which may be made by intimidation or otherwise to prevent the collection of the rates, the Commissioners recommend you to confer with the stipendiary magistrate of the district, and to apply for escort only on sworn information of its necessity. I am at the same time to return the anonymous letter sent to the collector, Mr. Robinson, a copy of which is annexed to your report.

With respect to your proposal of issuing circulars, the Commissioners request that you will not issue any circulars to the ratepayers without the Commissioners first seeing a copy.

As regards the necessity of medical certificates in the case of applicants for out-relief, who, by reason of sickness, come under section 1 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, I am to state, that if medical certificates of sickness be found necessary to guide or check the relieving officers, in placing persons on the relief lists under the 1st section of the Act 10 Vict. c. 31, it would appear to be the better course for the officers to call for the certificates when the applications are made, in which case the applicants should themselves obtain them from the dispensary surgeons. In every such case, however, you should require the relieving officer to satisfy himself of the facts by visiting the abodes of the parties.

In regard to the appointment of an assistant-schoolmaster, and assistant-schoolmistress, I am to refer you to the Commissioners' letter of yesterday.

Lowtherstown
Union.

Mr. MORTON, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 31, 1847.

I AM under the necessity of addressing you the present letter in much haste to avoid losing the post, having only now returned from calling upon a magistrate, Edward Atthill, Esq., of Ardvarney House, Kesh, with the collector, Thomas Robinson, as arranged by my colleague and myself, if we should not earlier hear from you in disapproval of that course which was mentioned in our report to you of the 27th instant as in our opinion the best for us to take under the circumstances; and on hearing the statement of the collector, who was not, however, put upon his oath, Mr. Atthill being in fact already apprised of the greater part beforehand, Mr. Atthill, at my request, appointed Wednesday next, the 5th of January, to go to the townland of Glassmullagh, one of the worst in the district, and meet the collector there, and have some of the police force with him to protect him while collecting the rates. It was my own purpose to be present, as Mr. Atthill has himself been threatened, and Mr. Atthill saw no objection to that course. On my return from this duty, I am but now in receipt of your letter of the 29th instant, in which, with reference to the above subject as brought under your notice in our last report, you recommend us to confer with the stipendiary magistrate of the district, and to apply for escort only on sworn informations of the necessity. Mr. Holmes, of Swanlinbar, is (I understand from the sub-inspector of the force at this place) the stipendiary magistrate of the county, but otherwise the district is commonly considered as not having any such officer.

May I beg your further instructions under these circumstances.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state that the object in referring to a stipendiary magistrate in the Commissioners' letter of the 29th ultimo was to secure an escort when required, and which the local magistrates might not be enabled to provide.

If Mr. Atthill will obtain the necessary escort as expected, there is not occasion for applying to the stipendiary magistrate; but if hereafter escort should be required where Mr. Atthill does not act, and recourse must be had to the stipendiary magistrate, it will be probably sufficient to forward the collector's information to him in an official letter applying for the protection requisite.

DURING the absence on leave of my colleague, Mr. M'Manus, it falls to me to report, as you desire of us weekly, the state of this Union, and particularly as respects the collection of the rates.

There was lodged on Tuesday last, the 28th ultimo, by the two collectors, a sum of 245*l.* only, instead of a much larger sum we had been led by their statements to expect. Of this the proportions were, by Alexander Robinson 163*l.*, and by Thomas Robinson 82*l.* I am far from satisfied with it, but have no other reason to qualify the opinion conveyed of the two men in our late report. There can be no doubt that the time is fully come for enforcing the collection by every arm, and you may rely on its being done. Our determination in this respect is well known, and that the leading ratepayers above all will be the parties most rigorously subjected to proceedings in case of default, a course it is at least satisfactory to state, of which I hear nothing but approval on all hands. In the absence of my colleague I shall entirely apply myself to this great duty, and have a confident hope of being able, in another week, to report a satisfactory progress.

The cases for this day at Trillick Petty Sessions have had unavoidably to be postponed in consequence of the quarter sessions now holding. The proceedings intended for Wednesday next, in Glasmullagh, but now fixed for Friday, after swearing the informations in due form, will make ample amends for the delay, and I apprehend that by these there will either be an immediate stop put to all further intimidation, or the upper classes will find it imperative for their own sakes to stand forward and crush at once, as in this county they are as yet well able, a spirit so incompatible with social order. But I entertain no doubt of the happier result, and the magistrate who is to be of the escort, Mr. Atthill, agrees with me, that the smaller the force the better; we shall take, therefore, no more than three men with the constable in command. My purpose is to follow up this measure by a fresh demand on every ratepayer in the other refractory townlands; and, unless I see reason for it in the interim, without the aid of the police. Should the necessity arise we can take the same or a larger force. The question as to whether the people are to escape paying or not, which I understand has actually existence in the minds of some, will be speedily brought to its just issue. Your letter of the 1st instant relieves me of the apprehension that it might be necessary to apply to the stipendiary magistrate, as a matter of form. We shall, I think, be at all times able to secure an escort when required by applying to the local magistrates.

With respect to the state of the workhouse, I regret to say it is every week further removed from what it ought to be, and I wait only the reply of my colleague to a letter which I had occasion to address to him on Saturday, acquainting him with another most eligible offer, to supply the only remedy, in the appointment of a master able to enforce discipline, and who will neglect no part of the important duties of his post. We can then, and only then, look for a return to a normal state. The numbers in the house, which since the admissions of last Board-day have exceeded largely the limit of 500, will be reduced to that limit, or to something not far outside it, by the immediate removal of 50 children from the girls' school, and the discharge upon out-door relief, of many to whom (though eligible to such relief) it was considered advisable to apply the test in the first instance. The actual numbers are, in the workhouse, 630, on out-door relief, 560. Happily, the house was never free from disease or sickness of any description. Besides the house (Graham's) alluded to in our last minutes, and which will hold 50, a larger building freely bestowed by Mr. D'Arcy, of Necarne Castle, is in course of repair: it will accommodate, if necessary, 150, or more. The fever hospital is still delayed by the imperfect convalescence of the builder, Mr. Samuel Moore, who is only recovering from an attack of fever.

In reference to the desired appointment of an assistant schoolmaster and an assistant schoolmistress, which you decline to sanction for the reasons mentioned in your letter of the 28th December, to which you refer us in your letter of the 29th December. I have to request your attention to a resolution to be found in our last minutes, in which our objects in recommending such appointment is stated at some length, and now recommending in its place the appointment of an assistant master and an assistant matron.

Your desire that no circular shall be issued to the ratepayers without your first seeing a copy, as also your instructions relative to the procuring of medical certificates, will be strictly observed.

In reference to your proposal to appoint an assistant master and assistant matron for the workhouse of Lowtherstown Union, I am to state that the Commissioners rely on your selection of an efficient master and matron; and if such appointments be made, the Commissioners consider that there will be no necessity for the proposed additional officers in a workhouse of the extent of that of Lowtherstown; but the Commissioners have no hope of remedying the defects arising from the appointment of inefficient parties, by creating supplementary officers, and must decline to sanction that course.

In reply to your letter of the 6th instant, desiring to be informed how far cases falling under the 10th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, have come before us as Vice-Guardians of this Union, and of the course we have taken in regard to such, and to the surrender of the land, where persons applying for relief were at the time, occupying more than a quarter of an acre, and whether difficulties have been experienced by us in acting on the 10th section, and how we have usually dealt with such difficulties; I beg to state, that we have hitherto in this Union, had no applications for relief from persons holding more than a quarter of a statute acre; nor, so far as we are aware, have any such been made to our relieving officers, who had our instructions from the beginning, to make it generally known that such persons could not be allowed either in or out-door relief, according to the express terms of the Act of Parliament.

I write in the absence on leave, of my colleague, but after conferring on the subject of your letter with the clerk.

Lowtherstown
Union.

Mr. MORTON, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 14, 1843.

I SHALL confine myself for the moment to the collection of the rates, and proceedings in Glasmullagh on Friday last, with an escort of police for that object.

The general collection is making progress, and though the lodgments of 116*l.* on the 4th instant, and 244*l.* on the 10th, cannot be regarded as satisfactory, I am yet enabled, by my frequent interviews with the collectors, and observation of what passes in the district, to assure you, both that the men are now doing their best, and that there need be no apprehension as to their making the levy complete.

On Friday, the 7th instant, as arranged by Mr. Atthill, the collector, Thomas Robinson, proceeded to Glasmullagh, a townland where he had been peremptorily refused payment, with violent menaces and warnings not to return there for rates. I was unable to attend, as, for reasons stated in my last report, I could have desired, and Robinson (very imprudently, but as it turned out without bad consequences) had with him but a single assistant. The police, five in number, and Mr. Atthill with them, were upon the ground at the hour fixed, and within summons in case of need. On the first demand made by the collector, the rate was stoutly refused; and the seizure which Robinson proceeded to make in consequence, was immediately rescued by the party—upon this the escort came up, and on the complaint of the collector, the rescuer was taken into custody and handcuffed. This prompt interference, and exhibition of the handcuffs especially, at the outset, was decisive for the rest of the day. On payment, however, being at once tendered, and on the family urging the plea of fever, from which the party was barely recovering, he was liberated. On each subsequent demand of the collector's, a seizure had to be made, but there was no further attempt at rescue, and payment was in every instance promptly tendered in release. The rates of both Glasmullagh and the adjoining townland of Drumkirk (equally refractory), were collected in full, nor did there appear to be any want of means to pay, on the contrary, Mr. Atthill, on whom I have since waited to make further arrangements for an escort to three other townlands, assured me that he was not a little astonished at the sheafs of notes produced by parties whom he had supposed to be in very different circumstances.

Towards the close of the day the Rev. Mr. Owens, whose name is, I believe, already familiar to you in connexion with these menaces, was also called upon, and after some little hesitation paid his rates in full.

A solitary cow, at the end of the whole proceedings, was the only seizure that had to be impounded; and that also was released before six o'clock in the evening, when the collector left the place.

REPLY to the above :—January 18, 1848.

I AM to express the satisfaction of the Commissioners with the successful result of the proceedings taken to collect the rates in Glasmullagh at Drumkirk. At the same time the Commissioners hope that the Vice-Guardians will continue vigorously in the same course of action, as the Commissioners cannot but regard the sum collected since the last rate was made, as inadequate to the resources of the Union.

NOTWITHSTANDING our desire to the contrary, we have found it next to impossible to be punctual to the day we had fixed for our present report, such has been the increased demand for relief; and when we were happily successful in our arrangements to meet it, the necessity imposed upon us by the incapacity we have so long had to contend with, on the master's part, of superintending personally every step of their execution.

At the same time, it was urgent that we should communicate with you, as well for our guidance, as for the sanction of your authority on matters more than one of immediate moment.

To these, as they arise out of the details we have to lay before you, we shall now rapidly proceed.

The admissions to relief at our late Board meeting (which extended from the 12th to the 15th instant, inclusive), were, after the minute investigation due, above all at the present crisis, to each separate case, to the house, 233, and to the out-door relief 477, making together 710 additional to our previous numbers.

Besides these, there were upwards of 100 who refused to enter the house, and others who were rejected on the score of having comfortable relatives, or sufficient means of their own to support them. Eventually, out of the above 233 admitted, 87 took their departure before the end of the fourth day, leaving 146 new inmates, in addition to the number of 528 before in the house, and the detachment of 60 of the girls' school at Graham's.

We were prepared, it should be observed, to detach also 60 of the boys' school, as has since been done, to another building, (Montgomery's), removed only by a single field from the workhouse, upon the country side, so that out of the number abovementioned of 528 within the walls, there were 468 only to be taken into account when dealing with the fresh applications before us. Add 146 newly admitted, and who remained in the house, together with a family of six admitted yesterday, and deduct four deaths (of infants dying when admitted), and 86 discharges on out-relief and otherwise, during the four Board days; and 61 more discharges on out-relief (also from among those admitted at previous Board meetings), which took place yesterday, and the result would be 469 inmates within the walls of the workhouse at the present moment.

The two school detachments of 60 each, make up, with the above number, 589 actually on in-door relief. The number on the out-door list is 1244.

We have been the more particular in the above detail as we are anxious to satisfy you of the important fact that, notwithstanding the late extraordinary number of applications for relief, we have been enabled by our arrangements, strictly in accordance with the 1st section of the Act, and with your instructions, so far to maintain the workhouse test, without any rigour in the proceeding; and that we are still in a condition to maintain it at to-morrow's meeting. The house being limited to 500, and having 469 actual inmates; it is, however, the detachments from the schools that has carried us over last week's pressure, and we have no similar resource for the present week, while the relieving officers give us reason to apprehend that the applications will be scarcely less inferior in number.

This brings us to the further auxiliary measures which we have to submit for your approval.

The first of these is to appropriate the house, late Anderson's (bestowed by Mr. D'Arcy, free of rent, as stated in a former report, but requiring repairs to the amount of about 14*l.*, which it was intended to occupy with one of the schools; the pressure admitting of no delay, we were reduced to substitute another, Montgomery's, for this purpose), as a subsidiary poorhouse, to be placed under a competent female, engaged at the rate, say of 15*l.* per annum and rations, for the accommodation of the senior female paupers, and more especially mothers with infant children, supplied, as in the case of our school detachments, with cooked rations from the workhouse.

The house in question is in the main street of Lowtherstown, having three floors, its front well secured, with a considerable walled yard also secured, in the rear, and behind this again a garden and running stream. It will accommodate about 120 inmates. We shall confidently hope for your approval of this important additional accommodation. We have the best reason to believe that in combination with other partial measures, which you will perhaps also see fit to authorize, viz., the extension of out-door relief to orphans, and to widows with only one child; others have also occurred to us, which however we have not sufficiently considered to do more than submit them to your better judgment, namely, out-door relief to the wife and children, provided the husband becomes an inmate, the husband, as it commonly happens, deserting his family, who become inmates on swearing informations, while he is not to be got at; and again, out-door relief to all who have been inmates for more than six months (there may be so many as 70 of this latter class). With such additional measures we have the best hope at the present advanced state of the season, that the appropriating (late) Anderson's house, as we have suggested, will enable us in this Union to escape having recourse to the 2nd section of the Act, in its full extent of general out-door relief to the able-bodied.

In our letter of the 15th instant, we reported the fever hospital to be ready for the inspection of your architect. There is reason to press its being placed at our disposal as soon as possible. We had last week the sudden appearance of some bad cases of typhus fever, chiefly among the newly admitted; and at the same time of dysentery (ascribed by the medical officer to the weather and taking cold through the bare feet), among the inmates in general, crowding the infirmary at one and the same time, so as to expose the other patients to closer neighbourhood with the fever cases (11 in number) than the medical officer considered to be prudent, and though there has been no loss of life as yet from this cause, and 6 out of the 11 fever cases are now convalescent, we feel it a duty (as we are again about admitting fresh applicants, some of them doubtless as liable to the attack as those of last week) to lay this state of things distinctly before you. With the fever hospital in our hands, the inmates would be comparatively secure.

Another subject also presses for your directions: Mr. William Anderson, the relieving officer of Lowtherstown, Trillick, and Moorfield divisions, has represented to us that he finds the duty of so large and populous a district too much for him. We had observed this ourselves, and had he not made such a representation, it would have been equally our duty to bring it under your notice. We would suggest that Lowtherstown division alone be left to him, reducing his salary for the time being so long as the pressure continues by 10*l.*, and appointing (under the name of assistant) another officer, at a salary of 10*s.* a week, for the two other divisions. We are at the same time of opinion, that though nominally an assistant, this new officer should act independently of Mr. Anderson, whose attention ought to be confined to Lowtherstown division alone, and should be in direct communication with the Board. The sooner this arrangement (should it meet with your approval) can be perfected the better, as it is not too much to say, that during the past week at the least, great suffering from cold and privation in Mr. Anderson's district, has been sustained by very many of those on out-door relief, waiting over the appointed day, and exposed to the inclemency of the weather without obtaining their allowance.

We may mention in our present report, for your consideration, that an opportunity now offers, of rare occurrence, to hire a piece of ground adjoining the workhouse of 8½ acres plantation measure, at a reasonable rate, and the ground in excellent heart (two guineas per acre). It is the farm to which Montgomery's house (which we have taken, as before mentioned, for the boys' school) belongs. Montgomery has a lease of it from Mr. D'Arcy, of years (just expired), and one life (in America), so that Mr. D'Arcy, with whom we have not yet spoken on the subject, would have to be a party to the transaction. We are not aware of what Mr. D'Arcy's intentions might be with regard to it, but he has hitherto shown the best disposition to second our efforts in the cause of the Union. We conferred with him some weeks since as to ground for a grave-yard, which is absolutely indispensable, but which he then stated would be difficult to procure.

With respect to the condition of the workhouse and its management, it is unnecessary for us to enter into particulars, which would be but to repeat the complaints, and no less emphatically than heretofore, of irregularity and absence of all discipline so painfully described in our past reports.

It has required nothing less than our repeated daily and almost hourly inspection, remonstrances and personal directions, to enforce, and that but indifferently, attention to meal hours and cleanliness, to maintain a semblance of order, and arrest the unruliness of all classes of the paupers.

Nine of the male paupers were brought before the Lowtherstown bench of magistrates, on Friday last, the 14th instant, and committed for a month to Enniskillen gaol, under 58th section of the 1 and 2 Vic. c. 56. There has been more decency of conduct since that wholesome lesson. Meantime, a large number of the female paupers have been kept employed at the needle, and the men have been constantly worked in gangs out of doors. Happily by the kind co-operation of the Cavan Vice-Guardians, our new master and matron, Serjeant Dodd and his wife, have been arrived in Cavan since Wednesday last, having daily lessons of management at the Cavan workhouse: they are to be here in a day or two, and there is hope at last that we shall have the house in an efficient state, and in proper order under their discipline. Serjeant Dodd bears the character from his officers, of having been remarkable for the good order and excellent discipline of his men.

The industrial training of orphan lads, under the master tailor and shoemaker is proceeding satisfactorily, and both clothing and shoes are in use at present which have been made, and well made, by these boys, without the master's touching the work. In the girls' school detached at Graham's, the shifts and petticoats of the children are also now being made up by the children themselves under Mrs. Kane, who manages that detachment.

We have to report to you in conclusion, as to the collection of the rates. As respects the ratepayers, it has been brought round to a decidedly healthy and promising aspect; but the week's lodgment made yesterday by the collectors of 239*l.*, it is to be admitted, does not afford the most marked evidence of this.

They are warned that, defend it as they may, and let them be as confident as they profess, (and as we believe them really to be,) of their ability to complete the levy by the 13th March, a continuance of this remissness will not be endured on our parts. We have had a very full interview and explanation with them since the above lodgment was ascertained. There was a difference of temper on the occasion exhibited by the two brothers, which, looking at the character of their respective districts, was happy enough. There is little risk of serious default (nor we believe, was there ever any worth dwelling on) in Alexander Robinson's district, comprising Lowtherstown, Castle Archdall, Trillick, and Moorfield divisions; the recusants were for the most part of the other divisions falling to Thomas Robinson, and in these if at all, was difficulty to be apprehended. We had them before us separately, and it was satisfactory to learn from Thomas Robinson, that he had received rate from several now coming forward of their own accord, out of Gortnagullion, Carrickhouter, and Drumskinny, the three townlands to which we had arranged with Mr. Atthill the magistrate, to have an escort of police, upon that gentleman's return from Dublin, but which the collector has since determined to enter and enforce the rate with five assistants of his own. He stated that from this out, he should proceed regularly forward from one townland to another, through the entire district, with the same body of assistants. His number heretofore was three, and this number he was to have had with him in Glasmullagh, on the late occasion, but two of them disappointed him. This collector appeared much impressed by our observations, and promised warmly that he would make good, weekly, more than the average which would complete his levy within the time. He left, saying we should hear of him, and next day brought us accordingly an account of his visit to a gentleman on whom he had urged his vigorous enforcement of the rate; the party was absent, but he waited only his return to make the seizure, as directed. This collector holds also cheques from certain of the leading ratepayers, which have been given to escape the severe remedy, but will not be paid at the bank till some days are past.

Alexander Robinson, on the other hand, met our remonstrances with a degree of embarrassment, and almost resentfulness, conveyed, however, only by a protracted silence on his part. "He had been confined to his house by illness for two days of the past week, he had done his utmost, there was no fear of the rate, except where the lands were waste; the people he had summoned to Trillick petty sessions, wanted to compromise by now paying rate and costs, if we would let him, which would leave the case of Sheerar only (a rescuer who had violently threatened so as to put him in fear, and whom he determined to make an example of), to be proceeded with. He had promises from all the weighty ratepayers, which were as good as the cash, and by the 3rd of February, almost the entire of Lowtherstown division would have paid. He would not say how much he would get in this next week, but it should not be under 300%, and then he intended to go straight on through the district." This temper would not do in Thomas Robinson's district; however, he is warned to expect that instead of further, remonstrances from us for the time to come, our future course will be, if necessary, to appeal at once for your direct interposition.

We had nearly omitted to mention, and it is with much pleasure we now add it, that the ratepayers throughout the entire of one of our relief districts have engaged to employ for the future all the able-bodied applicants for relief chargeable to them, and Mr. Henry D'Arcy has for himself and his father made a similar engagement as respects Lowtherstown.

We have also to add that in our anxiety to relieve ourselves of the very unfavourable bread contract we have been hitherto bound by, we have anticipated your authority in causing an oven, already the property of the Union, to be fixed in a suitable position in the workhouse, and which we hope will be approved of by your architect. The saving which will be immediately effected by this means will be very considerable.

I AM to express the Commissioners' approval of your taking Anderson's house for additional workhouse accommodation; and the Commissioners will issue an order authorizing out-door relief to orphans, and widows with one child.

The Commissioners have communicated with their architect respecting the inspection of the fever hospital, and he states that he will have it inspected this week.

In regard to your proposal to appoint an assistant to the relieving officer for the divisions of Lowtherstown, Trillick, and Moorfield, the Commissioners recommend, under the circumstances, that a separate relieving officer should be appointed rather than an assistant.

Lowtherstown
Union.

With respect to the proposal to hire an additional piece of ground, the Commissioners desire to point out that the quantity to be held with the workhouse must not, under section 35 of the Irish Poor Relief Act, exceed 12 statute acres, independently of three acres that may be held under section 20 of the Extension Act, for cemetery or other purposes.

Regarding the collection of the rate the Commissioners request a special report of the present week's progress; the Commissioners regard the slow progress of the collection with much dissatisfaction, and they are unable to understand why a larger sum has not been yet collected.

IN our last report we entered so fully into all matters requiring to be brought under your notice in connexion with this Union, that it will be sufficient for the present to confine ourselves to one or two leading particulars arising out of the week since expired.

The amount of rate collected during the week ending the 22nd instant, was 239*l.*, a sum far short of what the promises of the collectors, as mentioned in our last, had authorized us to count upon; our clerk is consequently now instructed to notice them of our purpose to apply to you for an order specially addressed to them, and that we shall thereafter have recourse to the 102nd section of 1 and 2 Vict. c. 56, and put it strictly in force against them should their next weekly lodgment be under 500*l.*

Although from the circumstances of the district, and the statements to us of many well acquainted with it, and to be relied on, we feel no apprehensions on the subject, but are on the contrary well persuaded that the levy will be made within the time limited; we are yet of opinion that the collectors have shown a very culpable remissness since our repeated injunctions to them to proceed with greater expedition; injunctions which they have paid very little regard or respect to, and as little to their own assurances given us from time to time to the contrary.

There is no general opposition to the payment of poor rate in this Union; neither for the most part are the rate-payers of a class to be very seriously inconvenienced by its immediate demand, though complaining of its unusual amount. In Boe Island, where the collector Thomas Robinson spoke when we last saw him of the possible occasion for an escort of police, he was encouraged by some of the ratepayers themselves to proceed at once without such escort, engaging that they would find him good men to go with him; an engagement we understand which they have made good, and he passed through the island accordingly in the execution of his duty unmolested.

The newly engaged master and matron, Serjeant Dodd and his wife, arrived here from England, after passing eight days in Cavan, in daily attendance at the workhouse there, on Thursday last, the 20th instant. They had, it appeared, eight children, six of whom they intended should reside with them in the workhouse, and had now brought with them four out of the six, having heard of no regulation to the contrary. On learning from us that such residence of the children with them could not be permitted, they declined to enter upon the duties, assuring us that had they been aware of the regulation in question, they would never have come over. According to the accounts which he laid before us, we found that Serjeant Dodd's expenses had been very heavy, about 13*l.*, and as he would otherwise have been subjected to further loss by waiting here for money to take his departure home, we felt warranted under the circumstances in making him an advance of 6*l.*, solely however as a loan, and on his giving a written engagement to repay it, should you not approve of such compensation being allowed him, which on our own part we venture to recommend as not unreasonable.

We have to request the favour of your directions in reference to this subject, for further particulars of which we beg to refer you to our minutes of the last Board meeting (19th, 20th, 21st, and 22nd instant).

In consequence of the above disappointment, our clerk, Mr. Irvine, is now, agreeably to a resolution at our previous Board meeting, acting as master ad interim, with authority from us to assist himself for the purpose with the services of two respectable individuals approved by us, and to act entirely under his directions for the time being, until we can procure other efficient parties, but without any increase of expense to the Union. We shall at once communicate again with Serjeant Maguire, whose name we mentioned in a former report, and the very high testimonials he could produce. He was to obtain his furlough early in February.

The arrangement for the time being of Mr. Irvine directing the entire management answers well so far, and there is already since Saturday a marked improvement in every department. The workhouse books, so long in arrear, will now have their entries duly completed, and we shall be furnished immediately with the result, the absence of which on our minutes from week to week has marked the entire period of Mr. Somerville's tenure of office.

With respect to the numbers in the house it is needless to enter into detail; our arrangements, we are happy to state, with the discharge on out-door relief of all found eligible under the first section of the Act, have again placed us in a position to maintain the test, and admit freely (with the prospect before us of your approving of the house mentioned in our last report, as an out-door accommodation to the paupers generally) such applicants as may be approved of at the coming Board meeting.

With respect to the health of the inmates, fever is, we regret to say, rapidly on the increase, and the infirmary is barely equal to receive the number of patients of this description alone. Our medical officer expresses great anxiety for the immediate use of the new fever hospital, and requests that we should write to you most urgently upon this subject. The promised arrival of your architect to inspect the building, and place it in our hands, cannot be too soon. The great increase in the number of fever patients, at present upwards of thirty, from only six but a week since, is obviously to be ascribed to the influx and efflux of the late numbers of new applicants for relief, and the deficiency of clothing which confines them for several days together, and in too crowded a state, in the probationary wards. We cannot but think, also, that the utter want of shores (sewers), and of an adequate drainage of the cesspools, which we have remarked on in former reports, and in our minutes, is a circumstance which greatly contributes, and from which, when the frost breaks up, still greater mischief may be apprehended. Chloride of lime is constantly in use in the probationary wards, no less than in the infirmary, and the whitewashing of the building throughout is in progress and nearly completed.

Dysentery also has become extensively prevalent among the inmates in general; and we have in consequence, at the suggestion of the medical officer, suspended the soup dietary for the present, confining it to Sundays.

We are happy in being able to add to our report on the same subject last week, that throughout the Union the rate-payers are beginning to be alive to the necessity of affording employment to prevent the able-bodied and their families falling on the rates for support. There is a very improved spirit in this respect shown by those on whom the burden of the rates chiefly falls; and we confidently look forward to this change having a most beneficial effect on the future management of this Union.

By the same post with our present report you will receive our observations on the objections of Mr. William Archdall, of which you favoured us with an extract in your letter of the 18th instant.

Our oven and bakery are all but complete, for the making henceforward of our own bread. This will greatly reduce the present expenditure on this head, which has been unavoidably much greater than we could wish from the very unfavourable contract entered into by the late Board, and from which we could only withdraw by having our oven fixed and in operation.

REPLY to the above:—February 3, 1848.

IN respect to the unsatisfactory state of the collection of the rate, and the notice given by you to the collectors, stating your intention to apply to the Commissioners for an order to proceed against them, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you that the issue of a sealed order to an officer requiring him to do some specific act, which is part of his ordinary duty, is a course never taken by the Commissioners. Each paid officer is under the immediate direction of the Guardians; and if he disobeys a legal and reasonable order of the Guardians he is liable to a penalty under the 100th section of the Act 1 and 2 Vict. c. 56.

Lowtherstown

The Commissioners trust that the hitherto unsatisfactory progress made in the collection, will shortly result in a return of greater proceeds from the large outstanding rates.

As regards the engagement of Serjeant Dodd and his wife as master and matron of the workhouse, and the advance made to them by you under the circumstances stated in your report, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they regret that Serjeant Dodd should have been put to so serious an expense as that incurred by him through the misunderstanding alluded to, which does not appear to be referable to any default on his part. The Commissioners cannot, however, give their approval to any part of the expenses thus incurred being charged upon the poor-rates.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 10, 1848.

WE are in receipt of your letter of the 9th instant, in which you desire to be informed, by return of post, as to the progress made since our last report (dated 25th ultimo) in the collection of the rates during the two weeks from the 22nd ultimo up to the 5th instant.

For the week ending the 29th ultimo the lodgment (made on the 1st instant) was 479*l*.

For the week ending the 5th instant the lodgment (made on the 9th) was 393*l*. 5*s*.

Of the former lodgments the parts contributed by the collectors were,—

By Alexander Robinson	200	0	0
By Thomas Robinson	279	0	0

Of the latter,—

By Alexander Robinson	219	0	0
By Thomas Robinson	174	5	0

The balances remaining uncollected in the two districts are now as follows, viz.:—

	£.	s.	d.
In Alexander Robinson's district . .	1970	7	4
In Thomas Robinson's district . .	1149	12	8½
Total uncollected . .	£3120	0	0½

As the post leaves at 2 o'clock we defer to to-morrow the detail we could wish to have accompanied the above statement of our measures, in reference to the collection since the 25th ultimo, and of the prospect it now presents. It will appear from them that this most important matter has had our unremitting attention. The collectors are at present, under our direct orders, to lodge for the next three weeks the one 500*l*., and the other 300*l*. weekly. Their term for completing the collection expires on the 13th proximo; and besides the penalties which we are now in a condition to enforce, should they fail to comply with the above orders (admitted by each collector to be reasonable), they are distinctly apprised that their securities will be proceeded against, and their poundage applied for costs, should any but reasonable arrears be found remaining on the 13th proximo.

The CLERK of the UNION to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 11, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of the 10th instant, desiring to be informed what steps the Vice-Guardians are taking to obtain a master for the workhouse, and whether the schoolmaster has yet resigned.

Having laid same before the Board, I am directed to inform you that with the view to obtain a master they proceeded to Cavan on the 8th instant, to be present at the election of a master for that Union.

And finding among the candidates that Mr. Bullock, the present assistant-master of Lurgan workhouse was very highly recommended, they have written to offer him the situation. In the event of Mr. Bullock's declining, the Vice-Guardians desire me to say, that they have already been in communication with Sergeant John Henervick, late of the 6th foot, who applied a few days previously, and whom in that case they propose to engage on trial.

The schoolmaster was discharged on the 31st ultimo, when he left the work-house.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 12, 1848.

IN our letter of the 10th instant, to avoid losing the post, we confined ourselves to a bare statement of the amounts of rate collected during the weeks ending the 29th ultimo and 5th instant, deferring to a further communication the fuller detail which should otherwise have accompanied such statement.

The progress of the collection from the beginning, as ascertained from the lodgments with the treasurer, is best exhibited by taking it as below, in fortnightly periods.

For the fortnight ending October 16th the collection was .	60	17	5
For the fortnight ending October 30th	106	0	0
For the fortnight ending November 13th	151	5	0
For the fortnight ending November 27th	206	0	0
For the fortnight ending December 11th	340	0	0
For the fortnight ending December 25th	327	10	0
For the fortnight ending January 8th	360	0	0

Annexed to our present report will be found a statement of the collection for each week, with a comparative view of the same as reported on the minutes. It will thus appear that the minutes taken alone convey but an imperfect idea of the actual progress; and this merely from the rule of not entering upon them any lodgment made later than the Monday previous—a lodgment made, for instance, upon the Tuesday, or upon the Board-day, Wednesday, itself, though the collection belongs equally to the week ended the Saturday previous, and the treasurer's receipt perhaps in the hands of the clerk.

The improvement for the last two weeks, though sufficiently marked (the collection for each being about double its previous amount), is yet far from having satisfied us, as it is also short (and in the latter of the two weeks short by one-half) of what had been expressly promised us by the collectors. We have reason to believe, notwithstanding, that for these two weeks each collector has made unusual efforts. We had just announced to them our purpose of procuring a sealed order; and 100% and upwards was collected in the space of a few hours after that announcement by Alexander Robinson, the less tractable of the two. The actual lodgment for that week, 479%, proved little short of our requisition of 500%; and at our subsequent interview with both, on the 31st ultimo, they gave us readily the further assurance, that for the three weeks next ensuing 500% per week, at the least, should be lodged by the one, and 300% by the other: the first of these three weeks has, however, produced 393% only, instead of the promised 800%. We have considered it accordingly advisable to act upon the instructions conveyed in your letter of the 3rd instant, referring us to the 100th section of the Act 1 and 2 Vic., c. 56; and to ensure certainty in the proceeding, should there be occasion to carry it so far, we have thought it expedient to secure beforehand, in the presence of our clerk, the collectors' admission that our order to the one to collect and lodge at the least 500%, and to the other at least 300%, for the current week, is, in fact, (as the Act requires it should be found to be,) reasonable. The matter to be decided by the bench is thus narrowed to a simple question of fact, viz., the actual amount of the lodgment. There was happily with these collectors men of equal spirit and good sense; no occasion to leave our object unexplained, but rather the contrary: nor have we much apprehension that we shall be compelled to use this free admission on their parts against either of them. It will be a memento to them, simply, not to relax their promised efforts. A copy of this order accompanies our present report.

The slow progress of the collection up to the 25th ultimo (the date of your letter, in which you animadvert upon it as requiring explanation), is attributable to several causes very sensibly influencing it, and which we proceed to mention. In the first place, on the collectors' part, there has been a fixed plan from the commencement (and at the first not injudicious, but to which they have adhered long since it should have given place to a general enforcement of the rate), of levying the rate in the first instance from the least able while they had the means, and from the least willing, before they should make head against it. They were reluctant, also, as respects the larger rate-payers, to insist upon their remedies before the 3rd instant, when the half-yearly gales of rent are for the most part payable, and both landlord and tenant find the demand less inconvenient. That in some cases such an indulgence was only reasonable, and even more or less so in all, may be conceded. Policy, keeping in view the future, would also suggest the expediency of consulting within due bounds the convenience of the rate-payers. But when out of five months, within which the collection was to be completed, five weeks only remained, and half the rate still to be got in, it must be admitted that the indulgence has been carried too far, and the rate-payers' convenience consulted beyond what the most considerate, having regard to the duties undertaken, could approve.

While we think, however, that the collectors have shown either a want of judgment, or of due diligence on their parts, and that they might have been more expeditious, had they been so pleased, in the next place, and a very material cause of the slow progress of the collection has been the untoward disaffection of the rate-payers throughout the Union, on account both of the unusual amount, and the dissolution of the late Board.

These feelings, we are happy to say, are at length dissipating, and a better and more just view of the exigencies of the Union and of the position of the present paid officers, is everywhere taking their place, unless, indeed, we are to except the division of Lowtherstown, where alone, notwithstanding the influence of its largest proprietor exerted to suppress them, any serious evidence of such feelings can at the present moment be said to remain. In other parts of the Union, and those not a month since the least promising, we have now, from week to week, fresh instances of a friendly and willing co-operation.

A further impediment to the collection which was experienced to a remarkable degree at its outset, and which, but for Mr. Atthill's prompt and judicious support, might even have become of alarming prevalence, was the determined resistance of parties at all times lawlessly disposed, and who counted upon the general bad feeling to second them in their opposition of brute violence to the demands of the collector. Rescues were frequent, and the consequent necessity of attending the Courts of Petty Sessions occupied much of the collectors' time. The spirit was happily met and overcome, and little or no obstruction from it is now experienced.

The general aspect is that of improved good feeling towards the Poor Law and its administration throughout the Union, improved even in Lowtherstown itself; and after so much blame, not to deny our collectors their just share in the achievement of so important a result, we ascribe it not less to their firm and becoming deportment (which we hear of from every one) in the discharge of a duty rendered by circumstances peculiarly onerous, than to the conviction upon all hands that the poor of the Union are being fairly and effectually relieved—a tribute of commendation we are proud on our parts to share with our relieving officers.

A striking instance of this amended state of things (of which evidence has appeared also on our minutes for some weeks past) was reported to us on Monday last, the 7th instant, with his proceedings for the week previous, by the collector, Thomas Robinson, and it is sufficiently to the purpose to find a place in our report.

This collector was induced on Saturday, the 5th instant, to make trial of the townland of Drumshinny, where he was formerly anxious to have with him an escort of police. He found the people more friendly than he had expected, and, with one exception, well inclined to pay.

Thus encouraged, and accompanied by some of the Drumshinny rate-payers, he proceeded through the adjoining townland of Lugmore. Opposition was here frequent, and with occasional menaces; and the hour being late, he was warned against returning through those wild parts homewards. He was hospitably entertained for the night by one of the more friendly rate-payers. Next morning (Sunday) he proceeded to the chapel of the parish (Drumkeeran), and was there welcomed by the officiating clergyman, who expressed his regret at what he had heard of the conduct of parties on the preceding evening; and taking the collector by the hand, in the midst of his congregation, threatened with his severe displeasure any who should be found resisting the rate, concluded with an appeal to all to look at the relief given around them, and who it was that was being relieved.

—no other than the most destitute amongst themselves. “And why,” asked the reverend gentleman, “do you oppose such a rate?”

The collector justly infers that his prospects in this parish will be greatly the better for this emphatic and publicly-avowed support—a support, too, for which there would seem to have been no light occasion, as information was afterwards given him which will prevent his returning to Lugmore without an escort of police, and we have applied for it accordingly.

To conclude our notice of the causes to which the slow progress of the collection is attributable, we may mention, that it has been our opinion for some time that the task is too heavy a one for two only; and whenever another rate will have to be struck it will be prudent to appoint more than two, perhaps four collectors. The two Robinsons are men of extraordinary strength and energy, but their appearances of late give evidence of the hard work in hand.

Mr. Barron assisted at our Board meeting on the 9th instant. The collector, Alexander Robinson, was in attendance, and his books were minutely inspected. Mr. Barron's observations had a sensible effect on him. His chief defence was, that the blanks could be made good at any time. He evinced at the same time a consciousness that the defence was a lame one, when reminded of the repeated painful remonstrances of the Board; and that, as was observed to him, he had in fact very narrowly jeopardized his securities, by his misjudged system of indulgence to the rate-payers. He took his leave, saying with an emphasis intended to remove all doubts, that “driving,” the Board might rely on it, was all he had in his head from that out.

In conclusion of our report on this important subject, we have to mention that the clerk informs us that the blanks now remaining in the rate-collecting books are such as to satisfy him, from his intimate acquaintance with the Union, that there will be little loss, except in some few cases, where parties having leases of small holdings and unable to support themselves, have locked up and abandoned their houses, and overhold from the landlord, leaving no seizable property.

Of the state of the workhouse and matters of immediate interest in connexion with it, we propose making you a distinct report.

COPY of ORDER of VICE-GUARDIANS to COLLECTOR, referred to in Report of 12th February, 1848.

To Mr. Alexander Robinson, Collector of Poor Rates.

Whereas a statement is before us of your several lodgments with the treasurer of said Union, made since the 13th of October last, when you were duly appointed collector of poor rates for certain electoral divisions of the same, to collect a rate struck upon the 6th of October aforesaid, and amounting for such divisions to the sum of 34917. 4s. 10d.; such collection to be completed within the term or space of five months from your appointment as aforesaid, and it appears by such statement that more than half the said amount of rate remains still to be collected by you, though now arrived within five weeks of the expiration of the said term.

And whereas by an Act passed in the second year of the reign of Her present Majesty, Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act for the more effectual Relief of the Destitute Poor in Ireland," it is provided (sec. 100) that in case any officer of a Union shall wilfully disobey the legal and reasonable orders of Guardians in carrying the orders of the Commissioners, or Assistant-Commissioners, or the provisions of said Act into execution, he shall, upon conviction before any two justices, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

And whereas we being paid officers appointed to carry into execution in said Union the provisions of the Acts in force for the Relief of the Destitute Poor in Ireland, do deem it our duty to make this present order in the above matter, the same being both legal and reasonable.

Now, therefore, we do hereby order you to collect within the week commencing this date, and lodge with the treasurer of said Union, on or before Tuesday the 15th instant, the sum of 500*l.* at the least, in part of the rate so remaining uncollected by you as aforesaid.

Given under our hands, at an Extraordinary Meeting held this 7th day of February, 1848.

BERNARD M'MANUS.
PIERCE MORTON.

REPLY to the above:—February 17, 1848.

THE Commissioners having had under consideration the situation of the affairs of Lowtherstown Union, have resolved, under the circumstances, to restore the management of the Union to a Board of Guardians elected in the ordinary manner; and the Commissioners will accordingly issue an order for the election of Guardians.

You will continue in office until the 25th March next; and thereafter until the election of Guardians for the year which will end on 25th March, 1849, shall have been completed.

The Commissioners trust that you will not relax in your endeavours to have the remainder of the rate collected; and I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners will be glad to receive the further report which you propose to make as to the state of the workhouse.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the UNION:—February 17, 1848.

THE Commissioners having had under consideration the present circumstances of Lowtherstown Union, I am directed to state that they have resolved to issue an order for the election of a Board of Guardians in the ordinary manner, to resume the management of the Union at 25th of March next; and the Commissioners propose to re-appoint you to be returning officer at such election of Guardians as on former occasions.

IN our reports of the 10th and 12th instant, we confined ourselves exclusively to the important subject of the collection of the rates. We now beg to lay before you our proposed further report on the present state of the workhouse, and the administration of out-door relief.

There is a marked improvement, we are happy to state, in the management of the workhouse, and in the appearance and conduct of the inmates, notwithstanding that we are still under the serious disadvantage of being without the services of an efficient master and matron. This disadvantage, which we have so long had to contend with, will not, however, be protracted beyond the 23rd instant, on which day a new master and a new matron—Mr. James B. Bullick and Miss M'Kinstry, the former for some time past assistant master, and the latter schoolmistress in Lurgan workhouse, and both of them very highly recommended to us—are to enter upon their duties, at the respective salaries of 40*l.* and 25*l.*

The more striking features are an increased degree of order and cleanliness in the wards, dormitories, and yards of the establishment, better ventilation, a better and now nearly adequate supply of clothing, more regular observance of the meal hours, and, lastly, improved health of the inmates of all classes, the younger children and infants excepted, amongst whom there has for some time past been an increasing mortality, ascribed by the medical officer chiefly to their sickly and attenuated condition from want and cold before coming into the workhouse. There will be found upon our minutes of the 16th instant the substance of a representation made to us upon this subject by our medical officer, with the suggestion of the only measure that offers itself to meet the mischief, that you would authorize the discharge from the workhouse and placing upon out-door relief (with one or both parents, and their other children under 15 years of age) any such sickly child, of whom it should be certified to us by our medical officer that the child's only chance of recovery lay in its being removed out of the workhouse.

The able-bodied inmates of both sexes are now kept constantly employed: the females in making up the clothing and furniture of the house; the men, under our new ward-waster, Mr. Johnston Little, at useful works out of doors.

The greater part of the bread required for the house, and which was heretofore supplied by contract at a high price, is now baked on the premises. Besides the very considerable saving thus effected, it enables us, by the substitution of bread and milk at supper for the porridge and milk before given at that meal, to dispense with a third cooking in the day, which, from the large additional numbers to be supplied of late, was productive of no small irregularity, keeping the inmates up to a late hour, and causing an unnecessary consumption of fuel and lights.

The master's books and accounts, which had not been in a condition to lay before us for some time past, have been at length regulated and brought into order by our clerk, who has been acting as master since Mr. Somerville's vacating the office. It is with much gratification we now find ourselves able to state, that, for the interval elapsed since the average cost of each pauper was last ascertained, it proves not to have exceeded 1s. 3d. per week, with the exception only of the week ending on Christmas-Day, when the indulgence of an additional quantity of meat with the soup for dinner was allowed by us.

The new fever hospital having been inspected under the direction of your architect, and approved by him, subject to the making good the few particulars mentioned in his report, was placed in our hands by the contractor on the 5th instant. We had it as expeditiously as possible supplied with the requisite stock of medicines, and with bedding, &c., &c., for 40 patients. Our fever patients, in number 40, were removed into it on the 8th instant; and the infirmary wards, where they had been previously treated with patients suffering from other infectious disorders, mere colds, or accidents, are now being thoroughly cleansed, ventilated, and white-washed, preparatory to their exclusive occupation by the latter class.

This arrangement, with the additional room in the infirmary, admitting of all on sick diet being removed to it from the different wards of the workhouse, will conduce very materially to the improved health of the inmates, and effectually check the spread of contagious disorders in the house.

In connexion with this subject we have to mention, that the medical officer, Dr. Betty, having applied for an increase of salary on taking charge of the new hospital, and on account of increased duty in general, the subject was taken into consideration at our Board meeting of the 9th instant; and Mr. Barron, who was present upon that day assisting us with a statement of the salaries paid by the other Boards under his inspection, we raised the salary of our medical officer from 30*l.*, its previous amount, to 45*l.*, subject to your approval.

The contractor for the hospital, Mr. Moore, has applied for his third and last instalment. There appears no objection to its being now paid him, which we have recommended accordingly by a resolution to be found on our minutes of the 16th instant.

A detachment of the more steady and well behaved of the female paupers, is now, since the 13th instant only (the thatching still to be completed), at the house (Anderson's) procured by us in the town as an additional accommodation to the workhouse. They will be kept usefully employed at spinning, knitting, &c., under the management of Mrs. John Irvine, formerly matron of the workhouse, and on whom we have the fullest reliance. The expense of this additional accommodation, and, in great part, of their own support, will, we have reason to hope, be defrayed by the earnings of the inmates.

The school detachments continue healthy; and being now supplied with the requisite books, slates, writing materials, &c., are progressing satisfactorily in their lessons. The girls make up and repair their own clothing. Mr. Doheny, the National School Inspector, visited these detachments (as well as the school children still in the workhouse) on the 15th instant. He was pleased to express his gratification at the arrangements, and his approval of the manner in which the children are instructed.

Lowtherstown

By reference to our minutes of the 9th instant it will be seen that we have taken steps to have two most serious inconveniences, the scanty supply of water, and the very imperfect drainage, immediately remedied. Plans for these important objects will be laid before us on next Board day, when we shall be prepared to communicate with Mr. Wilkinson, as he has invited us to do.

We have this week entered into contracts for supplying our depôts, for out-door relief, with Indian and oat meal in equal quantities for one month; the average price 11s. 3d. per 120 lbs., carriage included.

The substitution of food for money will commence on Monday, the 21st instant, in those divisions where the attendance of the relieving officer is fixed for the earlier part of the week; and the saving to the Union (without affecting otherwise we conceive than favourably the parties relieved) will be at the least 10% per week: the allowance to be, for the adult, 1 lb. per diem; from 15 to 9 years, $\frac{3}{4}$ lbs; and for children under 9 years, $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. We have found it necessary to make some changes, with a view to better security as respects the depôts; the particulars will be found upon our minutes of the 16th instant.

We were duly in receipt of your letter of the 12th instant, by which we were gratified to learn that the recent progress in the collection was considered by you to be more satisfactory. We have to acknowledge, also, your letter of the 17th instant, in which the like satisfaction is expressed, and announcing your purpose of restoring the Union to the management of a Board of Guardians, to be elected on or after the 25th of March.

Our endeavours to have the remainder of the rate collected with all possible expedition, shall not, we beg to assure you, be for a moment relaxed. There was lodged since our late report the sum of 496*l.* for the week ending the 12th instant. The collector, Thomas Robinson, came short of our requisition of 300*l.* by 4*l.* only; the other Alexander Robinson, suffering from severe indisposition, was abroad on duty two days only. Both were before us on the 16th instant, and had fresh orders from us to the like effect as for the past week. We forbear giving an opinion as to the short coming of Alexander Robinson for the past week (of his illness, and that it was serious, there can be no question) until apprised of the fruits of the present week's collection; and, as we said to him, we defer till then coming to a decision as to proceeding against him or not for the fine he may have laid himself open to.

P.S.—We beg to add, that the balance now standing to our credit with the treasurer is 1136*l.* 2*s.*, and we are therefore in a condition to repay your two loans of 100*l.* to the late, and of 200*l.* to the present Board, when required.

REPLY to the above:—February 23, 1848.

WITH regard to the clothing, of which the supply is now stated to be nearly adequate, I am to request that you will take steps for ensuring a sufficient supply.

In reference to the proposal to discharge from the workhouse, and place on out-door relief, the children referred to in your report upon the certificate of the medical officer, I am to state that the Commissioners approve of the course proposed in regard to children who can be so relieved legally. The Commissioners have approved of the proposed increase of salary for the medical officer, who now has charge of the new fever hospital in addition to the workhouse.

As regards the payment of the contractor for building the hospital, the Commissioners have referred to their architect, for his certificate as to the completion of the contract.

With regard to the repayment of the two loans, amounting to 300*l.*, advanced for the service of the Union, the Commissioners desire to state that the amount should be remitted to this office for repayment to the Commissariat, after which an acknowledgment will be duly forwarded to you.

TRIM UNION:—Dissolution of Board of Guardians.

MINUTE:—Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin:—December 22, 1847.

Mr. DISNEY, of Clifton Lodge, agent to the Earl of Darnley, has called to state that there is very great distress among the labouring population of Athboy electoral division, as, notwithstanding the exertions made by the gentlemen of the district to provide employment, many are without work and actually in a condition tending to starvation. He states that out-door relief to the infirm poor has only recently commenced; and trusts that there will not be any time lost in ordering out-door relief for the able-bodied classes, the workhouse having on last Saturday, had in it within six of the limited number it can receive.

He states that an order to relieve widows with one child, &c., would not be of any use; and that relief to the able-bodied is now indispensable, provided an arrangement cannot be made in the district this week to provide work for the labourers now unemployed, which will be reported to the Board of Guardians at next meeting. He proposes to write to-morrow.

Mr. DISNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 23, 1847.

I REGRET to say, the arrangement about employing the labourers in the electoral division of Athboy has failed, and that it is most absolutely necessary to make immediate preparations for extending out-door relief to the able-bodied poor in this electoral division; in fact, I am apprehensive of the worst possible consequences, unless the arrangements are made without delay. The out-door relief to the able-bodied ought not to be delayed beyond Monday next.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—December 27, 1847.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland having received from Mr. Lambert Disney, a communication representing the absolute necessity of making immediate preparations for extending out-door relief, to the able-bodied in the Athboy electoral division of Trim Union, I am directed by the Commissioners, to call the attention of the Board of Guardians to the state of that division.

The Commissioners at the same time recommend, that immediate steps should be taken to provide additional workhouse accommodation; and I am to request the Guardians' consideration of the views expressed in the Commissioners' circular of the 26th August last (a copy of which is herewith enclosed), as to the course recommended by the Commissioners for providing additional accommodation for the relief of the destitute.

SIR,

Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
August 26, 1847.

THE Poor Law Commissioners propose to offer a few suggestions in reference to those Unions in which the Guardians are convinced that it will become necessary for them, unless they adopt precautionary measures, to grant out-door relief to able-bodied men during the approaching autumn. When the operations under the Temporary Relief Act are terminated on the 12th September, the poor-rates throughout the whole of Ireland will be liable for the relief of a mass of apparent destitution which, in some districts, may prove wholly unmanageable, unless the Guardians have definite ideas of the precise evils which are most to be dreaded, and of the best way in which those evils can be counteracted or mitigated. The Commissioners deem it right, therefore, to make generally known the views which they themselves entertain on this important subject.

The Commissioners think that the evil which is most to be guarded against is the necessity of granting out-door relief to able-bodied men; and that the main point for the Guardians to keep steadily in view is, to make their workhouse as extensively available as possible for the relief of this class.

On the difficulty of preventing abuses in granting out-door relief to able-bodied men the Commissioners do not intend to dilate. The experience and observation of Guardians as to what has taken place under the Labour Rate Act and the Temporary Relief Act, will probably have convinced them that although such relief may be administered with the utmost ability and most upright intentions it is liable to many abuses. During the past year, indeed, it has been absolutely necessary for the preservation of human life, but still it is a matter of notoriety, that numerous persons have had a share of the public alms who ought to have subsisted on their own resources.

On the other hand, very extensive experience has proved that relief may be granted to able-bodied men in a well regulated workhouse, without entailing the certainty of any very serious evils. Speaking generally, such relief combines the two important advantages—first, that those who are really destitute will accept it; and secondly, that those who are not really destitute will not accept it. And this may be illustrated without insisting on the decisive experience of England, by referring to what has occurred in Ireland, in connexion with the distress of the past year.

During last winter and spring the workhouses in Ireland were so full that they contained more inmates than they were originally built to accommodate, and in some Unions it became frequently the painful duty of Guardians to reject, from want of room, some of the applicants for admission. This shows that relief in a workhouse will be accepted when severe distress exists in a population.

On the other hand, the effect of a workhouse, in bringing to light imposition, has been manifested in a remarkable manner within the last fortnight in North Dublin Union. During the week ended Saturday, the 14th instant, there were above 20,000 persons on the Relief Lists of the north city electoral division, and as the operations under the Temporary Relief Act terminated in North Dublin Union on the 15th instant, the Guardians on the 16th instant had to deal, for the first time, with the apparent necessity of having to provide relief for above 20,000 persons. On the morning of that day, however, owing to previous arrangements, they had room in the workhouse of their Union for 400 individuals, and by offering workhouse relief to applicants, aided by some assistance from the Mendicity Institution, the Guardians were enabled, in the course of six days, to reduce the number on the Relief Lists to nearly 3,000 persons. This tends to show that those who are not really destitute, will not accept relief in a workhouse.

The Commissioners do not anticipate that the results of pursuing a similar course in the south and west of Ireland will be equally striking with what has occurred in North Dublin Union, but still the same principles of relief to able-bodied men will be found universally applicable; and it may be confidently expected that wherever those principles are acted on, the results will not differ in kind, but only in degree.

In order, therefore, to carry out those principles, the Commissioners make the following recommendations, in reference to those Unions, wherein the Guardians are of opinion that it will become necessary for them to grant out-door relief to able-bodied men after the 12th of September, if the present mode of administering relief is not previously altered:—

1st. To grant out-door allowances to destitute persons permanently disabled from labour.—The Commissioners think that such allowances should be sufficient in amount to prevent the necessity of begging.

2nd. To grant similar allowances to widows with two or more legitimate children.—The effect of this course will be, to place at the disposal of the Guardians, accommodation for the children of able-bodied men in the children's wards.

3rd. If the above measures are insufficient, to remove all the school children of the workhouse, with the schoolmaster and schoolmistress, to a separate and distinct Establishment.—Such an arrangement, if made permanent, would be attended with numerous moral advantages to the children, and no one measure would place at the disposal of the Guardians so much additional workhouse accommodation with such little inconvenience.

4th. To hire a house or houses for the reception of poor persons affected with fever or other dangerous contagious disease, and to make use of such houses for the reception and medical treatment of such poor persons in preference to the workhouse fever wards.—This measure would be attended with the double advantage of giving additional workhouse room to the Guardians, and of diminishing, at the same time, the risk of infection to paupers in the workhouse. And it is to be observed, that an order for authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men, under the second section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, may become requisite on account of fever or other infectious disease in the workhouse.

If, notwithstanding all these four expedients, it is still found necessary to grant out-door relief in any Union to able-bodied men, this would appear to the Commissioners an indication that the workhouse accommodation of the Union was insufficient, and the Commissioners would willingly co-operate with the Guardians in enlarging the present workhouse, as far as is practicable, or in the erection of a new workhouse.

With regard to raising the requisite funds for this purpose, the Commissioners are not authorized to hold out any hope of their being able to obtain a loan for the Guardians from the Exchequer Bill Loan Commissioners. The Guardians, however, might borrow the money from any Company, or from private individuals, under the 35th and 90th sections of the Irish Poor Relief Act, and they might charge the principal and interest on the poor-rates, provided that they repaid the principal by annual instalments of not less than one-twentieth of the sum borrowed.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

ARTHUR MOORE, Chief Clerk.

To the Clerk to the Guardians,

Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. DISNEY :—December 27, 1847.

Trim Union.

THE attention of the Inspector, Captain Huband, has been drawn to the necessity for affording additional relief in the Union, and he will attend the next meeting of the Board of Guardians with reference to that object, and the Commissioners have also addressed a communication to the Guardians on the subject; but in the absence of any application from the Board of Guardians for an order authorizing out-door relief to other classes than those specified in section 1 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, the Commissioners do not feel that it can be issued.

EXTRACTS from MINUTES of the Board of Guardians :—December 24, 1847.

THE Guardians have not as yet, passed a resolution respecting the deficiency in clothing and provisions. (A.)

Moved by Mr. Barnewall, seconded by Mr. Dunne—That the memorial read by the chairman, praying that out-door relief may be given to the able-bodied poor in the electoral division of Athboy, and that the memorial be forwarded to the Poor Law Commissioners with a request that they will sanction such relief, as speedily as possible.

An amendment was moved by Mr. Maher, seconded by Mr. Murphy—That out-door relief to the unemployed able-bodied poor be extended to the whole Union.

The amendment was negatived.

Mr. Barnewall's resolution was carried.

Proposed by Mr. Barnewall, seconded by Mr. Moore—That the relieving officers be authorized to make out a list of those able-bodied in the Athboy electoral division, who will require out-door relief, and submit it to the Board at their next meeting.—Carried unanimously.

Ordered—That the meeting of this Board be adjourned to Wednesday next at 11 o'clock, for the purpose of revising the list of applicants for out-door relief.

The relieving officers submitted their books for examination.

The following sums were expended for out-door maintenance in the several electoral divisions :—

MEMORIAL referred to in foregoing MINUTE.

December 21, 1847.

WE, the undersigned, being proprietors or holders of land in the electoral division of Athboy, humbly beg leave to represent to the Board of Guardians the necessity of an immediate application to the Poor Law Commissioners to afford out-door relief to the unemployed able-bodied labourers in this division. We make this petition, with the intent of inducing all parties, resident and non-resident, landlords and landholders, to enter into a general plan of giving employment to the poor.

OBSERVATIONS of Captain HUBAND, on Guardians' Minutes of 24th December:—
December 29, 1847.

(A.) THIS remark has appeared several times on these Minutes. I do not understand why the Guardians act thus.

I shall attend the meeting of this Board on Saturday next, and shall report.

The letter to the Guardians does not profess to seek for an order for out-door relief to the able-bodied, because there is great destitution in Athboy electoral division; but "we make this petition with the intent of inducing the resident and non-resident landlords and landholders to enter into a general plan of giving employment to the poor." In other words, we make this application to frighten the landlords and landholders.

The intention of the law is, that the landholders shall either employ the people or support them; and it will succeed, if left to work its own course; but I object to the use now sought to be made of sealed orders in the county of Meath.

If the state of destitution requires them, let them be issued; but I believe, when they are called for for other purposes than to alleviate distress, that their effect will disappoint the calculations of the parties calling for them, and will produce real evil.

Remark, that where the sums expended for out-door relief are set forth, nothing appears to have been expended in Athboy.

EXTRACT from MINUTES of a Meeting of the Board of Guardians, held on Wednesday, the 29th December, 1847.

Lambert Disney, Esq., in the chair. Other Guardians—Mr. Maher, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Byrne, Mr. Hope.

Proposed by P. Maher, Esq., seconded by John Hope, Esq. Resolved, that the poorhouse being now filled, and it being impossible to provide any more workhouse accommodation without great delay, we deem it necessary that the Commissioners do issue an order empowering out-door relief immediately.

That the Guardians are anxious to provide further workhouse accommodation, according to one of the suggestions of the Commissioners; but it is quite impossible that any such accommodation could be provided sufficiently soon to meet the appalling destitution that exists amongst the able-bodied in many parts of the Union, but especially in the Athboy and Laracor electoral divisions.

Mr. James O'Reilly proposed, on the part of Mr. James M'Cormick, to let the house in Market-street to the Guardians for two months, at the rate of 40% per annum. Mr. O'Reilly's proposal was referred to the consideration of the Guardians at the ordinary weekly meeting, to be held on Saturday next.

The clerk was directed to advertise for proposals for supplying beds, &c., for the accommodation of the children in the house which Mr. O'Reilly has proposed to let.

THE Commissioners observe, that the workhouse at the date of the last return, on Saturday last, 25th instant, contained 517 inmates, being only 17 beyond the number (namely 500), for which the house was originally designed; and it appears from the Guardians' Minutes of 24th instant, that it was not necessary to disallow any of the provisional admissions during the previous week, or to reject any of the applications made at the meeting of the Guardians. Of the total number of inmates (namely 517) in the workhouse at the above date, it appears that no less than 326 were children under 15 years of age.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioners recommend that the Guardians should at once make an entire revision of the inmates of the workhouse generally, with the view of discharging those who are not fit objects of such relief, and of giving out-door relief to any of the present inmates of the classes specified in section 1 of the above Act, so as to make the workhouse available to as great an extent as possible, for the relief of destitute able-bodied men.

The Commissioners also recommend the Guardians closely to scrutinize the cases of the large number of children in the workhouse, with the view of ascertaining whether there are any receiving relief in the workhouse, whose parents are not in it, or are at work out of the house; the relief of children without their parents who are bound to maintain them, being at variance with the provisions of the Irish Poor Relief Acts and liable to great abuse.

In regard to the impotent poor and persons relievable out of the workhouse under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, the Guardians have full power to grant such allowances as are required to supply the paupers not only with food, but likewise with lodging, fuel, and clothing.

With respect to the electoral division of Athboy, to which attention has been more particularly called, I am to state that the Commissioners are not specially empowered to issue an order for out-door relief in any particular division, the provisions of sec. 2 of 10 Vic., c. 31, being applicable to an entire Union, but not to particular divisions of it alone; while a motion to apply for an order applicable to the whole Union of Trim was negatived at the weekly meeting of the Guardians on the 24th instant, nine Guardians being present. I am further to state, that it does not appear that out-door relief has yet been given from the poor-rates to the classes who can be relieved out of the workhouse under section 1 of the above Act; and amongst the sums appearing in the Guardians' Minutes of the 24th instant, as expended for out relief in several divisions of the Union, none appears in reference to the division of Athboy.

Under the foregoing circumstances, the Commissioners would not feel justified in now issuing an order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied in Trim Union, the necessity contemplated by section 2 of 10 Vic., c. 31, not having been shown to have arisen.

At the same time, the Commissioners have directed the special attention of their Inspector, Captain Huband (who will attend the Guardians' meeting to-morrow), to the subject, upon which he has been instructed to report to the Commissioners without delay.

The Commissioners observe that the Guardians are in treaty for a house in Trim, and that this matter is to be taken into consideration at their meeting to-morrow; the Commissioners will readily approve of the Guardians' hiring, without delay, any suitable buildings for affording additional accommodation for the purposes of workhouse relief.

Mr. DISNEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 30, 1847.

I THINK it my duty to inform you of the absolute necessity that exists for the Poor Law Commissioners authorizing (suppose it be but for one fortnight) out-door relief to the able-bodied in the Athboy electoral division. It would be utterly impossible to make provision in the workhouse to meet the emergency. The workhouse had the authorized number of poor in it yesterday. You may rest assured that the case is one of urgent necessity, and which will not admit of delay. I certainly understood from you that there would be no delay in the Commissioners giving their assent.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. DISNEY:—December 31, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to enclose for your information a copy of a letter which has been addressed to the Board of Guardians relating to the subject. Letter of 31st December.

FURTHER OBSERVATIONS of Captain HUBAND on Guardians' Minutes of 24th December:—January 3, 1848.

At the meeting of Guardians on Saturday, 1st January, I spoke about the deficiencies in clothing.

Trim Union.

The Guardians promised to take this into immediate consideration ; but they seem so dilatory, that unless they be reminded of it again, they will go on from week to week postponing.

The state of the clothing is absolutely scandalous. The boys are in tatters. I spoke about this when I was at Trim some months since. Nothing has been done since.

There is no supply of bedding ; and one of the reasons why they said they could not take in any more persons into the house was, because there was neither clothing nor bedding to give them when they came in.

There have been some old clothes lost ; and there is a large heap of old clothes in one of the idiot wards, but the Guardians are afraid to go near them to cast them, from dread of infection in them. They allowed the clothing to be so thoroughly worn out, that they themselves say they are such rags that it would be impossible to count them. They know that they ought to ascertain the deficiencies, as there is a note by the auditor in the Clothing Book upon the subject, saying that the late master should be obliged to pay for losses ; so that they are neither casting the old clothes, ascertaining the deficiencies, nor getting new.

I think that the Guardians of Trim Union are not equal to perform the duties of Guardians of the poor.

EXTRACTS from MINUTES of Boards of Guardians :—January 1, 1848.

- (C.) THE Guardians have not as yet passed a resolution respecting the deficiency in clothing and provisions.

Read a letter from the Commissioners, in reply to the Guardians' application for an order authorizing out-door relief.

- (D.) Moved by Mr Drake, seconded by Mr. Jones,—That an order empowering the Guardians to give out-door relief be applied for ; and that the clerk be directed to advertise for overseers to superintend the work to be done by the able-bodied, under the Commissioners' order ; salary not to exceed 10s. per week. And that a notice be attached to the advertisement, stating that able-bodied persons who will receive out-door relief, are to be employed breaking stones for eight hours per day. —Carried unanimously.

- (E.) Ordered,—That an advertisement be issued for proposals for erecting a shed to accommodate 100 persons ; also, for erecting galleries in the dormitories of the workhouse. Tenders to be taken into consideration on this day week.

Captain HUBAND to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 3, 1848.

IN compliance with your instructions, I attended the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians of the Trim Union, on Saturday the 1st instant, for the purpose of inquiring if the state of the workhouse was such as to render an order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied, absolutely indispensable.

The Guardians did not proceed to business until two o'clock, the number necessary to form a Board not having arrived until that hour. The Guardians of this Union never commence business before one o'clock ; and I am informed by the clerk that the usual time is nearer to two o'clock, P.M.

I brought the business upon which I was instructed by you before them ; and it was not until after six o'clock, P.M., that I could induce them to come to any resolution of any kind. Finally, they resolved to persist in their design of affording relief to the able-bodied out of the workhouse, and to again apply to you for a "Sealed Order."

Mr. Disney was the only Guardian who was in favour of postponing the consideration of the out-door relief to the able-bodied, until a full meeting was called upon the next Board day. You will observe that there were but five Guardians present at the meeting when the resolution calling for your order was passed. I think that there were about eight present on Saturday last.

By reference to minutes of proceedings on the 29th of December last, you will see that an offer of a house in Trim for the use of the children was made to the Guardians. I brought this matter before them, but they made all kinds of frivolous excuses to avoid taking this house. But the real reason, in my opinion, why they did not resolve to accept the offer of this house was, because they knew that it would stop the issue of your sealed order to relieve the able-bodied out of the workhouse. The Guardians made no secret of their opinion, that if there was room in the workhouse, the able-bodied applying for relief would refuse to accept relief therein ; and they said, that they considered it a great hardship to ask a poor man to leave his house and go into a workhouse, and that such a measure, if enforced, would only tend to make permanent paupers.

There was a crowd of able-bodied persons who got into the hall, and burst into the Board room several times during the meeting. The spokesman of this mob was a well-dressed, comfortable, well-fed, intelligent looking man.

I brought under the notice of the Board the easy manner in which they could (even before it were possible to get an order from you from Dublin), make room in their workhouse so as to have accommodation far beyond what was at all likely to be required. I wanted them to test a few of the persons who (at the time I was addressing them), were on the stairs leading up to their Board room, but this they refused to do. They said that they had no clothes to put on them. The master said he could take in 20 persons, but the Guardians would not listen to it. Outdoor relief to the able-bodied they were resolved to have ; and equally resolved not to do anything which would throw any impediment in the way of doing so, by diminishing the numbers in the house or testing the able-bodied applicants.

I wish, gentlemen, to bring to your notice these facts which are worthy of attention. This Board of Guardians neglects to provide bedding and clothing for the use of their workhouse ; and by their own default reduce themselves to the necessity of refusing to admit applicants, because they have neither bedding nor clothing to give them should they come in. They apply to you to issue an order to give outdoor relief to the able-bodied, on the plea of the extreme destitution of the poorer classes of the Union ; yet they neglect and refuse to take the most easy and obvious steps to afford relief to as many persons as their establishment could easily support. They get an offer of a building to put out the children, and refuse to avail themselves of it, on the plea that it would endanger the health of the inhabitants of Trim, if these children should by any chance get fever (and in this opinion they are backed by the workhouse medical officer) ; but at the same time that they reject the offer of the house in Trim upon what I consider the most frivolous grounds, they do not contemplate using any efforts to get any other place to put the children into.

The Guardians did not take any step whatever to act upon the suggestions contained in your letter to them, dated 31st of December, though I endeavoured to fix their attention upon the very many ways in which room could be forthwith made in their workhouse.

The Guardians of Trim assembled on Saturday last, confessed that they had been very negligent in the discharge of their duties, and said that they ought to be dissolved, and a paid Board substituted in their place. I am not an advocate for paid Boards of Guardians, inasmuch as I think it useful to accustom the gentlemen of this country to business and regularity, and to give them that opportunity of becoming acquainted with the persons and wants of the poor in their respective neighbourhoods, which can best be effected by their attendance at the Board of Guardians of their Unions. But I cannot shut my eyes to this fact, that if the Board of Trim had been composed of paid Guardians, that there would be, on this night, vacancies for a couple of hundred persons in the Trim workhouse ; and that there would not be, as there now is, a deficiency in the bedding and clothing of that establishment.

You will see on the receipt of the minutes of the last day's meeting, another resolution, calling upon you to issue a sealed order for the relief out of doors of the able-bodied.

I do not oppose the issue of such an order; not because I consider that it could not have been avoided, but because I fear that, whilst the Guardians neglect their duty in providing room in their workhouse, it might so happen that some really destitute poor person might suffer, being relieved neither inside nor outside the workhouse.

That the Guardians could admit persons on an emergency is evident, as there is accommodation for 20 persons in the idiot wards, which are, at present, totally unoccupied. But when I suggested that, what with the 20 vacancies the master reported he had, and the 20 in the idiot wards, which I saw in going round the house, making a total of 40, the Guardians could test the wants of the persons crowding the hall and stairs of the Board-room, they refused positively to put the test, and were quite delighted, when one of their body reminded them, that you had issued a sealed order to restrict the numbers to be admitted to the workhouse, a fact which they had forgotten until then, as well as I had myself.

OBSERVATIONS of Captain HUBAND ON GUARDIANS' MINUTES of 1st January:—

(C.) I mentioned, in my report, the state of the clothing in this workhouse; the Guardians promised to bestir themselves and get clothing, &c.; I said all I could to them on the subject of their neglect.

(D.)—There appeared in the newspapers an order to some Union, where out-door relief was permitted, wherein the labour expected to be done by the able-bodied was detailed. The Guardians asked me if the same would be required, in case that they got a sealed order: I told them that it would. Some of the Guardians who did not approve of out-door relief to the able-bodied, although they voted to ask for the order, suggested that if they let the people know that they should be required to work, that it would prevent their applications for relief, and this resolution was passed with that view.

This resolution (E) was passed after I left the Board: I did not leave until a quarter past six o'clock, when all business appeared to be over, as the Guardians went away to speak to the persons who were crowding the halls. I wanted this resolution to be passed in the first instance, but no one would second it though it was proposed. The Guardians insisted upon passing resolution D. Having passed that, and I having gone away, I think that they passed this last resolution to save appearances, as I spoke to them pretty plainly about their refusing to do anything towards avoiding the necessity of out-door relief.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians of the Trim Union on the 1st instant, from which it appears that the Guardians again call upon the Commissioners to issue an order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men in the Union, while, notwithstanding the Commissioners' letter of the 31st ultimo, the Guardians took no measures for obtaining additional workhouse accommodation, or for giving out-door relief to any of the pauper inmates of the workhouse, to whom such relief may legally be afforded under the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act.

The Commissioners have likewise received a report from their Inspector, Captain Huband, who attended the meeting of the Board of Guardians on the 1st instant. From his report it appears, that there were comparatively few Guardians present; that they did not proceed to business till two o'clock P.M.; and that it was not until after six o'clock P.M. that he could induce the Guardians to come to any resolution of any kind. Captain Huband brought under the notice of the Guardians the easy manner in which they could make room in the workhouse, so that they might have accommodation far beyond what was at all likely to be required, and he urged them to test a few of the applicants who were at the time on the stairs leading up to the Board-room. This, however, Captain Huband states that the Guardians refused to do, on the plea that they had no clothes to put on them, and although the master said he could admit 20 persons the Guardians would not listen to the proposition; that they were resolved to have out-door relief to the able-bodied, and equally resolved not to do anything which would throw any impediment in the way by diminishing the numbers in the workhouse, or by testing the able-bodied applicants.

Thus, the course adopted by the Guardians appears to have been this: they neglected to provide sufficient clothing for the use of their workhouse, and, by their own default, reduced themselves to the supposed necessity of refusing to admit applicants because there was no clothing for them on their admission. They then applied to the Commissioners for an order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied, while they omitted to take the most obvious steps to have room at their disposal in the workhouse, by giving out-door relief to the classes entitled to such relief under the 1st section of the Act of Parliament above adverted to.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioners are of opinion, that the Guardians have failed to discharge their duties duly and effectually according to the intention of the Irish Poor Relief Acts; and, in order to protect the rate-payers of the Union from the heavy burden which will be thrown upon them if the present system of managing their affairs is permitted to continue, the Commissioners have determined to dissolve the Trim Board of Guardians.

A formal order for its dissolution is herewith transmitted accordingly, and the Commissioners will proceed, without delay, to appoint paid officers to administer relief to the destitute poor in the Trim Union, in accordance with the intentions of the Legislature.

MINUTES of late GUARDIANS received from the Clerk of the Union:—

January 8, 1848.

At a Meeting of the Board of Guardians, held on Saturday, January 8, 1848, Samuel Winter, Esq. in the Chair:—other Guardians—Mr. Fowler, Mr. Alley, Mr. Gorey, Mr. Jelus, Mr. Hannon, Mr. Conolly, Mr. Disney, Mr. Hope, Mr. Jervis, Mr. Ryme, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Dunne.

The Minutes of last meeting were read and signed.

The clerk laid before the Guardians an order of the Poor Law Commissioners dissolving the Board.

The clerk read a letter from the Commissioners, stating their reasons for dissolving the Board of Guardians.

The late Guardians passed a resolution which is forwarded herewith.

ENCLOSURE:—Resolution received with foregoing.

MOVED by Mr. Maher, seconded by Mr. Dunne:—

The order for the dissolution of this Board, which we have now read, has filled us with no less surprise than dissatisfaction. The reasons which you allege for this measure are equally untenable. Connected with this locality by residence, and being, for the most part, the most extensive landholders in our respective districts, we have no hesitation to state, that we must be the best acquainted with the wants of the poor on the one hand, and have the strongest motive on the other to economise and justly dispose of the public rates; nor can we perceive how paid Guardians will remedy the evils which you complain of. We, therefore, cannot separate without recording this our strong and unanimous protest against your summary proceeding, and that the Guardians are prepared to prove the charges preferred against them are unfounded, and request an investigation.

OBSERVATIONS of Captain HUBAND on foregoing MINUTES of January 8, 1848:—

January 12, 1848.

THE Guardians of the Trim Union will find it no easy matter to get over their having neglected to follow the advice given to them by the Commissioners, so early as the 26th of August, vide Circular (page 123). Again they were warned to lay in a stock of bedding or clothing by Circular dated 11th of October, 1847; yet on the face of their Minutes of the last three or four meetings, the clerk noted that they had neglected, even to this late period, to order the necessary supplies. Now the paid Guardians will remedy these evils, though the Guardians say they do not see how. No investigation which could be entered upon can clear the Guardians, in respect of the reasons given by the Commissioners for their dissolution.

Trim Union

CIRCULAR above referred to, sent to the Trim Board of Guardians in October, 1847, as to supply of Clothing, &c.

*Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
October 11, 1847.*

SIR,

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland desire to draw the attention of the Board of Guardians to the necessity and importance of promptly bringing under review the subject of their contracts for provisions and other supplies, and the present state of their stocks of bedding and clothing, so as to be prepared in due time for any accession to the number of inmates which the present circumstances of the Union render probable.

The Commissioners urgently desire and call upon the Guardians, in making such preparations, to base their estimates on the assumption that the whole accommodation which the workhouse affords will be placed in requisition.

The experience of the past year has, in numerous instances, shown the serious results which arise from the Guardians undertaking to relieve in the workhouse destitute persons for whom they are not prepared with supplies of clothing and bedding. The Poor Law Commissioners, however, called the special attention of Boards of Guardians to the subject last year before the distress commenced, and the Commissioners deem it their duty to bring the subject again under the notice of Boards of Guardians at the present time.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

W. STANLEY, Secretary.

To the Clerk to the Guardians of Trim Union.

Dr. WADDY and Mr. GRIFFITHS, Vice-Guardians, to the COMMISSIONERS :—
January 14, 1848.

WE are proceeding with all despatch to put ourselves in possession of the state of affairs in the Union, to enable us to make a report thereon, as required. But we are anxious to bring under the immediate notice of the Commissioners the following facts.

In going through the registry, which we have carefully examined from beginning to end, we find that there are at present in the workhouse about 70 children under the age of 15, whose parents have either been discharged without them, or who never have been admitted; and it has occurred to us to be advisable to institute proceedings against the parents legally liable under 1 & 2 Vict. cap. 56, sec. 58, with the hope that it will have the effect of having the children removed, and thus making room in the workhouse; but we shall defer commencing proceedings until we shall have received your approval.

We regret to state that the Clerk of the Union is obliged to leave us to-morrow, for a few days, in consequence of the death of his father, information of which he received this day.

We beg to add that there are tenders before us for erecting sleeping galleries in the dormitories. We should be glad to be informed whether the Commissioners approve of this system of increasing the accommodation.

We are in hopes of being able to procure a house for the boys, in the town; but in consequence of the absence of the agent of the property, we have not been able as yet to conclude the bargain.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—January 19, 1848.

IN reference to the institution of legal proceedings against parents not in the workhouse, but whose children are maintained therein, I am to state that the Commissioners see no objection to such proceedings being taken, in cases in which parties able to maintain their children have left them to be maintained by the Union; the cases most proper for examples being selected in the first instance.

I am at the same time, to call your attention to the 2nd section of the Vagrant Act, 10 & 11 Vict. c. 84, which enacts, that every person who shall desert or wilfully neglect to maintain his wife or any child whom he may be liable to maintain, so that such wife or child shall become destitute and be relieved in or out of the workhouse, is liable to three months' imprisonment.

As regards the erection of sleeping galleries in the dormitories, I am to state that the Commissioners do not object to sleeping galleries being erected, provided that too many persons are not brought into one dormitory, reference being had to the cubical contents of the apartment; and the medical officer's opinion on this point should be ascertained.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 17, 1848.

Trim Union.

IMMEDIATELY on our arrival in the Union, on the 12th instant, we proceeded to inspect the workhouse and investigate the affairs of the Union.

In reference to the latter point, we regret we have not been able, as yet, to procure as much minute information as would be desirable, in consequence of the absence of the clerk; but as far as we could inform ourselves on this head in his absence, we have ascertained that the funds in the hands of the treasurer amounted, on the 1st of January, to 270*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.*; that on that day cheques to the amount of 208*l.* 10*s.* 9*d.* were drawn in favour of tradespeople, &c., and to the amount of 34*l.* 1*s.* 11½*d.* in favour of the relieving officers; and that the liabilities of the Union amounted to about 800*l.*; that the sum of 265*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.* had been lodged to the credit of the Union in the previous week, and that there were outstanding arrears, uncollected by the collectors, to the amount of 767*l.* 15*s.* 3¼*d.* In reference to the latter sum, we have not as yet had the collectors before us, and therefore cannot say how much of it has since been collected; we shall, however, lose no time in making further inquiries on this head.

The number of paupers in the house during the last week was 531, of whom 330 were children; and of the latter we have ascertained that 70 were the children of parents who either never had been admitted, or who had been discharged.

On examining the workhouse, we found it to be tolerably well kept; the principal faults to which it appeared necessary to direct the attention of the officers of the establishment were, the state of the men's day-room, the infirm male ward in the house, and the male chronic and female acute wards in the hospital, for want of due cleanliness, as also the absence of sufficient strictness in enforcing the dietary regulations, having observed several instances of paupers, without any apparent necessity, being permitted to take their meals out of the dining-hall. We observed also that the windows of the workhouse were in bad repair, in some of them several panes being broken, and in four of them a half sash being wanted, through one of which in the hall of the men's day-room, the master informs us, boys have been in the habit of passing by night and absconding. We have directed that these should be at once repaired. The yards also appear much in want of being gravelled.

The clothing of the paupers is bad in quality and deficient in quantity, there being only, at present, 24 pair of repaired trowsers, and 4 pair of unrepaired jackets in the store-room for boys, and none whatever for adults, the supply for the latter being so deficient that the master has been unable to provide clothing for some of those lately admitted; and we have been informed by the medical officer, that he has been obliged to retain in the hospital convalescent patients, from the actual inability of procuring a change of clothing previous to their re-entering the house; and it may be well to observe here, that he has suggested it as advisable, that a separate set of clothing should be supplied to the hospital, distinct from that of the house. We beg to add, that there appears to be a quantity of old worn-out clothing, which, however, has never been condemned, but which it will be almost impossible to count, or to say what articles they were, they are in such a tattered condition.

Saturday being the ordinary Board day, the relieving officers were before us; they are seven in number, and are apparently efficient. With some trifling mistakes arising from their unacquaintance with the forms, their books were correctly kept; some cases of able-bodied widows with only one child had been entered on them, and had received relief, which we thought it our duty to check, directing the officer to offer them admittance to the workhouse if they required relief. From some mistaken instruction, the relieving officer of Athboy had entered a considerable number of able-bodied labourers, whom we refused as a matter of course. The out-door relief register has not been written up to the last date. The amount of out-door relief given in this Union consists of 1 lb. of oatmeal to each adult per diem, and ½ lb. to each pauper from 15 years down to 1 year. We have to remark here, that no contracts have been entered into for the supply of meal, the price of which frequently varying makes it impossible to know beforehand accurately what the money value of the relief ordered will amount to.

Pursuant to the instructions of the Commissioners, we are removing from the house all those who would be entitled to out-door relief, under the 1st section, who have any friends outside, or who can be safely removed; the number of those already removed amounts as yet only to 35, but we are in hopes of further relieving the house before next Saturday.

Trim Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—January 20, 1848.

IN reference to the finances of the Union, I am to call your attention to the expediency of making early preparation for a further rate.

The Commissioners also request that you will take all necessary steps for procuring an adequate supply of clothing for the paupers, as well as for keeping the workhouse in a proper state.

WE have failed in concluding a bargain for the house for the children, to which we referred in our communication of the 14th instant, the proprietor having declined letting it, except under lease.

We have examined other houses since our arrival, only one of which we consider in every way suited for the purpose required, it being in a clear open position, having good accommodation for cooking, &c., in perfect repair, and fit for the accommodation of the children at a moment's warning. There is also a pump, with excellent water, on the premises, which we consider of great importance. We would not hesitate to take the premises, but that we consider the terms rather high; and we therefore forward the proposal for the approval or otherwise of the Commissioners, merely adding, that the gentleman in possession will not take less than the entire sum demanded, viz. 60*l.*, even though the premises should be taken for a shorter period than the term offered. If we were favoured with an answer before Saturday, we would be enabled (if the terms are approved of) to remove the children instantler, and thus have further accommodation for the able-bodied.

ENCLOSURE.

GENTLEMEN,

Trim, January 19, 1848.

I BEG leave to inform the Board of Guardians that I have a house in the town of Trim for disposal, with very extensive and well-secured ere, good offices, in perfect habitable order, in a very healthful position, and capable of accommodating near 200 children; and that the said house having been found on inspection to answer the purposes required by you, I would be willing to give you possession of the premises until 1st November next for the sum of 60*l.*; provided that the said premises be given up to me in the same order in which they are at present in, and that any injury to the premises, by fire or otherwise, be made good accordingly.

N.B. There is a large boiler in the kitchen.

I have, &c.

The Vice-Guardians, Trim Union.

JONES LAMPREY.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—January 20, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to express their approval of your taking the house in question, if you are unable to obtain suitable premises on more favourable terms.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 24, 1848.

WE have to report that on Friday we concluded the bargain with Dr. Lamprey, relative to the house for the pauper children. Finding, on more exact measurement, that the premises in their present state, would not accommodate more than 140 children, instead of 200, as stated by Dr. Lamprey, we declined giving him the full amount demanded by him, viz., 60*l.*, and it was finally agreed between us that we should pay him 52*l.* 10*s.* for the use and occupation of the premises up to 1st November next. The premises include a garden, containing a rood of ground, besides sufficient play-ground for the children. We send herewith a copy of the agreement. We consider the house in every way suited for our object, and no other that we could procure in the town approximated to it; but we regret to say that the agent of Dr. Lamprey's lessor has taken up the idea that the introducing paupers into the house would deteriorate its value, as well as the value of other houses in the neighbourhood, and he has served us with a notice, a copy of which we send herewith. In addition to this, although Dr. Lamprey gave formal possession of the premises to the master on Saturday, at the same time getting permission to leave in till this day (Monday), a man and his wife who had worked for him, the persons who were in by permission, got assistance, and assaulted and forcibly ejected the pauper to whom the master had, on Dr. Lamprey leaving for Dublin, given over possession.

On hearing this, we went to the premises this morning and demanded possession, but were refused; the persons referred to averring that they held possession for Dr. Lamprey, although they were present when he formally handed over the possession to the master of the workhouse. We strongly suspect that they have been instigated to this act by a Mr. Mooney, who is the agent of the lessor, and has expressed himself very strongly on the subject; he is the petty sessions clerk. Under the circumstances, we thought it most prudent not to force an entry, although we conceive we should have been justified in so doing, but we have sent the master and the man assaulted to swear informations, a copy of which we shall forward as soon as they have been sworn, and shall request advice as to how we shall proceed. The delay in getting possession of the house, which will be caused by this unpleasant affair, is unfortunate, but the workhouse is still unfilled, and the master states he can accommodate 50 more than are in it at present. There are only 502 persons in the house this day, which is 29 less than its full ordinary number.

In reference to the erecting of galleries over the dormitories, the medical officer has stated strongly his objections to them, as will be set forth on the minutes.

We are happy to state that we have been informed this day by the Rev. Mr. Butler, that probably the temporary fever sheds for this district will be closed during the current week.

We have appointed this day to investigate the financial state of the Union, but we shall not be in time to include the results in this report.

In reference to relieving the house of the infirm, and widows with two children, &c., we have constantly turned our attention to the subject; but a difficulty has in one or two instances occurred, owing to the infirm paupers having no clothes of their own. We should be glad to know whether, in a case of this kind, the Commissioners would approve of our giving a small sum of money to procure clothing. The number discharged during the last week, including 38 children, amounted to 59.

P.S. Since writing the above, the master has returned, and states that the magistrate has issued a summons against the parties to cause their appearance at sessions next Saturday.

IN respect to your inquiry whether in case of paupers being discharged from the workhouse, who have no clothes of their own, the Commissioners would approve of giving a small sum of money to these persons to procure clothing, I am directed to state that you may legally purchase clothing, and give it as out-door relief, administered to persons relievable under section 1 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act; but the Commissioners would not advise the placing of a sum of money for such a purpose in the hands of a person receiving out-door relief.

The CLERK of the UNION to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 27, 1848.

I AM directed by the Vice-Guardians of the Trim Union to forward, for your information, a copy of a letter which the Guardians have received from Lambert Disney and William Hopkins, Esqrs., J.Ps., relative to the state of the poor in the Athboy electoral division of this Union, and I am to request you will have the goodness to forward your reply upon the subject referred to therein, by return of post.

ENCLOSURE.

Messrs. DISNEY and HOPKINS to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—January 26, 1848.

WE beg to inform you that an arrangement was entered into amongst some of the proprietors and landowners of the Athboy electoral division, by which employment was found for about 200 men. This arrangement will only hold good to the end of this week; in fact, some of the parties have already sent home the men allotted to them.

We therefore beg to represent to you the absolute necessity which exists for giving out-door relief to the able-bodied in the electoral division of Athboy on Monday next, as we cannot answer for the peace of the neighbourhood if the poor are left unemployed, unless out-door relief is given to them.

Captain HUBAND to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 1, 1848.

I RECEIVED from you a copy of a letter dated 26th January, addressed by Messrs. Lambert Disney and Hopkins, magistrates of the county of Meath, to the Vice-Guardians of the Trim Union, and I have now the honour to report to you that I proceeded to Trim on yesterday (Monday) morning. I should have gone on Sunday morning had not the snow rendered the roads impassable, as I expected to find the discharged labourers from Athboy applying for relief at the workhouse on Monday, the day upon which the letter of Messrs. Disney and Hopkins stated out-door relief would become absolutely necessary, in order to save the peace of their neighbourhood. I was therefore anxious that no time should be lost by you in issuing your "sealed order," if it were necessary to do so, in consequence of the workhouse of the Union being filled; and had I found that such was the case, I intended to have instantly returned to Dublin and acquainted you with the fact.

However, on my arrival at Trim, I found that none of the Athboy people had appeared at the workhouse, nor did they do so during the remainder of the day.

I made minute inquiries into the state of the workhouse accommodation, and I ascertained that there were vacancies available for 135 able-bodied persons, calculating without reference to the lunatic wards, and according to your "sealed order."

I have therefore the honour to inform you that, under existing circumstances, you cannot legally issue an order for the relief of able-bodied persons out of the workhouse, under the provisions of the second section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

I gave instructions to the Vice-Guardians that should there be, in the course of the week, sufficient admissions to the workhouse to fill the vacancies at present existing, they should immediately send off a special messenger to Dublin to acquaint you of the fact, so as that no time might be lost in enabling you to issue your sealed order for the relief of the able-bodied, in case it became necessary.

P.S. I beg to mention that the able-bodied labourers, &c., of the town and vicinity of Trim, having heard that I was at the workhouse, went up there in a large body, and demanded that they should get either work or out-door relief. The Vice-Guardians offered to take into the workhouse all those who were willing to go in there, but none of them would accept the offer.

IN reference to your communication of 27th ultimo, and the Commissioners' reply of the 28th ultimo, relating to the application made to you for out-door relief for the able-bodied in Athboy division of Trim Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, for your information, that they have received a report from their Inspector, Captain Huband, on the subject, from which it appears that there was at the time of his visit to Trim, on Monday last, considerable space in the workhouse available for able-bodied applicants, and the Commissioners, therefore, are not prepared to issue an order to authorize out-door relief to such applicants, inasmuch as the necessity contemplated by sec. 2 of 10 Vic., c. 31, has not yet arisen.

CARRICK-ON-SHANNON.

Rev. P. DAWSON, Parish Priest of Carrick-on-Shannon, to the COMMISSIONERS:—
November 14, 1847.

I BEG to call the attention of the Poor Law Commissioners to the state of this Union, as one requiring their most prompt and energetic interference. It is unnecessary to call to their recollection the deaths in this workhouse during last winter, or to remind them of the state of the house up to the present time.

I write not to complain of the past, but to beg that the Commissioners will assist in saving human life, which is perilled to a fearful extent at present. There were more than 200 applicants for admission yesterday, many of them evidently starving; not one could be admitted, from the state of the funds.

The Guardians seem determined to turn over a new leaf and act with energy, but whilst their new collectors are arranging books, &c., &c., numbers will die of starvation.

This town must especially suffer, as the destitute, who come in from remote districts, seeking admission, are unable to return, and crawl through the town begging, or die by the way-sides. I most respectfully, but most earnestly, pray the trifling loan sought may be given to save those actually starving, and I would request an order might be issued to the master to admit those poor from remote divisions to whom I referred; they could be placed on their respective electoral divisions the next Board day.

REPLY to the above:—November 18, 1847.

THE whole of the difficulty now existing in the Union has been produced by negligence and unfitness in the collectors employed by the Board of Guardians, and only recently superseded, notwithstanding that the Guardians have been frequently urged by the Poor Law Inspectors to have proper steps taken for collecting the rates. However, two new collectors have been appointed for the Union, who will, it is hoped, make proper exertions to collect the large arrear of rates, amounting to 3000*l.*, and the Commissioners have recommended notice of their appointment to be given by the Board of Guardians, with a statement of the circumstances of the Union and condition of the poor, requiring prompt payment of the rates due.

The Commissioners cannot recommend a loan to be made, where the distress arises from want of proper exertion, as in this case, and where it may be relieved speedily, if the means available to the Guardians be promptly used.

Rev. P. DAWSON to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 19, 1847.

YOUR communication of yesterday, in reply to mine of the 14th instant, grieved and disappointed, but did not much surprise me. The soul harrowing details of last winter in this Union were passed over. I merely stated, "that human life was not only perilled, but actually sacrificed, to an awful extent, already this season." The Guardians, on whose Board I waited, seemed anxious to do (now at least) all in their power. I merely asked an advance of 300*l.* to meet the immediate demands, whilst the new collectors regulated their books, &c., and an order from the Commissioners, that the actual starving, who crawl to the workhouse, should be admitted at once, and apportioned to their respective divisions on the next Board-day, and not have them left (as now) to die by the waysides. The Commissioners coolly reply, that the present difficulty arises from past misconduct, and that they cannot recommend a loan, where the distress arises from want of exertion. Did the men who directed that answer believe, that even a British House of Commons would sanction such conduct? Are the innocent, whose distress arose not from want of exertion on their part, to perish, because the Guardians were remiss last year, and because the Commissioners, their Inspectors, and their Auditors, neglected to apply a remedy, which they alone could apply? The Temporary

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

Relief Act last year might palliate the management of the Poor Law; but this season, it is the only hope of starving thousands. I therefore again ask what I solicited in my letter of the 14th, and beg to add, that the Commissioners are accountable to God for the lives sacrificed by negligence, at which they connived.

REPLY to the above:—November 22, 1847.

THE Commissioners beg to inform you, that there is no longer a public fund out of which advances can now be made, on the credit of the Union rates, for the support of the destitute poor; and that Carrick-on-Shannon Union should not require such temporary aid more than others surrounding it, to none of which similar advances are made.

Instead of appealing for loans which cannot be advanced, the Guardians will, it is hoped, press for the payment of rates due to the Union; and the Commissioners feel assured, that if the rate-payers be made aware of the true state of the Union and the necessities of the poor, they will no longer permit the latter to suffer, by continuing to withhold the rates for which they are liable.

OBSERVATIONS of Captain WYNNE:—November 25, 1847.

I HAVE seen Mr. Dawson, who now appears determined to assist in the collection of the rates, by his influence, seeing that they are the only source from which can now be expected support for the vast numbers of destitute in the Union, and hitherto excluded from the workhouse for want of funds.

REV. P. DAWSON to Mr. REDINGTON:—December 5, 1847.

THE awful state of this district must be my apology for again trespassing on your precious time. Mr. Peyton (chairman here) went up on Friday, personally to press the condition of this Union. The death of poor Father Tom Maguire brought him back. Captain Wynne has, of course, reported to the Commissioners how matters are; but hundreds are dying of starvation, pending the arrangement. The inmates of the workhouse must be turned out to add to the mass of misery. The Board have no credit, nor yet collectors. I would, therefore, most respectfully beg that the officer in charge, Captain Wynne, be authorized to advance subsistence to the house until the collectors refund it; and also that this Union be included as requiring aid from Government. How it was omitted surprises me. The Commissioners reported it third amongst the five worst in the kingdom. Captain Wynne says it is the very worst. The population, 67,077 (and two-thirds paupers), to feed on rates out of 61,450%, the annual value of the Union, could not subsist on the entire rental.

REPLY to the above:—December 8, 1847.

THE Commissioners have had referred to them your further application to the Under-Secretary for Ireland, to have funds advanced for the support of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union workhouse, and they observe that you have been informed in reply, that there are not any funds at the disposal of the Lord Lieutenant, which can be applied for that purpose.

The Commissioners are anxious to seize every opportunity of impressing on gentlemen of local influence, that it is on local exertions and sources the main reliance must be placed for the future support of such destitute persons as cannot obtain employment, through a proper application and development of the latter.

When the rates due in the Union shall be put in collection, which may be done at once, the immediate difficulty arising from want of funds will be overcome; and the Commissioners cannot regard without surprise the apparent indifference with which persons, owing considerable amounts of rate, still withhold what is due by them, although they must be aware of the distress existing in the Union, and the urgency of the calls for assistance.

The annual value of the rateable property in the Union may, as you observe, be small compared with the amount of pauperism; but much of the latter is doubtless to be ascribed to neglect of the means of affording profitable employment; and there appears no reason to apprehend, that the actual destitution at present in the Union cannot be relieved by the rate-payers.

Rev. P. DAWSON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 11, 1847.

I AM in receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, and see, with regret, that further correspondence is useless. It is admitted that "the pauperized population cannot be fed out of the rateable property, yet no injustice is done in withholding Government aid, as this must have arisen from local neglect."

Since I came here last March, 1000 of my poor parishioners have died of famine, and disease the effect (immediate effect) of famine. The Poor Law Commission, the Relief Commissioners, and the Government were appealed to in vain. The mortality in the poor-house—89 deaths in February, 189 in March, 295 in April, &c., was allowed to increase, until the house literally emptied itself into the grave-yard.

The amount of ration relief under 1 to 13 was represented; the two-acre test (by which persons holding two acres or over were excluded from relief until they gave up land and house) was brought under their notice. It was shown that the poor-house was overfilled with its awful mortality; that many of them were in fever; and that, quitting their houses in these circumstances must produce certain death. Compensation, pretended to be given to persons quitting their places, was shown to have varied from 15s. to 45s., and, in some cases, to have been paid for burying the parties in their own gardens; yet, in no way would the authorities interfere. Local neglect, local responsibility, the Guardians in fault, is Government satisfied to have the lives of one class at the disposal of the other? If so, further interference is utterly useless.

REPLY to the above:—December 14, 1847.

I AM to state that the law has imposed on the Board of Guardians of the Union the obligations of providing for relief of the destitute poor; and if you will state any particular cases in which relief has been improperly withheld from applicants, the Commissioners will cause them to be inquired into.

COPY of Captain WYNNE's Observations.

I HAVE endeavoured to convince Mr. Dawson that the poor-rates were the sole means by which we could expect to afford relief to the destitute poor of the Union; that under the circumstances, instead of at once pronouncing the Union inadequate to the undertaking, it would be much wiser to assist, by his undoubted influence, those who were now determined to test the ability of the Union, which certainly as yet has not been attempted.

There is too much truth in the picture Mr. Dawson has drawn of the past and present condition of the poor of this Union; and the great pressure on him may, in some degree, excuse his unreasonableness and importunity; but he is perfectly aware that at this moment every possible exertion is being made by the Guardians to alleviate the sufferings of the destitute poor of the Union.

December 16, 1847.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain WYNNE:—November 17, 1847.

I AM to forward a copy of a resolution of the Guardians, in which they request a loan of 300l., to provide for the immediate wants of the workhouse; and I am to state, that the Commissioners cannot assist the Guardians in obtaining the loan required, but trust that, by immediately issuing warrants to the new collectors, on the execution of their bonds, means of providing for the support of the destitute poor may be at once obtained from the rate-payers.

The Commissioners recommend that the Guardians should publish a notice through the Union, announcing the appointment of the new collectors, stating the condition of the workhouse, referring to the wants of the destitute poor, now solely dependent on the rate-payers, and therefore enjoining the rate-payers to pay the sums due by them with the promptitude which the occasion and their moral and legal obligations demand.

ENCLOSURE.

EXTRACT from GUARDIANS' MINUTES of the 13th November, 1847.

"Resolved—That the foregoing resolutions be forwarded to the Poor Law Commissioners, with a request for the loan of 300*l.* until the present rate is put in collection, as otherwise the result would be that the house would be closed. The immense amount of the most utter destitution that exists requires absolutely that immediate assistance be given to many not at present in the house: and as the rate is a large one, and so large a portion of it is payable by the proprietors, the funds must be very soon available; but we know not where to obtain even small funds to enable us to receive into the house the very worst cases of destitution until then. We, therefore, earnestly request of the Poor Law Commissioners to take our application for this loan into their most serious consideration."

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 20, 1847.

It would be premature on my part, with my short and limited acquaintance with the Poor Law establishment in this Union, to enter into details as regards the condition in which I find everything connected with it, or the causes which may have led to so unpromising a state of things.

I find the Guardians in debt upwards of 4700*l.*, law proceedings already in progress against them by some of their creditors, the remainder clamorous for payment, large numbers of paupers refused admittance to the workhouse, and the allowance of the children, at present inmates, curtailed beyond what I consider justifiable; the house requiring some repairs before winter sets in, and a sum of 13*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.* to meet their demands and provide for the ensuing week.

Nothing but prompt and energetic steps, will meet the emergency, and the Commissioners may depend on such being taken without delay.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 27, 1847.

IN consequence of my recent arrival in this Union, and of the very imperfect knowledge I possessed of its present condition and future prospects, I did not write a report on this day week; I have, however, since availed myself of every opportunity to acquire information and make such prospective arrangements as I hope, will accelerate the collection of the rates, and lead to the improvement of the establishment, wherever the condition of our funds will enable us to carry out those arrangements.

This week my time has been entirely occupied between the workhouse and in visiting such portions of the Union as I was enabled to reach. In doing which I took occasion to call on such persons as I considered possessed local influence, explaining to them that the rates were now the sole source to which they could look for relief of the multitudes of destitute at present crowding the roads in every direction, and soliciting their countenance and support on behalf of the collectors.

In most cases I received rather encouraging promises.

I also availed myself of these opportunities of visiting the several schools situate in the localities through which I passed, and of obtaining such information as is required by the British Relief Association, to whom I this day forward a report.

With respect to the workhouse, its condition would be highly discreditable to the master and the other officers immediately connected with its management, but that almost all the requisites for putting it in proper order are wanting, and have been frequently applied for to the Guardians in vain.

It is necessary to have three breakfasts, and as many dinners per day in consequence of there being only one-third of tins, &c., required even for the comparatively small number at present in the house.

The urine tubs are out of order and fast going to pieces, and cause great inconvenience.

The rain comes in in various directions, and the pipes and cocks are so much out of order that the boilers overflow of a wet day, producing great inconvenience and disorder.

In the grounds there is a field for the employment fully and advantageously, of such of the paupers as are able to work, but there are no implements.

The master is not, in my opinion, a man of orderly habits, but seems zealous and anxious to improve, and certainly he has not had a fair trial heretofore.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

I this day called the attention of the Guardians to the necessity that exists for immediately supplying implements for the execution of a work, the further neglect of which seriously threatens the health of the house, I allude to the covering of the graves, which were never sufficiently covered, the effects being already perceptible in consequence of the cracking of the ground and holes made by the rats.

The Guardians plead want of funds, and such is the state of their credit that the local printer refuses to print the necessary notices if not paid in cash.

Books are also required, more than half the children being obliged to sit idle for want of them.

I fear the new collectors will meet with considerable difficulty in the discharge of their duties, but they appear determined to act firmly and vigorously, particularly Mr. Lynch, who has advanced this day 100*l.*, which he is to repay himself, and which will enable us to go on for some time.

I understand the ex-collectors are using their influence to get up a systematic opposition, and one of the collectors is giving receipts for arrears from an old receipt-book which he retained in his possession at the time of his dismissal; this man's sureties are not to be found.

We have posted notices that all future receipts will require the initials of the clerk, but if he antedates, we have no remedy but by a comparison with his arrear sheets, which have been found already to be incorrect. I have had the attention of the police directed to this man.

I have forwarded some queries to the secretary, arising out of cases likely to occur in the collection of the rates, and on which it is necessary that the collectors should be thoroughly informed.

I anticipate very great pressure on the house the moment it is opened, which at present it cannot be said to be. In fact, the Poor Laws cannot be said to be in operation in this Union.

There are now wandering about the Union about 1600 persons, most of whom have given up their houses and lands, and are only waiting for admittance to the house, and indeed they appear to be legitimate objects; the numbers are stated to me much higher, but in my calculation there are no able-bodied or any persons on whom the workhouse test would be likely to operate.

We were enabled to admit a large number to day, as will appear from the minutes.

Much inconvenience will arise from want of clothing for the adults.

In conclusion, I must say the chairman appeared willing to adopt every suggestion of mine, nor was there any opposition on the part of the Guardians assembled this day. Several small bills were paid, and credit considerably re-established, and provision made for the wants of the ensuing week.

Tradesmen were also desired to furnish estimates on Saturday next, for the necessary repairs to be done to the house, and implements have been ordered to employ the paupers to a certain extent.

On the whole I feel satisfied with the day's proceedings.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 4, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 39,438, D. /47; and in reference to the recommendation of the Commissioners contained therein respecting the ex-collector of poor-rates in this Union, I have to state that the steps recommended have been already taken, and that the local police have directions to keep a strict watch on his movements.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain WYNNE:—December 4, 1848.

I AM to state, in reference to your letter of the 2nd instant, that, in the very peculiar and critical state of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, the Commissioners will make peculiar exertions to ascertain if it is possible, to induce four individuals from Dublin to undertake the duty of poor-rate collector in that Union, and the Commissioners will communicate with you on the subject definitely on Monday next.

Fourth Series,
p. 115.

MR. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 14, 1847.

SEEING in your communication to Inspecting Officers and Guardians, the anxiety of the Commissioners to have the poor-rates collected with as little delay as possible, in order to save the lives of the destitute, may I take leave to suggest for their consideration, a matter that I think very much tends to retard its collection. For instance, on Mr. Barton's property, in the Tumna electoral division in this Union, where none, if any rates, have been paid, on account of the difficulty of ascertaining the parties really liable to pay, as Mr. Barton or his predecessors made leases of portions of this land to parties all of whom are long since dead; but prior to their death they so sub-divided their land that the valuator valued the greater number of their present holdings under 4*l*., which makes it impossible to collect the rate from the present occupiers; neither is it possible to ascertain who the heirs or assigns of the original leases are, and I hear Mr. Barton refuses to pay, on the grounds that the leases are still in existence. Such a state of things is a bad example in a neighbourhood, as others do not wish to pay while such escape. The remedy I would suggest is, to get such an amendment in the law as would make the parties in the actual receipt of the profit rent, liable in the first instance, leaving it in their power to charge the occupiers should it be their right.

REPLY to the above:—December 4, 1847.

As it appears that Mr. Barton is rated in the rate-books, he is liable for the rate.

I am at the same time, to state that Captain Wynne, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, reports that it appears from inquiries which he has made, that Mr. Barton has never been applied to for payment of his liability, in consequence of the collector having been a tenant of his, and there does not appear any reason for supposing that Mr. Barton will not pay immediately, on being applied to.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 27, 1847.

I BEG herewith to forward to you the following queries, and to request your earliest information thereon:—

I. The owner of the land and the occupier are named in the rate-book, dated 1842. The occupier is valued under 4*l*.; both parties assert the existence of a middle man, but refuse to show leases, or inform the collector who he is. The owner up to the present time, has not received notice of his name being in the rate-book, nor have the rates ever been demanded from him; can the collector proceed against him, he not having appeared, or must he wait for the expiration of four months, and then proceed against the occupier?

II. Must the collector proceed as above, in the event of the middle-man being an absentee or a pauper?

REPLY to the above:—December 3, 1847.

IN the year to which you refer, 1842, the owner or immediate lessor was not liable for the rate, as he has been, since 24th August, 1843, on tenements not exceeding 4*l*. value, held at will, or on lease made after the latter date. In rates signed subsequently to such latter date, the immediate lessor of the holdings referred to, is liable without being expressly named, the law only requiring, in case of doubt, that the title "Immediate Lessor" should be inserted in the column for name. This will enable a collector to recover from the proper party, whenever discovered; but if not known, this can only arise through collusion of the occupier who refuses to disclose the name; and in such a case, it would be proper to enforce the rate from the occupier by the power which the law gives for that object.

If a person be named in the rate as immediate lessor, and shall not have appealed within four months, he may be sued for the sum assessed.

If the immediate lessor be an insolvent person, or reside altogether out of Ireland, there is no other way of recovering the rate but by requiring the occupier to pay it out of the rent, pursuant to the 3rd section of the Act 6 and 7 Vic., c. 92. Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 4, 1847.

I HAVE been employed this week principally in making prospective arrangements, with a view to the establishment of cleanliness, order, and system in the workhouse, and in acquiring such a knowledge of the Union as will be of importance whenever the necessity for out-door relief may arise, and the circumstances of the Union will admit of its administration.

I have also taken advantage of any opportunity that offered, to acquire any information that I considered useful, in carrying out the benevolent intentions of the British Relief Association.

Heretofore, I have been unable to effect improvement to any extent in the workhouse, being met on all occasions with the excuse of not having the proper means furnished for the establishment and maintenance of order, regularity, and system.

I have, however, been enabled to procure a supply of implements from the stores of the Board of Works in this town, on the undertaking of the Guardians that they shall be paid for immediately, on the acquisition of funds.

The Commissioners will perceive, from the minutes of the meeting of the Board of Guardians, that the workhouse is almost wholly dependent on the rates to be paid in, in the course of next week, for its support during that week; and that the Guardians have adopted a resolution to the effect that any rate-payer paying his liability into the hands of the treasurer on or before next Saturday will receive their best thanks, and be allowed the poundage which they have agreed to give the collectors when appointed, viz., 2s. 6d. in the pound.

Letters have been written to the largest rate-payers in the Union, specifying the amount of their respective liabilities. I am of opinion that a sufficient sum will be received under this resolution to meet our present exigencies, though not sufficient to render the acceptance of the office of collector less desirable.

The Commissioners will also perceive that the Board of Guardians have directed advertisements to be inserted in the Dublin papers, with a view to induce some non-resident candidates to offer themselves as collectors for the Union, perfectly coinciding in opinion with me, that even the fullest assurance of protection during the process of collecting the rates, will not induce local collectors to discharge their duties vigorously, as their danger would by no means cease with their duties, but being bound to the country by the ties of property or other circumstances, they would be constantly exposed to those persons who might consider themselves aggrieved.

Not so, however, the stranger. He might leave the country when his business was finished, returning when again required.

I do not believe that a continuance of this system would be at all necessary, as I am of opinion that the opposition of the rate-payers in this Union arises more from bad habits contracted under the late collectors, than from any inveterate antipathy to the principle of poor-rates; and that it is only necessary to demonstrate that the rates must be paid, to insure a future facility of collecting them.

REPLY to the above:—December 6, 1847.

THE Commissioners approve of the course which has been pursued by the Board of Guardians, in inserting advertisements for collectors in the Dublin newspapers.

In the meanwhile the Commissioners are endeavouring to induce individuals who have been employed in the constabulary force, to offer themselves as candidates.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain WYNNE:—December 8, 1847.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have applied to the Inspector-general of the constabulary, for the names and addresses of the late head and other constables who have been superannuated under favourable circumstances, with a view to their being offered the collection of poor-rates in Unions where their services can be made available. The addresses of two, named at foot, have been received to day; and the Commissioners request that you will notify to each your readiness to recommend them for appointment as collectors in the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, stating the poundage to be allowed, and the probable amount of rate which each would be authorised to collect, with the amount of security that would be required, and requesting an immediate communication from them.

Thomas Jennings, Kildysart, County Clare.
Daniel White, Kilmacthomas, County Waterford.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 9, 1847.

I HAVE communicated with Messrs. F. Jennings and D. White, notifying to them my readiness to recommend their appointment to the office of collectors of poor-rates for the Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

I have also stated the amount which each would be authorised to collect under the warrants now prepared, together with the poundage that will be allowed.

I have also stated the security required, to be 500*l.*, and two sureties of 500*l.* each.

A question may be raised by the Guardians as to the solvency of the sureties offered, should they be resident in any distant part of the country and unknown to the Guardians; this and every other circumstance likely to cause delay should be guarded against, as the difficulty in the collection of the rates will increase as the tangible property of the rate-payers decreases. They are at present sending to market as fast as possible, and for this reason I think it would be advisable to appoint four collectors. Mr. Tottenham, who has been acting as district accountant under the Board of Works, has applied as a candidate. I think him well suited for the office, being active, energetic, and apparently determined to discharge the duties; he is a native of Wales, and in no way tied to this country longer than he is engaged in the discharge of his duties.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain WYNNE:—December 10, 1847.

THE Commissioners will be prepared to sanction the appointment of any four persons chosen by the Board of Guardians whom you may recommend to be employed as collectors.

A further list of superannuated constables of police, this day received from Colonel M'Gregor, is enclosed herewith.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 11, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that considerable improvement has taken place in the state of the funds of the Union, as also in the condition of the workhouse, although it is still far from what I could wish it.

With regard to the funds, up to this day rates have been paid in to the amount of 307*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* The Guardians have extended the time specified in the resolution, under which the above sum has been paid, to Saturday, the 18th instant; which, I have no doubt, will bring in a large sum.

The money already paid has enabled the Guardians to satisfy several urgent claims, and has, to a certain extent, re-established their credit, from the total loss of which it has been exceedingly difficult to procure supplies for the house from day to day. I trust, however, all difficulty on this score is now at an end.

With respect to the state of the house, discipline, order, and cleanliness do not progress so rapidly as I conceive they ought.

An ample supply of implements of all sorts has been furnished to the master, and there is ample scope to employ the able-bodied paupers usefully; and I hope, when they shall be fully employed, the master will not find the same difficulty in obtaining order that he now finds.

I have recommended him to organise a staff of assistants of both sexes, from the best conducted of the inmates of the house, in order that he may have more time to keep up his books, which are again in arrear. Heretofore, the relieving officers have thrown unnecessary labour on him, leaving him to obtain as best he might, that information which was necessary to make out his registry of admissions, and which it was their duty to have furnished him with.

I had, this day, the 101st and 102nd sections of the 1st and 2nd Vict., cap. 56, read in presence of the relieving and other officers of the establishment, and directions given to Mr. Peyton to proceed against the late rate collectors under the above section.

I this day called the attention of the Board of Guardians, to the necessity that exists for taking immediate steps to provide additional accommodation, not only for additional paupers of the first and second classes who have been heretofore excluded for want of funds, but also with a view to meet the case of able-bodied paupers presenting themselves, when it will be indispensably necessary to be able to offer them accommodation in the house.

In consequence of the large majority of the present inmates of the house having no habitation of their own, and there not being any building to be hired in any part of the Union where out-door relief could be afforded them, considerable difficulty will be found, in the event I have above mentioned, unless timely measures be adopted. I have strongly recommended the fitting up the sheds which have been already erected, and the erection of others in addition.

I also called the attention of the Guardians to another and a considerable cause of pressure on the workhouse, viz., the desertion of children. I have found many cases, one of which I brought this day before the Board. I myself found the two little children in question, in a ditch some miles from this town, apparently in a dying state. I had them brought to a house and taken care of; and on their recovering sufficiently to tell their story, I found they had been deserted by their parents. We have discovered their retreat, and a magistrate's warrant was issued against them.

I hope to be able to put the law in force rigorously, as I conceive it of the greatest importance to put an end to this practice, which exists to an alarming extent at present in this Union.

I have much pleasure in informing the Commissioners of my perfect satisfaction in respect to the proceedings of the Board of Guardians assembled to day. Any suggestion of mine was readily and promptly adopted; and the utmost anxiety was evinced to meet the wishes of the Commissioners, and to consult the interests of the destitute poor of the Union.

I hope to have the rationing of the children in attendance at the schools in the Union, in progress, to a considerable extent, next week. I have made arrangements to commence on Monday, in this town, and to extend daily to the several electoral divisions of the Union. According as the requisite preparations are reported to have been made by the local committees, or by the individuals who become responsible for the distribution of the food, I expect considerable relief will be afforded by these means.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 16, 1847.

I HAVE made inquiries into the matter referred to me in the letter of the Rev. Francis Kane to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, dated 11th December, 1847.

I cannot find any record of the circumstances stated in that letter, nor have the Board of Guardians any recollection of them.

It is not impossible that the M'Ranns alluded to, were refused admission previously to my arrival in the Union, but certainly not since, as I can state that no case of such a character has remained unredressed.

Previously to my arrival vast numbers were refused admittance, on the plea that "there were no funds at the disposal of the Guardians, to obtain the supplies necessary for the support of the house, nor could any provisions be obtained on their credit." This plea, it would appear, was considered sufficient by all parties, as the paupers retired quietly till such time as the improved state of the funds would admit of their admission.

Without endeavouring to excuse the previous neglect or want of energy on the part of the Guardians, which undoubtedly led to the position in which I found them, "perfectly powerless to meet the urgent and immediate wants of the Union," still the circumstances in which they had placed themselves left them no choice till such time as, by increased exertion and energy they have been able to obtain funds.

In justice to the Board I beg to state, that 597 have, at my suggestion, been admitted, since my arrival although no funds were at the time available for two days' provision for the house, and we were obliged to procure food from day to day in the best way we could, and not without the greatest difficulty.

I am happy to be able to state, that the Guardians appear anxious to put the Poor Law really in operation for the relief of the Union, and it cannot be denied that great and peculiar difficulties will present themselves.

On Saturday next, we shall admit as many as we can find accommodation for in the house, but this number cannot be one-fifth of the legitimate claimants, or perhaps applicants, who will present themselves on that day.

I am getting the sheds at the workhouse prepared, and every other part of the establishment that may be properly converted into temporary accommodation, to meet the difficulty as far as possible.

This Union at present presents, I think, peculiar difficulties; vast numbers of families have been unhoused and their houses destroyed.

You cannot admit them to the workhouse, there is no room; you cannot give them out-door relief, they have no houses, nor does the Union afford any building or buildings that might be purchased or hired for that purpose. Temporary sheds (the only expedient that I can devise) will not exactly suit, for it is most probable these poor persons will remain a permanent burthen on the Union, as it is not likely that they will ever again regain a footing on the land.

I have already urged the Guardians to erect sheds of timber and asphalt, without delay, and I have reason to believe that no time will be lost in doing so.

I have read the Rev. Mr. Dawson's letter to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, and make every allowance for the almost insupportable pressure on him and all those gentlemen similarly circumstanced; but there is reason to complain, that instead of trying the experiment, whether the Union is able to support its poor, (an experiment never yet tried,) and using their undoubted influence towards achieving the payment of the poor-rates, they do literally nothing but urge their own views, and will not render any assistance in carrying out any measures which do not exactly accord with those views.

I have to assure the Commissioners, that I never gave an opinion as to the wealth or poverty of this Union, or its ability or inability to support its poor, as stated in the Rev. Mr. Dawson's letter, but I did give an opinion, which I certainly conceive to be correct, "that I have met a greater amount of urgent and pressing destitution in this Union, than in any part of Ireland I have visited, as in addition to want of food, which exists to as great an extent as in any other part of Ireland, want of shelter from the inclemency of the seasons exists to a far greater extent than in any other part with which I am acquainted.

It appears, from your report, that the number of persons unhoused in the Union, and whose late homes have been destroyed, is considered to be much greater than the workhouse can receive, and even too numerous for the remaining habitations in the Union to receive, if provided with out-door maintenance; but it does not appear how or where these persons are now lodged, or whether they wander about the Union without shelter by day or night.

On the other hand, it appears that the law for relief of the poor has never been put in full force in this Union; and that no trial has yet been made of the extent to which the rateable property of the Union can provide for the support of the destitute poor.

The Commissioners trust that, under such circumstances, the Guardians will use the most strenuous and prompt exertions to put the law fully into force; and that, until the immediate pressure of destitution shall be met, the Board will assemble more frequently than once a-week, which the Commissioners hope can be done, without personal inconvenience, by an arrangement among the chairmen and principal Guardians for attending in succession.

MEMORIAL of the Rev. Mr. HESLIN, P.P., Drumshambo, to the Lord Lieutenant, referred to the Poor Law Commissioners.

To his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant-General and General-Governor of Ireland.

THAT there are more than 300 families in this district without any means of support; no relief from any source, the relief fund being now exhausted.

That there is no employment for the able-bodied, and the New Poor Law of no avail.

That, notwithstanding the privations and sufferings of the poor people, the law is respected and peace maintained.

Memorialist begs your Excellency's attention to the condition of his poor people (who must inevitably perish if not relieved), and order that some of the food in the Government Relief Depôts be afforded them. Memorialist, as in duty bound, will pray.

Drumshambo, 10th December, 1847.

COPY of OBSERVATIONS of Captain WYNNE, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, upon a communication from the Rev. Mr. HESLIN, Parish Priest of Drumshambo, of the 10th December.

THAT destitution prevails to a formidable extent in Mr. Heslin's parish, is too true, and that he has retarded the relief of that destitution, by leading the people to expect other means than those provided by the Poor Law, is equally true.

This expectation, which is certainly not discouraged, has induced the sufferers in many instances, and more particularly in the parish of which Mr. Heslin is Roman Catholic Priest, to abstain from claiming relief under the provisions of the Poor Law, till they have absolutely sunk under the pressure of hunger and other sufferings.

I regret to say, that in this Union there appears not only indifference, as regards the success of the Poor Law, but, in very many instances, considerable anxiety that it should prove a failure. This I attribute to a very general impression, that it alone stands between the people and a system of relief which would certainly be more palatable to all classes.

Mr. Heslin has applied to the Board of Guardians, not for such form of relief as they are authorized to afford under the provisions of the Poor Law, but that they should throw a quantity of the provisions now in the Government stores, into his locality, the distribution of which should be placed under local control and supervision. This is the universal demand.

This week, in Mr. Heslin's parish, 558 children have received rations.

Every exertion is being made to meet the exigencies of the suffering people, with promptitude and efficiency, but from want of coincidence of opinion amongst those persons whose assistance would be valuable in their respective localities, and from the absence of preparations which should have been heretofore made, delays, to a certain extent, must occur, and some time must elapse before a satisfactory working of the system can be established.

Since my arrival in this Union, the Guardians appear willing to adopt my suggestions, and no applicant, either from Mr. Heslin's parish, or from any other part of the Union, has been rejected by them (up to the present time), except where his admission would involve a breach of the law. Heretofore, we have been enabled to keep strictly within the law, and we are making every possible exertion to place ourselves in a position to continue to do so.

December 25, 1847.

EDWARD WYNNE.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 18, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that I have been employed for the past week, principally in perfecting my arrangements for the distribution of rations to the several schools in the Union, and in endeavouring to effect those alterations in the condition and interior economy of the workhouse which I consider of the greatest importance.

With regard to the former subject, I have nearly completed my arrangements, and should have been able to report that the relief was already in extensive operation, but for the delays and difficulties I have experienced in obtaining provisions from the Commissariat stores, having issued an order on Tuesday, and only this evening received the provisions.

I hope to be able next week, to ration 2500 children daily, with rye-meal bread baked in this town, and sent to the various schools in the Union.

It is my intention to confine my issue to bread, till I shall be able to effect such arrangements with the patrons, or other persons interested in the welfare of the schools, as will afford a reasonable prospect of success in the working and issuing of soup.

At present, the benefit would not be at all commensurate with the expense.

With regard to the condition, &c., of the workhouse, I have again to state, that I am by no means satisfied with the progress made towards the establishment of order, cleanliness, and discipline.

The master's books are again in arrear; and although the paupers have been set to work on all fine days during the week, and a good deal of improvement has been thereby effected, viz., cleansing sewers and removing nuisances, still there is a total want of system and discipline.

I fear the master will be found quite unequal to the task he has undertaken.

I felt it my duty to bring the subject before the Board of Guardians this day, and it was finally agreed, that "in consideration of the pressure on the master arising out of the large admissions that have lately taken place to the house, the insufficiency of the preparation for their reception, and the difficulty of establishing order and system for the first time amongst so large a number of persons rather difficult to be managed, he (the master) should be allowed an assistant for three weeks at 20s. per week, to enable him to put things into working order; but that if after that, any irregularities took place or any grounds for complaint were given, he must be considered incompetent, and steps taken to procure a person better suited to the situation."

I shall regret this necessity, as he is a most painstaking person and kind and humane to the inmates of the house.

An increase to the clerk's salary (from 40*l.* to 50*l.*) has been proposed, partly to enable him to procure an assistant occasionally, when extra business is put upon him, as in the present instance, and partly to evince the satisfaction of the Board of Guardians, at the manner in which he has heretofore, discharged his duties.

The Commissioners will perceive from the minutes of the proceedings of this day's meeting, that the election of collectors of Poor-rates did not take place, but that it has been postponed for a fortnight, viz., till Saturday the 1st of January, 1848; and further, that the privilege which the rate-payers have enjoyed for the past fortnight; should be extended to that day.

Not a single candidate came forward.

I had written to four of the persons whose names and addresses had been transmitted to me from your office, notifying my readiness to recommend their appointment, and stating amount of sureties, &c.

From No. 1, Thomas Jennings, I received for reply that he was a sufferer from rheumatic pains, and unfit for duty; from No. 2, William Abbot, that he was unable to procure sureties; from No. 3, that he was quite prepared to come but could not procure a conveyance across the country from Cavan to bring him in time for the election; from No. 4, I have not as yet received any reply.

I am of opinion, that if the proposed plan is to be carried out, viz., that of appointing to the office of poor-rate collectors from the superannuated constabulary list, it would be absolutely necessary to inspect the candidates previously to their presenting themselves at the election, in order to ascertain that they possessed the necessary qualifications, and of all things that they did not labour under rheumatism or any other physical disability, as strength and constitution will be indispensably necessary for the discharge of their duties.

I would therefore propose, that previously to the 1st of January, I should, by letter, call the parties to Dublin on a certain day, and that either some competent person should be directed to inspect them or that I should go up to town for that purpose.

I feel anxious on this subject, as the success or the reverse of this plan will depend on a judicious selection of persons.

The Commissioners will perceive that we have got in a sum of 457*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* this week under the arrangement of allowing collectors' fees to the ratepayers.

This measure works well, and with the exception of the awkwardness of giving a receipt for a sum of which only seven-eighths have been paid, I can see no objection to it, and a great many beneficial results.

It undoubtedly effects a saving of one-eighth to the ratepayer, and thereby places him in a better position to meet the next call upon him.

I think also it will have the effect, to a certain extent, of removing opposition to the principle of payment of poor-rates, (where such exists,) as I should hope the example of the numbers who are coming forward and paying, voluntarily, would not fail to influence those persons who have heretofore opposed poor-rates on principle, more particularly if those who still continue defaulters, be hereafter coerced by a good selection of collectors.

I fear the non-appearance of our candidates will affect our receipts for the next fortnight, as I attribute a good deal of the anxiety on the part of the ratepayers to avail themselves of the temporary arrangement to the prospect of the collection being about to be placed in the hands of individuals perfectly free from any local influences.

To guard against such a result a strong resolution has been entered into by the Board of Guardians.

I have no doubt but that we shall receive a large sum between this and the day of election, such an amount as might probably influence a gentleman in his acceptance of the office, but the poundage on the residue will be more than sufficient remuneration for persons in the rank of superannuated constables, who will no doubt discharge the duties of the office at least as well as the gentlemen.

In conclusion, I beg to state that we were this day enabled to admit 143 paupers without being under the necessity of refusing any applicant, except on the grounds of nonconformity with the requirements of the law.

I hope we shall have some additional accommodation prepared by next Saturday. I am fitting up the sheds and every other spot that may afford any.

REPLY to the above :—December 21, 1847.

THE Commissioners have communicated with Sir Randolph Routh on the subject of the delay in the issue of supplies of provisions from the Commissariat stores.

With reference to the state of the workhouse, and the employment of an assistant to the workhouse master, I am to state that the Commissioners do not object to the temporary employment of an assistant to the master, and they are prepared to remove the master from his office unless he resigns whenever you report that such a step is necessary.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners will sanction the proposed increase of the clerk's salary temporarily, with a view to his procuring the necessary assistance, but they must withhold their sanction to a permanent increase of the clerk's salary until the Union accounts shall have been audited to the 29th September last.

As regards the proposed appointment of collectors of poor-rate, I am to state, that as the only person among those of the candidates from whom you have received replies, and who appears capable of going to the Union, expresses his unwillingness to go, and the others state their inability, the Commissioners consider that it will not be found necessary to summon the parties to Dublin, putting them to expense and inconvenience, but such as may offer to go to Carrick-on-Shannon, should be apprised that their employment will depend on their being found fit from bodily strength and capability to keep the accounts, as well as give security.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

The Commissioners recommend you to have a notice for candidates inserted in the "Weekly Advertiser," which will be published on Friday next.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 22, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st instant, relative to my report of the 16th instant, on the Rev. Mr. Kane's letter to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, on the subject of the distress at present existing in this Union.

As some of the statements in my report alluded to in your letter, appear to require further explanation, I have this day taken such steps as enable me to give the following with confidence.

Upon a careful investigation made this day in the workhouse, in person, I find that of 916 individuals in the house at present, 49 heads of families, or 207 individuals still retain houses, having locked them up on entering the workhouse; the remaining 709 are houseless; 337 of the latter class have already been rejected on the grounds of their applications not being in conformity with the requirements of the law: these will no doubt present themselves on legal applications. Add to this number at least 1200, the number still wandering about the Union, which is under the calculation generally made, and you have 2246 without homes or houses where they could receive out-door maintenance.

With respect to the remaining habitations in the Union being insufficient to receive these poor persons, I would not be understood as having intended to convey this meaning; but I feel perfectly assured that the proprietors of those habitations, though they may give these wanderers a night's shelter from the storm in their stables or out-houses, will never allow them to become permanent lodgers, or in any other way to gain a footing on their premises; indeed, even if so disposed, they would not be permitted to do so.

With regard to the mode in which these poor persons are now lodged, I can state, from my own knowledge, that a large majority of them are entirely dependent on the resources above mentioned, which often fail them. Their cries may be heard all night in the streets of this town; and since my arrival here I have constantly been obliged to procure shelter in the stables in the neighbourhood for persons whom I have found perishing in the streets at 12 o'clock at night. The next day they have been received provisionally into the workhouse.

A considerable number of temporary huts may be seen erected against the backs of ditches on the road-side; and even these, I find, are rarely inhabited two consecutive weeks by the same family.

The Guardians do not appear at all inclined to oppose any plan that I may suggest to them to meet the difficulties; but most inconvenient delays take place in the execution of all their orders, partly from the scarcity of tradesmen, and partly from the unwillingness of the few that are here to work for employers who have not hitherto paid their debts.

It is my intention to bring before the Guardians, at our meeting to-morrow, the necessity that exists for immediately providing increased accommodation for the paupers already in the house, to enable us to apply the workhouse test to future applicants; and to direct their attention to the only building within the Union which I think can be made available for that purpose, viz., the Jamestown Mill, which, with a small outlay, would accommodate 500. It is at present the property of the Shannon Commissioners, and used partly as an implement store. The greater part is at present unoccupied. It is at such a distance as would render the exercise of control and supervision not difficult.

In conclusion, I beg to state that I have already forwarded the letter of the Rev. Mr. Kane to your office.

ADVERTING to your letter of the 22nd instant, in which you state that the cries of destitute persons may be heard in the streets of Carrick-on-Shannon all night, and that since your arrival at Carrick-on-Shannon you have constantly been obliged to provide shelter in the stables in the neighbourhood for persons whom you have found perishing in the streets, the Commissioners desire to observe that the state of things disclosed in your report leads the Commissioners towards the conclusion that the time has now arrived when they should issue an order authorising out-door relief to the able-bodied, under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act; and they request you to report to them whether, in your opinion, there are any decided reasons why such order should not be issued forthwith.

The Commissioners request you to be so good as to give them an answer on this point by return of post; and with reference to the want of lodging for some of the destitute in the Union, the Commissioners request you to report whether you have any suggestion to make to the Commissioners on this subject.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that I have been employed for the last week principally in putting the rationing of the schools into operation, in ascertaining the amount of accommodation in the Union available for the reception of a portion of the present inmates of the workhouse, should it become necessary to remove them, in order to be in a position to apply the workhouse test to all future applicants for relief, and in endeavouring to establish order, cleanliness, and discipline in the house.

I am enabled to report considerable progress in the rationing of the schools, having issued 12,600 rations during the week to 38 schools.

The bread is much liked by the poor children; but it would appear from the majority of the communications which I have received in reply to my circulars, that uncooked food would be much more acceptable.

The Commissioners will perceive by the circulars which I enclose, that I am by no means unreasonable in my requirements; however, if I receive the co-operation I ask for, I expect to be able to carry out the rationing on any scale the Association may direct.

I am at present keeping within the numbers which may be accommodated in the school-rooms, not without considerable difficulty and much dissatisfaction at the limitation.

I shall forward to the Count de Strzelecki a report of the week's expenses, &c. &c.

As regards the accommodation before referred to, I cannot as yet find any so suitable as the Jamestown mills, which I have mentioned before.

The Guardians have made application to the Shannon Commissioners, with a view to ascertain if they would let them for a limited period, as also what would be the terms required.

I feel most anxious about the success of this application, as I have no doubt nothing but the power of applying the workhouse test will enable us to place any limits to the amount of relief which we shall be immediately called on to administer. Under any circumstances, out-door relief will become necessary immediately, and I have called a special meeting of the Guardians to take the necessary preliminary steps.

As regards the workhouse, I have again to state that, from the difficulty of having arrangements carried out by the present staff of officers, I was under the necessity of bringing the matter before the Board of Guardians on yesterday, and am of opinion that it will be necessary to appoint other persons to several offices, as such are the habits contracted by those who at present hold them, that I fear it will be exceedingly difficult to make them satisfactory officers.

The master's books are again in arrear, and there are other grounds of complaint, so that I think at the expiration of the period given him by the Guardians to have his books and other parts of his establishment in order, it will be found necessary to procure another.

It would be most desirable in such an event (if possible) to procure the services of a person who served the office before, as experience as well as energy will be required to bring the establishment into a proper state of discipline and order.

The Guardians have been enabled to pay some debts this week, and thereby to revive their credit, and quiet some of the most clamorous of their creditors.

Carriick-on-Shan-
non Union.

Considerable sums have been paid in this week by the rate-payers, but I fear the amount has been effected by the supposed difficulty of procuring collectors.

I have received replies from others of the constabulary to whom I had applied; as I anticipated, their principal difficulty appears to be that of obtaining the necessary sureties.

There is another obstacle which will no doubt militate against the acceptance of the office of collector of poor rates in this Union, viz., the necessity for collecting the entire rate within a given time, before the collector can become entitled to any part of his emoluments.

Now the fact is, in this Union, of the present liabilities of the rate-payers there is a sum of at least 3,500*l.*, which I do not think can be collected within the time specified, or during the period that the present occupants shall continue to hold the tenements rated; there being nothing tangible on their holdings at present, and it being only a question of time when they will be obliged to give them up; before which event I do not think it possible to collect the rates so circumstanced.

We have admitted a few applicants from time to time this week; the number at present in the house is 916.

REPLY to the above:—December 28, 1847.

I AM to state that the Commissioners recommend you to have advertisements for candidates published, stating the amount of rate uncollected, the poundage to be allowed, and the security to be given by each collector.

I am at the same time to state that, such arrears of rate as may remain due by insolvent occupiers giving up their holdings, will be transferred in the succeeding rate, as arrears to be paid by the new occupiers, who will be entitled to deduct the amount from the rent.

The Commissioners have communicated with the Shannon Commissioners, as regards the Jamestown mills, which you recommend should be procured for an auxiliary workhouse.

I HAVE to state, in reference to your letter received this day, that I can see no reason why an order for out-door relief should not be issued forthwith; on the contrary I have endeavoured (I regret to say) in vain to bring the Guardians together for the purpose of applying for the sanction of the Commissioners to such a measure, and taking such steps as should appear necessary to carry it out with advantage to the destitute poor and the Union.

It is my intention on the next day of meeting, Saturday next, to require the appointment of a Committee of Guardians, who will attend daily in the Board-room for the purpose of putting into execution the arrangements entered into at the ordinary meetings, promptly and effectually, and lending their sanction to such measures as may become necessary to meet the various and urgent cases which arise daily in the present condition of our affairs.

I consider such an arrangement indispensable, as without their sanction I cannot take those steps which can alone enable us to save the people and the Union.

I find that in addition to the Jamestown mills, we may procure accommodation for 200 at Jamestown and 200 at Drumshambo, which I should hope would be quite as much as we should require; but pending the arrangements for obtaining these, which will be ultimately necessary, I should strongly recommend the distribution of bread rations at the workhouse and at Drumshambo, and perhaps Elphin, to all legitimate applicants for admission to the workhouse.

This arrangement would give us time to take such steps as would enable us to guard, in a great measure, against the evils of out-door relief; and I do not think abuses, to any great extent, would take place during the period it would be necessary to continue it.

A sufficient quantity of bread could easily be baked in this town for the entire Union, as I have now two ovens at my disposal, in addition to the two employed in baking for the school.

I have endeavoured to comply with the directions of the Commissioners in replying by return of post, but not as I should have wished, as I have been particularly busy to-day at the workhouse, in consequence of the master and several of the other officers being confined to their beds with various ailments.

REPLY to the above:—December 30, 1847.

AN order will be issued to-morrow, in the form enclosed herewith, authorizing the Board of Guardians to afford out-door relief to the able-bodied.

I am at the same time to request with reference to your former reports, that you will be so good as to inform the Commissioners of the precise circumstances under which destitute persons at night, had no house or shelter in the Union.

For example, the Commissioners are anxious to know whether the parties alluded to in your previous reports, were ejected tenants, and if so, whether their cabins were pulled down, and how you would now propose to provide for them.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. FLANAGAN, Inspector, and Captain WYNNE:—
December 31, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward herewith a copy of an order which they have this day issued, authorizing the Guardians of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, to afford out-door relief to the able-bodied.

I am at the same time, to enclose a copy of a letter which has been addressed to the Guardians relative to the employment of the able-bodied persons who are to receive relief, and the Commissioners request that you will have the goodness to afford the Guardians all the advice and assistance in your power, to enable them to carry out the order with the most effect and advantage.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 44413, requesting the precise circumstances under which the destitute persons referred to in my report were found to be, and in reply I beg to state, that in all cases they were families or remnants of families who had lost their cabins, some by ejectments, some by agreements with their landlords for a sum of money, or other consideration; in all cases, as far as I could obtain information, the cabins have been pulled down. In two instances, the parties had, upon application, been discharged from the workhouse some time previously. For instance, a case which came under my notice this morning: I was informed by my servant, that a woman named Catherine Little, who, with three children, had remained all night by the gaol wall, not being able to obtain shelter in the town. I immediately proceeded to the spot, and on investigation found the statement correct.

I need scarcely add that the group presented a spectacle truly deplorable and heartrending, and from the circumstances of the case, it is almost miraculous that they still live. This woman and children were discharged from the workhouse on the 3rd instant, on their own application. I have sent them back to the house this day; many similar cases have occurred, and I fear the numbers will increase, as this day 30 persons were, upon their application, discharged from the house, who, I am informed, have neither cabin to go to, nor any resource whatever to look to for subsistence but begging (now a most precarious one).

I must here add, that I fear the extent of destitution in this Union has never been fairly represented, it is perfectly frightful; accustomed as I am to scenes of misery in the western counties, I have never met with so extensive and almost hopeless destitution.

With regard to the mode in which I should propose to provide for the homeless of the Union, the case presents great difficulties. I should, however, at once place those of the present inmates of the house who have cabins on out-door relief in those cabins. I should also call upon them, where their family is small, to take another family, also small, as lodgers; this would provide for, I should hope, from 300 to 400.

X

By this means we should retain the power of applying the workhouse test to cases of able-bodied applicants, and at the same time make room for some of the homeless. For the remainder of this class, I should with all possible despatch provide bedding, &c., at Jamestown mills, or the other places already mentioned by me under the superintendence of a temporary master and staff. I should supply their establishments with bread and milk. Bread to be baked in this town till such time as a bakery could be erected at the workhouse.

I am aware that considerable difficulties will attend the details of this plan, but I cannot devise any other more suited to the present emergency.

In the meantime I would recommend all undoubted cases of destitution, properly brought forward by the relieving officers, to be placed on the out-door relief list, to receive bread rations forwarded from this town, to the most convenient place in each electoral division once a week, reserving the workhouse test for such cases as may not appear urgent.

REPLY to the above:—January 4, 1848.

IN reference to that part of your report in which you state that 30 persons were on the 3rd ultimo, discharged on their own application from the workhouse, who had neither cabin, you were informed, to go to, nor any resource whatever for subsistence except begging, the Commissioners request you to be so good as to state whether you can explain why the parties referred to left the workhouse.

With regard to your suggestions for remedying the want of proper shelter for the destitute in the Union, the Commissioners desire to express their concurrence in your views, and they request you to bring them under the notice of the Board of Guardians at their next meeting.

At the same time the Commissioners have to observe that they would readily sanction the erection of temporary sheds or buildings as a shelter for the houseless at this inclement season of the year, if the measures which you recommend should not be found adequate to the necessities of the case.

I THIS day attended the meeting of the Board of Guardians, when much business was transacted. Upon the order of the Commissioners being read for out-door relief to the able-bodied, together with the printed letter containing directions to the Guardians for carrying out the same, the Board appeared unanimously resolved on forthwith tendering their resignations, and calling on the Commissioners to appoint paid Guardians, alleging as their reasons their utter inability to cope with the difficulties which presented themselves, in consequence of the vast extent of destitution prevailing in the Union, the inadequacy of the pecuniary means at their disposal, and the insufficiency of that portion of their time which they could spare from their ordinary occupations to apply those means with advantage, to the destitute poor and to the Union.

Much discussion took place; and upon my laying before them the details of the course which I should recommend for their adoption, and which in my opinion only requires energy, zeal, and activity in the execution, to insure its success, the Board unanimously resolved to adjourn their meeting to Monday the 3rd instant, and from day to day afterwards, whilst the necessity for daily meetings continues, in order to avoid delays which might otherwise arise in carrying out such measures as may become necessary from time to time, and which require the sanction of the Guardians.

I am anxious to work on with the present Board rather than be driven to the alternative of paid Guardians, although aware that the latter would considerably lighten my labours and responsibility; but so long as the former continue to adopt all my suggestions, and do not oppose any proposition I make, I do not conceive I should allow those considerations to have any weight.

I regret to say that no candidate for the office of poor-rate collector appeared, notwithstanding that I had previously taken those steps recommended by the Commissioners in their letter of 28th ultimo.

It was necessary that I should write consecutively, to avoid undertaking to recommend a greater number of candidates than could be appointed.

I do not think we can expect to procure collectors from this source, viz., the superannuated constabulary, as the obtaining the necessary sureties, appears to be an insuperable obstacle.

You will perceive in the minutes of this day's proceedings, that a resolution has been passed, postponing the election to Saturday the 8th instant, and requesting my assistance in procuring fit and proper candidates.

I think it of the greatest importance that we should be able to procure suitable persons to bring forward on that day, as further delay must tend to increase the difficulty of enforcing the payment of the rates by diminishing the tangible property of the Union.

I may also add, that, as I anticipated, the anxiety of the ratepayers to avail themselves of their opportunity of saving 2s. 6d. in the pound, has considerably abated, in consequence of the non-appearance of the strangers with whom they were threatened for now three election days. This will appear from the amount paid to the treasurer for the last fortnight, which, although considerable, would have been much larger but for an opinion that prevails generally, that it will be difficult to induce strangers to come into the country.

Seeing then the necessity for despatch, as also that time will not admit an advertisement in the Weekly Advertiser, and feeling that a full explanation of the duties of the office of collector should be made to the candidates, together with many other necessary matters, previous to their offering themselves for election, I would propose that two gentlemen should be selected in Dublin, where the necessary explanation may be given them by such persons as the Commissioners may appoint; or should the Commissioners approve of my going to Dublin for that purpose, I have no doubt but that I should find little difficulty in procuring two suitable persons. I have already received a communication from a Mr. M'Cullagh, whose sureties are unexceptionable, but of his other qualifications I have no means of judging.

I have again to direct the attention of the Commissioners to the state of the workhouse, with the view of having Mr. Wilkinson's attention directed to it. It is utterly impossible that any master and staff can keep it clean, comfortable, and orderly, while it remains in its present state of repair. The windows and walls generally leak, so as to flood the rooms in wet weather. The pump is so unfortunately situated as to receive the water coming from the portion of the building situated above it, which fills the shaft, and, as the subsoil is porous, floods the portion of the building which lies below the level of the top of the shaft, constantly extinguishing the fire under the boilers, and producing inconveniences of various descriptions—I have no doubt affecting the health and comfort of the inmates of the house.

Great difficulty has been experienced in obtaining a supply of clothes, which are badly wanted since the late large admissions to the house. The Guardians' orders have been refused by Dublin houses, notwithstanding that cash payment was promised.

One of the Guardians goes to Dublin on Monday, for the purpose of purchasing the articles required, for which purpose he has been furnished with a cheque for 200l.

The Commissioners will perceive that considerable sums have been paid this week, and credit proportionally revived. Our funds are still in a tolerable safe state.

Before the termination of the meeting we entered all legitimate claimants for admission to the house on the out-door relief list, and provided them forthwith with bread rations for the week. The majority of them were houseless, but we were enabled to obtain shelter for them till next Saturday, when I hope to have made some permanent arrangement for that purpose. A daily ration 20 ozs. of bread, rye meal and Indian meal in equal quantities, will cost 1½d.

Carriek-on-Shannon Union.

per day, or 8½d. per week. We expect a severe pressure upon us this week, as large numbers have held back heretofore in expectation of out-door relief. We shall, however, endeavour to apply the workhouse test to all applicants, but invariably to the able-bodied.

REPLY to the above :—January 4, 1848.

WITH reference to the difficulty experienced by the Board of Guardians in procuring the services of competent persons for the collection of the poor-rate, and the probability of your obtaining the services of two collectors in case you should proceed to Dublin, I am to state that, if by coming to Dublin you can procure the services of two collectors, the Commissioners do not object to this course, but they trust that you will give notice to the candidates, so as to ensure your immediately seeing them, and returning to the Union.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 5, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 4th instant, and in reply to that part which requests that I may state the reasons why 30 persons applied for their discharge, as stated by me in a former report, I have to state, that the reasons assigned by the persons alluded to when I remonstrated with them on the imprudence and impropriety of the step they were about to take, was, "that they wished to get their children on the list which was then being "rationed at the schools."

I of course informed them that I should disappoint their expectations, but could not dissuade them from leaving the house.

Many others have applied for their discharge this day, and will go, in despite of all can be said to them.

I made use of a strong argument, and a fearful one—I brought them to see a woman and three children, who had left the workhouse the day before stating that she had a house, and that she would go immediately to it, instead of which the unhappy wretch got intoxicated, lay down in an exposed place, and in a few hours after (half past eight) the four were lifeless corpses. The party consisted of two women and five children; two of the children have recovered with much difficulty, the surviving woman was insensible from the quantity she had drank, but in no other respects the worse.

I brought the applicants for discharge to view the remains of these unhappy creatures, as the strongest argument against their following the same course, but all in vain, they still persisted in leaving. I have given directions to have watchmen placed on the house, till the inmates retire and the doors are locked; but if they still continue wickedly bent on their own destruction, I cannot prevent them.

Since out-door relief has been mentioned, several who were prevented from leaving, not being able to show that they possessed houses, have scaled the walls and absconded with the Union clothes.

Every possible exertion is being made to meet the frightful extent of destitution, but such sad occurrences as I have now mentioned, which will take place in despite of any exertions, are most disheartening.

I have to add, that the unfortunate party above alluded to, received their breakfast and a week's rations on leaving the workhouse, with intimation that they should receive their future rations in the electoral division to which they belonged.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 9, 1848.

As agreed upon by the resolution of this day week, the Board of Guardians met upon Monday last, and from day to day afterwards, transacting such business and sanctioning such measures as it became necessary to adopt, from time to time.

The first subject to which their attention was drawn was, the establishing out-door relief on such a footing as we conceived best calculated to guard against abuses.

We accordingly placed such of the inmates of the house as had cabins, or could procure lodgings in their respective electoral divisions, on the out-door relief lists, allowing them to leave the house, providing them with a week's rations, and directing them to proceed forthwith to their respective electoral divisions, where arrangements would be made for their future rationing, and apprizing them that in no other electoral division could they receive relief.

We directed the several relieving officers to furnish to the Board of Guardians two distinct lists, the one for out-door relief containing the names of all applicants who not being able-bodied had cabins, or were able to obtain lodging, and were in a state of undoubted destitution; the other containing the names of all able-bodied applicants, and such other paupers as were unable to procure shelter, and that those persons on the latter list should in all cases where practicable, present themselves at the workhouse for admission.

In consequence of inattention to these directions on the part of the relieving officers, large crowds attended this day at the workhouse, to whom sufficient explanation had not been made by the relieving officer, and who, being able-bodied, had been placed on the out-door relief list by the carelessness of that officer. We applied the workhouse test, and of the multitude in attendance only 48 entered the house. I need not say that this misconduct on the part of the relieving officers caused considerable embarrassment to the Guardians, and great inconvenience to the applicants, who in many cases had come a distance.

The misconduct of one of these officers, Mr. M'Donald, was especially conspicuous; and as I had strong grounds for finding fault with his conduct at every meeting of the Board since my arrival in the Union, I called for his instantaneous dismissal. None of the Guardians would move a resolution to this effect, although all concurred in the necessity for the step. I stated that I would relieve them from their embarrassment by recommending to the Commissioners the dismissal of this officer, which I hereby do, as well as any others who might in future follow the same course. I may add that these officers were originally badly chosen, and have fallen into very bad habits.

The out-door relief is going on satisfactorily; it is confined to baked bread, rye and Indian meal in equal quantities, sent to the several electoral divisions on fixed days.

As the number of recipients increase we shall require the assistance of the police, and perhaps the use of the police barrack, as in many localities no sufficiently secured house is to be found. To obtain this an order from Government will be necessary.

We have fixed upon the Elphin stores as an auxiliary workhouse, and only await the proprietor's final arrangement of terms to proceed with the necessary preparations: it is more secure from theft than the workhouse, being entirely surrounded by a high wall.

You will perceive that the election of poor-rate collectors has been again adjourned to Saturday next. Two candidates, Mr. M'Cullagh and Mr. Butler, accompanied me from Dublin; but in consequence of circumstances which came to his knowledge on his arrival, the latter gentleman declined to offer himself. Mr. M'Cullagh remains till next Saturday, when we will be able to judge of his competency to perform the duties required of him. I have written to the county of Clare to two young gentlemen, of whose competency I had ample opportunity of judging, whilst in charge of that county last winter. They served as assistant engineers, and under the trying circumstances of that county at that period displayed considerable zeal, ability, and intrepidity. They are just the men we want, and I have done everything in my power to induce them to come. Their names, Petty and Fitzgerald, C.E.

I dictate this from my bed, where I am laid up with a severe attack of influenza.

REPLY to the above:—January 11, 1848.

I AM to forward for your information a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have addressed to the Board of Guardians, in transmitting a copy of an order which has been issued dismissing Mr. W. M'Donald from the office of relieving officer in the Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

I am at the same time, to draw your attention to the provisions of the 101st and 102nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, with regard to the penalties which may be enforced against Union officers disobeying orders of the Board of Guardians or Commissioners.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—January 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have had under their consideration a report which they have received from the Inspector of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, in which he represents the inconvenience caused by the inattention of the relieving officers to the instructions of the Board of Guardians.

It appears from this report that the conduct of Mr. William M'Donald has been particularly reprehensible, and the Commissioners have deemed it right to mark their sense of it by issuing an order under seal for his dismissal.

The Commissioners trust that the Board of Guardians of Carrick-on-Shannon Union will not fail in the due discharge of their functions to act with promptness and decision in the removal of any inefficient or insubordinate officers of the Union, as it is manifest that the affairs of the Union cannot be effectually administered unless the Guardians enforce obedience to the orders which they give to the Union officers, or cause more efficient officers to be appointed in their room.

I HAVE in the first instance to state that, notwithstanding the resolution of the Board of Guardians, adopted at their meeting of the 1st instant, to the effect that they would meet daily so long as the necessity for so doing should continue, no meeting took place for the last week till Saturday, the ordinary day of meeting.

I may observe that these meetings were peculiarly necessary this week, as I have been confined to bed with severe illness, and, therefore, unable to attend in person, to the carrying out of those measures for out-door relief, on the prompt execution of which the lives of hundreds depend. Notices had been posted throughout the Union, directing those poor persons whose names had been placed on the out-door relief lists, to attend on Monday last at certain places specified in said notices, in each relieving officer's district, where their weekly rations would be issued to them by the respective relieving officers.

Arrangements had also been made for sending out bread to the several appointed places, early on Monday morning. Upon sending on Monday at 11 A.M., to inquire if these arrangements had been carried out, I was informed that nothing had been done up to that hour, nor was anything likely to be done; no Guardians in attendance—the master ill in bed; so that, in fact, if I had been a shade worse than I was, the poor people would have remained all day in expectation of relief, and been disappointed after perhaps a long journey, when serious consequences might have occurred. With considerable difficulty, and through the exertions of persons unconnected with the administration of the Poor Laws, I succeeded in preventing any more serious consequences than a few hours' delay.

I mention these circumstances to show that, in the existing state of affairs, the executive duties are almost entirely thrown on me; and if not performed by me, or under my superintendence, are not performed at all.

I may be permitted to assure the Commissioners, that I do not in the least object to any additional labour thrown upon me; on the contrary, I conceive it to be my duty, as it is my anxious wish, to promote, by every exertion I am capable of, as well as by any means within my reach, the effectual carrying out of the Poor Law; but I am of opinion that the performance of duties, on the prompt and punctual discharge of which the lives of multitudes hang, should not be allowed to depend solely on the uncertain exertions of one individual; more especially under circumstances of exposure to infection, which greatly increase the chances of incapacity from illness.

I never expected active assistance and zealous co-operation from the Guardians; but finding them disposed to adopt every suggestion offered by me, as also to sanction all measures which I considered expedient, I was disposed to undertake many of the duties, and incur much of the responsibility, which properly should belong exclusively to them.

I need scarcely say that, in the present state of this Union, the exertions now made by the Guardians will not be found at all adequate to meet the difficulties of the case. Under ordinary circumstances, I should feel satisfied with the amount of assistance I receive; but in the extraordinary circumstances of this Union, nothing short of the constant and unremitting exertions of intelligent and efficient men, will be found equal to the task of righting the financial affairs of this Union, remodelling the staff of the workhouse, eradicating a system which has obtained for years, and which continues to impair the efficiency of the entire machinery; in fine, of uprooting the innumerable abuses which at present exist, and which are the consequence of past neglect and mismanagement.

I have to thank the Commissioners for their prompt attention to my recommendation, for the dismissal of Mr. M'Donald, relieving officer, a step which has produced the most beneficial results. The other relieving officers brought forward their books in a satisfactory state, much more so than I conceived they were capable of doing.

We have elected, in the room of Mr. M'Donald, a person who appears to me a very superior man; the only objection I could find to his appointment was that he held land. I think it desirable that an office of such responsibility and labour, should have the exclusive time and thoughts of the person discharging its duties. I may remark that generally, the persons filling these situations in this Union are not such as I should choose, but the country scarcely affords better. In a county like Leitrim, where the degrees of poverty and destitution are less defined than in any other part of Ireland I am acquainted with, and where the inhabitants have, from the experience of the last 15 months, acquired a proficiency in the art of deception and fraud that is quite surprising, the duties of relieving officers require a person of not only tolerably good education, but of natural shrewdness and sagacity as well as experience. These qualifications, however, have rarely, if ever, been taken into consideration in electing to the office.

We had to-day, a heavy pressure for both out-door and in-door relief. We placed about 625 on the out-door list, who were fit objects for such; 220, who are able-bodied, were rationed till Tuesday, when they were directed to return and enter the house. We intend drafting the boys to a building in the town on Monday, and thereby making room for the 220 able-bodied, in case they wish to enter the house, which I have no doubt they will for the most part decline.

We have been unable to procure the use of the Elphin stores, in consequence of there being no person in a position to negotiate with the Guardians as to the terms. They were the property of the late Rev. Mr. Lloyd.

There are two buildings in this town, which, as I fear we can get no better, we must at once take and fit up.

I think I have reason to be satisfied, on the whole, with the way in which the affairs of the Union are progressing. A large amount of relief is being administered, and I may add with advantage; and we have been able in all cases to act strictly according to law. When a case occurred to which the law did not apply with advantage, I applied the fund placed at my disposal by the British Relief Association. In fact, I believe all parties are now satisfied that every possible exertion is being made for the relief of the destitute poor; and I see no reason to doubt that, after a short time, when we shall have effected those alterations which I have before alluded to, the Poor Law will work in this Union not only efficiently but satisfactorily, which will appear from the current expenses of the Union at present, and which may be still considerably reduced by an improved system of management.

I find serious inconvenience from the unwillingness of the local magistrates to put the Vagrant Act in force, and shall take the earliest occasion to communicate with the Commissioners on this subject.

The election of poor-rate collectors has been again postponed till Saturday next. I expect one of the county Clare gentlemen, to whom I wrote on the subject; the other is employed.

We received 163*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* this week, and paid demands to the amount of 195*l.*, and still retain a balance of 298*l.*, together with 210*l.* in my hands, for payment of Mr. Cosgrave's bill for clothing, which has not yet arrived.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union,

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 19, 1848.

I AM to state for your information, that the Commissioners have given directions for preparing an Order for the dissolution of the Carrick-on-Shannon Board of Guardians.

The Commissioners deem it right to make you acquainted with their intentions, but they do not wish you to communicate on the subject with any person in Carrick-on-Shannon Union until the order actually arrives.

The Commissioners propose to appoint the Vice-Guardians of Mohill Union to administer the affairs of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union also.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 19, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state for the information of the Commissioners, that I can no longer hope to get on with the present Board of Guardians, who appear to have completely deserted their post, and at a time when increased exertions and energy are required to meet the increasing difficulties consequent on the commencement and daily extension of out-door relief, and the execution of movements which become necessary almost daily, to enable us to test the applicants.

The Commissioners are aware that the Board of Guardians, on the 1st instant, passed a resolution to meet daily, while the necessity for so doing continued, in pursuance of which they did meet for the first week; during last week they did not meet except on the usual day, Saturday, when it was found impossible to get through one half the business, consequently it was agreed to meet on Monday and the following days, to transact business of the greatest importance; in addition to which they were bound to meet on Monday by the notice which I herewith enclose, and in consequence of which large numbers of rate-payers assembled at the workhouse. No meeting took place.

Tuesday was appointed to enter upon a scrutiny of the applicants for admission, which was postponed to that day, as the relieving officers would be engaged in administering out-door relief on Monday in their respective localities. These officers were all brought in on Tuesday, but no Guardians appeared. On this day also much business of a most urgent nature was to be transacted, which required the presence of the Board of Guardians, but none attended.

I would observe that I have been obliged to take upon myself much responsibility and many arduous duties that belong entirely to the Guardians, and which I do not conceive myself empowered by law to perform without at least the sanction of the Guardians; but I have taken this course to save the lives of the starving multitude, and under the promise of that assistance which I now feel assured I shall not receive from the present Board.

Under these circumstances I feel it my duty at once to recommend most strongly to the Commissioners the exercise of their powers under the 18th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act.

It is my wish to work with ordinary means as long as possible, and to have recourse to extraordinary means only when I can no longer indulge a hope of success with the ordinary.

Up to the present, with the assistance of the clerk to the Guardians, we have managed to administer relief on a large scale, without any other evil consequences, but some necessary and unavoidable delays in making up his books and accounts. But I clearly foresee that in the struggle to carry out the Poor Laws, and to give out-door relief to the extent required by the necessities of the Union, without the assistance of an efficient and zealous Board of Guardians, I shall find myself in a dilemma, and the affairs of the Union in a state of the most inextricable confusion.

I need scarcely remind the Commissioners, that the increased amount of relief, since my arrival here, has greatly increased the duties and difficulties of the several officers of the Poor Law establishment in this Union, and more especially for the last fortnight, during which time the paupers have been in a constant state of transition from in-door to out-door relief; the consequence is, that the staff, never efficient, is overpowered.

I must mention the clerk to the Guardians as an exception; he is most efficient and most zealous, but completely overworked.

I write in haste to save the post, as I consider despatch necessary.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

ENCLOSURE.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

THE Board of Guardians of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union hereby give notice to all rate-payers of this Union who have paid their rates to the former collectors, and who appear to have been still returned in arrear for said rates, that a meeting of a Committee of the Board will be convened on Monday, the 17th January, 1848, with a view of adopting ulterior measures for relieving all rate-payers so circumstanced, and proceeding against the defaulting collectors.

Persons coming forward will require to produce the receipts passed by the late collectors, otherwise the Committee will not entertain their cases.

Board Room, December 24, 1847.

By order,
JOHN CLARKE, Clerk of Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the UNION:—January 21, 1848.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have had under their consideration, a report from Captain Wynne, dated the 15th instant, relating to the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, in which amongst other things he states, that no meeting took place during the week commencing on the 8th instant, until Saturday, the ordinary day of meeting, notwithstanding the resolution of the Board of Guardians, adopted at their meeting of the 1st instant, to the effect that they would meet daily, so long as the necessity for so doing should continue.

Captain Wynne observes, that it was the more necessary to hold meetings during the week referred to, as he had been prevented by severe indisposition from attending in person, to carry into effect the measures for affording out-door relief, on the prompt execution of which the lives of numbers of the destitute poor of the Union then depended.

It appears that notices had been posted throughout the Union, directing the destitute persons whose names had been placed on the out-door relief lists, to attend on the Monday previous to the date of Captain Wynne's report, at certain specified places in each relief district, where their weekly rations were to be issued to them by the relieving officers; and arrangements had been made for sending out bread to the several appointed places early on Monday morning.

However, upon sending on Monday at 11 A.M., to inquire if these arrangements had been carried out, Captain Wynne was informed that nothing had been done up to that hour, and that nothing was likely to be done, no Guardians being in attendance.

By this serious failure of the Board of Guardians in the execution of their duties, the Commissioners are deprived of all reliance upon the Guardians for an effectual administration of relief to the poor of the Union.

The Commissioners have learned that in this painful emergency, Captain Wynne, with considerable difficulty, and through the exertions of persons unconnected with the administration of the Poor Laws, succeeded in preventing any more serious consequences than a few hours' delay.

This fortunate escape from the calamitous consequences which would otherwise have followed the neglect of the Guardians, does not alter the conclusion which it has fixed on the minds of the Commissioners. At an important juncture, the Guardians not only permitted the execution of their functions to depend upon the personal exertions of the Inspector of the Union, and of persons officially unconnected with the administration of the Poor Laws, but they did not even make an effort to discharge their duties by their presence and advice.

The Commissioners learn by a further report from Captain Wynne, that it was found impossible to get through half the business before the Guardians on Saturday, the 15th instant; and that the Guardians then agreed to meet on Monday and the following days, to transact business of great importance. Yet, notwithstanding this agreement, and though the Guardians had issued a notice, in pursuance of which a large number of rate-payers assembled at Carrick-on-Shannon, on Monday, to meet the Board, no meeting was held, nor did any of the Guardians attend on the following Tuesday or Wednesday, although so well aware that business of an urgent nature required their attention.

Y

The Commissioners find, by reference to the returns of the funds of the Union, that during the first six months of the last year, no more than 1,493*l.* 16*s.* 7*d.* was collected in the Union, and only 1,533*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.* during the last six months, although the net annual value of the rateable property in the Union is no less than 61,450*l.* It appears further, that the debts of the Union at the close of the year, amounted to upwards of 4000*l.*, and that several of the contractors have been compelled to resort to legal proceedings against the Guardians, to enforce payment of their just demands.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioners are unable to avoid the conclusion, that the Carrick-on-Shannon Board of Guardians has failed to discharge its duties effectually, according to the intention of the Irish Poor Relief Acts. The Commissioners have, therefore, issued an Order, dissolving the Board of Guardians, and they will proceed forthwith to appoint paid officers to administer the affairs of the Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain WYNNE :—January 21, 1848.

You will have been made aware of the Commissioners' intention to dissolve the Board of Guardians by the letter addressed to you on the 19th instant; and the Commissioners trust, that with the co-operation of the Vice-Guardians, you will be enabled to have the affairs of the Union satisfactorily administered, and relief effectually afforded to the destitute poor.

A copy of a letter which the Commissioners have this day addressed to the Clerk of the Union, announcing the dissolution of the Board, is enclosed herewith for your information.

I HAVE the honour to draw the attention of the Commissioners to a circumstance I mentioned in my report of Saturday last, viz., the difficulty which I find in having the Vagrant Act put in force in this Union, and in obtaining that vigorous exercise of magisterial authority which I conceive to be necessary, to the carrying out of the Poor Law with advantage.

In my report of the 30th of November last, I stated as my opinion, that the local magistracy would not render that active assistance which the existing circumstances of this country imperatively demand; and I regret that the experience of the interim which has since elapsed, has confirmed me in that opinion.

I have been in communication with the county inspector and sub-inspector of police on the subject, and they both coincide in the opinion I have already expressed.

I beg leave herewith to enclose a correspondence which I have had with Mr. Brown, county Inspector; and also to mention a case which I sent before a magistrate, Mr. La Touche, on Wednesday last.

Mary and Catherine Byrne, two paupers who had absconded from the work-house with the Union clothes, were delivered by me to the sergeant of police, and taken by him before the magistrate aforesaid, in order that they might be committed under the 4th section of the Vagrant Act, as the parties are most inveterate beggars.

I also sent in charge of the same constable, Michael Moolic and William Butler, who were present on the same day when one of our bread-carts was stopped, and the bread taken forcibly by parties known to the above-named persons, who were willing to swear informations to this effect.

The sergeant came to me in about an hour, and informed me that all four prisoners were discharged by the magistrate, without assigning any other reason than that the clerk would not draw the information without being paid beforehand.

I was unable to attend in person from illness.

See Fourth Series,
p. 114.

We expect to elect our collectors on Saturday next, and set them to work vigorously on the following Monday; and I would strongly urge the necessity of placing within our reach, such magisterial aid as will give confidence to the gentlemen engaged in these duties, and afford them protection in case of need.

Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

ENCLOSURES.

Captain WYNNE to Mr. BROWN, County Inspector Constabulary:—January 8, 1848.

I MUST again call your attention to the state of our streets, and to the 4th section of the Vagrant Act.

If some step be not taken to enforce this Act, it will be quite out of my power to prevent a recurrence of last Tuesday's scene, or even to issue bread from our bakery, which is so beset by beggars as to defy all efforts of my clerk and Mr. Costello to discharge their duties.

Mr. BROWN to Captain WYNNE:—January 8, 1848.

IN acknowledging your communication just put into my hand, allow me to assure you I did not lose a moment (after the favour of your call at this office) in pointing Sub-Inspector Fox's attention to the section of the Act which you have quoted, as well as to your desire that the constabulary should use every just and legitimate means of giving effect to the portion of said Act that bears reference to the duties devolving on the police. I shall take the earliest opportunity of conferring with you on the subject of a conversation which it appears Mr. Fox has had with the magistrates recently assembled at petty sessions here, touching the duties which you imagine to devolve upon constabulary.

Captain WYNNE to Mr. BROWN:—January 10, 1848.

MAY I request of you to detail to me the substance of the conversation between Mr. Fox, Sub-Inspector, and the magistrates at petty sessions, alluded to in your note of last Saturday, on the subject of the 4th section of the Vagrant Act. The state of this town to-day is really disgraceful; and should the objection which I understand to exist on the part of the magistrates to enforcing the provisions of the aforesaid Act still continue, I shall conceive it my duty to represent the matter to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, as I am clearly of opinion that without the strict enforcement of that Act, the provision made for the destitute under the Poor Laws must fail to meet the exigencies of the Union.

REPLY to the above:—January 20, 1848.

THE attention of the Government has been drawn to your report.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 4, 1848.

WITH regard to the case of Michael Connor, deceased, as referred to me by your letter, No. 44,618, I have the honour to state that I have made all inquiries in my power, and cannot obtain any evidence to the effect that deceased had made application at the workhouse for admittance, or to any relieving officer for relief. No allegation to this effect has been made, that I am aware of.

It appears to be one of many cases that have occurred, and which I fear, cannot be prevented, so long as the unhappy but impracticable people, appear to run counter to every effort made for the purpose of mitigating their sufferings.

They will not apply to the workhouse till too late for human aid, as will clearly appear from the hundreds of absolute spectres who are at this moment inmates, and who, in my opinion, and that of the medical attendant, cannot recover.

Nor is it possible to persuade even these wretched persons to remain in. They are constantly demanding their discharge, and leaving the house in such a state of exhaustion as causes them to sink under a degree of cold, that would not affect persons in a state of ordinary health and strength.

This case applies also to those persons who, still clinging to their cabins, leave them occasionally to buy or beg their bread, and returning home sit down to rest themselves, and overcome by exhaustion and cold, rise no more. This is the immediate cause of, I believe, every case of death on which an inquest has been held in this country where the verdict has been death from starvation, and it is very difficult, if possible, to prevent it. Whilst there is the slightest prospect of any relief in their own cabins, where they have that combination of dirt, smoke, and warmth which they love, they will cling to them in many cases to the death, and more especially when they are certain that, immediately on their leaving them, those cabins will be destroyed.

It is a sad state of things, difficult to remedy, and especially so on account of the impracticability of the poor creatures themselves.

REPLY to the above:—January 8, 1848.

I AM to state that, deeply as the Commissioners lament the melancholy facts detailed by you in these reports, they approve of the course taken by you, and they are of opinion that you did all that you were justified in doing under the circumstances of the case.

The Rev. ROBERT KING to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 19, 1848.

I BEG permission to acquaint you with the circumstance that numbers of famishing creatures holding under one rood of land, the remainder having none, hang on from day to day supplicators of the smallest succour, and prostrating themselves in thankful acknowledgment for such. Able and willing to work, yea, craving employment from any who are considered likely to afford it, even for "their bit," as they term it, and yet unable (owing to the sad lack of rightful exertion to supply employment on the part of proprietors in whom considerable accessions of land are now vested) to find any occupation, notwithstanding such offers; indeed, I am aware of tradesmen being found anxious to obtain work upon those terms, and yet failing to secure it.

The infected state of the poor-house intimidates many, I have reason to know, from seeking to enter into it as a shelter in their forlorn condition; and report states that above a dozen persons have been recently interred of a day in the poor-house of this Union, viz., Carrick-on-Shannon.

Under these circumstances, being from my professional position, and likewise connexion in the country, mainly applied to in every instance around me for succour and redress, occasioned the more through the absence and inattention of the more natural protectors of the temporal wants of their dependents, I beg leave to solicit from you instruction in the peculiarly embarrassing situation in which I am placed, and particularly as to whether, upon the perfect authentication of the above detail concerning the grievous position of the able-bodied in this district, out-door relief, without the test which they deem fearfully perilous, might not be extended to them under proper restrictions, equally as to the decrepid, during their certain inability to find employment.

For myself all I can say is, that any amount of assessment generally borne, would be a gratifying mitigation of overpowering daily assailment on the part of friendless and starving individuals, whom it is beyond the sphere of my capability to relieve. Perhaps such particulars might be deemed to afford warrant for present employment being extended, through means of the completion of the levelling of two hills remaining unfinished upon the principal roads situated within this district.

COPY of Captain WYNNE'S OBSERVATIONS on the foregoing LETTER:—
January 25, 1848.

IN Mr. King's parish, as in most parts of the Union, almost the entire of the able-bodied labourers are unemployed, and the most culpable neglect and indifference shown by those parties whose undoubted duty it is to give some assistance in remedying a state of things which they certainly have assisted in establishing. As Mr. King observes, hundreds of ejected tenants of the various land proprietors have been thrown on him for support, without any assistance on the part of their former landlords, not even the prompt payment of their liabilities under the Poor Law.

It is true the mortality in the workhouse is increasing, but most of the persons who have died have entered the house in a dying state, indeed, as I have before observed, beyond human aid. Nothing can exceed the attention of our medical officer. The average mortality is about nine per week.

Mr. and Mrs. King have exerted themselves for the past year, and continue to do so, as much as any persons in Ireland. I have been myself witness of their extensive bounty, and the unenviable position they are living in—having their house surrounded from morning to night by hundreds of homeless, half-naked, famishing creatures, who, from my own conversation with them, I ascertained to have much stronger claims on others than on Mr. King.

Mr. King is a landed proprietor, and a good example to others.

The COMMISSIONERS to the Rev. ROBERT KING :—January 29, 1848.

THE powers of the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, extend only to the relief of the poor in the manner provided by the Irish Poor Relief Acts; and the Commissioners trust that the Vice-Guardians, who have recently been appointed for the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, will use every means in their power to cause the effectual relief of the destitute poor in the Union, and to make and collect whatever rates are requisite for that purpose.

The Commissioners deeply deplore the condition of the poor as represented by you; but they do not feel warranted in preventing the Vice-Guardians to dispense with the application of the usual tests of the destitution of parties seeking relief; and it is not in their province, if even they deemed it to be expedient, to promote the resumption of the public works to which you refer.

It is manifestly desirable that the poor should be employed in the improvement of the landed property in the Union; but the Commissioners have no power to interfere in that respect.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain WYNNE :—January 22, 1848.

WITH reference to the proposed appointment of the Vice-Guardians of the Mohill Union to act also as paid Guardians for the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, I am to inform you that the order for the appointment of those gentlemen will be issued on Monday next.

I am at the same time to state, that the Vice-Guardians have been requested to proceed to Carrick-on-Shannon on that day.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 22, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to express to the Commissioners my best thanks for the prompt attention which they have given to my reports of the 15th and 19th instant, as also for the prospect which the result has opened to me, viz., the assistance of two such officers as the Vice-Guardians of the Mohill Union.

For the last week I have not received any assistance whatever from the late Board, and have consequently been obliged to exceed my functions in many instances, the result however has been satisfactory; I am enabled to report considerable improvement since last Saturday. The several officers of the workhouse, as well as the relieving officers, have been using their best exertions, and though still far from perfect, each department has improved perceptibly.

On inspecting the workhouse this day I found it remarkably clean and neat in consequence of the exertions of the matron for the last week; the appearance of the day-rooms was not so satisfactory, owing to a number of the inmates wearing their own clothes, our stock being heretofore very limited, and used principally for the purpose of having those of the newly-admitted paupers washed and cleansed.

When last in Dublin I purchased 200*l.* worth of clothes, which are at present on their way from Longford, and which will arrive here on Monday, when we shall put them into immediate use.

I have found it necessary to adopt every possible precaution to prevent the small stock of clothes which we have hitherto had from being made away with; a practice carried on to a ruinous extent for the last nine months, as will appear from the circumstance of upwards of 700*l.* having been expended on clothes during that period, three-fourths of which cannot be accounted for. I have placed watchmen round the house, and have not since discovered any case of theft.

In consequence of reports which reached me, I have visited the grounds and gone through the workhouse at 10 o'clock at night, but did not find anything objectionable, with the exception of the condition of the day-rooms; I have consequently given directions, that after the paupers retire to their dormitories, a squad told off for the purpose, and under the direction of one of the officers, should thoroughly cleanse and ventilate these apartments, and prepare them for the reception of the inmates on the following morning.

I have to observe that the summary dismissal of Mr. McDonald, ex-relieving officer, has been attended with the most beneficial results, as regards the discharge of their duties by the other relieving officers.

I lose no opportunity of impressing strongly on these officers the importance of the duties imposed on them, the heavy responsibility attaching to them, and the imperative obligation on their part to afford relief in every urgent case with all possible promptitude. I have also considered it of use to have the 102nd section of the Poor Relief Act read to them, with an assurance on my part that its provisions should be enforced.

There are at present in the workhouse 880 persons, which is as near the proper number as I am able to keep, pending the constant transition from in-door to out-door relief, in order to keep the test in our hands, which has enabled us up to the present time to avoid placing a single able-bodied applicant on the out-door relief list.

On Tuesday last, 220 able-bodied applicants appeared at the workhouse for relief; we were enabled to discharge 200 of the inmates, and admit the entire number of applicants. Those discharged were 1st and 2nd class paupers, and, of course, placed on the out-door list. The majority of those admitted have since demanded their discharge, and left the house; large numbers of able-bodied have refused to enter the house; the out-door relief list at present contains 116 names, all 1st and 2nd class paupers.

I was glad to observe on yesterday that the pressure was considerably less than on any previous Board day, which leads me to hope that the wants of the poor are, to a certain extent, satisfied.

The amount of relief distributed in the Union is now very large, as, in addition to that under the Poor Law, I am at present distributing upwards of 4000 rations daily to the schools.

I beg to assure the Commissioners that no case requiring relief has come to my knowledge that has not received it promptly from one or other source.

The four candidates for the office of poor-rate collectors appeared to-day, and will be elected to-morrow by the Vice-Guardians. I think them as good a selection as could possibly be made, and well worth waiting for, particularly as no inconvenience has arisen from the delay, as we have obtained ample funds for our current expenses by the mode of collection which I adopted, have paid debts to a considerable amount, and have now 573*l.* in hands, which I shall pay over to the Vice-Guardians, being under the necessity of acting as treasurer for the last 10 days, since the Dublin and London Bank has ceased to act in that capacity.

Captain WYNNE to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 29, 1848.

I HAVE been occupied for the greater portion of the past week, in conjunction with the Vice-Guardians, in the correction or removal of errors in the past management of the workhouse, and in the introduction of a new and improved system for its future management. Such of the books as have been partially and imperfectly kept have been examined, and the errors contained therein pointed out; and such as have been heretofore altogether omitted or neglected, and at the same time required to be kept by the Commissioners' order, have been placed in the hands of the several officers. A short time will test the competency of these officers to discharge this important branch of their duties; they now will have a fair trial for the first time heretofore; they are entitled to some allowance, in consideration of the neglect or refusal on the part of the late Guardians to furnish them with the means of facilitating their labours.

The books of the relieving officers have also been examined, and every effort made to point out to them the course which it will be proper and necessary for them to adopt in every possible case that may arise; they appear to find considerable difficulty in discriminating between such of the applicants as are able-bodied and those which might be fairly ranged under the 1st and 2nd classes.

I do not attribute those errors which they have committed under this head to incapacity or stupidity in all cases, and there may not be a repetition of them now that they thoroughly understand the terms on which they may expect to retain their office.

We shall turn our attention immediately to the subject of additional workhouse accommodation, without which we must soon lose the important test of the workhouse, as few of the 1st and 2nd class paupers at present in the house appear to have any prospect of obtaining shelter out of it; we shall, therefore, be under the necessity of giving out-door relief to the able-bodied, but shall be most careful that in all cases the necessary quantum of labour be rigidly exacted.

My presence in the workhouse will not now be required so constantly as heretofore, I shall, therefore, avail myself of every opportunity of visiting the several depôts, and seeing that the order of the Commissioners is rigorously carried out by the relieving officers and overseers.

The collectors have been elected, and their bonds filled and forwarded to the several parties named as sureties. I should recommend that the Commissioners should transmit their sanction of the appointments, in order that on the return of the bonds, duly perfected, the warrants may be at once handed to the collectors, and the collection proceeded with without loss of time.

I trust the omission of occupier's name will not be found any serious objection to the books.

Should the introduction of the arrears into the books after they were signed in any way affect our power of enforcing payment of the rates, we should set about remedying the error without loss of time.

I am most anxious to push forward the collection; the collectors, four educated, intelligent, and respectable persons, are now engaged making preparation for entering on their duties the moment their bonds arrive, they are at present ascertaining the names of the immediate lessors, and making themselves acquainted with the geography of their respective districts. I expect that this department of our establishment will be found most satisfactory.

The names of the gentlemen are James Edmond Scott, C.E., John Fitzgerald, C.E., Edward M'Cullagh, and Frederick Shaw.

Mr. Scott collects the electoral divisions of Gilstown, Kilglass, Elphin, and Creeve; Mr. Shaw, those of Tumna, Killukin, Aughrim, and Kilmore; Mr. M'Cullagh, Carrick-on-Shannon and Drumsna; and Mr. Fitzgerald, Drumreilly, Drumshambo, Kiltubbrid, Keshearrigan, and Leitrim. We have apportioned the Union into districts, according to the physical capabilities of the parties.

I regret to have to state that the mortality in the house has been considerably increased for the last fortnight; this I attribute altogether to the exhausted and diseased state in which the paupers enter the house, the cases being almost exclusively confined to recent admissions. I regret to observe that there is a decided change for the worse in the appearance of the several classes of applicants, which I attribute to their aversion to leave their cabins, knowing that they will be forthwith destroyed. I trust a well conducted system of out-door relief will remedy this evil.

I regret to be again obliged to call the attention of the Commissioners to the subject of my report of the 17th instant, relative to the difficulty of enforcing the Vagrant Act, as also to the evil consequences which arise daily therefrom.

I need not enumerate these consequences to the Commissioners; I shall mention one, which not only embarrasses all those engaged in the administration of the poor laws, but endangers human life, and defeats the most judicious arrangements we can make for the out-door relief of the destitute. It is this:—

On the days on which out-door relief, in form of weekly rations, is being distributed by the several relieving officers in their respective electoral divisions, those persons for whom it has been provided, and whose names are on the relieving officers' list, are to be found begging about the streets of this town, in some instances as far as 17 miles from where they should be, to enable them to receive their rations; the consequence is they do not receive any, and may be found sleeping in the open air in and about the town, as nobody will admit them into their houses. I have constantly represented this and other evil consequences to the magistrates, but in vain; our streets are in a worse state than ever.

I have represented that every case of destitution was provided for now; that relief was not denied or withheld from any person who applied in conformity with the law; and that instead of their being any cruelty in the enforcing of the Vagrant Act, it would be humanity, as essential to the efficient working of the Poor Law.

I find the reasons assigned on the part of the magistracy to be, that the gaol is already crowded, and that the expense of a prisoner is 3s. 6d. a-week on the county, whereas that of a pauper in the workhouse is 1s. 7d.

I brought 30 cases before Mr. Kelly, stipendiary magistrate, on the 15th; a conviction was had in each case, six were committed, some of the others were discharged for the reasons above given, and others on condition that they would go to the workhouse; the latter went to the workhouse, but demanded their discharge next day, and are ever since begging about the streets.

I have made arrangements for commencing the rationing of the schools in the Union of Boyle, on Monday next, and have taken steps to put the oven at the workhouse of that Union in requisition for the baking of the whole or part of the bread required; I hope to be able to extend it considerably in the course of the week. I am well pleased with the working of the school relief in this Union.

REPLY to the above:—February 3, 1848.

I AM to state that allowances may be made to the 1st and 2nd class of paupers at present in the workhouse, not only for food, but for fuel, clothing, and lodging.

I am at the same time to state, that, in accordance with your suggestion, the Commissioners have expressed their approval to the Vice-Guardians of the appointment of Messrs. Scott, Fitzgerald, M'Cullagh, and Shaw, as collectors of poor-rate in the Union.

The Commissioners have addressed the Vice-Guardians on the subject of the omission of the arrears of rate, and the names of occupiers in the rate-books.

The Commissioners have likewise communicated with the under Secretary for Ireland, as to the difficulty experienced in enforcing the Vagrant Act in the Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

MOHILL UNION.

Major HALIDAY, Temporary Inspector, to the COMMISSIONERS :—
December 9, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, communicating to me that the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland had found it necessary to issue an order for the dissolution of the Board of Guardians, which would be sent in time for the meeting of the Board this day, and transmitting a copy of the letter addressed to the Guardians on the occasion.

I attended this day at the Union workhouse, at the usual hour of meeting, but there was no Board held, only one ex-officio Guardian having appeared within an hour and a half after that time.

I shall transmit, in due course, my weekly report upon the state of the Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Major HALIDAY :—December 10, 1847.

I AM directed to inform you, that Messrs. R. A. Duncan and J. M. O'Reilly have been appointed by the Commissioners as paid officers to carry into execution the Acts relating to the Relief of the Poor in Mohill Union, and I am to enclose a copy of their appointment for your information.

Messrs. Duncan and O'Reilly will be at Mohill to-morrow, the 11th instant, to enter upon their duties.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 10, 1847.

I YESTERDAY attended at the Board-room in the workhouse of this Union, at the usual hour of meeting of the Board, but only one ex-officio Guardian having appeared there within an hour and a half after the appointed time there was no meeting held; and your order dissolving the Board, and the letter accompanying the same, remain in the charge of the clerk to be handed over to the new Guardians. 4th Series, p. 229.

In consequence of the mode of procuring subsistence for each week, on which the workhouse has for a considerable time been dependent, it was necessary to provide for keeping the house open until the newly appointed Guardians should arrive; I therefore ascertained from the master that he had in the house sufficient food to maintain the present inmates for the ensuing 24 hours, and should it be necessary, I shall take on myself the responsibility of guaranteeing payment for such further supplies as may be requisite for that purpose, until the Guardians appointed by you can take up the charge.

On the preceding day I inspected the workhouse. In the infirmary I have the satisfaction to state, that I found no increase in the number of cases of fever; but in the rest of the establishment the grievous defects as to cleanliness, order, or repair, remain unaltered.

The apparently defective construction of the drains and water-courses, and the useless state of one pump, and of the boilers in the kitchen, put it out of the master's power at present to amend these, and they urgently need repair.

I beg leave to submit to your consideration, that the newly appointed Guardians, in addition to the onerous task of acquiring a thorough knowledge of the state of the affairs of this Union, and of transacting a variety of business which has been left unattended to, and which now forms a heavy amount of arrears, will labour under extreme difficulties in effecting any amendments in the state of the workhouse, or making due provision for the relief of the numerous cases of destitution that await their examination and decision, from the want of funds and the utter want of credit into which the Union has fallen. No tenders have been made, in reply to the advertisement of the Board of Guardians some weeks since, for contractors to supply the house with food for weekly payments; and unless the mere fact of the appointment of a paid Board create a degree of confidence not at present existing, it will be impossible for them, for a considerable time, to effect some of the most indispensable amendments in the state of the house, or to enable the relieving officers to provide for the most urgent cases of extreme want, while the requisite measures for obtaining and fitting up any extra accommodation will occupy some time.

With reference to the funds, I ascertained from the collector that the recovery of the arrears of rates during the last week, has made very little progress; and as the completion of the new rate-books, for the seven electoral divisions the valuation of which has been finished, has been delayed by his neglecting to furnish the statement of arrears in them to the clerk, according to the directions of the Board of Guardians, the new rate, even for those divisions, cannot be signed for several days.

Representations have been made to me from various quarters, which I have every reason to believe correct, of the extreme want and suffering at present endured by the many destitute individuals for whom the relieving officers have been unable to obtain admission to the workhouse; and I fear that some deplorable results may occur, unless some temporary assistance be given to the new Board of Guardians, while they are preparing themselves for a vigorous and determined effort to enforce the collection of rates.

The COMMISSIONERS to Major HALIDAY:—December 14, 1847.

I AM to state, for your information, that the Commissioners have obtained from the British Relief Association, a loan of the sum of 200*l.* to the Vice-Guardians to meet the present wants of the Union, to be repaid out of the rates when collected.

Mr. O'REILLY, Vice-Guardian, to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 11, 1847.

ACCORDING to instructions I this day arrived here, where I met my colleague in office, Mr. Duncan, with whom I visited the workhouse, and have to report the following as the result of our observations:—

1st. We found the sanitary state of the workhouse totally neglected; a want of proper ventilation and a regard to cleanliness, both with reference to the persons of the paupers and the house itself.

2ndly. The accounts (from the slight examination we were able to make) have been allowed to get into a very confused state, not having been balanced for the two last half years.

3rdly. The general classification of the paupers is greatly neglected.

All this has, in our opinion, arisen from the low state of the funds of the Union, and we would respectfully suggest that, in order not only to keep the house open for the present, but to enable us to make it tolerably habitable for the inmates, a loan of at least 200*l.*, on the credit of the forthcoming rate, be made by the Commissioners to this Union.

We waited on Major Haliday, who kindly gave us all the information in his power, and with whose assistance we hope to be able to restore order into the house, in a short time.

REPLY to the above:—December 15, 1847.

I AM to state, for your information, that the Commissioners understand that 200*l.* has been advanced to meet the present wants of the Union, to be repaid out of the rates when collected.

RESOLUTIONS of VICE-GUARDIANS:—December 16, 1847.

Resolved,—That each rate collector be required to pay to the Treasurer the amount of his collection, within six months from the date he receives his warrant, with the exception of such sums as he may be able to show he had failed in collecting, by reason of their being no distrainable property, and after taking every measure which the law provides.

Resolved,—That Mr. John O'Brien, the present collector, be offered the collection of the present forthcoming rate of the Mohill, Esslin, and Tenagh electoral divisions; that he receive 2s. in the pound, fee, 1s. of which he is to give all rate-payers who make prompt payment, say within a month.

Resolved,—That Mr. James Spotten, of Newtongore, who with his sureties were approved of by former Board, have the collection of the Newtongore and Carrigallen electoral division: that he have 1s. 9d. per pound, fees, for all rates paid within the month, 6d. of which he is to allow rate-payers: that he have 1s. 6d. per pound for rates subsequently collected.

Resolved,—That rate collectors for the remaining electoral divisions be advertized for: that the terms proposed be similar to those offered Mr. O'Brien, and that tenders be received on this day week.

IN reference to the mode of remuneration proposed, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that they consider it objectionable, as calculated to defeat, rather than promote, the prompt collection of the rate, which was doubtless the object for which it was intended. It appears to the Commissioners that, under such an arrangement, it would be to the interest of the collector to defer his applications for payment of the rate until after the expiration of the first month, and so become entitled to the larger poundage.

Moreover, it appears to the Commissioners that the collector is entitled to the full amount of the poundage that may be agreed upon, for his remuneration, without deduction of any part for payment to the rate-payers; while repayment of any such portion to them, would, in fact, have the effect, practically, of foregoing a portion of the rate, for the whole of which they are legally liable; and the Commissioners think it essential that payment in full should be enforced wherever practicable.

An arrangement which has been adopted in many Unions, and is calculated to promote the prompt collection of the rates, is to give the collector a larger poundage on the amount collected and lodged in the first month, or two months, and a smaller poundage afterwards; or, to allow him the larger poundage on the sums first lodged, up to a given amount (say half the rate) provided it be lodged within a given time, and the smaller poundage on all sums lodged afterwards, the collector, being at the same time, required to collect the whole within a specified time. The above arrangement is calculated to make it the interest of the collector to collect and lodge the rate without delay, and is not open to the objections referred to in the first part of this letter.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 17, 1847.

THE Vice-Guardians recently appointed by you to this Union arrived here on the 11th instant, and immediately proceeded to inspect the workhouse, and to take the necessary steps for the subsistence of the inmates, until they should be able to obtain contracts for regular supplies. They have since been occupied, for many hours every day, in the inspection of the establishment, the examination of the accumulated mass of letters, unpaid accounts, and other documents necessary for a full comprehension of the present state of this Union, and for an estimate of the repairs immediately required in the house, as well as the additional accommodation absolutely necessary, and the supplies of clothing, utensils, and articles of daily consumption, without which it would be quite impossible to restore order and discipline, or to improve the health of the inmates; and also in personally superintending the interior economy of the workhouse, in which the want of proper classification, and of method or arrangement, and (I must add) the inattention of the master and other officers to the details of their duties, allowed an extreme degree of disorder. Hitherto, the neglect or inability of the late Board of Guardians to furnish the officers of the house, with the most ordinary requisites which they have applied for; the want of a Visiting Committee, and the disheartening example of their general apathy and procrastination, and also the business (incompatible with his proper duties) imposed upon the master of purchasing the weekly supplies of food and other necessities, have operated to cause, as well as excuse, these irregularities, which, I trust, will now shortly be corrected.

The want of superintendence and arrangement has been particularly apparent in the serving of the meals, and, I fear, has amounted to great neglect as regards the younger children, whose emaciated and unhealthy appearance, and the disproportioned amount of sickness and mortality among them, I cannot but attribute to insufficient nourishment.

It is but justice to the Vice-Guardians, to express my sense of their pains-taking and zealous exertions to improve the condition of the inmates, and to stimulate the officers of the house in the performance of their duties, by personally instructing them in the details; and I look forward to a great and salutary change before long, notwithstanding the difficulties opposed by long-continued habits of indolence and relaxation of discipline.

On the 13th instant, I accompanied the Vice-Guardians in a thorough inspection of the whole workhouse, and advised with them as to the repairs immediately required in the roof and walls, the introduction of ventilators in the dormitories and the infirmary wards; and pointed out the offensive and unwholesome state of the yards and cesspools.

I have to report, that there were on that day 12 females lying in bed in the dormitories, most of whom were stated to be affected with fever, for whom there was no room in the infirmary wards.

For the reception of these cases, orders were given for the temporary appropriation, of one of the smaller dormitories for male adults, until a house can be procured outside for the purpose of the fever ward.

Yesterday, being the ordinary day of meeting, the Vice-Guardians held a formal Board, for the transaction of the routine business of the past fortnight, and for issuing orders as to tenders for contracts; and they received the reports of the several relieving officers. All these concurred in representing the pressure of want as very great. This was further confirmed by the testimony of two gentlemen of high character, who waited on the Board to represent the state of one of the distant electoral divisions, and exhibit a list of destitute heads of families, (upwards of 80 in number,) of those classes which can be legally relieved out of the workhouse, who have been up to the present time, maintained solely by daily supplies of food furnished from charitable subscriptions, and from private funds which are now completely exhausted.

As the workhouse already contains upwards of 700 inmates, it appeared dangerous to admit any more, and the Vice-Guardians resolved to furnish each of the relieving officers with a limited sum of money, to be expended in the purchase of food for the relief of such urgent cases of destitution among the classes referred to, as they should find requiring it.

I must express my conviction, formed from various sources of information, that the number of these cases will be found very great, and probably beyond the means of the Vice-Guardians to relieve, until the collection of the new rate is in active progress. As the rate-books cannot possibly be completed for several days, for even one-half of the electoral divisions, and as there must be some delay in getting persons to undertake the collection, and to have their bonds and securities completed, the assistance of the British Relief Association, I am satisfied, will be indispensable to a considerable extent, to enable the Vice-Guardians to ward off actual starvation. They will be also, for some time, unable to afford the means of supporting the temporary fever hospital, adjacent to the town, in which the Managing Committee are at present unable to receive patients, from want of funds, and the maintenance of which is highly essential to prevent the rapid spread of that disease.

REPLY to the above:—December 23, 1847.

THE Commissioners will apply to the British Association for a loan of money, in accordance with your suggestions, to enable the Guardians to relieve the destitute in the interval, before the rate-books are made out in the electoral divisions.

Mohill Union.

WE find that the relieving officers in some cases, in carrying out our order of last meeting, to afford provisional out-door relief to certain classes contemplated in the Commissioners' order, under section 1 of Relief Extension Act, have also afforded relief to persons within the classes contemplated in section 2, and to authorize relief to which the Commissioners' order has not yet been issued.

The workhouse being closed at present against admissions from infectious diseases prevailing in it, and the other causes adverted to in our report of 20th instant, although relief to the latter class is illegal we are not disposed to disallow it.

As the workhouse cannot be in a position to enable us to permit further admissions into it for another week, we feel ourselves constrained, guided by the representations of the relieving officers, to continue such relief, though irregular, for that time.

The relief in question given to the classes not yet authorized by the issue of the Commissioners' order, under section 2, is but trifling, not amounting to more than 3*l*., and that additional amount will probably be all which we will be necessitated to allow.

We desire to place this matter under the notice of the Commissioners, so that if they deem it necessary they may issue their orders under section 2.

We hope to have available space for the admission of 150 into workhouse in the course of one week.

REPLY to the above :—December 23, 1847.

THE Commissioners desire me to transmit herewith for your information a copy of an order authorizing relief to destitute widows with one child, to children whose parents are both dead, or to able-bodied men one or more members of whose families dependent on them for support are affected by severe sickness or serious accident: and I am to state that the Commissioners are prepared to issue such an order for Mohill Union, if, on full consideration, you should deem it necessary to recommend it; but the Commissioners enjoin you not to permit the relieving officers, without the authority of such an order, to give relief to classes not included in section 1.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 24, 1847.

THE pressure of destitution throughout this Union continues steadily to increase; and although upwards of 120 cases have been supported during the past week, on out-door relief given through the relieving officers, in addition to the numbers in the workhouse, the most trustworthy information I can obtain represents the distress among the poor as extreme, their food consisting very much of the tops and refuse of turnips; and as that resource will shortly fail, the distress must rapidly increase. Fever is also very prevalent.

The Vice-Guardians have not been able to procure, in this miserable town, houses to hire at all adequate to the extent of additional accommodation required; and I fear the want of competent workmen will render it very difficult and tedious to erect sheds for that purpose.

Having, on the 21st instant, inspected the Union workhouse, I am enabled to report that the daily superintendence and vigilance of the Vice-Guardians have effected some improvement as to the hours and the regularity of the meals; but their advertisements having failed to procure any tenders for the removal of the accumulated soil from the cesspools and privies, it is found still impracticable to accomplish the requisite amendment as to cleanliness in the yards and premises. As this is a most important object, and it appears impossible to find in the country any person to undertake the office, I have recommended to the Vice-Guardians to write to Dublin for a contractor.

The repairs of the house are proceeding slowly. It is most difficult to obtain any competent masons, glaziers, or other mechanics; and disappointments constantly arise from parties who have undertaken such repairs abandoning them. Nothing, I am persuaded, will be omitted by the Vice-Guardians to complete this object, and to establish order and discipline in the workhouse; but they have to contend against these local obstacles, and also against the indolence and incapacity of the workhouse staff; some of them have already resigned.

A gross irregularity (if it do not prove worse) on the part of the master, has just been detected by the Vice-Guardians endeavouring to muster all the inmates.

It appears that the master has been habitually, for a length of time, returning in his weekly list, and provision account, and diet table, a much greater number of inmates than were actually in the house. As the numbers appearing from the result of the Vice-Guardians' muster of the different wards and rooms, and the present corrected return of the master differ considerably; and as the business of the regular Board yesterday occupied the entire day, this discrepancy is to be verified to-day; and the Vice-Guardians will make a special report to you on the case, forwarding such explanation as the master may have to offer.

I regret to have to state, that no persons whose qualifications and securities appeared sufficient, had yesterday tendered for the collection of the new rate, and I much fear that none such will be procured in the Union. It also appears that the valuator cannot complete the revision of the remaining electoral divisions for some weeks, as his presence and assistance is quite indispensable for certain corrections (required by changes of tenure or abandonments of tenements) in carrying on the arrears with the rate-books, without which great future confusion would ensue. I apprehend, therefore, that none of these can be completed for another week, and that the whole cannot be filled in and signed before the end of January.

REPLY to the above:—December 27, 1847.

THE Commissioners are informed that Count Strzelecki has authorized a remittance by the Commissariat Department of 300*l.*, from the funds of the British Association for the immediate purposes of relief in the Union, to be repaid by the Vice-Guardians out of the rates; and the Commissioners trust that every exertion will be made to place the Union in funds from the rates before that sum is exhausted.

The Commissioners have also directed an order to be prepared and issued, authorizing out-door relief for a limited period, to certain classes beyond those specified in sec. 1 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

With regard to the statement that fever is very prevalent, I am to call attention to the provisions of the 16th section of 6 and 7 Vic., c. 92, under which a house or houses may be hired by the Vice-Guardians in any part of the Union, where it may be necessary to do so.

The Commissioners await the further report proposed to be made, respecting the conduct of the master of the workhouse, in including in his accounts a greater number of inmates than were in the workhouse.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 25, 1847.

REFERRING to your letter of 23rd instant, enclosing draft of order to permit relief under section 2 of Extension Act in the Mohill Union, we beg to inform you that after mature consideration we deem it advisable that such an order should be issued. We return herewith the copy of the order should you require it.

We trust the operations under such an order may be confined to a limited period, and that the opening of the workhouse for considerable admissions, the object at present of our best exertions, may dispel the necessity of affording relief to classes other than those contemplated in Section 1.

REPLY to the above:—December 27, 1847.

THE Commissioners have given directions for the issue of an order to authorize out-door relief under Section 2 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act to the classes specified, in the form of order already forwarded to you, and returned to the Commissioners with your letter above referred to.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 27, 1847.

1. WE beg now to provide you with a second weekly report of our proceedings, in the discharge of our duties as Vice-Guardians of the Mohill Union.

The Workhouse.

2. The execution of the repairs which we consider necessary to make the house habitable, is fast approaching completion; the dietary has been amended; an improved standard of cleanliness attained; a general approach to obedience of the rules and regulations for the management of the establishment observable; and many of the leading defects we had occasion to notice in our first report remedied.

3. We have all but closed negotiations for the renting of a house at an annual tenantry, to form an auxiliary for the workhouse infirmary. To this place we shall at once remove all patients suffering from infectious diseases—much reduced in number within the last fortnight—and advance an important step towards our great object of making the workhouse speedily available for fresh admissions.

4. We regret all our efforts have not yet reduced the mortality to any extent, which still remains high; but the constitutions of many of the inmates had become so undermined by the defective arrangements of the establishment, that no amended treatment could remove the elements of death with which they had already become impregnated.

5. We are proceeding as fast as the means at command will permit in improving the clothing of the paupers, and have advertised for supplies of this and other articles to meet the requirements of further admissions; which we do not feel ourselves justified in making until we have the house cleared of fever, and such arrangements effected as will tend to the prevention of fresh outbursts of disease, when the number of inmates is again increased.

6. For the present we must despair of procuring additional accommodation for the children, apart from the workhouse, and it will likely be our course soon to suggest your assistance in enabling us to erect temporary shed buildings on the workhouse grounds, either for the children or the able-bodied.

7. In our visits through the house it struck us that the number of inmates appeared less than that exhibited by the books. After a personal enumeration we found that upwards of 100 were on the books, more than actually were in the house. The collective days (according to which the provisions and necessaries consumed were of course calculated) were based on this fictitious number shown by the admission and discharge book: thus entailing an actual loss to the Guardians of about 5% per week.

8. We have no evidence to show the master converted any of the extra quantity of provisions thus charged to private uses; it was in all probability weighed out to the paupers, and it may have been wasted or misapplied by them, in a similar way to all other descriptions of Union stores, in which there appears so great defalcation. How far the circumstances in which the master has been placed for the last eight or nine months—having repeated attacks of fever, and being left by the Guardians without control—justifies or excuses the heinous irregularities, waste and loss during that time, as in how far it should affect his continuance as an officer of the house, we do not venture to express an opinion, and should wish to be guided by your views in relation thereto.

9. The reasons which induced us in our last report to estimate the loss of Union property as there stated, are certainly magnified by our experience of the past week.

10. The weekly Relief list and abstract have not been kept regularly since March last; independent of other considerations, an important check on the system of recording workhouse transactions was thus wanting, indeed the accuracy of the accounts of this period can never be rendered anything but approximate.

11. We are trying to procure the assistance of a suitable person to assist, under our own direction, in bringing up the arrears in these clothing books, &c.; and until this is effected, we cannot feel satisfied in receiving stores or clothing into the house. Great labour will be required before the books can be brought into a proper state.

12. We have received the resignation of the matron and wardmaster, in consequence we believe of our insisting that they should use their exertions to correct the lax state of discipline, and perform their duties properly. Their leaving is a source of satisfaction to us.

Mohill Union.

13. We now proceed to elect a matron, increasing the salary from 15*l.* (as formerly) to 20*l.*; an assistant matron at 8*l.*, whose attention shall be particularly directed to the effective employment of the women; and an assistant master, at a salary of 20*l.* per annum, in room of the wardmaster, whose services we think shall be most necessary, as auxiliary in all the important duties of the house. These officers have been advertised for.

14. The formation of contracts, and thus remedying the desultory manner in which supplies have been received; the deepening of the well; the procuring of a person from the house of industry, Dublin, to clear the cesspools; the surface draining of yards, and ventilating are in progress—the increased confidence possessed in us facilitating our measures.

15. We propose forthwith restoring decency in the burial of deceased paupers, by providing each with a coffin and shroud. We conceive that the mode of interment in operation here must have a degrading and brutalizing effect on the minds of the people; that it is antagonist to morality, inasmuch as a want of respect for the dead leads to a recklessness with regard to life, and (when this disrespect is carried to the extreme, which it has been here) precludes the likelihood of that solemn and humanizing train of feeling connected with futurity being produced, which funeral obsequies are apt to arouse in those of humble life, and indirectly tends to encourage that unhappy indifference to the taking away of human life characterizing the district. If one object of the workhouse is to afford an example which, from its prominence it is likely to do, we can easily feel the necessity of avoiding any course likely to produce moral and social deterioration.

Out-door Relief.

16. To meet the pressure caused by the closing of the workhouse, the relieving officers were obliged to dispense relief to classes not comprehended in those to which relief is authorized in section 1. Although this was contrary to the instructions which we had given these officers, we were not, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, disposed to disallow this relief. It has of course been necessary accordingly to apply to you for the issue of an order under section 2. We hope, however, that after we are enabled to open the workhouse, we may not for a considerable time be obliged to have recourse to the exercise of our power, of giving relief under section 2.

17. We appointed at last meeting a relieving officer for the vacant district of the Union. The complete organization of these officers, and their location in relieving houses at proper points in their district, shall form our immediate duty; for to them are we to look for most important aid in meeting the distress that will likely, during the coming season, press heavily upon us.

Rates.

18. A difficulty, unforeseen in its extent, has arisen in the introduction of the arrears of former rates into the present rate-books, which caused a delay in signing the rate-books. We have the revising valuator busily at work, whose assistance (from the circumstance of the numerous changes caused by the late revision rendering it difficult to identify the present holdings with the arrears) we found necessary in transferring and apportioning the arrears. We hope for no disappointment in having the books signed next meeting.

19. The collection of the arrears on the seven divisions still in Mr. O'Brien's hands is proceeding very slowly; he states that all of these have been collected which can be.

20. We have been (as we anticipated in our last report) unable to procure rate-collectors for the eight electoral divisions uncontracted for; any applicants who appeared were unsuited to the appointment. We have accordingly applied to you for men from the retired constabulary list for this service, and hope soon to have your answer.

21. Mr. O'Brien, our attorney, has issued writs against a number of the immediate lessors, by whom the large sum of 600*l.* is due. We mean to look to this especially, numerous considerations pointing out the expediency of our rigorously enforcing payment from this class, embracing many of the leading men of the country.

22. The completion of the revision of the valuation has been interfered with by our being obliged to withdraw the services of the valuator from that duty to the arrangement of the arrears; but we shall hasten the revision as much as in our power.

Mohill Union.

Funds.

23. We have so far not touched on the 200*l.* by the British Association. The balance in treasurer's hands, however, having been just expended, we will now be obliged to draw upon that resource which we are so fortunate in having. Until the new rate is put in collection, we can alone look to this fund to meet our requirements.

Fever Hospitals.

24. We have been in communication with the Board of Health regarding increased accommodation for fever patients at distant parts of the Union; but we could not undertake, in our present financial state, to participate in any measures attended with outlay for this purpose, although fully aware of their necessity.

25. We shall assist and aid with funds, so far as in our power, the Relief Committee in supporting the temporary hospital, when they think proper to apply to us on that behalf.

26. It is fortunate that we have a slight breathing time to perfect our arrangements before the pressure of destitution actually bursts upon us. We trust in a short time to have the Union in efficient and proper order; and if we can only succeed in collecting the rates, all will be well.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—December 29, 1847.

IN reference to the accounts of the master of the workhouse, the Commissioners desire to state that his practice of charging in the provision accounts quantities sufficient for a larger number of paupers than were in the workhouse cannot be excused. He is either guilty of wilful fraud or gross negligence, as the daily roll-call required by the 14th article of the workhouse rules rendered necessary the keeping of lists by him for the purpose, which must have enabled him to know the precise number of each class in the workhouse. If a wilful defalcation can be proved, the Vice-Guardians should apply the 101st section of the 1 and 2 Vic., c. 56. If only negligence can be proved, the master should be required to resign or be suspended, with a view to dismissal by the Commissioners, as may appear to the Vice-Guardians to be most fitting.

As regards your proposal to appoint an assistant master and matron, I am to state that, in a small workhouse like that of Mohill Union, an assistant master or matron ought not to be requisite; and well-conducted paupers should be in charge of both men and women's wards.

The Commissioners approve of your directing a coffin and shroud to be provided in each case of the interment of workhouse inmates.

The Order authorizing out relief to certain classes for a limited time, under section 2 of 10 Vic., c. 31, will be transmitted by this night's post.

With respect to the issue of writs against a number of immediate lessors, by whom large amounts of rate are due, the Commissioners request your attention to the provisions of section 2 of 6 and 7 Vic., c. 92, in regard to arrears due from immediate lessors, a list should be forwarded to the Commissioners of those proposed to be sued by action in the Superior Courts, the Commissioners' consent to such mode of proceeding being necessary in each case, under the proviso at the end of that section.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 31, 1847.

THE state and prospects of this Union have undergone no perceptible change since the date of my last report.

The increasing pressure of want is exhibited in the numbers taken on the list of out-door relief by the several relieving officers, and registered, now amounting to nearly 300, and which will necessarily rapidly increase, as the state of the workhouse, and the inability of the Vice-Guardians to procure extra accommodation to hire, forbid them to admit any more inmates at present, except in very peculiar cases not to be otherwise adequately provided for.

I am unable to report any material improvement in the interior of the workhouse, where the unremitting exertions of the Vice-Guardians appear to produce little more than a momentary observance of the regulations or maintenance of discipline, but are totally unsupported by any zeal or activity on the part of the executive officers, whose daily duties they in a great measure perform.

As the charge affecting the master of the house, adverted to in my last report, appears fully established, and indeed admitted by him, the Vice-Guardians have no alternative but to suspend him. Meantime the clerk having been compelled by serious illness to relinquish his daily duties, the whole burden of carrying on the daily routine of the house devolves upon the Vice-Guardians, who are unable to find in this neighbourhood persons competent to fill even temporarily the situations now vacant.

The repairs of the house are advancing but slowly; and the offensive state of some of the yards and premises continues. These defects the Vice-Guardians have been unable to rectify, as the tardy and very inefficient masons and glaziers cannot be depended on for punctuality; and no tenders have been obtained for emptying the cesspools, although advertised for in the country and latterly also invited from Dublin.

A complete and thoroughly efficient staff of new officers for the workhouse appears to me the first and indispensable preliminary to any permanent amendment; and in the view of intended additional accommodation by building sheds, I should recommend an increase in their numbers until order and discipline be effectually established, and the acquired habits of the long resident pauper inmates eradicated by a firm authority, and strict and constant vigilance of inspection.

REPLY to the above:—January 3, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the laws for relief of the poor in Ireland to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 31st ultimo, relating to Mohill Union, for which I am to express the Commissioners' thanks.

The Commissioners desire me at the same time to state, that as an immediate appointment of workhouse officers is indispensable, notice for proposals should be inserted in more than one of the Dublin evening newspapers, in addition to the next weekly paper, and an early day fixed for the selection.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 31, 1847.

OWING to the instant demands for supplies of several articles of clothing, provisions, repairs, &c., which are of every-day occurrence in this house, and the general want of contracts for their supply, we may be in several cases obliged to depart from 17, 18, 19 and the following articles of the Commissioners' General Regulations for Unions.

We would therefore wish to obtain the sanction of the Commissioners for our departing from those rules, should a necessity for so doing occur: of course the departure shall be the exception, and in all cases where time will be of little consequence, we shall adhere to the strict letter of the directions.

REPLY to the above:—January 5, 1848.

THE regulations referred to should be adhered to as closely as possible.

At the same time if, in the present very peculiar circumstances of the Union, it is found impracticable to obtain the requisite supplies in the manner provided for therein, the Vice-Guardians may resort to such other steps as may be necessary to obviate any inconvenience that would arise from the want of such supplies.

The Commissioners, however, rely upon the Vice-Guardians adhering to the regulations whenever practicable.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 31, 1847.

As we find it impossible to obtain the proposed temporary accommodation for the reception of children, and thereby increase the space in the workhouse, we would feel obliged by your informing us, if the necessary funds for the erection of wooden sheds could be obtained through the Poor Law Commissioners; and if so, when we might expect to be able to commence these buildings.

Mohill Union.

REPLY to the above:—January 5, 1848.

I AM to state that loans cannot be obtained for temporary buildings, and that the architect is of opinion it will be more advisable to erect sheds covered with thatch than wooden sheds. He suggests that in Mohill Union these sheds can be best constructed at the rear of the children's yard at each side, communicating with the male and female yards, but not inside the latter, which is very objectionable.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 31, 1847.

WE beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 29th instant, and in reply have to state, that with regard to the suspension of the master, we conceive it would be prejudicial to the interests of the establishment to require his leaving immediately, as owing to the illness of the clerk, the resignation of the matron, and the incompetency of many of the officers, even the services of Mr. Jenkins, the master, at this moment (great as has been his carelessness, and incompetent though he be,) would be a matter of serious inconvenience to us. We must, therefore, urge on the Commissioners the necessity of our retaining him yet awhile.

We have, however, required his resignation, and have informed him that he only retains his situation until we are enabled to provide a proper officer in his stead.

With reference to that part of your letter respecting the appointment of an assistant master and matron, we are of opinion that from the great amount of work which will be necessary to bring the establishment into a proper state,—the difficulty there will be in introducing improved habits amongst the paupers and providing for their due employment,—the increased duties which will arise from the additional numbers to be received when shed buildings are erected,—the fact of there not being five women in the house to whom the least charge could be entrusted,—the appointment of the officers in question is indispensable. An additional reason for the appointment is, that there already exists in this establishment a paid wardsman and wardswoman, whom we mean to get rid of, and it is intended that their duties should merge into those of the officers in contemplation.

With regard to the law proceedings being taken at present against defaulting rate-payers, and the necessity of our procuring the authority of the Commissioners previous to the commencement of an action in the superior Courts, we have to state, that the solicitor had been instructed to take such steps as appeared requisite for the recovery of arrears by the former Board, and we concluded they, or the solicitor, had acted in accordance with section 2 of 1 and 2 Vic., cap. 92. The requisite list shall now, however, be forwarded to you without delay for the Commissioners' consent.

REFERRING to your letter of the 29th instant, from which it appears the Commissioners disapprove of our proposed arrangement with regard to the rate of fees to be allowed to collectors and the abatement to be made to rate-payers for prompt payment, we beg to submit some further views on the subject.

We may premise that our plan has been altered in some respects, so that it now presents perhaps, new features.

It simply is this, that each collector receive 2s. per pound fees for all he collects, and that he give to all persons who pay their rates to him within one fortnight from the day he gets his warrant, an abatement of 1s. in the pound out of his remuneration.

Mohill Union.

The Commissioners urge as an objection to this plan, that the collector would be induced to defer his application for the payment of the rate until the time for giving the allowance had expired.

Now, our proposed mode of procedure is, to give public notice that the collector will, at some fixed place receive payment of rates, and make the abatement for sums paid within the fortnight. The failure of the collector to apply for payment will not therefore affect the measure; for its working is altogether independent of the collector's application.

The collectors already appointed consider that an offer of the kind proposed, will have a good effect in producing payments, and they are perfectly satisfied to give half their fees, or even more, to those who would pay them at once and give no trouble.

This cannot be considered as foregoing any part of the rate, for 2s. per pound is just the amount which will be paid by the Union, whether it passes into the hands of the rate payer or rate collector; and no inroad is made upon the rights of the rate collector when he voluntarily agrees to make the allowance to facilitate his duties.

The plan on a more extended scale has been tried with great success in other Unions, and we believe, from all we can learn, it would be attended with similar good results in this Union. As it may be considered by the Vice-Guardians in the light of a private arrangement of the rate collector, no illegality appears to them involved in the procedure.

From the difficulty in procuring rate collectors, we fear persons could not be procured who would bind themselves to pay any fixed sum of importance within one or two months, or forfeit part of their fees, at least without some extraordinary inducement, such as that now contemplated by the Vice-Guardians, being held out to the rate-payers to pay.

The Commissioners' suggestion would therefore be desirable concurrent with the bonus to the rate-payers. Without something of the latter kind we are hopeless as to the satisfactory collection of the rate, and the two collectors who have practical experience, share in a similar feeling.

REPLY to the above:—January 5, 1848.

THE Commissioners having fully considered your communication of the 31st ultimo (received on 4th instant), respecting the arrangement proposed by you in regard to the remuneration of the collectors, I am directed to state that the Commissioners must adhere to their objections to the proposed mode of payment, and recommend you to make some other arrangement more in accordance with the views expressed by the Commissioners in their letter to you of 29th ultimo.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 3, 1848.

1. WE have this day succeeded in signing the rate-books of five electoral divisions, being the entire number but one, for which we have obtained collectors, and completed by the revising valuator. We expect in about a fortnight, that the progress of the valuator will enable us to sign the books of four more electoral divisions.

2. We trust to have the new books now signed in collection before the expiration of the week, having the necessary preparatory measures in course of speedy execution.

3. We have advertised for rate-collectors for the vacant districts (comprising seven electoral divisions) in the Dublin newspapers, and great difficulty appears in procuring proper persons to undertake this service, even at the high rate of remuneration offered.

4. Mr. O'Brien, rate-collector, is proceeding with the collection of the old rate in six electoral divisions, with perhaps as much success as under the circumstances could be expected.

5. Mr. O'Brien, the solicitor, has been instructed to prepare a list of the parties he is proceeding against by writ, to be laid before the Commissioners, so that their consent may be obtained. No further steps can be taken by him until next term.

6. We have called on the master to resign, and he is to leave on Thursday, the 20th January instant, it being desirable, from reasons already, stated, to retain him until then. We proceed to appoint a master on that day and purpose (if sanctioned by the Commissioners) offering 40% as the salary of the new officer. We are inclined to think 25%, the salary of the late master, with the meagre rations, too limited a remuneration, and that it would, if continued at that rate, interfere with our obtaining a proper man.

7. Interminable difficulties arise to us in the prosecution of our duties. The workmen of this place are the most worthless set possible, and can be got to do almost nothing; so that the execution of the repairs, &c., is proceeding but slowly. The illness of our clerk, the resignation of three other officers, and uselessness of all the rest, are sources of great discouragement.

8. Out-door relief is in full operation, relieving officers being employed in every district of the Union.

9. On reconsideration, we mean to devote part of our limited resources in co-operating with the Board of Health in providing means of hospital relief for fever patients, in certain parts of the Union. We will very soon be able to remove all infectious cases from the workhouse to the house, we have taken for that purpose.

10. Owing to the press of business on our hands this week, we are unable to make this report as full as we could have wished.

REPLY to the above :—January 5, 1848.

THE Commissioners sanction the proposed salary of 40% a-year for the master of the workhouse, to be appointed; and as an immediate appointment of new workhouse officers is indispensable, notices should be inserted, if not already done, in more than one of the Dublin Evening newspapers, in addition to the next weekly paper, and an early day fixed for the selection.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners do not object to the Vice-Guardians retaining the services of the present master, until his successor is appointed; but the appointment should be made as soon as practicable.

As regards the appointment of an assistant master and matron, the Commissioners must still object to permanent appointments of the kind; but they will sanction the provisional appointment of such assistants as the Vice-Guardians deem actually requisite in the present circumstances of the Union, trusting to the Vice-Guardians to dispense with these appointments, as soon as the workhouse shall have been brought into regular order.

Resolved,—That the following rates be made on the electoral divisions stated, at a poundage of 3s. conjointly for purposes of Temporary Relief Act, and relief under ordinary Poor Law Acts.

			Amount of Rate thereon, at 3s. in the pound, and Arrears of former Rate.
			£.	s.	d.
Electoral Divisions of	Eslin		435	16	3

The rate-books were thereupon signed by the Vice-Guardians, having been previously certified by the clerk, and the rate duly made and declared.

formed whether the collecting-books are yet ready for issue, or if only in course of preparation. They request that the Vice-Guardians will take steps for their immediate completion.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON :—January 3, 1848.

WITH reference to Head Constable Lodge's report, dated Ballinamore, 14th instant, transmitted to the Commissioners through the Chief Secretary's office, containing a copy of a verdict given at an inquest held on the body of Andrew M'Gourty, found dead at Derreen, county Leitrim, I am directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to state, for the information of his Excellency the Lord-Lieutenant, that they caused inquiry to be made on the subject; and I am to enclose herewith a copy of a report from Major Haliday, Temporary Inspector of Mohill Union, on the subject, together with the minutes of evidence therein referred to. It having appeared that the deceased came from a part of the Carrick-on-Shannon Union, the Commissioners also instructed Captain Wynne, the Temporary Inspector of that Union, to make further inquiry therein, and I am to enclose a copy of his report also.

I am at the same time to state, that it does not appear that application was made by or on behalf of the deceased to any of the Union officers for relief, either in Mohill or in Carrick-on-Shannon Union.

With reference to the last paragraph of Major Haliday's report, I am to state that it appears the Vice-Guardians of Mohill Union appointed a relieving officer for Ballinamore district on the 23rd instant; and the Commissioners understand the refusal of relief in the cases referred to in that paragraph by the late Board of Guardians to have been owing to the embarrassed state of the affairs of the Union, previous to the dissolution of the Board on the 8th instant, as already reported for his Excellency's information. The Commissioners trust that the affairs of the Union will have shortly been brought into a better condition by the present Vice-Guardians.

ENCLOSURE.

COPY of CONSTABULARY REPORT, referred to in the foregoing.

*County of Leitrim, Ballinamore,
December 14, 1847.*

I BEG to forward at foot hereof a copy of a verdict of a coroner's jury upon an inquest on the body of Andrew M'Gourty, found dead in a field at Derreen, in this district, on the 10th instant.

Verdict.

Found dead on the 10th instant, by starvation and want of food and nourishment, after being in fever for a length of time.

J. LODGE, 3rd S. I.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 23, 1847.

I PROCEEDED on Monday, the 21st instant, to Ballinamore, in order to inquire into and ascertain the facts connected with the case of Andrew M'Gourty, who was found dead at Derreen, and on whose body an inquest was held.

I must premise that Derreen is a name common to a number of places quite remote from each other in this Union.

I proceeded from Ballinamore to the residence of the coroner, Alexander Percy, Esq., but that gentleman being absent at Belturbet, I was unable to see him.

I then endeavoured, but without success, to see the resident magistrate or the sub-inspector of constabulary, both those gentlemen being absent from the town.

The occurrence seemed not to be known in Ballinamore, but I met, after some inquiry, a farmer residing in Oughteragh division who had heard of the inquest, who informed me that he had known the deceased well, having frequently employed him as a day-labourer, and he described the deceased as having been a very industrious hard-working man, somewhat above 40 years of age, married, and having a family. He understood that he had gone out on the morning before his death to beg, having been previously much reduced by fever. This person stated that the residence of the deceased was not in Mohill Union, but in that of Carrick-on-Shannon, close to Aghacashel, parish of Kiltubbrid; and as the place indicated was so distant that I could not have reached it before night-fall, and there is no road within three-quarters of a mile of it, I did not attempt to proceed thither, but returned to Mohill, having first written to the coroner for further information.

I have this day seen the coroner, and obtained from him his minutes of the inquest and evidence taken, of which I have made extracts herewith annexed.

From his statement I find that the Derreen, where the deceased resided, is without but adjacent to the boundary of the Mohill Union, and in that of Carrick-on-Shannon; that M'Gourty had been in England or Scotland during the harvest, and had subsequently had fever (as had also his family), and suffered from relapses; that he had gone out to beg or try to procure food, and on his way homewards was met by a neighbour who spoke to him, to whom he did not at first reply, but afterwards said "he was bad enough," and "feared he would not be able to reach home;" that in a few hours afterwards he was found dead on the ground about two fields distant from his cabin; and the opinion of the neighbours, who had known his condition, coincided with that of the surgeon who examined his corpse, that he died from the effects of cold and want of food on a frame enfeebled by previous disease.

I cannot entertain any doubt that such was the actual and immediate cause of his death.

I have further to report that I cannot find any trace of an application for relief having been made by the deceased to any Guardian or officer of this Union, nor is it to be supposed, considering his residence.

It is, however, to be observed that there has been no relieving officer for the district adjoining the residence of deceased, comprising the electoral divisions of Fenagh, Oughteragh, and Ballinamore, the appointment of the person elected by the late Board of Guardians (Mr. Kane) not having been confirmed; and it will be seen, by reference to my reports of the 5th and 19th November, and 3rd December, that on the Board days preceding those dates many applicants for relief at the workhouse had been refused without any inquiry into their cases, from the inability of the Board to relieve them.

ENCLOSURE.

EXTRACTS from the EVIDENCE taken before ALEX. PERCY, Esq., Coroner, at the Inquest held on the 13th December on the body of Andrew M'Gourty at Derreen, Agha Cashel, parish of Kiltubbrid, county Leitrim.

1. James Callum, of Agha Cashel, labourer, being duly sworn, saith, "I knew the deceased A. M'Gourty. The last time I saw him alone was on Friday evening last; he was then walking near his own house; I asked him how he did; he did not answer me for some time; he then said "he thought he would find it hard to get home; that he was bad enough." I was afraid to go near him for fear of the fever, and I thought he would get home without assistance, he was walking so stout. I know no more about the matter.

2. James Galagan, senior, of Derreen, farmer, being duly sworn, saith, "I knew the deceased right well this long time. I saw him last alive on Friday morning; he appeared to be very weak. I knew him and his family to be in a very bad state for a long time back.

On Friday last, about an hour or an hour and a half in the night, I found the deceased, M'Gourty, lying dead, with his mouth under, within about two fields of his own house. I knew the deceased and his family to have had fever for some time back. I have no doubt that the deceased came to his death from the effects of cold, and the want of enough to eat, after getting up out of the fever.

J. Roper Little, surgeon, &c., certifies, "I have examined the body of A. M'Gourty, and am of opinion that his death was caused by exhaustion and exposure to cold, after having had fever and no proper treatment or nourishment afterwards.

(Signed)

ALEX. PERCY, Coroner.

REPORT of Captain WYNN, Temporary Inspector of Carrick-on-Shannon Union:—
December 29, 1847.

I FIND that Derreen is in the Carrick-on-Shannon Union. I think it not improbable that Andrew M'Gourty died as stated "from the effects of fever and the exhaustion consequent on several relapses of the disease, together with want of nourishment afterwards, the immediate cause of death being the cold to which he was exposed in that state."

I find that no application has been made for admission to the workhouse by this poor man, nor could he have been admitted even if such had been made, as he appears to have held land, and is to be found as a rate-payer valued at 17. 16s. net.

It is much to be deplored that very many poor persons postpone application to the workhouse from various motives, till their condition is beyond all human aid. We have had many instances of this in the house for the last fortnight.

Amongst the most general causes may be enumerated "their aversion to give up their land, which appears to have been the case with this poor man. I may add, that the expectation of out-door relief, either by means of a Government grant or under the Poor Laws, acts most mischievously in producing this effect.

We have received several cases into the house lately, whose only complaint appears to be exhaustion. I have attended myself to the treatment of them, and saw, as far as in my power lay, that they received what was considered best suited to their cases: some have died, the remainder, I fear, will soon follow.

I cannot say that, in these cases, blame is fairly attributable to the Guardians, as it does not appear that applications had been previously made by these unhappy persons.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 7, 1848.

THE pressure upon us for out-door relief is becoming severe, accumulating in a manifold ratio. We, for so far, are able to afford workhouse relief to all not comprised in the classes to which we are empowered to extend out relief. We might stave off the extremity perhaps for a week longer, having still available workhouse space; but without officers, we regret to say, all the arrangements we ourselves are able to make do not secure us from an unpleasant feeling in making further admissions beyond a very limited number. We are, therefore, impelled to submit our application for the issue of your order to enable us to give extern relief to classes comprised in section 2, not already provided for by your order of 29th December, 1847.

We make this application not unguardedly. We feel that out relief to the able-bodied is the last resource; but their famishing state on the one hand, and the absence of workhouse accommodation on the other, leave but the one line of conduct.

The temporary difficulties which have arisen from causes beyond our control have produced the crisis, demanding out relief to the fullest extent, sooner than we expected. But when these are removed, we are not without hope that we might be in a position to suspend out relief to the able-bodied until a more advanced period of the year.

REPLY to the above:—January 10, 1848.

THE Commissioners have given directions, in accordance with your report, for the preparation of an order authorizing out-door relief in food in Mohill Union to the able-bodied, in addition to the classes for which such relief has been already authorized under section 2 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 7, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to submit the following report on the state of this Union:—

1. The workhouse, which I inspected yesterday, can scarcely be considered at all advanced in point of cleanliness, order, or discipline. The closing of the apertures in the walls, which have been fitted with ventilating wooden tubes, according to the plan and directions of Mr. Wilkinson, has removed the appearance of dilapidation, and added to the comfort of the inmates in a considerable degree; but it appears to me that the position of these is such as to cause unnecessary cold, and not to attain the object of effective ventilation; and the broken glass in the windows is not yet repaired, in consequence of the tardiness of the contractor for glazing. The females in the day-rooms and nursery are therefore constantly found with small heaps of lighted turf in various places over the clay floors, and the utmost vigilance of the Vice-Guardians is unable to check or abate this irregularity. The meals appear to be served with greater order and regularity, and the improved aspect of the younger children bears a gratifying testimony to the effects of this amendment, and of the change of dietary lately adopted; but they are still very late in being cooked and served. The repairs of the roof and exterior of the workhouse are very partially complete; and the apertures in the infirmary walls not yet closed, in consequence of the difficulty in obtaining the services of a carpenter to construct ventilators on the plan proposed.

2. No tender whatever has been made for the removal of the soil from the cess-pools and privies; and in consequence the yards and premises in rear of the main building remain in the same revolting state of filth. The laundry is piled with layers of unwashed clothes; and it is quite manifest that the inmates, although quiet, and showing no disposition to resist orders, cannot at present be kept employed, or compelled to observe the regulations of the house, from the want of officers. The schoolmaster (at no time efficient) is ill with fever; the schoolmistress obliged to attempt the functions of the matron lately resigned; and the master who has resigned in order to avoid dismissal, is not likely now to exhibit the qualities of firmness, command, or vigilance, of which he gave so little evidence hitherto.

3. Although not strictly within the scope of my subject, I feel so strongly the importance for the restoration or establishment of discipline and order in this house, and all that may be similarly situated, of securing at once the services of a thoroughly competent and therefore experienced master and matron, that I cannot avoid remarking on the difficulty of finding such persons to undertake the arduous duties for so small a salary as 40*l.*, the amount now proposed by the Vice-Guardians for the master. Possibly the formation of a training school for these officers may, at a future time, be thought deserving of attention, as the time of one entering upon these duties must be at first devoted to acquiring a knowledge of the details and the forms of accounts

4. Upwards of 50 applicants for relief were necessarily admitted into the house, notwithstanding the desire of the Vice-Guardians to avoid crowding it at present; and the increase on the books of the relieving officers has raised the out-door relief list to nearly 900. From the statements of these officers, several of whom are highly intelligent and active persons, it is evident that that number will be trebled before the end of this month; and that the able-bodied men who have hitherto abstained from pressing for relief, are now beginning to press their claims, and are undoubtedly in numerous cases utterly destitute. Under this alarming prospect, and considering the impracticability of finding in this Union buildings capable of being fitted as auxiliary workhouses, I have urged the immediate insertion of advertisements for tenders to erect an extensive range of sheds adjacent or attached to the workhouse; but it is scarcely possible for me to convey an adequate idea of the difficulty attending every project for improvement in this Union, which affords so few of the ordinary conveniences of civilized life, and to which it seems almost impossible to attract mechanics or workmen of energy or industry for the accomplishment of the most ordinary repairs, or execution of any contract within a reasonable length of time; and therefore although I am confident that nothing will be omitted which can be attained by the untiring assiduity of the Vice-Guardians, whose days are spent in the precincts of the workhouse, I am compelled to anticipate a large extension of out-door relief, as the only means left them of averting the miseries of unassisted destitution.

REPLY to the above:—January 10, 1848.

THE Commissioners trust that the Union will be brought into better condition by a continuance of your exertions, in conjunction with those of the Vice-Guardians.

The Commissioners desire at the same time to state, that they have given directions, in compliance with an application which they have received from the Vice-Guardians, for the preparation of an order authorizing out-door relief in food in the Union to the able-bodied, as well as the other classes for which it has been already authorized under section 2 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

IN reference to your letter received yesterday, relative to the operation of section 10 of Relief Extension Act, we beg to inform you that, out of applications for relief already recorded by the relieving officers (numbering nearly 1000), there has scarcely been an instance of an applicant, as far as these officers could learn, who was directly or indirectly in the possession of an extent of land disentitling them to relief under section 10. The great mass of the applicants are widows and orphans, who, on the removal of their protectors, principally by death, during the past year, relinquished their holdings.

A great change has taken place amongst the people with regard to the desire of having land. They have now no hesitation in giving up their little farms, and we are informed that any quantities of land could be obtained with good will for the asking.

We are not inclined to think that up to this period the tendency among the people to give up their patches of land results from the requirements of the Poor Law forming an inducement. Effects of this kind have yet to be felt.

From the feeling there exists of carelessness for retaining land amongst the class that will likely become applicants for out-door relief, we do not anticipate much difficulty as likely to arise from the section in question. When they are inclined to relinquish their land, impelled by no strong motive, they cannot be expected to linger much on the decision, when they understand it to be a barrier to the need of the relieving officers—their only hope of life.

Mohill Union.

Should any practical evil arise from the working of section 10 (which, of course, we shall preserve inviolate), it will be our duty to seek your advice on the point.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 10, 1848.

WE have the honour to furnish herewith our serial report in reference to the transactions of the past week.

Rates.

2. The collectors' lodgments amount to only 31*l.* 12*s.*, leaving 1284*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.* still outstanding of the rate made 24th December, 1846. Larger returns can scarcely be expected until the proceeds of the new rate become available. The collection of the old rate is now confined to four electoral divisions, the arrears of the remaining nine have been, or are, in course of being introduced into the new books, and their recovery of course suspended. In these four divisions the sums due by solvent parties have already been extracted; however, the results of the collector's efforts should not be less meagre, even with this contracted field, than heretofore, as his receipts must be dependent on the number of holdings he can visit, and distrains he can make, and four divisions afford sufficient comprehensive space in this service for one collector. It is only with the constant presence of the police that his measures can be accomplished.

3. The large proportion of the rate due by immediate lessors remains undiminished. The solicitor (Mr. O'Brien) entrusted with the conduct of the proceedings for the recovery of the amounts, has not attended to our repeated communications (we presume from absence) requiring him to afford us an interview, nor has he, that we are aware of, yet complied with our directions in taking the necessary preliminary steps of obtaining your consent to the proceedings against certain parties in the superior courts. Should a suitable explanation not be furnished to us with regard to his apparently negligent conduct, it shall be our duty to take into serious consideration the substitution of another person as solicitor to the Board.

4. We have this day, at an adjourned meeting, signed the warrant for the collection of the rate made the 3rd instant on the Newtown Gore and Carrigallen electoral divisions, amounting to 1500*l.*, (the total amount of rate made on that day being 3548*l.*) and Mr. Spotten, the collector, at once proceeds to the prompt execution of his duties, all the necessary preparations having been made. Mr. O'Brien having failed to perfect his bond, we have been unable to place the three divisions for which he was appointed collector, and of which the rate was signed, in a similarly advanced position, much to our regret. This defect will, we trust, be remedied before Thursday next. On that day it is our intention that Mr. O'Brien should lodge with treasurer the amount of money in his hands, and receive a cheque for his fees, which, we apprehend (pending the fortnightly examination of his accounts), balance each other. The light in which he may then appear with regard to his accounts, and the perfecting of security, will finally determine his eligibility or otherwise to be a future collector.

5. Thursday next we look to with anxiety, as involving our prospects of securing collectors for the vacant electoral divisions. The extreme poverty of the district, in which we regret to say it is retrograding still further each day,—every description of chattel property fast disappearing, its lawless state, the unusually high rates, and the previous irregular habits formed in meeting this species of demand, seem to deter proper persons from seeking the office, unallured by the extravagant rates of fees (2*s.* in the pound) we offer. If we fail in this second effort, our expedients are well nigh exhausted.

6. The valuator, of whose dilatory mode of procedure we have much reason to complain, will, we trust, have four more rate-books ready for signature at the time we stated in former report, next Monday; the remaining four shall, we fear, be the produce of many more days of his work, and from local peculiarities, he alone can be entrusted with their execution.

Workhouse.

7. The schoolmistress and porter being the only officers at our disposal, from the resignation and partial absence of master, and illness by fever of schoolmaster, the management of the house for past days was accomplished with increased difficulties; indeed, it has been by our assuming the duties of all the officials in every department alone, that the operations of the house have been conducted. Even under these circumstances, we have reason to hope its state is better than when we last reported. We look forward to the appointment of the temporary assistant-master and matron on Thursday next, and a master and matron on the 20th instant, with no little satisfaction. The continued illness of the clerk has thrown much office work on us, so that by a combination of events our time has been unceasingly occupied for 10 or more hours each day, to the exclusion, we regret, of many important matters in other parts of the Union, though we have succeeded in arranging some business of this kind.

8. We have been pleased to observe a tendency to make contracts for supplies to the workhouse, and at last meeting we had proposals for all articles, almost, we had advertised for. Independent of the convenience this will create, it indicates a renewed feeling of confidence towards the administration of the Poor Law in this Union.

Additional Accommodation.

9. The house we have taken in Mohill is almost ready for the reception of the fever and other infectious cases of the workhouse. As our only resource to provide increased room is to devote part of our limited finances to the erecting of sheds or other suitable buildings, we shall carefully consider, with the least delay, the best and most economical mode of effecting our object, though we are rather doubtful whether we are altogether justified in such a course, taking into consideration the intention of the British Association in advancing the money, and the claims there may be upon it for other purposes, and should be glad to receive your guidance on the subject.

10. We are taking the necessary proceedings to carry out the intentions of the Board of Health, coincident with our own, regarding the temporary hospitals at Ballinamore and Carrigallen, in pursuance of their requisition, and hope soon to be in a position to afford hospital relief at the latter place, but delay must take place in effecting our purpose at the former.

Out-door Relief.

11. The pressure for relief is increasing beyond our immediate expectation. We have, therefore, been obliged to apply for an order to empower us to relieve all classes under section 2nd. No employment exists in the Union, and we cannot deny relief to those who have no other means of subsistence. We fear, with all the reductions of last year, still a numerous section, all the space in the workhouse we could make available for them would not be sufficient; removing, therefore, our dependence in this expedient. We estimate our expenses for out-relief will exceed 30*l.* in the week now commenced. The relieving officers are generally, we think, performing their duties efficiently. Relieving houses have been assigned to all the officers, and some of them have received our personal inspection, but we despair of being able to introduce cooked food for some time. In the absence of contracts, we are obliged to entrust money to the relieving officers for the purchase of provisions, a practice we will however alter as soon as practicable. We mean to make an early arrangement for transferring to extern relief all pauper inmates of the workhouse proper for such purpose. Upwards of 1000 are now receiving out-relief, at an average cost of about 7*d.* per head.

12. A multiplicity of disappointments develop themselves at every turn, thwarting and frustrating our efforts, and delaying us in establishing affairs in a satisfactory position—the object of all our toil and anxiety.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS in reply :—January 14, 1848.

In reply to your inquiry, with reference to the application of the advances made by the British Association, the Commissioners desire me to state that advances made from the funds of the British Association may be applied by you in the way you may deem the most useful and effectual in relieving the necessities of the destitute poor.

Mohill Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Sir W. SOMERVILLE, Bart.:—January 11, 1848.

WITH reference to a constabulary report received from your department on the 22nd ultimo, relative to the death of a man, name unknown, who is stated to have died from want of food and the inclemency of the weather, at Drumhanny, in Mohill Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they instructed the Temporary Inspector of the Union, Major Haliday, to make inquiry on the subject; and I am to transmit herewith, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, copies of two reports, dated 31st ultimo, and 4th instant respectively, which the Commissioners have received from Major Haliday thereon, together with a copy of the depositions taken at inquest on the body of the poor person in question.

ENCLOSURES.

CONSTABULARY REPORT referred to in the foregoing.

County of Leitrim.Mohill, December 18, 1847.

I BEG to forward the following copy of a verdict of a coroner's jury on view of the body of a man unknown.

W. WRAY, 3rd S. I.

The Inspector-General.

(Copy.)

"We find that a man unknown came by his death suddenly, on Monday the 13th instant, in the townland of Drumhanny, parish and barony of Mohill, and county of Leitrim, from want of food, and from the inclemency of the weather, and not from any violent cause whatsoever."

December 17th, 1847.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 31, 1847.

I HAVE made inquiries into the facts connected with the death of a man (name unknown) on whose body the jury at the inquest returned a verdict "That the deceased died from want of food, and the inclemency of the weather, and not from any violent cause whatever."

I wrote to the coroner for a copy of the minutes taken at the inquest, which I have only this morning received; and I, meantime, examined such persons here as were capable of giving me information, and have also visited the place where the body was found, and inquired of several persons residing near it, and have to report the result as follows:—

It appears that, on Monday the 13th instant, between one and two o'clock in the day, the deceased, who is said to have appeared very wretched and feeble, was going on foot towards this town, and had gone into one or two of the cabins on the road-side to beg for food or lodging, but without obtaining anything but a raw turnip, which, with a few grains of wheat, was found in his hat; and that after leaving one of these, of a very miserable description, where he had rested for some time, he proceeded nearly half a mile further, and had then fallen on his face on the road-side close to a cottage, the woman residing in which, on looking out of her door about half an hour after the time he had left the first-mentioned cabin, saw him lying on the road, but states that she had not seen him fall—that she called for assistance, and two women and a man working near at hand lifted him up and found him then quite dead, with no appearance of injury except a slight mark on the face from the fall.

There was no medical man present, or examined at the inquest, which was held on the 17th instant; and the jury came to their verdict on the facts here stated, and on the appearance of the body, which (as stated by the coroner) was very much emaciated and wretched.

No trace has been since obtained as to the name or residence of the deceased, although it appears that a woman with two children (also unknown) had on the same day made inquiry of some people on the same road if they had seen a man, who is supposed to have been the deceased, but they went away in a different direction, and have not been seen since then.

There is no record of any person like the deceased having applied for admission to the workhouse of Mohill. The relieving officer of the electoral division states that none such had about that time applied to him; and it will be recollected that the Vice-Guardians arrived here to enter on their duties only in the course of the afternoon of the 11th instant; but it will be seen, on reference to my weekly reports, that during the five weeks preceding the date of this occurrence many applicants for relief had been sent away without inquiry, in consequence of the then state of the workhouse, and the inability of the Board of Guardians to obtain funds.

Under the circumstances of there having been no medical examination of the body, I cannot express a distinct opinion that want and exposure, and not some internal disease, was the cause of the man's death, but it is too probable that the opinion of the jury was substantially correct, and that want, if not the immediate cause of, at all events, accelerated that result.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 31st ultimo, relating to the death of a man (name unknown) stated to have died from want of food, &c. ; and I am to request that the copy of the depositions taken at the inquest may be transmitted to the Commissioners, and that you will return to them the report of the inquest enclosed to you with the Commissioners' letter of the 24th ultimo.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 4, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st instant No. 131, January, 1848), on the part of the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, and in accordance with the instructions contained in it, transmit herewith the copy (in his own hand-writing) of the informations and depositions taken by the coroner, A. Percy, Esq., at the inquest held on the body of a man (name unknown) who died at Drumhanny in this Union, on the 13th December, 1847, together with the report of the inquest forwarded to me in the letter from the Commissioners.

Enclosure referred to in the foregoing.

County of Leitrim, } Informations taken and acknowledged before me at Drumhanny, in the to wit. } parish and barony of Mohill, on the 17th day of December, 1847, on view of the body of a man (name unknown) then lying dead at same place.

Informant Mary Colreary, of Finiscal, being duly sworn, saith: On Monday last, the 13th instant, the man who now lies dead on the road side near this, came into our house and asked charity and a lodging of me. I could not give lodging to him; deceased remained about half an hour in the house; I never saw the deceased before to know him from another; I do not know any more about the matter.

Sworn before me,
ALEX. PERCY, Coroner.

Peter Reynolds saith: On Monday last, about half-past one o'clock, I saw the deceased walking slowly from Colreary's house, about 15 perches from where he now lies; he appeared very weak; about a quarter of an hour afterwards Mary Reynolds and Anne Moylan called me from where I was working in the bog; I went and saw the deceased lying dead on the road side, he was then quite dead; the deceased was lying with his mouth under; I turned him and washed the blood off his face.

Sworn before me,
ALEX. PERCY, Coroner.

Mary Reynolds saith: On Monday last, about one or two o'clock, on looking out of my own poor, I saw the deceased man lying on the road side, with his face under, about a perch from the door; I do not know whether he was then quite dead; I did not see any person near the place at the time; I called Anne Moylan up out of the bog; I do not know who the deceased man is.

Sworn before me,
ALEX. PERCY, Coroner.

The deceased, when viewed by the coroner and jury, appeared very much emaciated, and wretchedly clad; there were some grains of wheat and a raw turnip in his hat. I asked the jurors did they wish for the testimony of a medical witness as to the cause of death, and they said that they were quite satisfied that the deceased came to his death from the want of the common necessities of life, and exposure to the inclemency of the weather, and that many more would go the same way if they did not get employment or relief in some shape.

30th December, 1847.

ALEX. PERCY, Coroner.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 11, 1848.

WE were on yesterday served with two writs at the suit of contractors to the former Board; one is for the sum of 250*l.* for clothing supplied to the house by Anne Gibbons and Son, and is taken in the Court of Queen's Bench; the other is by James Murphy, for supplies of soap and candles, and is a more expensive process, being in the Court of Exchequer for the sum of 50*l.*

Mohill Union.

We would feel obliged by your informing us how we are to act under these circumstances.

REPLY to the above:—January 12, 1848.

THE Commissioners are in communication with their solicitors, Messrs. Geale and Dwyer on the subject.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 14, 1848.

THE state of the Mohill Union has undergone no change requiring to be brought under your notice since the date of my report of last week.

The Board of Vice-Guardians, at the meeting of which I was present yesterday, sat until seven o'clock, P.M., engaged in the transaction of a variety of indispensable business, which calls for no especial comment.

Although it has not been found requisite to give out-door relief to any able-bodied male persons,—and I would hope that the precaution which the Vice-Guardians will exercise as long as is possible, of maintaining in the workhouse room to receive all applicants for relief of that class, will obviate the necessity of doing so at least for a considerable time to come,—it is manifest that the expense of maintaining those classes at present on the out-door relief list will be very heavy. The number of those cases now amounts to almost 2000; and as the relief extended to many of this class by private charities ceases from the exhaustion of funds, a very considerable increase weekly to the lists of the relieving officers must be expected.

The difficulty in obtaining competent persons who can procure adequate securities for the collection of the new rate, still continues. As yet there are several electoral divisions for which no persons have tendered to collect; and it appears probable that the Vice-Guardians will have to accept the services of such as they can procure, rather than such as they would desire, or else submit to a delay in putting the rate (when signed) in process of collection, which for many reasons it is most desirable to avoid.

The repairs of the workhouse advance but slowly, from the want of energy and industry on the part of the contractor. When these shall be completed, and the establishment provided with competent officers to replace the present inefficient set of functionaries, there is reason to hope for a material improvement in cleanliness and order, stimulated and enforced by the exertions of the Vice-Guardians, who are at present obliged to superintend and carry out the details of the house, and also to keep the clerk's books, in consequence of the continued indisposition of that officer.

The revision of the valuation of the Union is not yet completed, and I can see no effectual means to expedite it. The valuator appears to be a slow but plodding man, who completely miscalculated the task he undertook; and as many of the obstacles that have delayed the collection of former rates in this Union arose from the imperfection or inaccuracy of the former valuation, it appears questionable if it would be expedient (if possible even) to enforce in him a more rapid, and therefore probably incorrect revision.

THE VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 14, 1848.

REFERRING to your communication of 29th ultimo, requiring a list of the rate defaulters in this Union against whom proceedings are being taken in the superior Courts of Record in Dublin, we beg to transmit herewith such list, and thus comply with the provisions of the 2nd section of 6 and 7 Vic., c. 92.

The parties named in list, we believe, are not resident in the Union.

The Commissioners consent is sought to the proceedings.

January 11, 1848.

R. P. O'BRIEN.

REPLY to the above:—January 19, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to signify their consent to such proceedings being taken, under the above section, in the Court of Queen's Bench in Dublin.

I am at the same time to transmit a copy of a communication which the Commissioners have received from Dr. Collins, relative to the proceedings taken against him, and am to request that you will call on Mr. O'Brien to explain why, in this case, he did not make demand for payment from Dr. Collins before serving him with a writ.

ENCLOSURE.

Dr. COLLINS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 17, 1848.

I BEG to state, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that a writ was issued against me on the 15th instant, from the Court of Queen's Bench, by a Mr. O'Brien, an attorney in Mohill, on behalf of the Poor Law Guardians of that Union, for the sum of 12*l.* 10*s.*, to which 3*l.* 10*s.* costs have been added.

I take the liberty of writing to the Commissioners to know by what authority this most discourteous and improper step has been taken, without having given me any previous notice whatever that the debt was due.

Such a measure I should think is unexampled, and I confidently appeal to the Commissioners to deprive Mr. O'Brien of the costs he has so unwarrantably attempted to gain.

Mr. O'Brien well knew that one line to me would have been sufficient to have the money paid by return of post.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 18, 1848.

1. WE have considered it expedient to postpone this our fifth weekly report for a day, so that some matters pending might be referred to more definitely than otherwise we would have been enabled to do.

Rates and Rate Collectors.

2. On the 15th instant, we made a rate on four additional electoral divisions, amounting to 3,098*l.* 15*s.* 11*d.*, which completes nine electoral divisions on which a rate has been signed and declared by us, amounting to the aggregate sum of 6,658*l.* 19*s.* 9*d.* We hope the progress of the valuation revision will enable us, within the ensuing fortnight, to place the Mohill electoral division (being that in which the town of Mohill and the workhouse are situate) in a similar position. We are anxious with regard to this, as it of all the divisions should make the most satisfactory return to the appeal of the rate collector.

Mohill Union.

3. Mr. O'Brien's success in the collection of the old rate of the four electoral divisions for which he is still employed, was very meagre, only 9% having been collected and lodged in the official week, ending last Thursday. We understand he has lodged 63% this day, which is perhaps as much as under the circumstances, we could expect. We are not aware how much of this sum has been provided by immediate lessors, but we think it probable they have not contributed materially. From the return of proceedings against that class for the recovery of rates due by them, furnished to us by Mr. O'Brien, the Union solicitor, and a copy of which has been already forwarded to you, we have reason to be dissatisfied with that gentleman's management of our business. We have informed him so, and await a further explanation from him, prior to a final severance of our connexion. Indeed, his inattention alone, independently of his being affected by conflicting interests, we think renders that step necessary.

4. We have succeeded in placing only 1500% (the amount on two electoral divisions) of the new rate yet in collection; of this we have reason to expect a payment of at least 100% before the expiration of another week. We had anticipated having the rate of two more electoral divisions in collection ere this, but the repeated failures of the collector appointed (Mr. O'Brien), to satisfy us in regard to his security, created delays. He has now offered what we consider adequate sureties; and it only remains for him to have his bond perfected (for which we have fixed to-morrow), to permit those divisions being placed in collection. Should he fail to carry out this arrangement in reference to his bond, we at once relinquish all idea of his being a collector of the new rate.

5. Thursday last, the day we had advertised on which to receive proposals for rate collectors for the eight vacant electoral divisions, failed in producing offers from a class of men we could have desired for the service. No parties from a distance, despite all the newspaper advertising, presented themselves. We have, however, obtained collectors for all the electoral divisions but one; and after making every inquiry in our power, with regard to their proposed sureties, we are disposed to be satisfied therewith, excepting those of the person who offered as collector for the Cloon division. The collectors themselves are, perhaps, of as good a description as we could expect the locality to afford. Those whose security we approve of, shall be obliged to perfect their bonds at once. We will also make every exertion to secure the services of proper persons for the two divisions alluded to, which we trust soon to accomplish, the only preliminaries necessary to place in collection the rates of the nine electoral divisions already declared.

6. The collecting books are almost prepared for all the divisions of which the rate has been signed. The directions contained in your letter of 15th instant have, therefore, been complied with in anticipation.

Workhouse.

7. We regret that on last Thursday, the day appointed for the election of an assistant master or matron, no applicants appeared for the former office. We are disposed to attribute this disinclination to take advantage of such a situation, so eagerly sought after by competent persons in many parts of Ireland, to the circumstance of the Mohill Union being proclaimed, under the recent Act for the prevention of outrage, which possibly may excite fears in parties living at a distance (from which alone suitable candidates could be expected), and deter them from becoming residents in the neighbourhood. The same cause may also have operated in preventing persons offering themselves as rate collectors, referred to in the preceding paragraph. We engaged an assistant matron or wardswoman, from whose employment we expect good results.

8. We trust a similar indisposition to become workhouse officers may not affect our forthcoming election of a master and a matron. Any failure in this respect would be most discouraging to us, our plans of amelioration and improvement in the system of in-door relief, being so much dependent on proper persons for these offices being obtained.

9. We continue to bestow much attention on the minutiae of workhouse management; thus remedying, as far as in our power, the almost total absence of officers, which is at present experienced by the establishment.

10. The repairs of the house are approaching completion, with as much rapidity as the procrastinating habits of the workmen would lead us to expect, but much slower than we could wish. Indeed it is impossible to obtain mechanics in this neighbourhood, who will perform any service with celerity or satisfaction.

Additional Accommodation.

11. The house we have recently rented for the accommodation of the infectious cases of the workhouse will be in occupation before the end of the week, the repairs having been completed and other preliminaries arranged. We are about to advertise for the erection of temporary buildings, to be constructed in the manner suggested in your letter of the 5th instant, so that we may command space for 200 additional inmates.

Out-door Relief.

12. Up to last Saturday, the recipients of out-door relief numbered almost 2000. Before the close of this week, that number will probably be extended beyond 3000, and without including any able-bodied men, to whom we have been, and hope for some time longer to be able to afford workhouse relief—a satisfactory circumstance. Our expenses for out-door relief we may estimate, without making up the relieving officers' books, have amounted during the past week to 60%, and will probably exceed 70% in the week we have now entered upon.

13. We are anxious to organize some system of co-operation, on the part of a few respectable members of the late Relief Committees in the several districts, by which a useful surveillance might be placed on the relieving officers, and also assistance afforded them in detecting imposition, which increased means of local information would ensure. We have accordingly addressed a circular to the chairman of each Committee in furtherance of our object, a copy of which we append.

Temporary Fever Hospitals.

14. We have concluded an agreement for a house at Carrigallen, of large dimensions, most suitable, and at a moderate rent, 17*l.* 10*s.* per annum; nearly 100% having been paid formerly for it and a small house adjoining, when used as a military barracks. We are in hopes of soon having an arrangement completed for renting a house at Ballinamore. Concurrent with the procuring of houses, we are taking other measures, in fulfilment of the requirements of the Board of Health. Ere long we trust to have the hospitals at these places in operation, and thus have performed our part in providing against a recurrence of those melancholy scenes, which during the past season, came within your observation and inquiry, and called so loudly for protection against the victims of fever, expiring houseless and neglected.

15. Writs are pouring in on us from numerous contractors to the late Board, as they (the contractors), we presume, are under the impression that we have some means (other than the rates) to pay them. This idea we have endeavoured to remove; but yet, great inconvenience and even suffering would be the result, if the furniture and stores of the workhouse were seized under an execution. We therefore await with anxiety, the result of your communication with Messrs. Geale and Dwyer on the subject.

16. The hours we could abstract from our workhouse labours during the past week, we have devoted to visiting other and distant parts of the Union, in arranging about fever hospitals, inspecting relieving houses, inquiring relative to rate collector's sureties; and, generally, in making ourselves acquainted with the circumstances of the Union. Difficulties, we must confess, beset us, and require us not to relax in our exertions.

ENCLOSURE:—COPY of CIRCULAR addressed to CHAIRMEN of late Relief Committees, referred to in Report.

SIR,

Board Room, Mohill, January 18, 1848.

THE administration of out-door relief under the new Poor Law, is assuming such importance in this Union, from the excessive amount of destitution which must now be met, that we are anxious to secure the co-operation of those having local influence and information. A few respectable members of the late Relief Committees in each district, if they would act, could afford the Vice-Guardians material assistance, and render an important service to themselves by preventing imposition, and thus securing economy—an important point in connexion with future rates.

The assistance we seek is of this kind, that two or three members should form themselves into a sort of auxiliary body, and as often as might be convenient, inspect the relieving officer's books, and keep an eye on their conduct in the discharge of their duties; and by these means ascertain, that while no person coming within classes which they are empowered to relieve, may arrive at the last stage of destitution, the feignedly destitute, or those not proper for relief, may be prevented becoming a burden on the rates.

We address you as Chairman of the late Committee, and should you coincide in our views, we will be happy to place ourselves in further communication with you, so that the system of co-operation we propose might be at once organised.

Waiting an early reply,

We have, &c.,

JAMES M. O'REILLY, }
R. A. DUNCAN, } Vice-Guardians.

REPLY to the above :—February 2, 1848.

IN reference to the circular addressed by you to the Chairman of the late Relief Committees in Mohill Union, proposing the formation of a Committee or auxiliary body to inspect the administration of out-door relief by the relieving officers, I am to state that the Commissioners will be obliged by your not issuing circulars on subjects connected with the Poor Laws until such circulars have been previously submitted to the Commissioners.

The Commissioners deem it right to point out that much inconvenience may arise from the appointment of these Committees, unless it is distinctly understood by all parties that the Committees have no authority whatever over the relieving officers, and that the functions of the Committees will chiefly be restricted to the supplying the relieving officers and the Vice-Guardians with accurate information on the circumstances of applicants for relief.

I WAS present during the whole of the last two days (the 19th and 20th instant) at the Board-room of the Mohill workhouse, while the Vice-Guardians were engaged in examining the books of their relieving officers, and deciding upon the numerous cases of applicants there reported. It was found impossible to get through the books of more than three of these by seven o'clock on Wednesday evening, and the rest were resumed and completed before proceeding to the regular business of the Board yesterday. Having made inquiries in other quarters, as well as paid close attention to the replies of these officers to the examination by the Vice-Guardians, I am enabled to report very favourably of the zeal and qualifications of three of them—Messrs. Nicholson, Costello, and Duke. The others are less active and capable; but they shall be carefully observed and stimulated in the performance of their duties.

I am, however, convinced by the information I obtain elsewhere, as well as by the admissions of these officers themselves, that the extent of their districts, and the severity of the distress, at present prevents any of them from making the requisite inquiries into the circumstances of all the applicants.

Two of the most active and intelligent of these officers stated distinctly, that they had (each) upwards of 200 applications from persons whom they had not been able to visit nor inquire into their cases, and that they could hardly expect to be able to do so in the course of the ensuing week, even setting aside all fresh applications; and as they are now fully occupied two days in each week, one in dispensing the out-door relief allowances, and one in coming in to the Board and submitting their books, besides much work in filling these up at night, it is certainly out of their power adequately to perform their laborious duties.

I have recommended to the Vice-Guardians to employ, for the present, assistants to distribute the allowances of meal in the presence of these officers, until the subject can be laid before you, and to endeavour to contract with some of the bakers in the towns to supply coarse bread; and by furnishing the relieving officers with tickets to give to the persons on their list, entitling them to obtain at the bakers the assigned rations to expedite the dispensing of relief in food.

For the furtherance of this object, the completion of the proposed oven at the workhouse would be highly beneficial.

The number of names now on the out-door relief list exceeds 3000, and must be expected largely to increase for several weeks; but the relieving officers have been able hitherto to avoid taking on it any able-bodied males, by offering to applicants of this class admission to the workhouse, which is almost invariably declined.

They all concur in stating, that if any of these shall be relieved out of doors they will universally throw themselves on the list, and abandon such employment as they at present can at times obtain from the farmers or otherwise.

In my inspection of the workhouse this week I found little change to remark. The Vice-Guardians seem compelled to abandon the hope of attaining any substantial improvement until they shall have installed a new set of officers. The clerk and schoolmaster are still (from sickness) absent from their duties; and I have previously stated my opinion of the incompetency and want of energy of the present master. I would hope that the foundation has at length been laid for a reformation of the present defects. Yesterday, a tender (the first and only one in reply to the many advertisements and applications made) was given in for the clearing out of the cesspools and privies, without which preliminary step no exertions could have amended the state of the yards and premises, in which, as well as even in the house, the senses are revolted by the habitual violation of all decency. This tender was immediately accepted, and orders given to proceed with the work.

The Vice-Guardians also, yesterday, elected out of five or six candidates for the situation of master a Mr. Moran, at present filling the office of porter in the Roscommon workhouse. Of this appointment I fully approve, as the very high testimonials he produced, and the great intelligence and knowledge of the duties evinced by Mr. Moran in reply to the inquiries of the Vice-Guardians, afford ground to expect that he will prove a valuable officer; and it is only to be regretted that he cannot at once enter upon the duties, as the Vice-Guardians cannot dispense with his services at Roscommon for a fortnight. Mr. Jenkins has, consequently, been continued in office for that term.

No very eligible candidate for the office of matron having appeared, the Vice-Guardians decided not to fill up the situation, but to engage on trial the daughter of Mr. Moran, whose age (22 years) appears the principal objection.

With respect to the completion of the rate-books and the collection of the new rate, I have to state that, as yet, but nine of these books are ready; that I cannot suggest any means of compelling the valuator to greater expedition, as he appears to be at present daily at work; and the incompleteness and inaccuracy of the former valuation renders it highly inadvisable to sign a rate in any division, the revision of which is not finished, as any time apparently gained would be more than counterbalanced by subsequent difficulties and delays in the collection.

Within the last week, several persons, apparently eligible, have been named as likely to come forward, or have actually proposed, to collect the new rate; but the insufficiency of the securities offered, or the delay consequent in making the necessary inquiries as to their solvency, has prevented their appointment.

Much time has been consumed by Mr. O'Brien naming various persons, who proved to be insufficient securities; but as he has produced one that is satisfactory, and has promised to bring forward this day another, the Vice-Guardians are desirous of retaining his services; and I conceive that his experience and his knowledge of the divisions he is to undertake, will render him a very efficient collector under the form of Bond No. 6 (2). A son of Mr. O'Brien's is appointed collector for the division of Eslin, which, I have no doubt, he will execute satisfactorily.

Mr. O'Brien, the attorney to the Board, was examined as to his proceedings against immediate lessors; and explained with regard to the case of Dr. Collins, who complained that he had not been applied to for his rates previous to the commencement of an action for recovery.

With respect to this case, as well as very many others, of which I caused the collector to furnish a list in November, I may remark, that I received the collector's assurance, in reply to my inquiry into each and every case, that repeated applications had been made to all the lessors when resident in the kingdom, and when non-resident to the agents of the respective estates, but without success.

Mohill Union.

I have no doubt that these applications were so made, and I trust that the enforcement of the claim by law, in a few instances, will induce the agents in general to pay the arrears due, as well as the new rates, when demanded.

As there is but one collector as yet engaged, it must be some time before any considerable amount can be obtained for the support of the increasing numbers of destitute.

I am happy to state that I have not heard of any increasing virulence of fever. The Vice-Guardians have obtained a suitable house for a temporary fever hospital near Carrigallen; but at Ballinamore there is much greater difficulty: one has been hired, of which the owner may be induced to let. For the fitting up of these I would venture to suggest, that, if there be any cast military bedding to be obtained, a grant of same would be well applied to this distressed Union, whose finances can ill bear any expenditure, and whose property is liable to be seized by creditors, whom there will be no possible means of paying for a long period.

REPLY to the above:—February 4, 1848.

THE Commissioners have expressed to the Vice-Guardians approval of the employment of Temporary Assistants to the relieving officers of Mohill Union, as recommended by you.

In reference to the fitting up of the temporary fever hospitals, I am to state that there is no cast military bedding now remaining at the disposal of the Commissioners.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 21, 1848.

IN reply to your letter, enclosing copy of a communication from Dr. Collins, of Dublin, relative to proceedings instituted against him by the solicitor of this Union, for the recovery of rates due by him to the Mohill Board of Guardians, we beg leave to state that we have obtained from the solicitor to the Board the enclosed documents, explanatory of the course he has taken, and showing, we think satisfactorily, that Dr. Collins has no cause of complaint as regards want of notice; on the contrary, he had received notice as far back as the month of October last.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. O'BRIEN to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—January 20, 1848.

I RECEIVED your communication with Dr. Collins's statement to the Commissioners, and in reply have to inform you and the Commissioners, that in October last I addressed a letter to Dr. Collins, which I enclosed under cover to his agent, Mr. Benison, of Ballyconnell, informing him that I was instructed by the Board of Guardians to proceed against him, and I got Mr. Benison's reply to that letter in November, complaining of not getting the particulars of the rates due by each occupier; and to oblige Dr. Collins and Mr. Benison, I applied for that information to the collector and was refused, and then wrote a second letter to Mr. Benison, informing him that the collector declined to give particulars, and again stating the necessity I was under of proceeding on my former letter to Dr. Collins, and got his answer to that letter in December. I then had a personal interview with Mr. Benison, when he stated he would send his bailiff to the collector to settle the account on the 14th December. I again met Mr. Benison in Dublin, on the 20th December, and repeated my application, when he promised again to have it settled, and that he instructed his bailiff to do so. I met the bailiff on the 2nd of January, and found he had done nothing, and I could not incur your censure longer, and if Mr. Benison did not forward my communications to his principal, but took on himself to reply to me, it was not my fault. Both Dr. Collins and Mr. Benison are gentlemen I have a respect for, and my proceedings was not to make costs, and lest they should suppose so, or that it would be imputed to me that I acted discourteously to any gentleman, I would take the costs out of pocket, and forego the rest on Dr. Collins paying his rates.

Mr. O'BRIEN to Dr. COLLINS:—October 21, 1847.

I HAVE received instructions from the Board of Guardians of Mohill Union, to apply to you, as the immediate lessor, for payment of the rates chargeable against you as such immediate lessor, on your property in the Union, and my instructions are to proceed for recovery of them if not immediately paid.

THE foregoing is the copy of the first letter sent Dr. Collins, under cover to his agent on 21st October last; and enclosed is the copy of another letter addressed to Dr. Collins, through the same medium of his agent on the 29th November after, and his agent, Mr. Benison's reply, dated 3rd December last, so that on the whole I took very great pains to induce a payment from Dr. Collins before I proceeded, and not until I incurred great censure from the Board.

Mohill Union.

Mr. O'BRIEN to Dr. COLLINS :—November 29, 1847.

THE Guardians of the Mohill Union have entered a resolution on their books that I should be removed as their solicitor, should I not forthwith proceed against you for payment of the sum of 12*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.* due for poor-rates on the property you represent in the Union.

Mr. BENISON to Mr. O'BRIEN :—December 3, 1847.

I BEG to acknowledge the receipt of your's relative to the resolution of the Board of Guardians of the Mohill Union, and the penalty attached to a disobedience of orders.

I shall make no comment on the courtesy of the Guardians; the resolution speaks for itself.

Now, as regards the sum claimed, in my opinion the collector has made a great mistake, and although anxious to pay every shilling due by Dr. Collins, yet I feel it necessary to ascertain what is really chargeable on his property, and I am ready to meet the collector for that purpose, provided he gives me two or three days' notice, or in any other way enables me to satisfy myself that his claim is correct.

The COMMISSIONERS to Dr. COLLINS :—January 24, 1848.

ADVERTING to your communication of the 17th instant, relative to the legal proceedings taken against you by the solicitor to the Vice-Guardians of Mohill Union, for payment of rate due by you, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you that the Commissioners have made inquiry on the subject, and they find that the solicitor, Mr. O'Brien, addressed you personally by letter, dated 21st October, demanding the rates, and again addressed your agent on the 29th November, stating that he was directed by the Board of Guardians to proceed for the recovery of the rates on pain of being dismissed from his employment as solicitor to the Board.

The agent appears to have disputed the amount and postponed settlement, and Mr. O'Brien, under pressure from the Vice-Guardians, appears to have issued writs in this and other cases, and the Vice-Guardians express their opinion that sufficient demand had been made, and ample notice given of the intention to proceed, before the writ was issued.

Mr. O'Brien, however, expresses his willingness to accept costs out of pocket, if the rates be paid, and the Commissioners recommend you to communicate with him accordingly.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—January 26, 1848.

IN reference to recent communications, I am directed by the Commissioners to transmit herewith, for your information, a copy of a communication which the Commissioners have received from Dr. Collins respecting the legal proceedings taken against him for recovery of poor-rates.

ENCLOSURE.

Dr. COLLINS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 25, 1848.

IN reference to your letter of yesterday, I beg to state, in the most distinct terms, that it is totally incorrect to state that the solicitor, Mr. O'Brien, ever addressed me personally.

I informed the Commissioners in my statement that I had never received any notice whatever that the debt was due.

From what I have stated, the opinion of the Vice-Guardians, as to my having had sufficient notice, is most unjustifiable, and, I have no doubt, the Court of Queen's Bench would protect me from such proceedings.

I have to return the Commissioners my best thanks, and remain, &c.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 21, 1848.

HAVING decided on providing increased accommodation by means of erections on the workhouse premises, we beg to submit to you a statement of our proposed mode of effecting this arrangement, and if you approve of it, to request the favour of your procuring for us from Mr. Wilkinson, the architect, the necessary working drawings and specifications, should that course appear to you desirable. On learning the result of this communication, we shall proceed at once to advertise for contracts for the undertaking.

We propose to raise another floor over the idiot wards, and to remove all the subdividing walls in the lower story. There is not a single idiot or lunatic inmate of the workhouse at present, nor from the number of that class heretofore inmates, is it likely they will become applicants to any extent in future, which would require special wards for their use. Accommodation for at least 50 beds, we think, could be provided by this means easily and inexpensively; and the increase in the proportion of sickness amongst workhouse inmates, beyond what was originally contemplated, renders increased space in this department specially desirable.

We propose further to erect thatched shed buildings, or such other description of building as Mr. Wilkinson might suggest, at rear of children's yards respectively, communicating with male and female yards, to suit for both day-room and dormitory purposes.

We desire altogether to provide space for 200 additional paupers; and our limited resources demand that the most rigid economy forms a leading feature in our design.

We would venture further to bring under your notice the desirability of having proper means of supervision extended to the construction of these buildings. Now that the building of the fever ward, (an important work,) the erection of the oven, and the execution of the repairs will be in progress simultaneously we are strongly impressed with the necessity there exists for a resident Clerk of Works. From the habits of the tradespeople in this locality we conceive, indisposed as we are to encourage expenditure, the real interests of the Union would be much promoted by the employment of such an officer.

1. WE beg now to submit to you our usual weekly report on the affairs of the Mohill Union.

Rates and Rate-Collectors.

2. The lodgments of last week consist of 61*l.*, made by Mr. O'Brien, as alluded to in report of 18th instant, from his collection of the old rate. Part of this sum is arrears already introduced into new rate, but for the recovery of which proceedings had been pending at the time of the transfer of the arrears. In point of fact, therefore, Mr. O'Brien's collection in respect of this sum has extended beyond the four electoral divisions of which he was at the time collector; and this circumstance will require care in recording the transaction in the accounts.

3. Mr. O'Brien and his son (whom we have substituted in his stead for one division) having perfected their bonds for the collection of the fresh rate in two electoral divisions, we have been able to place in collection the additional sum of 1,191*l.*, making in all 2,691*l.* of the new rate, which is now in actual collection; and we are not without prospects of our finances soon being moderately recruited from this source.

4. Of the collectors we have appointed for six other electoral divisions, none have yet entered into the necessary security. One has resigned; but he was for a division upon which the rate is not yet made. Threats and entreaties have alike proved useless in producing promptitude on the part of these men. We have given them until Wednesday to perfect their bonds; and failing compliance on that day, we must of necessity annul their appointments, whatever be the consequences. We need not say how dispiriting to us are these constant disappointments; but they are characteristic of the people, and afford further evidence of the interminable difficulties that surround every act of our administration. For Cloone Division—the worst in the Union as regards poverty and lawlessness, the rate never having been there properly collected, and large arrears accumulated in consequence—we have not yet obtained a collector, although with many offers, but which are all inadequate. We are now satisfied that a suitable local person cannot be procured, and must act accordingly, at any sacrifice.

5. We are promised a payment this week from Mr. O'Brien, our solicitor, on account of arrears due by immediate lessors, with whom he is connected. Failing in this, he ceases to be our law agent the earliest moment we can accomplish the disruption. Next to the impoverished occupiers, the recovery of the arrears due from the immediate lessors of property in the courts, is the most hopeless, and a considerable portion of arrears comes under this description.

In-door Relief.

6. In pursuance of our system of alone relieving able-bodied men in the workhouse, and testing by reception therein all other cases which appeared of a doubtful character, we admitted upwards of 100 paupers during last week. This course has had excellent results in discriminating destitution. Although our arrangements do not yet permit us to make these fresh inmates as comfortable as we could wish, still we trust they are safely accommodated. Every effort is being used by us to put into use the requisites for the proper treatment of all the inmates.

7. We are anxious to make the removal of paupers from the workhouse to the care of the relieving officers the last expedient, for this reason, that it will more or less affect the efficacy of the workhouse test, as the acceptance of relief therein cannot be judged as a just criterion of destitution, when it apparently forms the channel to out-door relief. The privations of the workhouse will be suffered for a time, when out-relief cheers the prospect. The pressure from classes other than able-bodied men will thus likely become severe when we commence removing paupers from the workhouse. But this is better to be endured, we think, than commencing yet to relieve the labourers out of doors; and to preserve space for such and their families we will submit to pressure from other classes until by the provision of increased accommodation we can offer the true safeguard of workhouse relief to all.

8. We appointed at last meeting a master and matron, the former recommended to us by the highest testimonials; the matron, his daughter, who appears to us, perhaps, rather young, we take on trial; and her permanent appointment will, of course, depend on the manner she performs her duties during this probation. They both take charge on the 3rd February next.

9. We have put in occupation the auxiliary house in Mohill, which we have taken, and it will enable us to relieve the workhouse most beneficially of the sick labouring under infectious diseases. We await your reply to our application for plans for sheds, &c., to commence these buildings at once, (first advertising for tenders), and we are happy to find by a communication made to us this day, that facilities we did not expect may possibly offer for their construction.

Out-door Relief.

10. We placed upwards of 1000 on our register last week, making upwards of 3000 now receiving out-relief from us. We expect an increased number of applicants in the week we are now in. Impelled by the miserable aspect of such increasing destitution, we have allowed each relieving officer to employ an assistant at a small rate of remuneration, for whose conduct he is responsible. We urge continually the relieving officers to persevere in zeal and activity in their duties, and we are prepared to take whatever further measures may be necessary in the way of additional assistance, should that step appear necessary to arrest the further progress of famine.

11. Your increased confidence manifested in our recent appointment to manage the affairs of Carrick-on-Shannon Union we are most grateful for, and the duties there will not, we are sure, detract from the attention necessary to be bestowed at Mohill. Our extended sphere of action may, possibly, afford facilities for the transaction of business not hitherto possessed.

WE have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of 26th instant, forwarding copy of a report from Mr. Wilkinson, your architect, relative to the additional buildings proposed to be erected at the Mohill Union workhouse, and also containing observations regarding the repairs of the present buildings.

Mohill Union.

In reference thereto, we beg to state, that we cannot exactly infer from this communication that you approve of our proposed plans of raising a second floor on idiot wards, and constructing shed buildings, or that we may expect the working plans and specifications for same will be prepared by Mr. Wilkinson.

As we propose to advertise for tenders at once, for the execution of the undertaking, we shall be glad to learn if your sanction will be extended to it.

We shall attend to Mr. Wilkinson's suggestions regarding the repairs, and are much gratified at the prospect of having the services of a clerk of works, which we anticipate will be most important.

REPLY to the above :—February 2, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' sanction of the additional buildings and alterations proposed; and am at the same time to state that Mr. Wilkinson will communicate with the clerk of works on the subject by this night's post.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 28, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to lay before you my weekly report upon the state of the Mohill Union.

I attended the meeting of the Vice-Guardians at the Board-room, on Wednesday and yesterday, which were protracted to a very late hour, especially yesterday, on which we did not leave the Board-room until past nine o'clock at night. The examination of the relieving officers' books occupied the greater part of both days, although the actual increase to the number of persons added to the relief lists has not been as great during the past week as I had anticipated, hardly exceeding 800.

I observe that the workhouse test, which the Vice-Guardians have as yet been enabled to maintain for the male able-bodied poor, and for doubtful cases of other classes, operates in this Union with great stringency, not only in consequence of the fear that all the houses left by those who enter the workhouse will be pulled down, and that the parties may be unable hereafter to obtain any habitation, but also from the very natural alarm with which the house is regarded in consequence of the extreme mortality within its walls last autumn. Its improved sanitary condition obviates any real danger, but will not overcome the repugnance of the many whose relatives died there. I conceive, however, that this must yield to the extremity of want now pressing severely on numbers; and it is much to be lamented that a variety of works projected under the "Land Improvement Act," and which would have employed the greater proportion of men of this class in various localities throughout the Union during this and the ensuing month (the period of greatest pressure), have been delayed, owing to various causes.

Three of the lately appointed collectors appeared on Wednesday, and perfected their bonds, and the securities for a fourth were also signed. They appear to be all competent persons, and I anticipate a much more earnest and vigorous collection than has hitherto been exercised; but the revised valuation for two of the electoral divisions assigned to one of these persons, is as yet unfinished, and there are also three divisions for which collectors have not yet been found. The Vice-Guardians hope to obtain these within another week or fortnight.

The attorney to the Board, whose non-payment of considerable arrears of rates on estates for which he is agent and receiver, I had brought especially before the notice of the late Board of Guardians, and had mentioned in my earlier reports, had last week promised to the Vice-Guardians that these (to the amount of 50*l.*) should be lodged with the collector, Mr. O'Brien, within the following week. It appears that this was not performed, and the Vice-Guardians resolved upon the step of dismissing him and employing another attorney, the necessity for which I had long before represented.

From the incompetency of the present officers the workhouse continues in nearly the same unsatisfactory state, with great irregularity and intermixture of classes in the day-rooms, little employment for the adults, and no education whatever for the children; the meals still unequally distributed, and (although three boilers are in use) the second meal of the day not over until seven or eight o'clock. Until the new master assumes office, and an able assistant be procured, I despair of seeing any amendment in these points.

As the clerk and schoolmaster continue sick, I have again advised the employment of temporary substitutes, who might, if qualified, succeed to these appointments, as the clerk is not likely to recover, and the schoolmaster is totally unfit for the situation.

It will be perceived that, although the foundation has been laid for an amended state of the Union affairs, I cannot report much visible change; but, in truth, the task undertaken by the Vice-Guardians is most arduous. As these gentlemen have now been appointed also to the same situation for Carrick-on-Shannon Union, I may remark that, in my opinion, the presence of one or other will be absolutely requisite at Mohill four days in the week; and that not less than three, for the transaction of regular business by both, will suffice for several weeks to come.

Mohill Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 31, 1848.

WE beg to lay before you our seventh report of our proceedings as paid officers of the Mohill Union.

We are happy in being able to state, that during the past week we have been more successful than the former in procuring rate collectors, five persons having perfected their bonds, thus enabling us to place in collection the following sums :—

Collectors.

Wm. O'Hara,	for {	Ballinamore	.	.	£1200
		Oughteragh	.	.	350
Samuel Johnson,		Aghavas	.	.	621
Farrell Kiernan,		Drumreilly	.	.	450
John O'Brien, jun.,		Eslin	.	.	435
John O'Brien, Esq.,		Rinn	.	.	755
Wm. Lander,		Annaduff	.	.	856

£4667

Making a total of 4667*l.*, which has been put in actual collection during the past week; and we now only await the revising valuator's movements, which are approaching completion, to place the entire Union in a similar position.

Owing to the impossibility of procuring the services of a proper person to collect the rate in the electoral divisions of Cloone and Annaghveagh, it is our intention to advertise for a person from some other locality to perform this service.

The lodgments this week, as appearing from the treasurer's book (14*l.* 11*s.* 7*d.*), have not been as great as those preceding it, chiefly from the very severe weather having prevented the collectors from pursuing their calling. The coming week we hope will be more satisfactory in this respect.

Mr. O'Brien, solicitor to the Board, having failed in fulfilling his promise of paying in during the week several large sums due by immediate lessors whom he represents, has ceased to be our law agent, and we shall proceed on next Thursday to place our business in other hands.

We had, as before alluded to, rented a house in the town of Mohill, for the purpose of additional workhouse accommodation, and had removed to it all cases of infectious disease, numbering about 30; but having been waited on by a deputation of the townspeople, remonstrating against our introducing a fever hospital into the centre of their town, and offering us the use of the temporary fever hospital for the present, we at once accepted their offer, and immediately removed those persons whom we had just sent from the workhouse, from the town to the sheds. We had the house fumigated, and have since sent to it the infants, with their mothers, from the workhouse, thus affording us additional day-room and dormitory accommodation for about 50 women, and enabling us to keep the house as a test for the able-bodied men with wives, whom, had we not had this means of relieving, we should have been obliged to put on the out-door list, a course we have not yet been driven to pursue.

The amount of destitution is daily increasing, the out-door list exhibiting upwards of 4000 names, not one of which belong to the class able-bodied; and we shall continue to exert ourselves to the utmost by taking more houses in the town, if necessary, rather than be obliged, by want of space in the workhouse, to relieve one man who could be considered as coming under that objectionable class for out-door relief.

We have allowed each relieving officer to employ, at a small weekly stipend, an assistant, whose duty it will be to distribute (under the superintendence of the relieving officer) the rations to each applicant, and for whom the relieving officer becomes responsible to us; much time having been hitherto spent in the issuing of rations which might have been more advantageously employed in visiting cases and receiving fresh applications for relief.

We have every hope that next week will exhibit a great change for the better in the management of the workhouse, as from Thursday, the 3rd of February, the new master will commence his services; and from the increased cause of complaint, Mr. Jacking, the late master, has furnished us with (he not having kept one book properly during the past week), we have every cause to rejoice at having his situation, of so much consequence, filled by one on whom we can rely with confidence.

REPLY to the above:—February 8, 1848.

I AM to request you will send replies to queries respecting any collectors of poor rate in Mohill Union, whose appointments may not yet have received the Commissioners' sanction.

I am also to state that the Commissioners approve of your allowing each relieving officer to employ, at a small weekly remuneration, an assistant, for the purposes specified in your report.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 2, 1848.

WE have the honour to report that the relieving officer formerly appointed under your sanction for the district comprising the electoral divisions of Newtown Gore, Drumreilly, and Carrigallen, having tendered his resignation, we have thought fit to accept it; and previous to proceeding to elect a successor, we beg permission to submit to you our opinion, that the extent of destitution at present existing renders it impossible for one individual to visit all the urgent cases, or effectively to perform the duties of that office; and we therefore request your sanction to our advertising for, and electing on the 17th instant two relieving officers, one for the Carrigallen electoral division, and one for the district comprising Drumreilly and Newtown Gore; to each of whom we should propose to assign a salary of 35l.

REPLY to the above:—February 8, 1848.

WITH reference to your suggestion that two relieving officers should be appointed for the above-mentioned divisions, in consequence of the inability of one person to perform effectually the duties of that office, I am to express the Commissioners' approval of the appointment of two relieving officers for these divisions, as proposed.

Major HALIDAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 4, 1848.

IN submitting, for your information, my weekly report upon the state of the Mohill Union, I have but little change to remark from the aspect of affairs last week. The state of the workhouse is still in all respects unsatisfactory—the present master having been absent from, or neglected his duties, the master newly appointed not having arrived up to 8 o'clock last night, at which hour I left the Board-room.

A considerable number of admissions have been made during the past week; but the fever patients having been removed to the temporary fever hospital without the town, which has been handed over to the Vice-Guardians by the late Relief Committee, and about two-thirds of the infant children with their mothers or nurses placed in a house hired as extra accommodation in the town; there still remains some available space in the workhouse for the admission of male able-bodied destitute persons and their families, and out-door relief to that class has not yet been found necessary.

The increase to the numbers of other classes in the out-door relief list cannot be much short of 1000; but the exact number was not ascertained nor registered up to the hour at which I left, the mere examination of the relieving officers' books, and the decision on the applications, having occupied the greater part of Wednesday and yesterday up to a late hour.

One of the two relieving officers, respecting whose qualifications I lately expressed some doubts, yesterday tendered his resignation, at the same time stating that it was impossible for him to get through a district of such extent, or to visit half the cases of application for relief; and he represented the extent of distress as extremely great. As he must continue in the office until a successor be appointed, I thought it necessary to warn him as to the necessity of using his utmost exertions, and of the heavy responsibility he would incur if any deaths occurred from destitution unrelieved among the applicants to him who had a legal claim to such relief.

A few cases were also exhibited by the other relieving officers of persons struck off the list (in consequence of later and more accurate information obtained in the course of their inquiries respecting their circumstances), who had obtained relief in the first instance by false statements, or the collusion of their neighbours as to their holding more than a quarter of an acre of land; many in this position are using every artifice to obtain out-door relief, and others preparing to make bargains for giving up their land.

During the present period of extreme pressure upon the relieving officers, whose whole time is not sufficient for the full performance of their duties of distribution, and of personal visits of inquiry, several such cases of mistake must be expected to occur; but these will be arrested as they become more intimately acquainted with their respective districts, and are of little importance as compared with the opposite danger, that any should be left unrelieved who are in extreme want, and legally entitled to assistance.

The most active and intelligent of these officers all mentioned the gratifying fact, that many of the most respectable of the ratepayers were now in the habit of coming forward and communicating to them valuable information as to the actual circumstances of the various applicants for relief, exhibiting both the humane anxiety that it should be extended liberally to those in actual want, and also the counterbalancing motive of prudent regard for their own interests, in keeping off the rates those who have other resources, or who retain land above the limit. The evoking of this salutary mixture of motives, and thus enlisting in the practical working of the law the co-operation of those most interested in its efficacy, appears to me an excellent augury for the future; and coupled with the very generally avowed dislike to see out-door relief given to any able-bodied persons, indicates a growing conviction of the justice of the principle upon which the Poor Law is founded.

Within the last week the bodies of three deceased persons were left exposed on the burying-ground adjacent to the workhouse, where they remained for two or three nights. These were subsequently interred without coffins by order of the Vice-Guardians; and as the law does not admit of providing coffins for the destitute who have not been relieved within the workhouse, it will be necessary to discourage in every possible way, the tendency manifested to throw upon its officers the task of interring those whose relatives are unable or unwilling to provide a decent burial.

The valuator makes very little progress in his revision: he has not yet completed any additional division; and I am sorry to find that there are some gross errors already detected in those he has finished. Some of these being misstatements as to the names of proprietors, immediate lessors, being only sources of confusion, but not invalidating the rate, I have directed the collector to note and correct in pencil for his own information, and to proceed at once to recover from the party properly chargeable.

Proposals have been made for the collection of another electoral division, and there is now only one for which no tender to collect has been received, but the delay in the revision will prevent the collection becoming general for some weeks. It will, I think, be pushed on vigorously for the divisions completed; and I trust that the Union will be enabled from this time to defray its current expenses, although a long time may elapse before the Vice-Guardians are possessed of funds to discharge the heavy outstanding debts.

IN reference to that part of your report which states that the valuator has committed errors as to the names of proprietors and immediate lessors, I am to observe, that where errors of this kind are made by the valuator they should not be carried into the rate-books, if discovered in time, but the party properly chargeable should be rated.

ROSCOMMON UNION—Dissolution of Board of Guardians.

Captain EVANS, Temporary Inspector, to the COMMISSIONERS:—
December 16, 1847.

I ARRIVED here on Tuesday last, and immediately waited on the Vice-Chairman of the Board of Guardians (in the absence of Lord Crofton). I then inspected the workhouse, and, from what I could hear, everything connected with the poor-house is in a deplorable state. The house has nearly 200 over the number for which it was built, and upwards of 100 fever patients in the body of it.

The house is in debt to the amount of 6222*l.*, out of which there is upwards of 3000*l.* due to the baker. He has just been with me, and has informed me that unless there is something done for him, he must discontinue the supply, which would close the house. After the meeting of the Board on Tuesday, I trust I shall be able to lay before you a correct statement of the Union. &c.

OBSERVATIONS of Mr. FLANAGAN, Poor Law Inspector, on the foregoing:—
December 22, 1847.

THE fever patients referred to, are in wards separate from the other inmates of the house. Two of the long dormitories running at right angles to the main front are, and have been for months, appropriated to their use.

The new fever hospital is not yet (from want of beds, bedding, &c.) ready for their reception. In my opinion, the hospital accommodation in this Union is quite insufficient, as the new fever hospital will not accommodate more than about half the number of patients now in the house.

The CENTRAL BOARD of HEALTH to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 10, 1847.

I AM directed by the Central Board of Health to forward for the information of the Commissioners, the enclosed copy of a report from Dr. Shanley, medical officer of the temporary fever hospital at Strokestown, in Roscommon Union.

ENCLOSURE.

Dr. SHANLEY to the CENTRAL BOARD of HEALTH:—December 8, 1847.

I BEG leave to state, for your information, that disease and mortality consequent on privation and neglect are frightfully on the increase in this district, and if funds are not forthwith available even for the decent burial of the dead the consequence to the surviving portion of the population must be truly alarming. As many as five in, and within half a mile of this town have fallen victims to disease within the last few days, without any covering to protect their remains from public observation, save a few boards widely nailed together. A charitable donation of 10*l.* was some time since given by the chairman of the Board of Guardians of the Union, drawn in favour of Major Mahon, but in consequence of his sudden and barbarous assassination was forthwith returned. Almost all the resident gentry have left this neighbourhood, and the remaining few, from the number of Maguireite notices they are in the daily habit of receiving, are afraid to leave their own homes, or take a part in public business. All aid from English and other charitable societies is withdrawn, on the plea that they would "no longer continue support to murderers."

This doctrine, if universally acted on, I make no doubt will have the effect of quartering at least the well disposed of the lower orders, while the assassins can walk abroad with the most perfect impunity, shooting and getting rid of the wealth and intelligence of the land, that they may have the country to themselves, which is avowedly their object.

OBSERVATIONS of Mr. FLANAGAN, Poor Law Inspector:—December 16, 1847.

THE representations of Dr. Shanley I fully believe; they accord with all the reports I have from time to time made upon the state of the Union. It is one of those which I do not think will ever work efficiently and well until paid Guardians be appointed. Much as I am opposed as a general rule to the appointment of those officers, the apathy and inactivity of the Board, will, I fear, compel the Commissioners to resort to that measure. I remember not very long ago when for three successive Board days (for two certainly) there was no meeting; the most active of the Guardians, Lord Crofton, has left the country, and the Board is consequently deprived of his services, and the Commissioners of his aid, which he was ever most willing to lend in carrying out their views and suggestions.

Roscommon
Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain EVANS, Temporary Inspector :—
December 21, 1847.

I AM directed to forward herewith a copy of the observations of Mr. Flanagan, relative to the appointment of paid officers to perform the duties of the present Board of Guardians of the Roscommon Union, and I am to request that you will be so good as to furnish the Commissioners with your views on the subject.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 22, 1847.

IN answer to your letter of the 21st instant, enclosing me a copy of Mr. Flanagan's letter, relative to the appointment of paid officers, and requesting my observations on the subject, I beg leave to state, that yesterday being the Board day, I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Flanagan; and the very first observation I made to him was, "I fear we must have a paid Board." I fully agree with Mr. Flanagan, the only active member has left the country, and nothing will be done.

In fact, the affairs of the Union are in such a state, that unless the most prompt and active steps are at once taken, the consequences will be very serious.

There appears to be no inclination on the part of the gentlemen or the Guardians, to attend to business, or look after their own interests; the county being in such a deplorable state, that the gentlemen who come in five, ten, and fifteen miles, are thinking more of returning home than anything else. Under these circumstances, no business can possibly be done.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 23, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians on Tuesday. My main object was to call their attention to the state of their finances, for I regret to say that they have no funds in hands, and they are in debt nearly 7000*l*. The cause of this, it would appear, is, that the Guardians had appointed a revising officer, who was never qualified for the situation, and has never taken any pains or trouble about the revision: nor could they, till a week ago, get the rate-books from him, to enable them to sign the books and collect the rates. However, the books were signed and warrants issued, and I gave the collectors orders to collect the rates immediately; but unfortunately, the arrears were not included in the present warrant, and till they are, the warrants must stand over before they can be acted upon.

Mr. Flanagan wished to have an adjourned meeting, in two or three days; but the Chairman who had signed the warrants would not consent to do so till next Board day. He is an old gentleman, living five miles from this, and unable to come the distance; therefore the collection will necessarily be put off for a week; but I trust, I shall be able to make the collectors discharge their duties. I have given them to understand that the rates must be collected, and that without delay, and that if they could not do it, I must find others who could. I hope in the course of a month, a considerable sum may be collected. One of the Board proposed that, as a rate of 3*s*. in the pound had been struck, amounting to upwards of 13,000*l*., which would be immediately collected, and as the creditors, including the principal one on whose supply the house is supported, were becoming very troublesome, and in some instances, taking legal proceedings and putting them to unnecessary expense, he proposed to memorialize the Commissioners for a loan of 7000*l*., on the security of the rates, to pay off their liabilities, and commence on a different principle, as at present the working of the system is ruinous.

The paupers are fed on bread, at 1*ld*. per 4*lb*. loaf, which in Longford is 5*d*.; and cash price here 7*d*. Milk, if such it can be called, at a most exorbitant charge, 9*d*. per gallon. In fact the contractors, knowing the position of the Guardians, can do and will do as they please. I thought the proposition a very good one, and the memorial was brought to me to forward, with any remarks I might have to make. I told the gentleman, a magistrate, that I could not conscientiously in the discharge of my duties, recommend the Commissioners to advance the required loan on these terms; but if the Board would pledge themselves to leave the sums that are now to be collected, in the hands of the treasurer untouched till the loan is liquidated, I would then have no objection to make the request; nor did I think, under the very trying circumstances, the Commissioners would refuse. From the little experience I have had I could not recommend the advance of money on the security of the rates, except in the manner I proposed; and I will undertake, if I am spared, that not a fraction of the new rate is touched till the amount of the loan is secure; and, rest assured, I will enforce a collection, as I am confident and am assured that there is ample means to meet the rates, except in some few cases. This matter is again to be brought before the Board on Tuesday next, and the memorial will be accordingly drawn up; and I would beg of the Commissioners to let me know if such a proposal would be entertained by them. Should the Commissioners comply, it will afford me an opportunity of extricating the Union out of a difficulty, and enable me to bring it in the course of a very short time to the order and discipline which the Commissioners have laid down in their instructions; but if not, I fear the result will be fatal.

The poor-house is in such a state of infection from fever, and the Guardians in the habit of daily sending paupers there to such an overcrowded house, that it is not safe for the officers or inmates to be among them, and with your sanction I would wish to put a stop to it. I spoke to the medical officer this day, and begged of him to look out for a couple of houses; and I now enclose a tender for one, 15*l.* per quarter, or 50*l.* a-year. One I purpose for the female children, and the other for the male, removing the schoolmaster and mistress with each; and I would suggest the removal of the fever patients to the new hospital, and the wards which were occupied by them to be whitewashed, and fumigated for one week. I shall then be able to receive the able-bodied applicants for relief, and thereby avoid the out-door relief, which, from experience, I will always discountenance.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. HARRISON to Captain EVANS:—December 23, 1847.

I PROPOSE giving you the use of the house of Coolmeen, and put it into repair, at 50*l.* per annum. I think it would accommodate about 200 persons, and in a very healthy situation.

REPLY to the above:—December 27, 1847.

I AM directed to state that the Commissioners approve of your taking the two houses referred to for the accommodation of children, and also of the steps taken by you as to the fever hospital.

I am, at the same time, directed to say, that the Commissioners have resolved to dissolve the Board of Guardians of the Roscommon Union; and the order for that purpose is issued this day.

The COMMISSIONERS to the GUARDIANS, with ORDER dissolving the Board:—
December 27, 1847.

THE COMMISSIONERS have had under consideration the state of the Roscommon Union, particularly with reference to its financial embarrassments, and the consequent inadequacy of the measures adopted by the Board of Guardians for affording relief to the destitute poor of the Union.

It appears that the Union is no less than 7000*l.* in debt, on account of its current expenses; that it owes 3000*l.* to its baker alone; that consequently the price of bread purchased by the Guardians is 4*d.* per loaf higher than the market price for ready money; and that the price of milk purchased by them is likewise exorbitantly high.

It further appears that, although the net annual value of the Union is 85,873*l.*, the Guardians have only collected 2625*l.* during eight months of the present year.

Moreover, the Commissioners are informed by their Inspector, Captain Evans, that the Guardians have signed the rate-books for a new rate, and have issued to the collectors their warrant for the collection of the new rate, without having included therein the arrears of the old rate.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioners have felt themselves bound seriously to consider whether the Guardians have effectually discharged their duty, and whether there is any reasonable prospect that the finances of the Union can be restored to a satisfactory state while the present system of management continues.

On the whole, the Commissioners have arrived at the conclusion that the Union could not have fallen into such a state of financial embarrassment without a serious default of duty on the part of the Guardians; and that there is no prospect of improvement for the future, unless the management of the affairs of the Union is transferred to different hands.

The Commissioners, therefore, transmit herewith a sealed order for the dissolution of the Roscommon Board of Guardians; and they will proceed forthwith to appoint paid officers to administer relief to the destitute poor in the Union, in accordance with the provisions of the Irish Poor Relief Acts.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 28, 1847.

I THIS day attended the Board of Guardians, when the order for their dissolution was read, and the Board dissolved. I trust the new officers will be soon sent down, as the distress is increasing daily, the creditors becoming clamorous, and the collectors unable to proceed with their collection, in consequence of not getting the warrants this day.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 29, 1847.

I HAVE the honour of acknowledging your letter of the 27th instant, approving of my taking the two houses for the children, and also the steps I proposed as to the fever hospital.

I have already taken one house, and will put it into thorough repair in the course of a few days, but I fear I shall have some difficulty in procuring another. I shall be in no hurry for the present, as the medical officer procured the loan last winter of two tents, which if erected close to the temporary fever hospital, with a few boards for flooring, it would answer well for the bad cases, and their supplies had from the hospital, and attended to by the nurses of the establishment. These tents are capable of accommodating at least 12 patients each, with the new fever hospital, the two tents, and the lunatic ward, which is at present used for fever patients, and which has a back door nearly adjoining the new fever hospital; and by fastening up the inner door and plastering it, the communication with the house would be shut out. By this means we might make room for at least 300 in the house, avoid out-door relief, and the expense of another house. The poorhouse has been so much neglected, that I find there are at present near 100 persons, who have recovered from fever and other diseases, confined to their beds for want of clothes, and upwards of 500 suffering from cough and chest affections for the want of sufficient clothing, &c.

The COMMISSIONERS to Count STRZELECKI :—December 31, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of a report which the Commissioners have received from Captain Evans, Temporary Inspector; and in reference thereto I am to state, that the Commissioners would feel much obliged if, under the circumstances therein stated, you would advance to them as a loan the sum of 300*l.*, to be placed at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians of the Roscommon Union, Messrs. Hugh O'Loughlin and Peter Quinn.

REPLY to the above :—January 3, 1848.

I HAVE authorized this day the Commissary-General to transmit to Captain H. Evans, Temporary Inspector of the Roscommon Union, the sum of 300*l.*, to be applied by him as directed in your letter, viz., that the sum is to be paid over by him to Messrs. Hugh O'Loughlin and Peter Quinn, Vice-Guardians of the Union.

I have advised Captain H. Evans of the above.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—January 5, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received a communication from Count Strzelecki, the Secretary of the British Relief Association, stating that he has authorized Commissary-General Sir R. Routh to transmit to Captain Evans, Temporary Inspector, the sum of 300*l.*, to be placed at your disposal for the use of the Roscommon Union.

Roscommon
Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 12, 1848.

IN accordance with your instructions, we beg to submit the following report of the affairs of this Union on our taking charge of it on the 3rd instant:—

We found 1072 paupers in the house and temporary fever hospital, of whom 188 were in fever, 42 in dysentery, and 81 labouring under other diseases. Many of the fever patients were in the body of the house, in consequence of the deficiency of hospital accommodation. Owing to the want of clothing, we found many of the paupers wearing their own filthy and insufficient clothes, and thereby increasing the unhealthiness of the house. Upwards of 100 were in the convalescent wards, confined to their beds for want of wearing apparel; thus retarding their own recovery, and interfering with the order and cleanliness of the establishment. The absence of the master, and the indisposition of the matron, together with the crowded state of the house, account for the very disorderly and dirty state in which we found it. There has been no qualified person in charge of the boys' school for more than one year, which, as might be expected, exhibits all the appearance of neglect, numbers of them being nearly naked.

The dietary in use was a most expensive one; the cost for maintenance for the week ending the 1st January, was 2*s.* 4½*d.* each pauper. The new fever hospital had not been occupied, and was very deficient in accommodation, having no supply of water, no sewers, no water-closets or necessaries, no beds, bedding, or other requisites, and no boundary wall enclosing it or the poor-house.

With regard to the finances of the Union, we regret to state that nothing can be worse. A sum of upwards of 7000*l.* is due to the various contractors and suppliers, and although no funds were in the treasurer's hands, yet the Guardians issued cheques upon him in order to appease the parties to whom they were indebted, to the amount of about 4600*l.*; these cheques were taken as collateral security, and bills at two months' date discounted for the holders by the National Bank. Most of these bills have been renewed every two months, since they were drawn.

A rate was struck in December last, over the whole Union, the collecting-books made out and the collectors appointed, but no security named or taken. The arrears which had accrued since 1842 were not introduced, nor had any decision been come to as to what portion was recoverable. Several of the collectors of 1842 and 1844 are not to be found, nor are their accounts or collecting-books. According to a return which appears on the minute-book on the 23rd March, 1847, 759*l.* 2*s.* 4*d.* is in this unsatisfactory state. In consequence of this and other irregularities, the ledger has not been posted up since March last.

Relieving officers had been appointed, but no security taken, nor any further steps adopted towards administering out-door relief.

We hope on Monday next, to be able to furnish you with a detail of those means which we have adopted, as most likely to insure the comfort and health of the inmates at the least possible cost, and to restore the credit of the Union.

Captain EVANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 13, 1848.

IN acknowledging your letter of the 12th instant, enclosing a list of clothing in the Government stores, a portion of which you have intimated is for the use of this Union, allow me to assure you that nothing could be more acceptable at the present moment, as the paupers are nearly naked. An early order on the stores would ever oblige.

REPLY to the above:—January 15, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received a communication from Deputy Commissary-General Dobree, stating that a portion of surplus clothing, &c., for the use of the Roscommon Union, has been forwarded to the depôt at Longford, where it may be obtained on arrival by the Vice-Guardians of the Union.

NEWCASTLE UNION.

The POOR LAW COMMISSIONERS to Captain MAXWELL, Temporary Inspector:—
November 22, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward, for your information, the enclosed copy of a letter which they have received, relative to the administration of out-door relief in the Newcastle Union, in which a complaint is made of the conduct of one of the relieving officers.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. PRENDAVILL to the POOR LAW COMMISSIONERS:—November 12, 1847.

I BEG your attention to this letter, as a gentleman of feeling and justice to the poor, this being the case of Michael Kennelyavey, a labouring man, at present in distressed state; has seven in family destitute of any, or the least means of support, and holds not one perch of land from or under any person; is a native of the parish of Ardagh; holds the place of his bed from me, and setting quarter ground at ten and sometimes twelve pounds an acre in the neighbourhood, which failed him; as a cess-payer applied for relief for himself and family to a relieving officer in the parish of Ardagh, in the Union of Newcastle, whose name is Daniel Kennedy, which he refused; this Kennedy is a partial young man, of no feeling to the most distressed; guided by his friends and relations, who treat him in taverns to give relief to well-wishers, and unless this Kennedy be removed, and some man in his place that will have the fear and love of God, I am afraid it will turn this tranquil parish to a disturbed parish, as this is not the only complaint of this lad, but several others; for it is topic of the parish his being a drunkard. Many complaints would be made of this boy, but they would not be allowed to go into the Board of Guardians; the rich worldling inside starving the poor outside in the gutter, and while this will be the case, there will be no justice done the poor. We, the poor, do expect you'll take the matter of this into consideration, and many will pray.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. PRENDAVILL:—November 22, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 12th instant, in which you state that out-door relief has been refused in the Newcastle Union, to Michael Keenelyavey; and in reference thereto, I am to inform you that a copy of your letter has been forwarded to Captain Maxwell, the Temporary Inspector, in charge of the Union.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 25, 1847.

WITH regard to your communication of the 22nd November, 1847, forwarding a complaint of the conduct of Daniel Kennedy, the relieving officer of Newcastle and Ardagh electoral divisions, I beg to state, that I have made every inquiry in my power, among the most respectable people in this locality, as to this man's character, and I find that he is considered sober and honest, and his appointment one of the best made by the Board of Guardians. This is fully corroborated by the head constable of the police force stationed here, who has known him for five years and a half. The writer of the complaint is not known in this neighbourhood.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 2, 1847.

WITH respect to the annexed communication, I beg to state that, since my letter of the 26th November, reporting on the character of Daniel Kennedy, one of the relieving officers of this Union, I have succeeded in getting further information, and find that the writer of the complaint is a man of the name of Prendavill (not Brendwill), a farmer holding about 20 acres of land. Michael Keenelyavey is his son-in-law and reputed heir; he has constantly resided with him and assisted in tilling the farm. On these grounds the relieving officer refused to submit his name to the Board of Guardians for out-door relief. Keenelyavey refused to go to the poor-house, and says that "he got meal all last summer, and does not see why he should not get it now."

Newcastle Union.

He accuses the relieving officer of partiality, but he refused to give me any information on that head, or clue to get at the truth, and said "he dare not do so—that his life would not be safe if he did." I regret to state that, in my opinion, this feeling is universal.

The feeding of 40,000 persons, out of a population of 60,000 during last year, has been the cause of incredible mischief in this district.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. PRENDAVILL:—December 9, 1847.

ADVERTING to your letter of the 12th ultimo, in which you complain that the relieving officer in the parish of Ardagh, in the Newcastle Union, had refused out-door relief to Michael Keenelyavey, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you, that having communicated with their Inspector, Mr. Maxwell, they think that the relieving officer acted correctly in refusing out-door relief to Michael Keenelyavey, who, they understand, refused to go into the workhouse.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain MAXWELL:—November 22, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed copy of an order issued by them on the 1st instant, authorising relief out of the workhouse to the destitute able-bodied in the Newcastle Union; together with a copy of a report from Mr. Hancock, as to the manner in which that order has been carried out.

The Commissioners request that you will be good enough to inquire, and report at your earliest convenience, as to the manner in which the relieving officers have discharged their duties under that order, and generally in the administration of relief, especially with reference to the question of whether any of the parties relieved were of a class to whom relief is declared by the 10th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act to be unlawful.

The Commissioners think that you should administratively call upon each relieving officer to explain the course which he has pursued, and that you should, if necessary, take the evidence on oath on the same subject of intelligent individuals who have witnessed the relieving officer's proceedings.

The Commissioners deem it of the highest importance that any relieving officer should be made personally responsible for any relief which he may have given contrary to law; and they are desirous that you should be particularly careful in bringing to light any instances of misconduct on this subject on their part.

IN obedience to your instruction, I examined each relieving officer, and I find that none of them have acted up to their instructions. They have but in very few instances, visited the dwellings of the applicants for out-door relief. They have not made themselves personally acquainted, with the circumstances of each case in their district. At first, they contented themselves with admitting on their lists, every person recommended to them by the rate-payers; but latterly, considerable reductions have been made. Their books, except in one or two instances, are not kept in a satisfactory manner, nor properly initialed by the chairman of the Board of Guardians. They plead ignorance, and complain that their districts are so extensive, that they are unable to accomplish all the duties required of them; that they are required to attend three days in the week at the food depôts, and two other days at the Board of Guardians; and "that their lives are not safe, if they strike off, or refuse applicants for out-door relief." Previous to the 1st of November, they acknowledge having given out-door relief to persons having more than a quarter of an acre of land; since that period, they say that they have relieved none of that class.

Agreeably to your instructions, I informed them that they were responsible, as well as their securities, for any relief they had given, or might give, contrary to law; and that I should use every exertion in my power, to bring any instance of misconduct on their parts, under the notice of the Poor Law Commissioners. I also called their particular attention to their instructions.

The COMMISSIONERS to the RELIEVING OFFICERS of the Union :—
November 29, 1847.

Newcastle Union.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to inform you, that they have received a report from their Inspector, Captain Maxwell, relative to the administration of out-door relief in the Newcastle Union, in which he states that having, in pursuance of the Commissioners' instructions, examined each of the relieving officers, he finds that none of them have acted up to their instructions; that they have, but in very few instances, visited the dwellings of the applicants for out-door relief; that they have not made themselves perfectly acquainted with the circumstances of each case in their districts; that at first they put on their lists every person recommended to them by the rate-payers, though latterly considerable reductions have been made; and that their books, except in one or two instances, are not kept in a satisfactory manner, nor properly initialed by the chairman.

In reference to this report, I am directed by the Commissioners to state to you, that they are desirous of pointing out that you are only authorized to give relief on certain conditions, and that these conditions must be strictly complied with.

With regard to your fear as to striking off, or refusing applicants for relief, you must remember that the power of granting regular relief is vested solely in the Board of Guardians; and that your power, as relieving officer, is merely provisional, in reference to cases of sudden and urgent necessity.

You will particularly observe, that the mere fact of supposed distress would not justify you in giving provisional relief, under the 7th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act. In order to render such relief legal, the case of necessity must be sudden as well as urgent. Hence, it is extremely improbable that you will have grounds for giving provisional relief during any two successive weeks to the same individual; for although in the second week the necessity might be urgent, it would scarcely, in ordinary cases, be sudden. And the case should, in the meanwhile, be brought before the Board of Guardians for their decision.

The Commissioners again send to you a copy of the out-door relief order, defining your duties, and they caution you to adhere strictly to the course pointed out to you by the Commissioners in that order; and on no account whatever to give any relief to applicants, except as far as you are authorized by the 7th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, and by the Commissioners' regulations.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 24, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union yesterday. The attendance was very small. The chairman, the vice-chairman, and Lord Devon's agent were absent.

The indiscriminate out-door relief given at first, in some of the electoral divisions in this Union, particularly Ballingarry, and the subsequent withdrawal of it, has caused very serious mischief. The members of the Board of Guardians and the relieving officers appear to me to be, more or less, labouring under intimidation; and I am afraid there will be considerable difficulty in getting them to discharge their duties, in a proper manner. Almost immediately after the commencement of business, a mob of about 300 persons from the Ballingarry electoral division, marched in a body, to the gate of the workhouse, demanding admittance in a most threatening manner, and apparently inclined to be very violent. The hall was occupied by a guard of an officer and 16 of the constabulary, and Mr. Smith, the resident magistrate, with a company of infantry and half a troop of Dragoons soon after came up and occupied the ground in front of the building. The mob soon became less violent, and a few of the most intelligent of them having been sent for by the Guardians, preferred a variety of complaints against their relieving officer for striking them, the poorer classes, off the lists, and keeping on tradesmen and others, in better circumstances. This, however, they either could not or would not prove; but retired, promising that a few of them (four or six) would return on the next day of meeting, and give the necessary information. The mob quietly dispersed, at about 4 o'clock, P.M.

Newcastle Union.

Soon after, the Guardians, one by one, retired, and it was with the greatest difficulty I could induce two members to remain and attend to the routine business of the Union, which was not concluded till after 6 o'clock, P.M.

It is to be hoped that a recurrence of this scene will not again happen, and I trust that the Board of Guardians will recover the proper feeling of confidence and determination, to enable them to meet their difficulties. No exertion shall be spared on my part, to accomplish this point, and put matters on a proper footing in the Union.

REPLY to the above :—November 29, 1847.

WITH reference to that part of your report which relates to the difficulty occasioned by the indiscriminate out-door relief given in the first instance, I am directed by the Commissioners to call your particular attention to the circumstance, that the relieving officer is only authorised to grant relief provisionally, under the 7th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, in cases of sudden and urgent necessity. It will thus be perceived, that distress would not in itself, justify the relieving officer in granting relief under that section: the necessity which alone can render such relief legal, ought to be sudden as well as urgent.

The Commissioners think, that, if the point is fully understood in the Union, it may tend to prevent improper applications to the relieving officers.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain MAXWELL :—November 29, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed extract, from the minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians of the Newcastle Union, on the 23rd instant, relative to complaints which were made against the Ballingarry relieving officer, that he issued relief to persons who were not destitute, and refused relief to persons really destitute: I am to request that you will be so good as to furnish the Commissioners with your observations on the subject.

ENCLOSURE.

EXTRACT from the GUARDIANS' MINUTES, 23rd November, 1847.

COMPLAINTS were made of the Ballingarry relieving officer, who was in attendance, that he issued relief to persons who were not destitute, and refused relief to persons really destitute.

The relieving officer being questioned as to those statements, acknowledged that he relieved persons whom he considered at the time, proper objects for relief; but, on further inquiry, discovered they were not so, and immediately struck them off his books.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 1, 1847.

I HAVE made every inquiry in my power, into the efficiency of the Ballingarry relieving officer, and I consider that he is not fit for his situation. He is an excessively stupid man; his books and accounts are in a most unsatisfactory state, and he is so intimidated, that he has not done his duty. His district is a very poor one, and inhabited by a most lawless set of people; and it was in this district that the wanton abuse of out-door relief (reported on by Mr. Hancock, 17th November, 1847,) was committed.

I am given to understand from the most respectable authority, that this relieving officer has a very large connexion in Ballingarry, and that he has not been acting with impartiality.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. BARRY, Relieving Officer :—December 4, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state that, having seen by the Minutes of Proceedings of the Board of Guardians of the Newcastle Union, on the 23rd ultimo, that complaints were made that you issued relief to persons who were not destitute, and refused relief to persons really destitute, they requested their Inspector, Mr. Maxwell, to furnish them with his observations on the subject, and they have now received a report of your general unfitness for the office of relieving officer, and of your not having kept the accounts, and relieving officers' books, properly.

Newcastle Union.

In reference to this complaint, and the subsequent report, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you, that the Commissioners have caused a sealed order to be prepared for your removal from your office, and that the order will be forthwith issued, unless the Commissioners receive from you a satisfactory explanation of your conduct.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 1, 1847.

I BEG to report, with regard to the poor-house of this Union, that I have made several minute inspections of it during the week. I found every part of it clean, and particularly well ventilated ; no fever in it, and, apparently, every attention paid to their duties by the master and matron. I had occasion to make one or more unimportant suggestions, which were at once attended to.

There are two houses in the town, occupied by children of both sexes. In my opinion, they are crowded to excess. Both these houses are very old, and in very bad repair.

The clerk of the Union appears to be most attentive to his duties, and has examined personally, into the accounts of the collectors every week.

Two or three of the relieving officers appear to be exerting themselves to do their duty ; but I am afraid the majority are not fit for their situation ; they are so completely under intimidation that they are not acting strictly up to their instructions. Some of them state they are paying assistants, to enable them to get through their business. I have again called their special attention to their instructions, and read them your communication of 29th November.

I have consulted with some of the Guardians well acquainted with the individual, and, from their representations and my own observation, I beg to report that Mr. Barry, relieving officer for the Ballingarry electoral division, is totally unfit for his situation.

The Board of Guardians met yesterday at the usual hour, when there was a good attendance, and several ex-officio Guardians present. Having called their particular attention to your circular of 26th August, they resolved to hasten the completion of the idiot wards, which, when finished, would afford accommodation to 50 paupers or upwards. They also resolved to appoint a Committee, to procure additional accommodation, and to report thereon at the adjourned meeting, to be held on Saturday next.

The Board also resolved to meet again the day following, viz., Wednesday, 1st December, for the purpose of examining and revising the relieving officers' books.

No step has yet been taken to follow out your orders of the 1st November, with regard to "out-door relief being given in cooked food," nor has "a task of work during eight hours at least, of every day" been demanded.

The applicants for admission to the poor-house, and for out-door relief, were very numerous ; but they were not inclined to violence, or used any threats. There was no attendance of police or military required.

The collectors of the poor-rates are represented to me as active respectable men, and I believe they have been using every exertion to collect the rates.

I am informed, from the most respectable sources, that there exists no combination against the payment of rents in this district. The holders of small portions of land are giving up their land, in considerable numbers, in order to obtain out-door relief. I have particularly cautioned the relieving officers to ascertain, personally, each applicant's circumstances.

Several outrages have occurred in this neighbourhood : houses have been attacked, arms seized, cattle slaughtered ; and, on Monday night last, a conflict took place, in which one man was killed, another wounded and taken prisoner, and the head constable of police wounded by a bullet in the arm.

REPLY to the above :—December 4, 1847.

IN reference to your remarks regarding the crowded state of the house in the town, which have been hired by the Guardians, and which are occupied by the children from the workhouse, the Commissioners request you to direct your particular attention to these houses, and to name to the Commissioners the maximum number, which in your opinion, they ought to contain, as the Commissioners are fully prepared to affix a limit to the number by a sealed order.

In regard to the relieving officer of Ballingarry, the Commissioners have addressed him, acquainting him that they have received a report of his general unfitness for the office, and of his not having kept the accounts and relieving officers' books properly; and they have acquainted him that they have caused a sealed order to be prepared for his removal from his office; and that the Commissioners will issue the order forthwith, unless they receive from him a satisfactory explanation of his conduct.

The Commissioners will pursue a similar course with any of the relieving officers whom you may report to them as incompetent, or unfit for the office.

MR. BARRY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 6, 1847.

WITH reference to your communication of the 4th instant, calling on me, under pain of removal, to furnish you with a satisfactory explanation of my conduct, in the execution of my duty as relieving officer of the district of Ballingarry, I have most respectfully to say, that this communication takes me by surprise, as I have always endeavoured to discharge my duty in that capacity faithfully and unexceptionally.

I admit that there had been a malicious complaint made to the Newcastle Board by persons to whom I had denied provisional relief; but I deny, in the strongest manner, that I have knowingly given any relief to persons not really destitute, or denied it to those who were really so; and because I had fearlessly denied relief to those whom I did not consider really destitute, and struck off others from the lists who imposed themselves as such, they have falsely forged a malicious libel against me, which, by your circular, appears to have been placed on the minutes of the Newcastle Board. Now I most solemnly aver, that that report is false and malicious; and that it has been placed on the minutes without due investigation; and that if I had not believed such report to be quashed as untenable, when presented to the Board, I would insist on its being duly investigated on oath; for I conscientiously believe that it could not, in any manner, be virtually sustained; and so far as this, I must say that I am very unjustly dealt with.

As to the report and relief lists not being, in some instances, duly filled up, I must say that if there are some defects, which I presume are few, particularly in those of which I have charge, because they have been adjudged unexceptionable by the Board, this is principally owing to want of time, as it is impossible for one individual to attend both to the due filling of books and investigation of the various calls of this wide and extensive district, which is as large as two, with an amount of distress as great.

As to the Commissioners having caused a sealed order to be prepared for my removal unless I could satisfactorily explain my conduct, I must say that I feel sorry that any spurious report, without due investigation, should force the Commissioners to this necessity; and that were I to have knowingly transgressed any law or rule which I was enjoined to observe, in the execution of my duty, or if I had shamefully, as was falsely reported, given relief to persons not really destitute, while I denied it to those who were really so, I would not wait to be ignominiously removed, but should be the first to notify my resignation; but I have never, to my knowledge, transgressed in any manner, and therefore this proceeding considerably pains me, not for the value of the troublesome and unprofitable situation I now hold, and which I am willing—even happy—at any moment to yield up; but because an opinion should be had of me, even by the Commissioners, so foreign to my feelings, and I must say, to common justice.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain MAXWELL:—December 8, 1847.

Newcastle Union.

WITH reference to your communication of the 1st instant, relative to the incapacity of the relieving officer for Ballingarry district, in Newcastle Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed communication, which they have received on the subject from Mr. Barry, the relieving officer in question; and I am to request that you will be so good as to report to the Commissioners, in detail thereon.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 11, 1847.

IN compliance with your communication of December 8, requesting me to report on annexed letter of Mr. Barry, relieving officer of Ballingarry, I beg to observe, that many complaints were made to me of this man's incapacity and partiality in general, but I failed in getting any one to give me positive, direct information on the subject, complainants always saying that they were afraid to do so.

However, on consulting two persons of the most unquestionable respectability, who know Mr. Barry well, I was informed (under a promise not to reveal their names) that he was a most unfit man for his office; that, among other instances, he had given out-door relief to a mason and another man while in employment; and that he had a large connexion in the district, which militated against his acting with independence and impartiality.

The acting chairman of the Board of Guardians informed me, that on proceeding to initial his books, he found them so slovenly and in such a state of confusion, that he refused to do so. He since has made out entirely new relief lists. I had to call the attention of the Board of Guardians, at their last meeting, to the manner in which his Receipt and Expenditure Book was kept.

In some instances, Mr. Barry certainly did refuse to submit applicants for relief very properly, and the Board of Guardians confirmed his decisions; but in my opinion, he is a slow man, and has not the decision, requisite to fulfil his arduous duties. His district is very large, very populous, very poor, and inhabited by a most lawless people, and he is evidently labouring under intimidation.

The Board, at their last meeting, passed a resolution, to apply for the Commissioners' sanction to appoint a second relieving officer for the Ballingarry electoral division.

OBSERVATIONS of Mr. HANCOCK on the Resolution of the Guardians to apply for sanction to the appointment of a second Relieving Officer for the Ballingarry district.

It appears to me the present relieving officer is not competent to discharge his duty; previous to a second being appointed, one good and efficient officer should be tried.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the GUARDIANS, Newcastle Union:—
December 13, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state, for the information of the Board of Guardians of Newcastle Union, that they deemed it right to call upon Mr. Barry, relieving officer of the Ballingarry division, for an explanation in regard to the complaints made against him, as recorded in the Guardians minutes of the 23rd ultimo. They have received a reply from him which they did not consider satisfactory, and they have since communicated with Mr. Hancock and Mr. Maxwell on the subject; and under all the circumstances of the case, they deemed it right to remove Mr. Barry from his situation.

A copy of a letter this day addressed to him on the subject, is enclosed.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. BARRY, Relieving Officer:—December 13, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 6th instant, explaining the manner

Newcastle Union. in which you have discharged the duties of relieving officer in the Ballingarry electoral division of the Newcastle Union; and in reference thereto, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that both of the inspectors connected with the Union, are of opinion that you are unfit for the office; and as it is of the deepest importance to the rate-payers, that the relieving officer of Ballingarry division should be active, resolute, and discriminating, the Commissioners have deemed it right to remove you from your present office.

At the same time, the Commissioners are far from intending to reflect on your moral character, and they regret to be obliged to take the step which they have now adopted. But the Commissioners cannot but feel that the interests of the public service are paramount to all personal considerations, and in the present state of the Newcastle Union, the Commissioners regard it as their bounden duty not to acquiesce in the continuance in office of an individual who is unequal to the emergencies of the occasion.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 6, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, 7th inst.

Having called their attention again to Mr. Hancock's report on the manner in which out-door relief, under the Commissioners' order of the 1st November, had been administered in this Union, and having inquired whether any steps had since been taken to comply with the conditions of that order, I was informed that the cost of superintendence and material had hitherto prevented their demanding a task of labour from the able-bodied; but that they were anxious to meet the wishes of the Commissioners as far as possible; and a resolution was passed to form a Committee to consider the subject.

With regard to relief being given in cooked food, it was stated that the distress was so great, and the districts so extensive, that this would be attended with very great expense; that it had been tried under the Relief Commission, and had failed.

I was also informed, that the Committee formed on the last day of meeting for that purpose, had not yet succeeded in obtaining extra workhouse accommodation; but they were making every exertion to accomplish that point.

The Guardians had also called on their contractor to complete the idiot wards as soon as possible, which would give considerable accommodation. He states they will be ready for occupation in a month.

I also called the attention of the Guardians to the subject that their out-door relief, last week, amounted to 580*l.*, whereas the collection of the rates was only 463*l.* Also that the numbers of out-door relief recipients was increasing, particularly in the Ballingarry electoral division. In the week ending 13th November, 1847, 3376 persons received 10 tons of meal. In the last week, ending Saturday, 4th December, 5176 persons received 8 tons 15 cwt.

I regret to find that, with one exception, in no part of this Union is there any employment for the labouring class.

REPLY to the above:—December 13, 1847.

As regards the requirements of the Commissioners' order of the 1st instant, that all relief under it be given in cooked food, and that every able-bodied male person relieved under it shall be set to perform a task of work, I am to state that the Commissioners think that the experience under the Temporary Relief Act, has shown clearly that cooked rations can be provided at a comparatively moderate expense, and at the same time are not so attractive to paupers as raw food. Under these circumstances, the providing cooked food should, in the Commissioners' opinion, be insisted on.

The Commissioners think also that there will be no difficulty in providing work for the able-bodied, if the Guardians are in earnest in endeavouring to provide it; and the weekly expense of the out-door relief, under the present system, is so great, that the Commissioners are convinced that it is peculiarly desirable that a labour-test should be enforced, in order to deter the indolent and careless from endeavouring to subsist on the labour of the honest and industrious rate-payers.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 15, 1847.

I BEG to state that during the past week, I have caused the walls inside the workhouse to be thoroughly swept and whitewashed, and also that the windows should be cleaned; and I have insisted on as much employment as possible being given to the able-bodied inmates of the house. I have given directions that stone-breaking, gravelling, and rolling walks, digging and raking grounds, weeding, &c. &c., be carried on, when the weather will admit.

At the usual weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, 14th inst., I called their attention to your communication of the 13th December, pointing out the very great expenditure of their present system of out-door relief; and I again urged on them the advantage of complying with your instructions on that head, and I am happy to say that a resolution was passed that cooked food should henceforward be issued to the able-bodied in the electoral divisions of Ballingarry and Abbeyfeale, and Committees were formed to that effect. In Ballingarry there are two boilers ready, but I understand that there are few, if any, in the other electoral divisions of the Union.

A Committee was also formed to clear the house of the impotent class, and widows with children, who had homes to go to, to make room for the admission of the able-bodied.

The Guardians have taken a house, about a quarter of a mile from the workhouse, at a rent of 40% per annum. This will accommodate, I am informed, 80 persons.

The Board expressed satisfaction at the inmates of the workhouse being much employed, and begged that I would obtain the sanction of the Commissioners, that they should be employed on an unfinished road close to the house. This road was commenced under the Labour Rate Act, and leads to the churchyard.

I again called the attention of the Guardians to the manner in which the relieving officer of the Ballingarry electoral division carried on his duties. By the returns sent in by that individual, it appears that in the week ending 27th November, 1847, 5176 persons received 8 tons, 15 cwt., 2 qrs. of meal, at a cost of 96% 6s. 1½d., and in the week ending the 4th December, 1847, 2868 persons received 8 tons, 19 cwt., 1 qr. of meal, at a cost of 98% 8s. 3½d.

On calling on Mr. Barry, the relieving officer, for an explanation, he could give none; he said that the latter number of persons (2868) was a mistake, and that he thought the other was also an error. This past week, ending 11th inst., he has given no return of number of persons at all. He stated that he had too much to do, and could not make up his books himself, but had employed a clerk. I likewise pointed out to the Guardians that the debtor and creditor sides of his receipt and expenditure book were not balanced. On this subject he appeared to be most ignorant. Before the close of the proceedings a letter was received from him, tendering his resignation to the Guardians.

The medical officer attended and stated, that in his opinion, the workhouse would not contain more than 615 persons, with a due regard to health. I annex a letter on the subject, received from that officer.

I have satisfaction in reporting that one of the Guardians came forward, in spite of the intimidation so prevalent in this country, and preferred a charge against Mr. Madigan, one of the relieving officers, for having on his relief lists 17 persons having land or employment, or other means of support. A Committee of the Board was formed to meet on Saturday next at 11 o'clock, to investigate into this case. I shall make a full report to the Commissioners on the subject. This relieving officer states, "that he has been repeatedly threatened, and that his life is not safe."

I beg to state that there is no Guardian for Rathronan or Mahoonah electoral division.

ENCLOSURE.

Dr. PEIRCE to, Captain MAXWELL:—December 14, 1847.

FEARING there may be any misconception about what I stated in the Board-room this day, relative to the present accommodation of workhouse, I take the liberty of re-stating my opinion to you.

On the 22nd July I wrote to the Commissioners, in answer to a letter No. 19857 D/47, stating that 600 was the number which I considered the house should contain. I did so after very fully ascertaining, by accurate measurements, the extent of the dormitories, &c., and I found that, after I had deducted from the 600, the numbers which the hospital and infirm wards should contain, that 472 would remain to be accommodated in the dormitories, and leave only a breadth of 2 feet 4½ inches to each individual. More than that number, I cannot be convinced, can be maintained in those rooms with a due regard to health.

Newcastle Union.

And the Commissioners, in a letter to me No. 21241 D/47, concurred in my views, and expressed their thanks for my communication. The only additional dormitory since given has been the shed in the men's yard, used in summer as a day-room, and now vacated, the men having got the boys' school-room as a day-room. This would give room for about 15 beds; it is about 12 feet shorter than the shed in the women's yard of same breadth, that contains 18 beds very crowded.

I therefore say, that the proper number to limit admissions to should be 615, and I feel convinced the Commissioners will concur in my opinion when they read this letter. Shortly the infirmary accommodation can be increased, the building over the idiot ward on one side, being nearly finished.

REPLY to the above:—December 20, 1847.

WITH reference to that part of your report in which you state that the Board requested you would obtain the sanction of the Commissioners, to employ the able-bodied inmates of the workhouse on an unfinished road close to the house I am to state, that the Commissioners do not recommend the employing the able-bodied paupers out of the workhouse premises, as this has been found by experience, to weaken materially the effectiveness of the workhouse test to the able-bodied men, and to lead likewise to numerous abuses.

The Commissioners take this opportunity of stating, that the order authorizing out-door relief under the 2nd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, in the Newcastle Union, will not continue in force after the 31st instant; and the Commissioners request you, therefore, to inquire, and report whether any further order of the same kind appears to you necessary; and, if so, for what period of time (if any) short of two months, you recommend the issuing of such an order.

The Commissioners will give due consideration to the views of the medical officer, as expressed in the letter which accompanied your report, in regard to the number of inmates the workhouse is calculated to contain, and they will take such steps as may be requisite in regard to the vacancies in the office of Guardians for the Rathronan and Mahoonah electoral divisions.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 18, 1847.

I BEG to state, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that I attended a Committee of the Poor Law Guardians, appointed to meet this day, for the purpose of investigating into a charge brought by one of the Guardians against Mr. Madigan, relieving officer of the Mahoonah electoral division, for keeping several persons on his lists who were not entitled to receive out-door relief.

Five cases were proved, and struck off, as having land, employment, &c.; 8 cases being doubtful, tradesmen having partial employment, &c., and others, a doubt existing as to their really having given up their holdings; were offered relief in the workhouse. These persons, with, perhaps, one or two exceptions, will not avail themselves of the offer. One charge was preferred against the relieving officer for having two females on his relief lists who are in service; this could not be proved at the time, but I have begged of the farmers with whom they lived, to attend at the next meeting of Guardians, and give evidence on the subject.

Another case was that of a man having two acres of land, a cow, oats, turnips, cabbage, &c., on the out-door relief lists; this man brought two better class farmers to prove such was not the case. These stated that he had no property whatever, and was utterly destitute, but being put on their oaths by me, acknowledged that the land was sold yesterday (to one of them), and the cow also; but he was still in possession of oats, turnips, vegetables, &c.

In most of the cases the relieving officer seems to have been satisfied with receiving a recommendation in writing, from the neighbours, and not making himself thoroughly acquainted with the circumstances of the parties. This young man, Madigan, is intelligent enough, and bears a good character; but he states, that he is under such intimidation that he dare not refuse to submit any applicant. He was warned by the Guardians to examine into these cases, and to strike them off his books, and on his non-compliance, the matter was to be brought under my notice and that of the Board of Guardians.

I am happy to say that a few of the Guardians are paying considerable attention to the subject of the out-door relief in the Union, and express the greatest anxiety to put a stop to the gross abuses that are existing. In the village of Ballingarry alone there are 1690 inhabitants, and no less than 1519 are now on the relief lists: of these, 126 are tradesmen.

I hope that, by establishing the cooked food system, administered daily, and exacting some labour in return for it, this number will be very considerably diminished.

After the conclusion of the investigation, the Committee proceeded to select a number of the inmates of the house, widows with children, &c., to receive relief outside.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. MADIGAN, Relieving Officer:—December 21, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to inform you that they have received a report from their Temporary Inspector, Mr. Maxwell, in which he states that an investigation was instituted into a charge preferred against you, of keeping several persons on your lists who were not entitled to receive out-door relief in the Newcastle Union; that five cases were proved, and struck off, as having land; that eight were doubtful, as having partial employment, and who, with one or two exceptions, refused relief in the workhouse; that a charge was also preferred against you of having on the relief list, two females who are in service, as well as a man holding two acres of land, a cow, oats, and turnips; and that it was proved that this man had only sold his land and cow on the previous day, but that he is still in possession of the oats and turnips.

Mr. Maxwell also states that, in most cases, you are satisfied with a recommendation in writing, without making yourself thoroughly acquainted with the circumstances of each case to be relieved.

In reference to this report, I am to state that the Commissioners rely on your avoiding similar omissions of duty for the future; and, more especially, they request that you will comply strictly with the Commissioners' general order of the 2nd August last, by visiting applicants for relief at their own houses, in order to become thoroughly acquainted with all the circumstances of their case.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 5, 1848.

At the meeting of the Board of Guardians, held yesterday, I again called the attention of the Guardians to the state of their collection, and pointed out to them, that their expenditure for the past week exceeded the collection by 309*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.*; also, that the collection has been less since last meeting, when the collectors were called upon to make increased exertions. In obedience to orders, two of the collectors sent in returns of the 10 highest rate-payers, defaulters in each electoral division of their district. Orders were given that all these should be proceeded against at once. The third collector did not send in his account, nor list of defaulters.

In compliance with your instructions, I again called on the Guardians to comply with the conditions of the order for out-door relief to the able-bodied, upon which the Guardians expressed "their willingness to enforce the labour test, if they saw how that could be accomplished; they urged the enormous expense of setting 5000 or 6000 people to work scattered over this large Union—the danger to the peace of the country in bringing together large masses of people—the great scarcity of stones—their having no legal right to seek them in quarries or on the land, nor of breaking them on the roads or on the fields." And they still adhere to their resolution of 21st December, 1847, a copy of which was furnished me, and which I annex.

With regard to cooked food, a resolution was passed that an assistant be appointed for each depôt, at a salary of 7*s.* 6*d.* per week, for the purpose of issuing the meal, in a steeped state, three times in the week (instead of once only), and that the sanction of the Commissioners to this arrangement be requested.

To avoid delay the assistants were at once named.

Newcastle Union.

In obedience to your directions, I issued summons to the parties who were intimidated last Thursday. One of the Guardians informed me, that one of these men had since been severely beaten.

I am receiving daily anonymous letters complaining of the abuses committed, and connived at by the relieving officers of three or four districts. Their universal excuse is, "that their districts are too large, that they are imposed on, that it is impossible to attend to all their duties, &c." In my opinion they are, with a few exceptions, more or less labouring under intimidation, and are, therefore, incapable of acting with straightforward impartiality.

The Relief Lists for the electoral division of Ballingarry were not made up, through neglect on the part of the late relieving officer, Mr. Barry, and of the temporary one, Mr. Donovan. At my recommendation, an order was made that they should not be paid their salary until that duty had been done.

The Guardians have taken steps to hire a large dwelling-house, in the village of Ballingarry.

In consequence of the crowd outside the workhouse having been very turbulent and menacing yesterday, during the sitting of the Board, and one of the Guardians at the door of the workhouse having been refused leave to go home until the applicants were relieved, I suggested to the Chairman to apply in future to the civil power for a sufficient force of constabulary to keep order.

I regret to state that fever is on the increase in some parts of this Union, and that the country is in a very disturbed state. I am informed that while one of the Guardians was attending the Board on Tuesday the 28th ultimo, his house was attacked, and money demanded and taken, for the purpose of defending the prisoners to be tried at the Special Commission in Limerick.

ENCLOSURE.

RESOLVED,—That on full consideration of the suggestions of the Poor Law Commissioners, directing that the able-bodied labourers should be employed in stone-breaking as a test of destitution, we are of opinion that that mode of employment, in every instance, would not answer the purpose intended; that it would involve a vast deal of expense in the way of overseers, &c.; that we therefore call the attention of the Commissioners to the letters of two members of our Board, viz., William Cox, Esq., and Captain Shelton, forwarded to the Commissioners on the 7th October last,* as we approve of the suggestions of these gentlemen as to the mode of employing the able-bodied poor, or in the event of the Commissioners declining to adopt the mode of employment suggested in the letter alluded to, we are of opinion that the next best test is to employ the able-bodied poor on reproductive works on the farms on which they are at present located, the work to be approved of by an officer to be appointed by this Board, one-fourth of the cost of said work to be paid by the persons benefited by said work, to be lodged with the treasurer in aid of rates, to be disposed of in compliance with the directions of the Commissioners; and, we pledge ourselves, if either mode, or anything having a similar object, be sanctioned by the Commissioners, to co-operate with the local Inspector in making the labour test as effective as possible, as we are of opinion that without some such test the entire property of the Union will be absorbed in rates.

R. MAXWELL, T. P. L. I.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 5, 1848.

I BEG to state that I urged the Guardians of this Union, by every argument in my power, to fully carry out the conditions of the out-door relief to the able-bodied order.

The difficulties attending the issue of cooked food were got over after some opposition, but to save expense, they beg the sanction of the Poor Law Commissioners to the meal being merely steeped.

This, in my opinion, will be attended with good results, viz., in the prevention of barter, and the improved wholesomeness of the food, while none but the really destitute, will come a long distance three times per week for the rations in a moist state.

But I regret to state, that the Guardians pleaded their inability to carry out the labour test, according to the Commissioners' wishes, for several reasons, chiefly the expense and scarcity of stones, and the turbulence of the lower orders in this country.

This latter feeling I conceive is the principal one, and is founded on the scenes of outrage and insubordination, during the Public Relief Works last winter. Newcastle Union.

The Guardians state, that invariably whenever large bodies of the peasantry have been collected together, schemes of mischief, and combinations to intimidate, are formed; this I have reason to know is the case in other parts of Ireland.

In my opinion, this fear of the lower orders is prevalent throughout the whole of this country, and has long been so, and until confidence is restored matters will never improve in this Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS :—January 10, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received a report from their Inspector, Captain Maxwell, in which he details objections which were urged by the Board of Guardians of the Newcastle Union, at their meeting on the 4th instant, to the employment of the paupers in stone-breaking, and in which he states, that the Guardians still adhered to their resolution of the 21st ultimo, a copy of which Captain Maxwell forwarded to the Commissioners. That resolution was as follows :—

“Resolved,—That on full consideration of the suggestion of the Poor Law Commissioners, directing that the able-bodied labourers should be employed in stone-breaking as a test of destitution, we are of opinion that that mode of employment in every instance would not answer the purpose intended; that it would involve a vast deal of expense in the way of overseers, &c.; that we therefore call the attention of the Commissioners to the letters of two members of our Board, viz., William Cox, Esq., and Captain Shelton, forwarded to the Commissioners on the 7th October last, as we approve of the suggestions of these gentlemen as to the mode of employing the able-bodied poor; or, in the event of the Commissioners declining to adopt the mode of employment suggested in the letter alluded to, we are of opinion that the next best test is to employ the able-bodied poor on reproductive works on the farms on which they are at present located; the work to be approved of by an officer appointed by this Board; one-fourth of the cost of said work to be paid by the persons benefitted by said work, to be lodged with the treasurer in aid of rates, to be disposed of in compliance with the directions of the Commissioners; and we pledge ourselves if either mode, or anything having a similar object, be sanctioned by the Commissioners, to co-operate with the local Inspector in making the labour-test as effective as possible, as we are of opinion that without some such test the entire properties of the Union will be absorbed in rates.”

In reference to that resolution the Commissioners desire to state, that in recommending stone-breaking as the kind of employment which should be offered to the destitute able-bodied poor in the first instance, the Commissioners did not contemplate the permanent employment of many thousands of individuals in nothing else but stone-breaking. The view which the Commissioners have taken of this subject has been that whereas all experience has shown that the granting relief to able-bodied men without some rigid test, is liable to great abuses; and whereas stone-breaking is less attractive, and more capable of effectual superintendence than any other kind of out-door labour on a large scale, it is advisable for Guardians to begin by offering stone-breaking to applicants, when there is no longer any vacant workhouse accommodation in the Union. In fact, the Guardians will perceive that the Commissioners, in their letter of the 8th October, carefully abstained from expressing any opinion as to the future employment of paupers in completing the unfinished roads, although they expressed their unwillingness that the question of adopting such a course should be raised at that time, before the experiment of stone-breaking to applicants had been tried.

Three months have now elapsed since the Commissioners wrote that letter to the Chairman of the Newcastle Board of Guardians, and although the Guardians have had authority since the 1st of November to grant out-door relief to destitute able-bodied men, and have given such relief accordingly, they have not apparently exacted any work from those by whom such relief was received.

The Commissioners now desire to state explicitly, that supposing no impediment is raised in any other quarters, they will not object to the employment hereafter of paupers in the Newcastle Union in completing unfinished roads, if the Guardians will, in the first instance, give a fair trial to the stone-breaking test, and if the test is not found to reduce materially the number of applicants for relief.

Newcastle Union.

With regard to the expense in paying overseers of work, the Commissioners have to express their thorough conviction that efficient superintendents of labour would save to the Union far more than the amount of their own salaries by preventing imposition and fraud. Similar objections were raised in England in 1834 to the expense of workhouses; but notwithstanding the immediate expense arising from the building of workhouses, and the salaries to workhouse officers, the total reduction of expense in the first year was in some Unions 20, 30, and even 50 per cent. In fact, it is to be borne in mind, that if any system of relief is attractive, one of the chief sources of expenses arises from the great number of improper objects to whom such relief is administered, and hence arrangements by which this abuse is checked are found in the long run to be really economical, although the system of management may be apparently expensive.

The Commissioners therefore request the Guardians to give a fair trial to the experiment of stone-breaking as a test of destitution in the Newcastle Union; and if the number of able-bodied men on the relief lists still remains the same as before, the Commissioners will endeavour to forward the views of the Guardians in reference to the completion of the unfinished roads.

The Commissioners have only to add, that they would not, under any circumstances or conditions, deem themselves justified in permitting the employment of paupers on private farms. It is an essential principle in any sound system of Poor Law administration that relief and wages should be kept totally distinct, and that a destitute able-bodied man should either be relieved wholly by the Union, or employed wholly by the party for whom he works. The Commissioners are convinced that the infringement of this principle would lead to pernicious consequences, and by making employers of labour suppose that they had a pecuniary interest in introducing a system of out-door relief to able-bodied men, it would eventually entail an enormous burden on the poor-rates which the property of the Union would be wholly unable to support.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain MAXWELL:—January 10, 1848.

I AM to forward to you the enclosed copy of a letter which the Commissioners have this day addressed to the Board of Guardians.

I am at the same time to state, that the supposed difficulties of the Guardians, respecting the introduction of stone-breaking, will be found to vanish, if the Guardians will endeavour bonâ fide to surmount them.

The Guardians should contract with proper parties for the purchase of road metal, and should appoint overseers of the workhouse, under the name of assistant relieving officers, who should take care that each able-bodied man has a definite task of work every day, and is compelled, while receiving relief, to break stones to such smallness as will render it possible to pass each of them through a ring of a certain diameter. In order to prevent confusion, the system might be commenced with 40 or 50 men, and the number might be gradually increased. If this plan be fairly tried, without reducing materially the numbers on the Relief Lists, and if you certify that it has been carried into execution to your satisfaction, the Commissioners will be prepared to act on the accompanying letter to the Guardians.

The Commissioners have to add, that they cannot seriously suppose that the Guardians will experience any material difficulty in obtaining a yard or field on which the metal may be broken. If, however, there is any insurmountable difficulty on this head, the ground connected with the workhouse can be used for this purpose by the Guardians. The Commissioners, however, are aware that the use of the workhouse grounds is open to several objections, and they only suggest it as a last resource.

In conclusion, the Commissioners cannot too strongly impress upon your mind the importance of seeing that none but really efficient men, are appointed superintendents of labour. The value of the whole system depends on this point, and unless the superintendents of labour perform their duty with fearlessness and honesty, the arrangements for stone-breaking will degenerate into inextricable confusion and jobbing.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 9, 1848.

I BEG to state that an adjourned meeting of the Board of Guardians was held yesterday, when four of the seven witnesses I had summoned attended.

Several charges were preferred against Mr. Madigan, relieving officer of the Mahoonagh electoral division.

CASE I.

Daniel Kelleher receiving rations for three instead of two.

The relieving officer allowed this to go on for 11 weeks — on the 25th December corrected the abuse. This was not till after the first complaints were made to me, against this relieving officer.

CASE II.

John Murphy receiving rations for three children instead of two.

The relieving officer never went to this man's house. Sworn evidence was produced that Murphy has three children.

CASE III.

John Riordan, a blacksmith, in partial employment, and receiving 2s. per week for the use of his house as relieving officer's station, receiving rations for himself, a journeyman, two apprentices, a servant woman, his wife, and six children, all living in the same house.

The whole of this charge was proved on oath. One respectable farmer states, on oath, that this man's forge is in constant employment, and that he paid him 19s. on Christmas-day for smith's work. Another evidence proved that Riordan has two cows. This abuse must have gone on under the observation and with the connivance of the relieving officer, in the very house he was frequenting on duty.

CASE IV.

Daniel Riordan, brother to the above named, receiving rations, though he has upwards of an acre of land.

The relieving officer allowed this abuse to go on for 10 weeks, but on the 19th December, (the day after the first investigation I held on his conduct,) this man's name was struck off.

CASE V.

William Long received relief in Mahoonagh electoral division, whereas he belongs to Druncallagher.

It was proved that William Long does reside in Mahoonagh.

CASE VI.

Pat. Hayes receiving rations though in possession of three acres of land.

The relieving officer allowed this abuse to go on for 10 weeks. He was struck off on the 1st January, 1848.

These cases were investigated with every attention and inquiry.

In my opinion, this man is unfit for the situation of relieving officer. He has been slurring over his duty, and acting under intimidation or under the orders of others; but in the case of Riordan, the blacksmith, I am of opinion that he is guilty of conniving at a gross job.

The Vice-Chairman thanked the rate-payers who had thus come forward to check abuse, and pointed out to them, that by such a straightforward, determined course alone could they save themselves from ruin.

I am in hopes this example will be followed—but before the meeting broke up, a farmer holding 25 acres came before the Board, and made a most pressing demand for out-door relief for his herdsman and labourer. This was of course refused, and I explained to him the rules laid down by the Poor Law Commissioners on that subject.

Newcastle Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the GUARDIANS, Newcastle Union:—
January 13, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received a report from Mr. Maxwell relative to the investigation held by him on the 8th instant, into certain charges preferred against Mr. Madigan, relieving officer of the Mahoonagh electoral division of the Newcastle Union.

It appears that it was proved, that Daniel Kelleher was allowed to receive rations for three instead of two for a period of 11 weeks. That in the case of John Murphy, in which it was alleged that rations were allowed for three children instead of two, the relieving officer never went to Murphy's house. That Daniel Riordan and Pat. Hayes were allowed by him to receive rations for a period of 10 weeks, although the former possesses one acre, and the latter three acres of land.

The case of John Riordan, however, is the one to which the Commissioners wish most especially to call the attention of the Board of Guardians.

It appears that this person is a blacksmith, in partial employment, that he has two cows, and was receiving 2s. a-week for the use of his house, as a relieving officer's station. The relieving officer must of course, have been frequently at the house of Riordan in the discharge of his duty, and must have been aware (even without making the inquiries which in the due discharge of his duty he was bound to do) of the circumstances of the family; and yet he allows him to continue in the receipt of rations for himself, a journeyman, two apprentices, a servant woman, his wife, and six children.

Mr. Maxwell expresses his opinion, that Mr. Madigan is unfit for his situation—that he has been slurring his duty, and acting under intimidation, or under the orders of others. The Commissioners think that this opinion is fully borne out, by the several cases above referred to; but the case of John Riordan is of so flagrant a character, that the Commissioners have felt bound to mark their sense of the relieving officer's conduct, by issuing a formal order removing him from his situation.

A copy of the order is herewith enclosed.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. MADIGAN:—January 13, 1848.

THE Commissioners have received Mr. Maxwell's report relative to the investigation held by him on the 8th instant, into certain charges preferred against you as relieving officer of Mahoonagh electoral division of Newcastle Union.

From the circumstances detailed in this report, the Commissioners have arrived at the conclusion, that you have grossly neglected your duty as relieving officer, and that you are unfit for the situation. The case of John Riordan, which is one of the cases above referred to, is one of so serious a nature, that the Commissioners cannot too strongly mark their sense of your conduct in regard to it. The allowance of rations to this man for himself, a journeyman, two apprentices, a servant woman, his wife, and six children—although he was in receipt of 2s. a-week for the use of his house as your station, was in partial employment, and was possessed of two cows—cannot be accounted for on any other supposition, than that you connived at the fraud which was practiced; for it is impossible to suppose, that you could attend at his house frequently in the discharge of your duties (even supposing you did not make special inquiry into his circumstances, as you were bound to do), without becoming sufficiently acquainted with his circumstances, to convince you that he ought not to be relieved from the poor-rates.

Under all the circumstances of the case, the Commissioners have deemed it their duty to issue a formal order, under seal, removing you from your situation.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 12, 1848.

I SHALL feel obliged by receiving instructions from the Commissioners, as to whether any of the implements lent by the Board of Works, may be used in the employment of the inmates of the workhouse and extra houses.

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 14, 1848.

Newcastle Union.

I AM to state, that the implements may be so used, and that, if you recommend it, the Commissioners will ask for an additional quantity specially for the workhouse.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 12, 1848.

AT the meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union yesterday, I again pointed out to them the gradual increase in their expenditure, and the decrease in the weekly collection of the rates. In the week ending 8th January, they had exceeded their collection, by a sum of 358*l.* 7*s.* 9*d.* I then read to them my instructions on the subject, and brought to the special notice of the Board, that six of their ex-officio, and two of their elected Guardians, were defaulters. I then read out their names and called on them to set a good example, by at once paying their own rates, and unflinchingly to institute legal proceedings against the highest rate-payers who are in arrear.

A resolution was then passed, that the collectors be allowed a fortnight to complete their collection, and in default thereof, their securities be proceeded against.

I then read the Commissioners' letter of the 10th January, and called on them to make an attempt at carrying the labour-test into effect. I pointed out to them, that though the expense might be great at first, a great saving would undoubtedly be effected in the end, and the idle vicious habits of the lower orders, who have now so long been used to be fed without work, would be broken through and corrected.

As on all previous occasions, great objections were made to the whole system, some of them saying, "surely you would not expect a man to break stones all day for one pound of meal," &c., &c. But a resolution was at length passed, that the Board do comply with the Commissioners' orders, and meet on Thursday next, to establish the system in every electoral division in the Union. Superintendents were at once named, and ordered to attend on that day to receive instructions. Of that meeting's proceedings I shall make a full report.

An estimate of the rates necessary to be struck was produced. On a rate of 3*s.* 6*d.* in the pound being proposed in the Abbeyfeale electoral division, the Guardians stated that 2*s.* in the pound would be sufficient, as a landed proprietor had commenced drainage on a considerable scale, by which alone 1000 (rations) daily will be saved; and that a sum of 200*l.* subscribed under the Relief Act would now be handed over in aid of the rates. Several of the Guardians stated, that large sums had been applied for also in other divisions, and on these grounds, they requested the rates might be reduced from 4*s.* 6*d.* and 4*s.* 9*d.*, to 3*s.* To these proposals there was the greatest opposition, and a great deal of clamour and confusion ensued. It ended in the subject being deferred to next regular day of meeting.

I brought under the notice of the Board, that their contractor, Mr. O'Donnell, had handed over his contract in one electoral division to another person, whereby meal, damaged and full of chaff, had been distributed. (This I ascertained personally.) Mr. O'Donnell, on being called before the Board, stated that he regretted the circumstance, and should immediately remedy the evil by sending a supply of the best meal to that dépôt.

Arrangements were made to remove from the house several women whose husbands have been discovered to be living outside; also, several persons who have been a month in the workhouse. This will make a considerable number of vacancies in the house.

REPLY to the above:—January 14, 1848.

IN reference to your remarks respecting the breach of contract on the part of the meal contractor, I am to request that you will be so good as to obtain a copy of the contract, and forward it to the Commissioners; and I am also to request, that you will take evidence upon oath as to the bad meal, and forward it to this office.

Newcastle Union.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS.

IN compliance with instructions contained in your communication of 14th January, 1848, I beg to enclose a copy of the contract entered into by Mr. O'Donnell, with the Board of Guardians of this Union, and annex evidence on oath, as to the quality of the meal distributed in the Drumcolloher and Killougholehane Electoral Divisions on the 8th instant.

It appears that Mr. O'Donnell gave over that part of his contract (unknown to the Board of Guardians) to a person of the name of Hannigan, and this person supplied meal of a very inferior quality.

Some of it was produced to me; I tasted it, and found it sour and unfit for food.

ENCLOSURES.

Copy of Contract.Newcastle, December 28, 1847.

I HEREBY offer to supply with best Indian corn meal, for two months, from the 2nd January, 1848, to the 1st March, 1848, the different electoral districts of the Newcastle Union, and to give security for delivering same at the several depôts mentioned underneath, in any quantities that may be required by the Guardians, at the rate of 10*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* per ton; and to distribute it from depôts provided by myself.

PATRICK O'DONNELL.

Abbeyfeale, Athea, Newcastle, Ardagh, Ballingarry, Grenagh, Feenagh, Castletown, Drumcolloher, Mahoonagh, Clounagh, Fohenagh, Killilagh, Newchapel, Rathcahill, Raheenagh, Tournafulla, workhouse.

R. MAXWELL, T. P. L. Inspector.Newcastle, January 19, 1848.

THOMAS KANE, distributor at Killougholehane, sworn, states:—"Last Saturday week, 8th instant, the meal was brought by Mr. Hannigan's horses to the depôt. It was not fit for human food; it was dirty, and full of bran and chaff. I saw three quarts of bran sifted from half a stone of meal."

Matthew O'Brien, distributor in Drumcolloher, sworn, states:—"On Friday, 7th instant, meal was brought from Carass; none of which was distributed. The postmaster, Mr. Hannigan, distributed meal from his own house in the village; I saw that meal; it was as bad as bad could be; it was sour, and full of chaff."

James Drew (on the relief lists), sworn:—"Received his allowance of meal in Killougholehane Electoral Division; it was very bad, so bad that I could not eat one quarter of my breakfast."

R. MAXWELL, *T. P. L. Inspector.*REPLY to the above:—January 22, 1848.

IF Mr. O'Donnell showed a sample to the Board of Guardians, the Commissioners think he might be convicted of one of the offences described in section 8 of the Baker's Act; but otherwise not; and I am to request that you will take proceedings against the contractor under that section, if a sample were produced.

It is presumed, that the Guardians were not parties to the alleged transfer of the contract to Hannigan; and if not, the delivery by Hannigan must be held to be a delivery for O'Donnell.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 15, 1848.

A MEETING of the Guardians was held on Thursday the 13th instant, when measures were taken to issue the food in a steeped state, at each depôt.

One pound of dry meal was weighed, and when steeped, was accurately measured.

A contract was then made for a supply of measures of half pound, one pound, and two pound sizes.

The assistants were called in and received their instructions, as to steeping and measuring the food.

Tenders for tubs were ordered to be advertised for.

The quarries in each locality were then selected, and orders made to the clerk to write to the several proprietors for permission to raise stone, and break it on the spot. Newcastle Union.

Instructions to the superintendents of labour were drawn up, and directions given that each have a copy in writing given to him. I beg to annex a copy.

ENCLOSURE.

To obtain from the relieving officer of his electoral division, the names of 50 able-bodied single male paupers over 15 years of age, who are suspected of having some means, or of being tradesmen.

When leave is obtained to work in the quarries, these persons are to be set to work raising stone, and breaking it so as to pass through a two-inch ring. Each man is to break seven cwt. of stones per day.

The superintendent is to measure the broken stone at least once a week. He is particularly cautioned against allowing the workmen to practise the fraud of getting him to measure the stones twice over.

He is to endeavour to dispose of the broken stone to the best advantage, but previous to his doing so, he is to consult the Guardian of his electoral division, and send in to the Board of Guardians a statement of the highest prices he can obtain in his neighbourhood, for "brown stone," and for "lime stone." Any person selected by the relieving officers for labour who does not at once go to work, is to be struck off the relief lists.

When any of the workmen fail in their attendance at the work, their names are to be sent to the food distributor, in order that their allowance be stopped.

The superintendent is held responsible for all tools, implements, &c., committed to his charge.

REPLY to the above:—January 19, 1848.

THE Commissioners see no objection to these instructions, except that the superintendents are authorized to dispose of the broken stones, which the Commissioners think the Guardians should do themselves.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 15, 1848.

I WAS requested by the Guardians at their adjourned meeting on Thursday last, 13th instant, to submit the following question to the Poor Law Commissioners, viz.:—Whether a labourer getting an occasional day's employment is thereby disqualified from receiving out-door relief, or whether his rations should be stopped for that day only?

REPLY to the above:—January 24, 1848.

THE Commissioners think that as a general rule, a labourer getting an occasional day's employment in a week is not a proper object for relief during such week, by a Board of Guardians. Still peculiar cases may occur which may be opposed to the strict letter of this rule, although not repugnant to its spirit; and it is to be remembered that a relieving officer is always bound to give relief, in any case of necessity which is urgent and sudden.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 19, 1848.

AT the meeting of the Board of Guardians held yesterday, I called their attention to the subject of the collection of the rates; though there is an increase on last week of 170*l.*, yet their expenditure exceeded the collection by a sum of 207*l.* 16*s.* 6*d.* I was then informed that their legal adviser had written to the principal defaulters, and that every exertion would be made to enforce the payment of the rates.

Collector Hannigan came before the Board, and stated that in the electoral divisions of Kilmeedy, Drumcallagher, and Mahoonagh, three seizures made by him for poor rates were rescued from him; that he swore to this fact before a magistrate, Mr. Massey, of Glenwilliam, and applied to him for the protection of the police, but was refused. He apprehends further difficulty if assistance be not afforded him.

The subject of the new rate was then reconsidered according to notice at last meeting, when it was carried by the chairman's casting vote, that the reduced Newcastle Union. rate agreed on at last meeting should be struck, and not the rate estimated by the clerk; that in their opinion, it will be sufficient to meet their liabilities, owing to the prospect of employment in the country, and from their conviction that the system of labour and steeped food for the able-bodied will reduce their expenditure very considerably. From this opinion the other half of the Guardians dissented, and called to their recollection "last summer, when they "were in a state of insolvency, without money or credit," for want of a sufficient rate having been struck.

Letters from the owners of several quarries in the Union were produced. There were five consenting and five refusing to let the Guardians have the use of their quarries. Nine have not yet answered the applications made to them. I have made arrangements to give out on Thursday the 20th, a supply of implements to the overseers of those electoral divisions in which leave has been given to raise stone, and I hope I shall be able to report soon, that the labour system is being tried in several electoral divisions. I apprehend that there may be some difficulty in getting stone to break in some districts, but I am informed that there are quantities of large stones (quarried during the Relief Works) lying on the unfinished roads throughout the Union.

William Cox, Esq., ex-officio Guardian, proposed to the Board, that in order to avoid expense, the present food distributors (who are provided by the contractor) be made to issue the meal in a moist state, and that the appointment of the assistants be rescinded, with the sanction of the Commissioners; this was agreed to, and it was voted that the distributors be paid 1s. per week for that duty.

One of the relieving officers, Mr. Minahan, stated before the Board that he had received a notice "not to attempt to go a certain road again, for his life "would be taken if he did." At his request I examined one of the paupers in the house, who stated "that he heard the threat made use of by a man who "had been struck off the Relief lists (naming him), and that he was ready to "swear to it, if necessary."

I called on the chairman and Board of Guardians to take this matter up, so as to make an example in the country, and show a determination to put down intimidation. To this a cordial assent was given; and I gave directions to Mr. Minahan to go to a magistrate at once on the subject, and warned the pauper to be prepared to give his evidence when called on.

REPLY to the above :—January 26, 1848.

IN reference to your statement that the assistance of the police had been refused to collector Hannigan, from whom three distresses were rescued, I am to state that the Commissioners have been informed that Mr. L. C. Smyth, R.M., Abbeyfeale, has been instructed to communicate with the Guardians, and afford all the aid in his power to the collection of the rate.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners approve of the course taken in regard to the threat held out to Mr. Minahan, one of the relieving officers.

Captain MAXWELL to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 26, 1848.

I HAVE to report an improvement in the collection of the poor-rates this last week, it having amounted to 762*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*; but still I pointed out to the Guardians that their expenditure exceeded this sum by 7*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.*, that they were heavily in debt to their meal contractor, and there was a large arrear of rates still uncollected. I was then informed that the collectors were exerting themselves in every way, and had impounded a quantity of cattle; and that several of the highest rate-payers had expressed their intention of paying up immediately, I am in hopes that next week's collection will be a further increase.

The proprietor of a very large house in Ballingarry, capable of containing 400 or 500 persons, came before the Board and offered the house at a moderate rent per month. The chairman expressed his disapproval of taking a house at such a distance and entailing the expense of matron, master, porter, and establishment, on the Union. The subject was in consequence deferred.

The only real objection to this house, in my opinion, is, that a committee of ex-officio and electoral Guardians could not be got to attend to it ; and yet it is in the poorest and most populous part of the Union. Newcastle Union.

On the Commissioners' letter being read, begging the Board to reconsider the rate resolved on on the 11th instant, the subject was discussed at great length, when the feeling of the Board was expressed, that "it would be impossible to collect more than 3s. in the pound; that if a higher rate was demanded the whole country would be in despair, and a systematic opposition to it take place." The result was, that a further reduction of the rate resolved upon the 11th instant was made; the arrears to be added, as a matter of course; and it was further resolved to apply to the Commissioners "not to ask for the advances under the Temporary Relief Act till after next harvest, but to express their full intention of paying up all their liabilities."

In my opinion, this system of "putting off the evil day" is objectionable. The rates they have now resolved on will not carry them through four months.

The disinclination or determination not to give employment to the labouring class still exists. The feeling is, that unless all combine to do so, the few will not employ labourers and pay besides heavy rates for their neighbours' paupers.

A letter was read from Captain Kennedy, agent to the Devon estates, stating that he was ready to employ every able-bodied person in Ardagh electoral division, if all the other proprietors would do the same.

On inquiry from the relieving officers, the meal has not yet been moistened, they having waited for further instructions on that head; I accordingly gave directions to commence the system at once, and to issue no dry meal to the able-bodied class. Implements have been served out, and stone-breaking will be in operation in nearly every electoral division to-morrow, 27th instant.

There has been a great deal of delay and difficulty about quarries, several having been refused. In some localities the Guardians will have to purchase stone.

The Commissioners may rely on my doing all I can to get the steeped food and labour system into operation, but as yet I am meeting with delays, objections, and difficulties. I must say the severity of the weather has been against the commencement of the stone-breaking.

The country is still in a disturbed state; within a mile or two of this town houses have been attacked and robbed by armed gangs of men.

THE Commissioners are glad to perceive that there is an improvement in the collection of the poor-rate; but still the financial state of the Union must be regarded as unsatisfactory, unless the weekly receipts exceed, materially, the weekly expenses.

In regard to the objections made to hiring a house at Ballingarry as was proposed, I am to state, that the Commissioners think that it is a mistake to object to the hiring a house at Ballingarry, on the ground of the expenses of the staff. The expenses of the staff would be far more than compensated by the effect of the workhouse in preventing improper persons from receiving relief. In fact, a similar objection to the expense of a staff might be raised against the workhouse system of relief altogether, and yet it is well known that such a system is far more economical than any other, in reference to relief for able-bodied men.

The Commissioners would recommend you to endeavour to convince the chairman and Board of Guardians of the correctness of the views entertained by the Commissioners on the subject.

With reference to your observation as to the insufficiency of the rates now resolved on, to carry the Guardians through a period of four months, the Commissioners desire to refer you to the accompanying copy of a letter which they have addressed this day to the Board of Guardians on the subject.

The Commissioners also desire to observe, that there appears to be some mistake in regard to the letter from Captain Kennedy to which you refer. According to the letter as entered on the Guardians' minutes, Captain Kennedy's offer was, to employ every able-bodied labourer belonging to the Devon estate in the Ardagh district, provided other proprietors would each take charge of their own poor and keep them off the rates.

Newcastle Union.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the GUARDIANS :—January 31, 1848.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have had under consideration the resolution passed by the Newcastle Board of Guardians, on Tuesday the 25th instant, in which the Guardians set forth the rates which they finally propose to make in the several electoral divisions of Newcastle Union, and state that they have thought it expedient to limit the new rate to a maximum of 3s. in the pound.

The Commissioners are still of opinion that the original estimate submitted by the clerk was not excessive; and the Commissioners are apprehensive that the rates at present proposed will be inadequate to relieve the destitution of the Union, unless the new rates are collected with greater quickness than the rates which are shortly to be closed. Nevertheless, as the Commissioners cannot positively assume that this will not be the case, and as the Guardians have shown a disposition to make rates which, under ordinary circumstances, could not be regarded as low in amount, the Commissioners do not wish to interfere further with the discretion of the Guardians in reference to their rates for ordinary expenses.

In reference, however, to the repayment of advances under the Temporary Relief Act, the Commissioners have to observe that, until the loans under the Temporary Relief Act are repaid, the poor rates of each electoral division remain liable for the repayment of such loans. Now the Commissioners perceive that there are three divisions, viz., Abbeyfeale, Ardagh, and Newcastle, in which the Guardians propose to strike a less rate than the maximum of 3s. in the pound, and the Commissioners would suggest that the rates in each of those divisions should be raised to the same level as the rates in the other electoral divisions of the Union.

The Commissioners have only to add, that the due relief of the destitution in Newcastle Union will depend on the manner in which the new rates will be collected; and the Commissioners trust that the Guardians will make unusual exertions on this head, in order to compensate for their reduction of the amount in the pound originally proposed for those rates.

OLDCASTLE UNION.

MR. FLANAGAN, POOR LAW INSPECTOR, to the COMMISSIONERS—Renewal of "Out-door Relief Order:—January 13, 1848.

THE following summary will show the total number of paupers at present relieved in this Union under the 2nd section.

Number of cases 857, and number of persons 2522. The weekly expense in supporting that number is 82*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.*, a fraction under 8*d.* per head.

Out of the 13 electoral divisions into which the Union is divided, there are five, Crossakeel, Killallon, Loughcrew, Castlepollard, and Fore, where not a single able-bodied person has been relieved. The landlords and occupiers have, by their mutual co-operation, given labour and employment to all the destitute poor in their districts. I have every reason to believe that they will continue to do so, and so preserve their properties from heavy taxation, and maintain amongst the labouring classes that self-respect and reliance which is so surely endangered, if not lost wholly when recipients of public charity.

Out of the gross number of persons relieved, 1406, more than one-half of the whole, are from the electoral divisions of Virginia, Castlerahan, and Ballyjamesduff; and about one-fifth of the whole from the electoral division of Ballyjamesduff.

I believe, that except in the two divisions of Ballyjamesduff and Castlerahan, the number relieved has reached nearly, if not, entirely its maximum, and even in those divisions there is not much probability of any large increase to the number.

I endeavoured to obtain a return of the number of persons who had applied and been rejected, but have not been furnished with an accurate return, not more than 47 applicants appear to have been actually refused relief, many however did not apply to the Guardians, whose names had been taken down by the relieving officers.

My object in seeking for that return was to try the efficiency of the workhouse test, by comparison of the proportion of the numbers relieved to the gross number of applicants here and in the Unions of Mullingar and Mountmellick.

From the Mullingar Union I have obtained a return embracing five of the relief districts; in those five districts, the applications by heads of families were 2284, and the number relieved only 1359, or 3793 persons.

In the Mullingar Union the workhouse test was, until lately, very strictly enforced, and the actual number rejected bears a proportionally high ratio to the number of applicants.

I regret that I am unable to furnish more complete returns upon this, which would, I have no doubt, show the great efficacy and consequent necessity of applying the workhouse test.

Upon the whole, I would recommend the further renewal of the order under the 2nd section. It appears to me to have hitherto worked most efficiently, considering the great difficulty of organizing and bringing into action so novel and complicated a system.

Too much praise cannot be awarded to the Board of Guardians for their unremitting efforts to give full and unlimited efficacy to the law. The relieving officers have collectively and individually discharged their duties much to my satisfaction, and when the workhouse accommodation has been sufficiently enlarged by the erection of the new sheds, and full room is given for the application of the test, I have no doubt that the proportion of the numbers relieved under this Act to that under the Temporary Relief Act, will show strikingly the great superiority of the present system.

There is a section of the Board who have unfortunately taken up and acted upon most erroneous and dangerous views with respect to the nature of the work for the able-bodied. I shall attend in Oldcastle on Wednesday next, for the purpose of endeavouring to dissuade them from the course they have adopted, which, if persevered in, will necessarily pauperize all the labourers now supporting themselves upon their wages, and moreover open the door to the grossest jobbing and corruption.

Oldeastle Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—January 15, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration a resolution of the Board of Guardians of the Oldeastle Union, on the 5th instant, in which they request that the order empowering them to grant out-door relief to able-bodied destitute poor, under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, may be renewed; the Commissioners have also had before them a report from their Inspector, Mr. Flanagan, on the subject, and in compliance with the Guardians' request, the Commissioners have resolved to issue an order renewing the former order for that purpose, for two months from the date of such order; and a copy of it is herewith enclosed.

LOUGHREA UNION:—Dissolution of the Board of Guardians.

Mr. R. BOURKE, Poor Law Inspector, to the COMMISSIONERS:—
January 12, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 6th instant, enclosing a communication from the Under Secretary's office relative to the death of a man named John Burke, in the Loughrea Union, and directing me to make inquiry into the circumstances of the case, and report the results to you, with reference especially to the question whether the deceased made application for relief either to the Board of Guardians of the Union, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers.

In reply I beg leave to inform you that from the evidence of head constable Phillips, it appears that on the morning of the 28th December, being informed that a person had been discovered dead in the woods at Marble-hill, he proceeded there in company with another man, and found the body of deceased, which was recognised by his companion as that of a person named John Burke, who resided with a relation named Martin, on the lands of Moyglass, in the electoral division of Ballynakill. The appearance of the man indicated great destitution; and it was the opinion of head constable Phillips, and of others who saw the body, that the man had died of want. On searching his person some grains of corn were found in his tobacco-box, and a note in his pocket from Mr. Redmond Burke, addressed to his brother, who is a Guardian, requesting him to procure him admission to the workhouse. This note was dated some days previously. The deceased's brother arrived at the spot some short time afterwards, and stated that he lived with his brother at Martin's, and supported himself by his labour, sharing what he got with his brother; that he knew his brother to be in great distress, and thought he had gone up on the day before to Marble-hill House to get charity; and that he felt much surprise at not seeing him return.

I cannot find any trace of Burke's having applied for relief to the Board of Guardians, the master of the workhouse, or the relieving officer. But it is right to state that the relieving officer was not appointed until the 18th December, and did not enter on his duties until the 3rd January.

I return the enclosure to your letter of the 6th.

ENCLOSURE.

County of Galway, E. R
Marble Hill, Loughrea, December 28, 1847.

THIS morning a poor man named John Burke was found dead in Marble-hill demesne. No inquest has as yet been held. It is the opinion of all who saw the body, that he died from want and destitution.

The Inspector-General,
 &c. &c.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—January 14, 1848.

THE Commissioners desire me to state, for the information of the Board of Guardians of the Loughrea Union, that it appears that the body of a poor man named John Burke, was found in the wood of Marble-hill demesne, on the 28th ultimo; and that on inquiry it has been ascertained that the person died of starvation. It further appears that there was found in his pocket a letter from Mr. Redmond Burke to a member of the Board of Guardians, recommending this destitute man as a fit object for relief.

The Commissioners have learned that the relieving officer for the district did not enter on his duties until the 3rd instant; and they cannot disguise from themselves the possibility that the death of John Burke might have been prevented if the Guardians had not so long delayed to comply with the Commissioners' order for the appointment of relieving officers.

The Commissioners however now only draw the attention of the Guardians to this calamitous occurrence in the hope that sufficient provision will be made for enabling the relieving officers to afford the aid which is authorized by law in all cases of urgent necessity, and that they will be held to a strict performance of the duties devolved on them.

Loughrea Union.

EXTRACT from GUARDIANS' MINUTES:—January 22, 1848.

IN reference to the Commissioners' letter of the 14th instant, the Guardians at their meeting of the 22nd January, stated in reply: That this man Burke, who was a tenant of Mr. Burke's of Moyglass, had been suffering from fever and dysentery, and objected to go into the poor-house, where he had been peatedly urged to go, so that if a relieving officer had been sooner appointed, it would have made no change in this poor man's case, as he absolutely refused to accompany his family into the poor-house, who at the time were receiving relief there, under the peculiar circumstance of the case, without the husband.

Mr. R. BOURKE to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 12, 1848.

WITH reference to your letter of the 1st instant, forwarding a communication from the Under Secretary's office, relating to the death of a person named Michael Crevan, who is stated to have died of destitution and want at Borken, in the Loughrea Union, and directing me to make such inquiry into the circumstances, as would enable me to report the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief, either to the Board of Guardians, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers, I have now the honour to state to you that having examined a sub-constable, named James Baskerville, stationed at Borken, I am informed that on the evening of Sunday, the 26th December last, he saw the deceased lying in a bye road, about half a mile from the police barracks at Borken. He was surrounded by five or six men, who had brought him some straw to lie on, and had lighted a fire. The deceased appeared extremely feeble and emaciated, and complained of cramps in his legs, adding that he had eaten nothing for two days. The sub-constable bought him some bread at a neighbouring shop, and sent it to him; but in the morning when he passed again the man was dead, and the bread remained untouched at his side. The constable further states, that the deceased said he belonged to Athenry; but had been begging in the neighbourhood of the place where he died for a fortnight before his decease, and that he did not know where to get a ticket for the workhouse, and was moreover too feeble to go there. Some hours after he had seen him dead, the constable reported the circumstance to the relieving officer, whom he met at a neighbouring house. This officer, whose name is William Proctor, stated that no previous application had been made to him by the deceased, or on his behalf, for relief. That at the period of his death, he had not entered on his duties as relieving officer, having been appointed by the Guardians on the 18th December, and not confirmed till the 1st January, and that it was not till the 3rd of that month that he opened an office for receiving applications for relief.

Upon examination of the Application Books at the workhouse, I cannot find that any person of the name of Michael Crevan applied for admission, either to the Board of Guardians or the master. A person of that name appears as having been discharged on the 19th December, but from the account of himself given by the deceased, it could not have been him.

I cannot close this report without adverting to the possibility, that if relieving officers had been sooner appointed in Loughrea Union, this unfortunate man might have had some ascertained place to apply to for relief in the extremity of his distress.

REPLY to the above:—January 17, 1848.

I AM to state, with regard to your remarks as to the confirmation of the appointment of the relieving officer for the district in which this poor man died, that the answers to the usual queries relating to the relieving officer were received in this office on the 20th December, and were referred to you on that day; the Commissioners confirmed the appointment of the relieving officer on the 23rd December, which was the day on which the answers to the queries were received back from you.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—January 19, 1848.

Loughrea Union.

ADVERTING to their letter of the 23rd ultimo, sanctioning the appointment of relieving officers for the Loughrea Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to draw the attention of the Board of Guardians of the Loughrea Union to the enclosed copy of a communication which has been referred to the Commissioners from the Under Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a poor man named Michael Crevan, who, it is stated, died of destitution and want.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners have received a report from their Inspector, Mr. R. Bourke, on the subject, in which he states that he was informed by a sub-constable of police, named James Baskerville, stationed at Borken, that he saw the deceased on the evening of the 26th ultimo in a bye road, about half a mile from the police barracks at Borken, and that he was surrounded by five or six men who had brought him some straw to lie on, and had lighted a fire; that the deceased appeared extremely feeble and emaciated, and complained of cramps in his legs, adding that he had eaten nothing for two days; that the sub-constable bought him some bread at a neighbouring shop and sent it to him, but in the morning when he passed again the man was dead, and the bread remained untouched at his side.

Mr. Bourke further reports that the constable stated that the deceased said he belonged to Athenry, but had been begging in the neighbourhood of the place where he died, for a fortnight before his decease, and that he did not know where to get a ticket for the workhouse, and was moreover too feeble to go there; that some hours after he saw him dead, the constable reported the circumstance to the relieving officer, William Proctor, who stated that no previous application had been made to him by the deceased, or on his behalf, for relief; and that at the period of the death of the deceased he had not entered on his duties as relieving officer, and that it was not until the 3rd January that he opened an office for receiving applications for relief.

The Commissioners desire to observe, that as the relieving officer of the district did not enter on his duties until the 3rd January, this destitute person's death might also probably have been prevented, if the Guardians had not so long delayed to comply with the Commissioners' order for the appointment of relieving officers.

The Commissioners advert to the past, in order that it may be a warning for the future, and they rely on the Guardians for the adoption of all requisite means to give full effect to the powers which at present they possess, for affording relief either in the workhouse or out of doors through the relieving officers, in the cases which the law permits to be so relieved.

EXTRACT from GUARDIANS' MINUTES:—January 24, 1848.

IN reference to the Commissioners' letter of the 19th instant, relative to the death of Michael Crevan, the Guardians, at their meeting of the 24th January, state that he was an inmate of the house from the 10th July, 1847, to 19th December, 1847, when he voluntarily went out in consequence of his being prevented from smoking tobacco.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. R. BOURKE:—February 3, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of a letter which they have received from the Rev. P. Lyons, P. P., of Killmeen, relating to the distress existing in that portion of the Loughrea Union, and I am to request your immediate attention to the statements contained in that communication.

The Commissioners request you to report specifically whether up to the present time the Board of Guardians can be considered to have effectually discharged their duties; and the Commissioners beg that if such shall appear to you to be the case, you will make your report to that effect so explanatory as that it may warrant the Commissioners in withholding an order for the Board's dissolution, which otherwise the Commissioners will feel themselves bound to issue.

Loughrea Union.

Mr. BOURKE to the COMMISSIONERS in reply:—February 7, 1848.

I BEG leave to lay before you my reasons for thinking that the Board of Guardians of the Loughrea Union cannot be considered to have effectually discharged the duties assigned to them by the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

Up to a very late period the Guardians opposed themselves to one of the principal features of this law, the appointment of relieving officers; and though the subject was repeatedly brought under their notice, it was not till the 17th December last that they proceeded to the discharge of this duty; the motive assigned for this delay being, that the Guardians considered these officers to be required for the administration of out-door relief alone, and that they were determined to defer this mode of relief as long as possible. In pursuance of this resolution the Guardians engaged a house for the reception of the pauper children, and entered into some negotiations for additional buildings to accommodate the increasing number of applicants; but as these latter were not successful, and during their course the Guardians continued to admit all persons applying for relief, the numbers in the house soon swelled to a dangerous extent, and deaths rapidly increased. Their number was enlarged by the fact, that from a general dislike among the people to enter into any workhouse, and the particular horror felt with regard to Loughrea, from an idea of the fatal effects of disease there, applicants were withheld from seeking admission, until privations and hardship had so exhausted their strength that they died immediately after their entrance.

On Saturday last, the 5th instant, I attended the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians. The number of inmates then in the house was 1136, being 236 persons more than the house was calculated to contain, and 120 fresh cases were brought forward by the relieving officers. Of those in the house 165 had been provisionally admitted by the relieving officers during the week, but partly in consequence of the want of room in the house, and partly because there were no clothes in which they could be dressed, they had been kept in the two male probationary wards, where they were most dangerously crowded, with nothing to sleep upon but a heap of straw, for several days before the meeting. On this occasion a letter was read from your Board calling on the Guardians to provide for the increasing number of applicants, by discharging on out-door allowances such persons as could thus be legally relieved by the Guardians; but no order was made upon it, and nothing further was done, than to give provisional relief to the whole number of 285 persons until accommodation could be provided for them. Such persons as lived in the neighbourhood were consequently given a week's supply of food and sent away, and the rest were kept until the several relieving officers could supply them in their own districts; all being desired to return on the following Board day, and be admitted to the workhouse.

The condition of the workhouse itself was not more satisfactory than the arrangements for the relief of the poor. The damage done to the roof by the storm which occurred at the end of November is still unrepaired. The clothing of the women and female children is still insufficient; and the boys' and girls' schools totally unsupplied with the necessary requisites for affording instruction, though repeated applications have been made for them.

The condition of the poor of the Union is admitted by all persons, whether Guardians or not, to be most miserable, and several deaths have lately occurred from destitution; and though in many instances it has appeared that the parties were offered admission into the workhouse, it is not wonderful, considering the mortality which has occurred there, fever and dysentery being prevalent, that persons have been found who prefer the chance of death by the road-side to that of death by disease in the workhouse, which since October last has carried off upwards of 200 persons in Loughrea.

Whilst thus giving my opinion of the manner in which relief has, to the present time, been administered in this Union, I feel it my duty to state that the representations in the letter of the Rev. Mr. Lyons appear to me much exaggerated, and that the evidence alleged to have been given by the medical officer is distinctly denied by him.

Dr. PHELAN, Poor Law Inspector, to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 9, 1848. Loughrea Union

I HAVE the honour of informing you that I carefully inspected the Loughrea workhouse, accompanied by the medical officer, on the 3rd and 4th instant, and that I attended the Board of Guardians' meeting on the 5th.

The house contained 1127 paupers, 12 of which were in the idiot cells, 76 in the fever sheds, 58 in the infirmary, 60 in the male and female aged and infirm dormitories, and 28 in three other dormitories. All these, making a total of 234, were on the sick list. The patients in the fever sheds were cases of fever and of dysentery—the latter, as last year, often supervening on the former, and frequently with fatal effect. But there was not a case of typhus fever in them; all the patients of that class being only slightly affected, except when dysentery or diarrhoea had set in. Here, as in many other Unions which I have lately visited, fever as an epidemic, has in great measure ceased.

The remaining sick were chronic cases, many of them also having in addition dysentery or diarrhoea, or they were patients affected with the latter diseases only. The medical officer has been very careful not to overcrowd his infirmary and other wards in which there are sick paupers; and on this account, and from this large number of sick, the aged and infirm dormitories have been entirely appropriated to that class, as also portions of the upper dormitories.

As there is some spare accommodation in the idiots' portions and in the fever sheds, I advised the medical officer to remove all the 28 cases in the upper dormitories, so as to have them entirely free from sickness; and as the premises, now nearly ready for occupation will soon displace, perhaps, 160 paupers to them, I suggested that, on their removal, the dormitories of the aged and infirm be also emptied; and this class, after proper whitewashing has taken place, restored to them, it being very desirable, if possible, to have them in their proper places.

The medical officer is extremely attentive to his duties, to which he devotes more time than any other that I am acquainted with.

This house is in a very unsatisfactory condition. A considerable number of the boys and girls are very badly clad, even those who have house clothing. The adult females and the aged and infirm are too lightly clad; besides a very large number have only their own filthy clothes. The dietary of the adults has been insufficient and of bad quality. I examined milk on two successive days, which must have contained a considerable proportion of water, but the supply even of this article is very small, not even sufficient for the sick and the young, and aged and infirm. The breakfast hitherto has been 7 oz. Indian meal for adults, and $\frac{3}{4}$ oz. treacle; 14 oz. brown bread for dinner, with a pint of cocoa. This cocoa is sweetened with treacle, and only contains two gallons of milk for several hundred persons. The junior classes have been better fed. At their breakfast more than half the boys and girls had no spoons: a large proportion of them look very badly, evidently in a reduced condition, although not actually affected with any disease. These, I may observe, are such as have been admitted within the last two or three months: they are stated to have been then in the most wretched condition; and the contrast between them and those that have been some months in the house is very considerable—the latter being far more healthy and muscular, although in those respects, inferior to the same class in most other houses.

To improve the condition of all I advised a better dietary, to which I requested the attention of the Board of Guardians, by which a minute was made that it be acted on; but I confess my doubts that such will be the case, although I attribute it more to want of habits of business than to any intention to evade it. I feel these doubts, partly, because the suggestions I formerly made on the same subjects, and in respect to ventilation, have not been in the slightest degree attended to. The ventilation of the infirmary and of all parts of the workhouse remains in the same defective state as that in which I before described it.

I found the privies in the most filthy and disgusting state. There were 38 men in the lower male probationary ward, all of whom had slept in the upper on the previous night. On going into their proper yard, that connected with the lower ward, I found a considerable quantity of dung, ashes, &c., outside the door, and the floor of the privy was covered with fæces, some evidently of more than a day's continuance. In the lower female probationary ward there were 75 women and 48 girls and young children. These 123 had slept, on the previous night, in the upper probationary ward, in which there should not be more than about 24 to 30, at most, put. All—men, women, &c., wore their own clothes, and presented an appearance of the most wretched description; want in the case of all, starvation in that of most, was too evident. Many of them were ill, and some were selected by the medical officer, at my request, for removal to the infirmary or fever sheds. I have no doubt that the congregation of so many in these wards must produce disease in no small proportion of them. At the female side, 50 cubic feet of air was about the amount which the room averaged for each; but when the disgusting and filthy clothes of the parties are considered, and the unclean state of those miserable creatures perceived, were the space four times as much it would not have been sufficient for them.

The yard and privy at the female side were still more disgracefully dirty than at the male side. The sight was sufficient to sicken any person, the stench almost sure to do so.

I brought the porter and the master to view those yards and privies, and I informed the former that his conduct was so reprehensible, in neglecting to keep those places in a more cleanly state, at a time when cleanliness was more especially required, that I should feel it my duty to suggest his dismissal to the Poor Law Commissioners and to the Board of Guardians, to which I spoke on the subject, but without any result that I am aware of. An example of this kind appears to me to be required.

Although not my particular duty, I feel it right to observe that, on looking through the boys' schoolroom, I was informed by the schoolmaster that he has been three months in office then, and that he has not yet got any one article of school materials; consequently he has not given any school instruction, except teaching Catechism. He has repeatedly asked for the necessary supplies, and has made written requisitions for them. The same is the case in the girls' school, except that there happens to be a few books there; but, in fact, no means of instruction are placed at the disposal of either.

The monotony occasioned by this want of instruction must be injurious to these boys and girls, and is highly discreditable to the department.

Nearly every part of the house is black from want of whitewashing. No peasant's hut could be more so than the nursery, which smoked so as to render it difficult to remain many minutes in it, yet it contained 36 women and 36 infants. Of course it was an unhealthy place for either, especially for the latter. In the day-room there were 133 adults when I went through, several were aged and infirm. All sat on the floor, there was not a form in the room, nor one in the nursery. This also, and the female aged and infirm dormitory (the latter especially) were black from smoke; and as no means of improving the ventilation had been adopted, not even the simple and inexpensive one of opening the windows, the atmosphere of course was impure.

Matters were not quite so bad, but not much less so, at the male side, in the aged and infirm dormitory of which there were 28 patients, none of whom had got any breakfast at 12 o'clock, when I was going through.

The house is admirably located, the site an excellent one; there is no nuisance from want of drainage, nor from any other cause that I could perceive. Heaps of dung and other offensive matter are immediately outside the gates. These I before advised to be deposited at the far part of the ground.

The average weekly cost per head for the healthy classes in this house has latterly been about 1s. 4½d., for the sick, 2s. 3½d., for all, 1s. 6½d.

The nurse-tending and hospital assistance are not satisfactory, although improved since my last visit. The medical portions of the houses are however the best.

This house contained only 207 paupers on the 29th September, 1846. In the subsequent year, 3121 were admitted, and if the returns be correct, 920 died, or about 28 per cent.

The reduced condition in which a large proportion of the paupers were admitted, latterly at least, will be perceived from the following return which I have extracted from the register. From the 1st of October last to the 4th of February 1730 paupers were admitted; 753 of these went out discharged, and 210 died, giving in 4 months a mortality of 12 per cent. in the house on these paupers, independent of such mortality as may have taken place after they had been discharged. Judging from the wretched appearance of those who applied for relief on the last Board-day, as well as from that of those who had been provisionally admitted, and who were, as above described, in the probationary wards, and from observations and inquiries otherwise made by me, I cannot hesitate to express my great apprehensions that these paupers only represent the condition of a large portion of the Union population, amongst whom, I can scarcely doubt, that very great destitution extensively prevails.

Impressed with this apprehension, I anxiously observed the proceedings of the Board of Guardians, which, up to that day, had given no relief outside the workhouse. I remarked to them on the number that was sick, and informed them that, considering the extent of sickness in the house, although not of a very bad contagious character, the reduced condition of the paupers generally, and the want of proper clothing by many, it was my opinion that none of those in the probationary wards ought to be admitted on that day, nor until more room and more clothing should be obtained. The disposition to admit was, notwithstanding, apparent; and I then showed that of the 1730 admitted since October, 210 died, and I commented on that fact, and stated my apprehensions that much injury must arise from any further admissions; and I added that I could not doubt that there must be many outside, aged and infirm, temporary ill, and widows having children, as well as able-bodied, who are very destitute. This was not denied, but the Guardians stated that all who applied to them were admitted, and thus inferred that all who wished for relief got it, at least, that none were refused it. I am satisfied that in this Union there is much fallacy, the Guardians perhaps not perceiving it.

On much discussion, in which Mr. Bourke, who soon came to the Board-room, took a judicious part, it was admitted that a vast amount of destitution exists in portions of the Union, an amount which the workhouse accommodation is totally inadequate to meet; yet the Guardians would, I doubt not, have put the paupers in the probationary wards into the house, as well as a considerable number that day applying, had not Mr. Bourke and myself strongly pointed out the danger that must arise from such overcrowding. I handed in a paper which explained this, and stated that it was my particular duty, when able to have the honour of waiting on a Board of Guardians, to point out the danger of such overcrowding as I then saw. Mr. Bourke was also very decided, and at length the Guardians, at our suggestion, gave relief outside for a week to such of those applicants as the medical officer thought able to return home.

I beg to observe that, throughout, the Guardians were extremely courteous, and that they received these suggestions in the kindest manner, whilst it was evident their wishes were to put more into the house, and to give no relief outside.

I feel it my duty to conclude by informing you, that when thus pressed, and when ordering out relief for those paupers, some of the more influential and wealthy Guardians declared that if out-door relief be given, they will at once discharge their labourers, except those usually employed by them; and from this, and the several circumstances above enumerated, I am strongly impressed with the conviction that the Board of Guardians will not carry out the law, so as to give in-door and out-door relief to the fit objects which are in need of it. I wish to be understood as meaning rather that the Guardians do not appear to be impressed with the necessity of fulfilling the duties which devolve upon them, rather than that they are unwilling to fulfil them. But of their want of intention to do so I have little doubt.

On coming through the Portumna portion of the Union my inquiries confirmed the foregoing views.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—February 12, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under their serious consideration reports from their Inspectors, Mr. Bourke and Mr. Phelan, respecting the condition of Loughrea workhouse, and the administration of relief in Loughrea Union.

Mr. Bourke states that on Saturday, the 29th ultimo, he attended the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians, when the number of inmates in the workhouse exceeded by 236 persons the number that the house was calculated to contain.

He further states, that 120 fresh cases were on that day brought forward by the relieving officers, and that of the inmates of the workhouse 165 had been provisionally admitted during the week; but that partly in consequence of the want of room in the house, and partly because there were no clothes in which they could be dressed, they had been kept in the two small probationary wards, where they were most dangerously crowded for several days before the Guardians' meeting, with nothing to sleep upon but a sheaf of straw.

Loughrea Union.

Mr. Bourke, adverting further to the condition of the workhouse, observes that the damage done to the roof by a storm which occurred in November last is unrepaired, that the clothing of the women and female children is insufficient, and that the boys' and girls' schools are totally unprovided with the necessary requisites for affording instruction, though repeated applications have been made to the Board of Guardians for them.

Mr. Bourke's observations on the condition of the workhouse are strongly corroborated by Mr. Phelan, from whose report the following passages are extracts :—

"This house is in a very unsatisfactory condition. A considerable number of the boys and girls are very badly clad, even those who have house clothing. The adult females and the aged and infirm are too lightly clad ; besides a very large number have only their own filthy clothes.

"There were 38 men in the lower male probationary ward, all of whom had slept in the upper on the previous night. On going into their proper yard, that connected with the lower yard, I found a considerable quantity of dung, ashes, &c., outside the door ; and the floor of the privy was covered with fæces, some evidently of more than a day's continuance.

"In the lower female probationary ward there were 75 women, and 48 girls and young children. These 123 had slept on the previous night in the upper probationary ward, in which there should not be more than about 24 to 30 at most put. All,—men, women, &c., wore their own clothes, and presented an appearance of the most wretched description.

"I have no doubt that the congregation of so many in these wards must produce disease in no small proportion of them. At the female side, 50 cubic feet of air was about the amount which the room averaged for each ; but when the disgusting and filthy clothes of the party are considered, and the unclean state of these miserable creatures perceived, were the space four times as much, it would not have been sufficient for them.

"The yard and privy at the female side were still more disgracefully dirty than at the male side ; the sight was sufficient to sicken any person, the stench almost sure to do so."

While such is the condition of the workhouse, there seems to be no doubt that much destitution exists in the Union ; and it appears that persons have been found who prefer to run the chance of death by the road-side, rather than to become inmates of the Union workhouse ; a result which may reasonably be expected under the present system of management.

In connexion with the state of things as above described, and as partly accounting for them, the Commissioners must advert to the fact that the Guardians did not obey the law in reference to the appointment of relieving officers until the 17th of last December ; and, notwithstanding the instructions and remonstrances of the Commissioners on the subject, the Guardians have not yet given any relief to the impotent poor out of the workhouse, under the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioners are of opinion that the Loughrea Board of Guardians have signally failed to discharge their duties duly and effectually, according to the intention of the Legislature. The Commissioners therefore transmit herewith a formal order for the dissolution of the Board, and they will proceed with the least possible delay to appoint paid officers to manage the affairs of the Union.

EXTRACTS from GUARDIANS' MINUTES at an adjourned Meeting held on the 14th February, 1848.

Resolved,—That being now informed that this Board was dissolved by the Poor Law Commissioners on Saturday last, without their making any communication to this Board, we consider this step upon the part of the Commissioners as discourteous, offensive, and unwarrantable ; because we have afforded relief to all who have applied for it, procured houses for the reception of 1200 additional paupers, imposed a 3s. rate, collected a great portion of it, and were now prepared to afford extensively relief to the really destitute, though opposed to indiscriminate out-door relief. This arbitrary proceeding upon the part of the Commissioners against this Board of Guardians, who are composed of men deeply interested for the Union, its poor, and its rate-payers, and who, when the rates could not be collected, advanced funds to sustain the workhouse, is calculated to diminish any confidence which the right-minded and well-disposed might have heretofore placed in the administration of the Poor Law.

Resolved,—That having now read the reasons given by the Commissioners for the dissolution of this Board, we are confirmed in our opinion as expressed in the foregoing resolution.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—February 20, 1848.

HAVING entered upon the discharge of the duties of paid Guardians of the Union of Loughrea, by virtue of the authority conveyed to us by your sealed order of the 16th of February, 1848, we have now the honour to submit our first report on the state of the above Union, in obedience to the instructions contained in your communication of the 18th instant.

Our first duty on arriving here was to visit the workhouse; and we can scarcely convey an idea of the total absence of any thing at all approaching to order or decency in which we found almost every department; the Board-room did not appear as if it had been cleansed since the last meeting of the old Board of Guardians, which took place a week previously; the floor was in a perfect float of water; the rate and other books of the Union were lying scattered about the floor in all directions; the clerk's office was in a very filthy condition, the floor saturated with wet, and the papers strewn about; the probation wards, adjoining the Board-room, and into one of which the late Guardians have recently opened a communication from the Board-room, were in a very disreputable state, wet and filthy in the extreme; a heap of dirty straw piled up in one corner; several panes of glass broken in the windows, and their places supplied by pledgets of straw.

On proceeding to the main body of the house at eleven o'clock, A.M., we found the adult paupers at breakfast. The Indian meal stirabout with which they were supplied was thin, much burned, and otherwise infamously cooked. Many of the paupers were served with sour porter or beer (in lieu of milk) to take with their porridge; and on our inquiring the cause, were informed, that it had been sent by the milk contractor as his supply of milk was short. We of course ordered this practice to be at once discontinued, and directed the master to serve notice on the contractor, that milk should be purchased elsewhere at his expense, unless he supplied the full quantity, and of the quality required, for the portion of liquid (called milk) which he did supply, was in our opinion more than half water.

We found the kitchen department in a most unsatisfactory state; the boilers were in a disgraceful state of rust, totally unfit for culinary purposes; one boiler, which was being prepared for use, had the furnace heated before any water was put into the vessel, and the almost certain danger of bursting the metal created thereby. The grates of all the furnaces were out of order; the curbing torn up, and the flues in several places broken out in large holes.

We next proceeded to the female school, and found it totally bereft of any requisite save a few forms, a table, and old desk; there was no school roll in existence, no books for instruction, and as well as we could ascertain there were about 125 children, perfectly idle, sitting on the cold floor with very slender covering, and all (except one child) had no shoes or stockings; no kind of industrial instruction has ever been imparted; only about 20 of the number were represented to us as being able to sew, and not one was reported as understanding how to knit.

The entire body of paupers appear to us as if they had been long inured to habits of idleness, no one kind of industrial training having been ever inculcated. The whole establishment at both sides idle. Crowds of women in the day-rooms crouched in masses together round the walls, endeavouring to obtain warmth from the close contact with each other; and only 20 women out of the entire number in the house were employed at needlework. Not one was engaged in knitting, though few of the paupers had a stocking of any kind to wear.

The dormitories were in a most irregular condition; the floors disgracefully disfigured, and in many places we fear approaching to decay, from the effects of urinal and other discharges continually taking place, and no abatement of the nuisance appears to have been even attempted. We cannot too strongly reprobate the conduct of the officers in permitting such brutal practices; and we regret to observe that these remarks are equally applicable to the male as to the female side of the house.

The state of the privies (to which the report of your Inspector, Dr. Phelan, had special reference) were in much the same condition as when that report was furnished, with this difference, that since the Inspector's report the paupers at the female side have been permitted to avail themselves of the LAUNDRY yard for the same purposes, the floor of which we found covered over with human excrement in every quarter.

The clothing of the house appears in a very neglected state; and so defective, that notwithstanding our other pressing duties, we will proceed to take stock tomorrow, and advertise for a supply to enable us to meet the extreme pressure which we apprehend will be made on us during the ensuing week. We have also advertised for tenders for repairing the windows; and in our next report we trust to be able to render some satisfactory information on those points most essential to the comfort and health of the wretched inmates of the workhouse.

The classification of the paupers seems to have been altogether broken up, if indeed it was ever observed. The male and female paupers were dispersed through the several wards and apartments indiscriminately, and did not appear to us as if they considered they were infringing on any rule, or acting in any way wrong.

We have made a close inspection of two additional establishments, taken by the late Board as increased workhouse accommodation. One of these houses (the late brewery) will, when completed, form a most valuable and requisite additional workhouse; is well situate, perfect ventilation, and well enclosed, and will accommodate all that we calculate will avail themselves of workhouse relief in the Union. But we do not consider that the person with whom the late Board contracted to put the premises into repair has made that progress which he should have done, and which the exigencies of the present time so imperatively demand. We shall use our most strenuous exertions to have the work speedily completed; and we shall then be in a position to meet any demand that may be made upon us.

Of the second house taken by the late Board and appropriated to a boys' school, day-room, and dormitories, we regret to say that we consider it to be a concern which should never have been engaged at all. We are informed that it belonged to a Mr. Smith, the Deputy Vice-Chairman of the late Board: but it is manifestly unsuited to the purpose for which it is at present used. There is no ventilation whatever, no proper means of heating the day-room, no effectual privy accommodation, and, in fine, we anticipate that much malignant contagion will in a short period be engendered, unless we are able to remove the pauper inmates from a situation totally unfit to receive them, and which, in our opinion, should never have been occupied by them.

The fever sheds have been erected immediately adjoining the idiot wards and infirmary, and in our judgment, in a very unsatisfactory and dangerous position. They appear, however, to be well managed, under the inspection of the medical officer, who devotes much of his time to the discharge of his workhouse duties.

We cannot as yet form any decided opinion as to the conduct or capability of any of the workhouse officers, from our being so short a period in our present offices; but we shall give them a fair trial, and every assistance in our power; and if they do not in every particular change from what they are at present, and what they must have been for a long time hitherto, we shall not hesitate to apply for further instructions respecting them. Of one of these officers (the porter) we have already received your directions, and shall not fail to act accordingly.

The pumps of the house are altogether out of order, and the pipes broken or otherwise destroyed; and the water required for the purposes of the house is carried in buckets from the lake by some of the female paupers, who were, when we first saw them, almost in a state of nudity.

In reference to the most important subject connected with our duties, that of the collection of the rate, we have to state, that it appears a rate of 3s. in the pound, conjointly for ordinary expenses, and the repayment of advances under the Temporary Relief Act, was made on the first of January last by the late Board of Guardians; that the ordinary notice that a rate had been made was duly posted, BUT no notice seems to have been posted previous to the striking of the rate, to the effect that a rate was about to be made. The new rate so struck, has been in course of collection for the last fortnight, and a considerable sum has been lodged to the credit of the Union. However, from the short time we have been on duty here, we are not as yet in a position to form an accurate opinion on the state of the finances. We have been unable to see the several rate collectors, and have caused the clerk to notice them to meet us on Monday next at 10 o'clock, after which we shall submit a special report on this subject.

Loughrea Union.

We have been led to trespass at considerable length upon your attention, for which we respectfully beg to apologize; and shall have the honour of submitting a weekly report of our proceedings, in conformity with your instructions.

REPLY to the above :—February 24, 1848.

THE Commissioners approve generally of the preliminary measures which you have adopted with regard to the proper arrangement of the affairs of the Union.

The Commissioners are afraid that some time must elapse, and constant attention will be required before the workhouse can be brought into a satisfactory condition, but they rely on you, that no exertion will be wanting on your part.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners await your report on the collection of the rates.

MANORHAMILTON UNION.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain GILBERT, Temporary Inspector of the Sligo Union :—January 12, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland to forward to you herewith, a copy of a resolution passed at the meeting of the Board of Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union on the 6th instant; and in reference thereto, I am to request that you will have the goodness to proceed to Manorhamilton, and inquire and report to the Commissioners, with the least possible delay, as to the necessity of granting out-door relief to the able-bodied in that Union.

I am at the same time, to request your special attention to the point, whether the Guardians have acted on the Commissioners' circular letter of the 26th August last, in reference to granting out-door relief to persons entitled to such relief, under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act

A copy of a letter, which has this day been addressed to the Board of Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union, is enclosed for your information.

ENCLOSURES.

EXTRACT from GUARDIANS' MINUTES of 6th January, 1848.

RESOLVED,—That the Commissioners be requested to order out-door relief for able-bodied persons in this Union, as there is not accommodation in the house for the vast numbers of that class applying for relief.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS of the Manorhamilton Union :—January 12, 1848.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have had under their consideration, the resolution passed at the meeting of the Board of Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union on the 6th instant, requesting the Commissioners to issue an order authorizing the Board of Guardians to give out-door relief to the able-bodied poor in the Union.

In reference thereto, I am directed to state that the Commissioners have instructed Captain Gilbert, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, to inquire and report to them, with the least possible delay, as to the necessity for granting out-door relief to the able-bodied in the Manorhamilton Union.

In the mean time, the Commissioners have issued an order authorizing the Guardians to give out-door relief, under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, to widows with one child, and to children both of whose parents are dead.

By affording out-door relief to all the persons coming within the provisions of the 1st section of the Extension Act, as well as to the persons coming within the terms of the Commissioners' order of this date, the Commissioners trust that the Board of Guardians will be able to make room in the workhouse to relieve, and to test the destitution of able-bodied applicants for relief.

The Commissioners, at the same time, recommend the Guardians to endeavour to obtain some buildings in which they may place some of the children now in the workhouse, as much additional accommodation might be provided thereby for able-bodied persons.

Copies of the Commissioners' circular letters of the 14th and 26th August last are enclosed herewith, and I am to request the attention of the Guardians to the views of the Commissioners as expressed in those communications.

EXTRACT from GUARDIANS' MINUTES :—January 13, 1848.

READ letter 12th January, in reference to the resolution of the last Board, requesting the Commissioners to issue an order for out-door relief to able-bodied paupers.

The Board have to state that the resolution was passed under the apprehension, that the measure must ultimately be resorted to, from the multitudes that were then pressing for relief, and for which there could not be room in the house under any enlargement which it might undergo. But they certainly had no design to act upon the order except under the most pressing necessity. The individuals composing the Board feel as deep an interest in protecting the Union as any others concerned, but they wished to be prepared for any emergency that might occur.

Manorhamilton
Union.

Notice in writing from N. S. Tottenham, Esq., was read, that on this day fortnight, he will propose that the resolution of the last Board, requesting the Commissioners to issue an order for granting out-door relief to able-bodied paupers, be rescinded.

Captain GILBERT to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 18, 1848.

IN accordance with the instructions conveyed to me in communication, dated 12th instant, I ordered the clerk of the Union to assemble the Guardians to meet me here yesterday, and I also desired the attendance of the relieving officers.

The poorhouse contains at present 669, its full number; there are besides in a house hired for the purpose, 30 of the 1st class specified in the Act, and in the district fever hospital, 43, making altogether 739.

There are in the house of the 1st and 2nd classes, for which orders from the Commissioners have been received to be placed on out-door relief, 130. If this number were discharged, room sufficient for the present admission of the able-bodied can be made available, as of that class there are at present on the relieving officer's books only 134. But to this mode of proceeding the Guardians object, as they consider it uncharitable to send the orphan children amongst strangers, and injurious to the interest of the country by allowing such a number of young paupers to grow up amid the population, and being also in some degree more expensive, as those children from their entire friendlessness must be kept constantly clothed as well as fed at the expense of the Union. To meet this determination on their part, I proposed that those orphans should be disposed of in the same manner as in Sligo, by hiring a separate house and placing them under proper care therein. I accordingly visited a vacant house in the vicinity, capable when fitted up of accommodating 150 children, and recommended that the Guardians should hire it at once for that purpose, subject to the sanction of the Commissioners.

I also recommend the erection of two sheds on the same plan and specification of those at the Sligo Union Workhouse, a copy of which I propose sending to the clerk this day. By this means the present school-rooms would be converted into dormitories to hold about 140 paupers.

Another mode of increasing the accommodation is the finishing of a building commenced in August last, as a second story over the sheds in the upper yard, sufficient to hold 130. The contractor, who has not fulfilled his engagement, should be forced to do so by the Guardians; and I would suggest to the Commissioners the necessity of urging this on the Board in their next communication.

In no case, however, does it appear requisite or expedient to issue an order for the out-door relief of the able-bodied at present. By discharging the 30 persons of the 1st class entitled to relief out of the workhouse, which I have ordered to be done immediately, and by removing the orphan children, upwards of 100, according to the Commissioners' order, vacancies can be obtained for all the present applicants; and by the erection of sheds on a cheap and commodious scale, and the completion of the building now in progress, sufficient room can soon be commanded for the additional claimants.

There are at present of the 1st class relieved out of the workhouse, 450.

The number of cases of sickness in the house is very great in proportion to its inmates—90 cases of fever, and 64 of dysentery—one-fifth of the whole. This arises in a great measure from the very bad and uncomfortable accommodation in the house; the schoolrooms and nursery, as well as the whole ground-floor, require boarding to keep out the damp and cold. There is no convalescent ward for persons recovering from fever, so that the patients are sent at once from the hospital, on recovery, to the body of the house, and thereby spreading the infection. To remedy this serious evil I would recommend the erection of a fever shed; and for this purpose, the obtaining of a sum of 353*l.*, balance of 100*l.* allowed by the Commissioners for building purposes in this Union, which balance remains in their hands, and was ordered by them to be disposed of in additional hospital accommodation.

Manorhamilton
Union.

Except the collection of the rates is much better enforced than at present the Guardians must find great difficulty in building accommodation to meet any future pressure. The instalment of the rate ordered to be collected for the present quarter amounts for the whole Union to 6460*l.*, of which there is not one-fifth lodged by the collectors.

EXTRACT FROM GUARDIANS' MINUTES:—January 20, 1848.

RESOLVED,—That the Board at its rising do adjourn to Monday next, in order to take steps immediately to provide additional accommodation on the workhouse site, for the children in the workhouse, or to hire a house for that purpose, if it can be obtained; and to remove for out-door relief, all those persons in the workhouse who are fit cases to receive the same.

MR. OTWAY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 23, 1848.

I ATTENDED the Manorhamilton Board of Guardians on last Thursday; and in reference to the state of that Union, and the question as to the issuing an order under the 2nd section of the Poor Relief Extension Act for the granting out-door relief to the destitute able-bodied, I have to state that I do not consider it advisable at present to issue that order, and I concur with the views expressed on this subject in Captain Gilbert's report of the 18th instant. I have, however, arrived at this conclusion, on the supposition that the Guardians will at once take steps to place on out-door relief all the persons in the workhouse entitled to it under the 1st section of the Act, and under the extended order you issued, and to provide additional accommodation for the children, so that the workhouse may be kept, as far as possible, as a test for the able-bodied that apply for relief.

The Guardians were occupied, on last Thursday, in going over the relieving officer's books, and they gave out-door relief freely to all the proper cases that were brought before them, offering relief in the workhouse to the able-bodied that applied, some of whom refused to accept admittance on its being granted, and the Board was adjourned until to-morrow in order to take steps immediately to provide additional accommodation in the workhouse site for the children, or hiring a house, or both, if necessary, and to remove, on out-door relief, all the persons in the workhouse who are fit objects to receive it; I had urged these steps on the Guardians so far back as the 25th of November, but I think they now see the necessity of so acting immediately, and that it will be done. See minutes of last Thursday.

I had also an interview with the contractor for enlarging the hospital range, and he has undertaken to have one side finished in a fortnight, and the whole within four weeks from last Thursday.

If I am able I will attend at Manorhamilton again on to-morrow.

I had interviews with two rate collectors on last Thursday, and I have urged forward the collection as much as I could; there was a considerable improvement in the collection the week before last, and I have reason to hope it will continue.

I have urged and will urge the Guardians to try and adopt steps to improve the sanitary state of the workhouse, but the first step is to remove all those that can be removed on out-door relief and to lessen the numbers in the workhouse. Owing to the illness of some of the officers the house has fallen off very much in its management since my last visit, but I trust to have this evil speedily remedied. A new master and matron is to be elected on Thursday week, the present having resigned from bad health.

THE COMMISSIONERS to Major FITZGERALD, Temporary Inspector of Manorhamilton Union:—January 27, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward herewith, for your information, a copy of a report which they have received from Mr. Otway, Poor Law Inspector, relating to the proposed issue of an order under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, for the relief of the destitute able-bodied Poor in the Manorhamilton Union; and I am to state that the Commissioners will be glad to receive a report from you as to the progress made by the Board of Guardians in the several matters referred to in Mr. Otway's report, at your early convenience.

A copy of the report of Captain Gilbert, referred to by Mr. Otway, is also enclosed herewith.

Major FITZGERALD to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 3, 1848.

IN compliance with the instructions contained in your letter of the 27th January, 1848, I have the honour to report upon the matters referred to in Mr. Otway's report on the Manorhamilton Union, dated January 23, 1848.

In accordance with Mr. Otway's views, as to the proper means for avoiding the necessity of out-door relief to the able-bodied, the Guardians have carried out the principle of transferring from in-door to out-door relief certain of the classes entitled to the latter, and of reserving the workhouse, as a test of destitution for able-bodied applicants, several of which class have this day, though eager to obtain out-door relief, refused admittance to the workhouse when offered to them.

With respect to the extra accommodation for pauper inmates, recommended also by Mr. Otway, I have to report that it has not yet become available. The contractor has not fulfilled his engagement (stated by Mr. Otway) to have one side of the addition to the hospital range completed this day. The Guardians, satisfied with the explanation given by him of the delay, have extended the period for completion of one side to Wednesday next, 9th February.

The Guardians had likewise decided upon hiring a house in the vicinity (referred to in Captain Gilbert's report, dated 18th January, which accompanies Mr. Otway's), for the purpose of sending the school children to it, and thereby making room in the workhouse; but as this resolution has not been carried into practical effect, they have agreed, at my suggestion, to appoint a Sub-Committee of their body to meet me here on Monday, when I hope we shall be able to conclude the proposed arrangement, which it is, I think, of great importance to effect.

The sanitary condition of the workhouse, to which Mr. Otway refers, requires great improvement. The cold, damp, earthen floors of the school-rooms contribute much at this inclement season to the increase of dysentery, the sufferers from which disease are chiefly from the school-rooms. These ought, in my opinion, either to be boarded or supplied with straw mats, by the making of which some of the paupers might be usefully employed.

The medical officer likewise reports to me that fever has been much increased in the workhouse by the overcrowding of the probationary wards, one of the causes of which is the want of a sufficient supply of pauper clothing to dress the inmates approved for admission, a point to which the Guardians have properly directed their attention on this day with a view to a remedy. However, the sanitary condition of the workhouse can never be in the state it ought to be until the contemplated increase of accommodation shall have been carried into practical effect.

The only other topic referred to by Mr. Otway which it remains for me to report upon is the collection of rates. I regret to say that this all-important matter is in a very unsatisfactory state. Out of a rate of 6460*l.*, the sum of 4687*l.* still remains due; the last week 260*l.* only has been paid in; a smaller sum than in the same space of time has been paid away in cashing cheques by the treasurer. With an out-door relief list (in spite of, I believe, very praiseworthy vigilance on the part of the Guardians to prevent imposture) increasing at a fearful rate, and with the necessity of expenditure for increased in-door accommodation, it is needless to say that more active efforts must be made to provide for the expenses of the Union. The Guardians state to me that some of the collectors do their duty very well, and some very ill; but it does not appear to me that sufficiently stringent steps have been taken with regard to the latter. I am also obliged to remark to the Guardians this day, that the due attendance of the collectors has not been enforced in conformity with the rules laid down by the Commissioners, and that they have not been obliged to produce the whole of the forms of accounts required by your regulations.

Manorhamilton
Union.

The Board of Guardians this day elected a master and matron, as Mr. Otway states in his report they intended to do; and were most of the rest of the day occupied in selecting from the applicants the proper objects for in-door and out-door relief; a duty which they appeared to me to have performed with due discretion and judgment.

I cannot conclude this, my tenth report, after meeting the Board of Guardians of the Manorhamilton Union without stating my conviction that it would be very advisable, at least for some time, to have two days of meeting at the Board-room in the week instead of one. It will be, I fear, inconvenient to some of the members who have to come a considerable distance; but I cannot see how otherwise it will be possible to get through the increasing work which is before us.

REPLY to the above:—February 9, 1848.

As the children will probably be removed from the workhouse without delay, it would not be advisable to make any change in the flooring of the schools.

I am at the same time to state, that the floors are the same in all workhouses, and have been always as at present since the houses were opened; so that the sickness prevalent at present would appear to proceed from other causes than that pointed to.

With reference to the increase of fever in the workhouse, which you state has arisen from the overcrowding of the probationary wards, and from the want of a sufficient supply of pauper clothing to dress the poor when admitted to the workhouse, I am directed to state, that the practice of detaining paupers in the probationary wards permanently, which has, as might be expected, led to the increase of fever, should immediately be discontinued; and that the paupers there may be provided temporarily with clothing by placing paupers already within the body of the workhouse in their own clothes, where found available, and then having the workhouse dress now worn by them prepared for the newly-admitted paupers until their own can be cleaned.

I am at the same time to state, that the Guardians should immediately provide enlarged supplies of new clothing, and thus provide for the reception of paupers.

The Commissioners consider the collection of the rate in the Manorhamilton Union as being in a very unsatisfactory state, requiring very strenuous exertions on the part of the Guardians and their collectors. Lists of persons owing considerable amounts should be prepared, and the collectors be required to press for the rates, in these cases especially, as well as generally within their districts.

The Commissioners still trust that the Guardians, by their example in paying rates which may be due from themselves, and by their personal exertions at the Board, as well as by their local influence, will endeavour to provide the speedy collection of the very large sums now outstanding, and thus provide funds for enabling them effectually to administer relief according to the intention of the Poor Relief Acts.

With a view to the prompt discharge of the Guardians' duties, I am to state that the Commissioners concur in your opinion, that it would be advisable that they should meet on two days in each week; and the Commissioners therefore recommend such an arrangement for the consideration of the Manorhamilton Board of Guardians.

BANTRY UNION.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 8, 1847.

IN calling attention to the minutes of the Vice-Guardians of this day and yesterday, I have to remark that, upon my own responsibility, I suggested to the Vice-Guardians the desirability of accepting a fresh tender from Mr. John O'Sullivan, for the three western divisions, at 1s. in the pound, instead of Mr. Downing's; and the rate is consequently in course of collection, his securities being good.

To-morrow Mr. Evanson's bonds will be made out for the Durruss and Kilcrohane Divisions (in consequence of no other tenders), and I regret to say at a high rate of poundage, as our case is pressing. However, the Commissioners will be able to judge as to the case, since it of course is open to their approval.

Clothing has been ordered, and additional accommodation is found for from 300 to 400 additional paupers, making the in-door relief available for from 1,100 to 1,200 paupers.

The children will first be moved out, and room thus afforded, most happily, for the able-bodied men and their families. Under these circumstances, I may say a decided improvement in the affairs of the Union has taken place, and now that the children are receiving food in the schools, I think we shall get on well; however, in January we must strike another rate, in consequence of the debts.

An increased poundage has been advertised for, for Bantry and Kilmocnogue (the only divisions not provided for), which I trust will meet the approval of the Commissioners, and I think that I might recommend 2s. 6d. in the pound for these divisions, as there is some underhand work going on.

The relieving officers begin to understand their duties better.

The schools take off a great pressure, and afford general satisfaction.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 9, 1847.

I HAVE now further to inform you that we have a good and solvent tender, with securities from Mr. Richard O'Donovan, J.P., one of the late Board of Guardians. This tender has been accepted, and his bond will be perfected on Saturday, the 11th instant.

I have deemed it advisable, in consequence of your communication, received this day, not to take Mr. Evanson's tender, and have suggested to the Vice-Guardians, the necessity of advertising for collectors at an increased rate of poundage, for the electoral divisions of Bantry, Kilmoconogue, and Durruss, and I have no doubt with success.

The objection of the late parties was not to the time (now quite unnecessary in consequence of the late sealed order), but to the form of the bond, which they wanted to be allowed to alter, to suit their convenience.

I am pleased with the state of the Union, and if it was not for the debt, all would be well. The schools are in full operation, and although I was at first opposed to them, yet I now approve of them highly, and they keep off a great pressure.

I have passed over a great extent of country this day, and find, as I have before reported, that the people are exerting themselves far more than last year, collecting sea-weed, and manuring their land, although I am sorry to say principally for the potato.

The weather is most unpropitious for the fisherman; it has been blowing these days past a gale of wind.

Could it be possible for the curing stations to purchase sprats as well as other fish? since the fisherman complain they can get no sale for them, and it would further assist us.

The school ration is $\frac{3}{4}$ of a lb. of the best wheaten meal bread, and costs, including everything, $\frac{3}{4}$ of a penny.

Bantry Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—December 14, 1847.

THE Commissioners have expressed approval of the acceptance of Mr. John O'Sullivan's proposal for the collection of the rate in the district for which Mr. John Downing had been appointed, and of the rate of remuneration proposed to be allowed to Mr. O'Donovan.

I am at the same time to forward herewith, for your information, a copy of a letter which the Commissioners addressed to the Vice-Guardians on the 11th instant.

The Commissioners trust that the unremitting attention of the Vice-Guardians will be directed to the collection of the rates.

An extract from your report of the 9th instant, relating to the purchase of sprats at the curing stations, has been forwarded to the Commissioners of Fisheries.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS of the Bantry Union:—
December 11, 1847.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have had before them minutes of proceedings of the Vice-Guardians of the Bantry Union on the 7th instant, together with the resolutions passed at a public meeting held on the 6th instant, and with reference to the resolution stating the inability of the Vice-Guardians to comply with the demand which has been made upon them, for an extension of the out-door relief under the 2nd section of the Act 10 Vict., cap. 31, in consequence of the limited resources at their command, I am directed to state that the Commissioners are aware of the difficulties the Vice-Guardians must have to contend with, but they have been appointed in the expectation that they would use the most strenuous exertions to surmount difficulties, and provide, to the utmost capability of the local resources, for the relief of the destitute poor.

When the Act 10 Vict., cap. 31, was passed, the Legislature must be presumed to have contemplated the necessity for affording relief in every way sanctioned by it, and wherever the necessity may unfortunately arise the Guardians must labour to provide for it. The Commissioners cannot authorize any Board to determine that relief, which is actually necessary and strictly lawful, may be withheld if the means appear to be inadequate. The Guardians are responsible for making the means adequate to the necessity, and the Commissioners recommend them to avail themselves of the favourable state of the public feeling manifested by the resolutions forwarded with their minutes in pressing on the collection of the rate.

The Commissioners will be prepared to issue an order for out-door relief when the Guardians report it to be necessary; and in the meantime they request the attention of the Vice-Guardians to the enclosed copies of the two orders issued in some Unions where such relief is now required for classes not described in the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, but they desire to observe that the Bantry Union, like Ballinrobe, Castlebar, and Westport Unions, may be found to require the more extended order at once.

The Commissioners take this opportunity of apprising the paid Guardians, that in Kanturk Union, its Board of Vice-Guardians have obtained a loan of 1000*l.* from the National Bank, acting as their treasurer, and also acting for Bantry Union, the Commissioners having guaranteed the interest for three months or any less term. If a similar arrangement can be made for Bantry Union, the Commissioners are prepared to do all in their power to place themselves in a position for giving the requisite guarantee for payment of the interest on the temporary loan.

By a minute of the Vice-Guardians it will be seen that the fever sheds at Castletown were blown away, and the sale of the outbuilding will barely pay the salary of the person who was left in charge of them.

With respect to the sheds here, one end is blown away, but now that they are in the hands of the Vice-Guardians they will be forthwith repaired, and be made available as day-rooms for the children, until the permanent building is finished for their reception on each side of the infirmary.

The plan and specification for the latter have not yet been returned from Dublin, and the Vice-Guardians are awaiting its arrival to commence this essential work.

By the end of the week, the children will be moved out of the house to sleep in the two stores taken in the town, and additional accommodation will be thus immediately given to about 250 additional able-bodied men and their families; and, when that arrangement is completed, it is intended, if more room is required, to move out the bed-ridden patients, giving room for 100 more.

This day the house was not full, wanting upwards of 40 to complete the 800: it will, however, most likely be filled to-morrow.

I trust that another paid Guardian may soon be ordered down, since the duties of Mr. Clarke are very arduous at present, as he has very properly sanctioned out-door relief to the three classes until the 23rd December, and, consequently, before that day it is necessary for him to see all the parties to renew it.

In consequence of my fears respecting not being able to procure collectors, I was under the necessity of applying for a loan of 300*l.* from the British Association, in order to prevent the Vice-Guardians being placed in an awkward position; however, my fears, I am happy to say, are at an end, and the rate has begun to be paid in. The sum has, consequently, been returned to Dublin, to the Commissary-General's office, to the credit of the agent of the British Association.

The Vice-Guardians will have tenders on Wednesday for the four remaining divisions, at, I trust, a low poundage, comparatively speaking; say 1*s.* 6*d.* in the pound.

I consider that affairs are improving, and am in hopes our additional accommodation will be sufficient to meet the able-bodied classes, especially, as I hope Lord Bantry will at once take his paupers out of the house.

Upon the subject of out-door relief to the second class I will report to-morrow, as it is indeed too serious a step to be passed over.

REPLY to the above:—December 16, 1847.

THE plans for providing additional workhouse accommodation to which you advert, were referred to Mr. Wilkinson on the 7th instant, the day on which they reached this office, and were forwarded to Mr. Crawford on the 13th instant, after receipt of Mr. Wilkinson's observations, with a request that he would at once communicate the Commissioners' views with respect to the plans to the Vice-Guardians, which the Commissioners are this day informed by Mr. Crawford that he has done.

Mr. Willis, the gentleman who has been appointed Vice-Guardian of the Union in room of Mr. Gallwey, left Dublin on Monday the 18th instant, the day on which he received his appointment.

The Commissioners have read, with much satisfaction, the favourable account which you give of the financial prospects of the Union.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 14, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to refer, in accordance with my communication of the 13th instant, to the minutes of the Vice-Guardians, and particularly the one in answer to the Commissioners' communication respecting out-door relief.

If the Guardians had any amount of funds, they could not recommend the measure, since the relieving officers have not got through the three first classes entitled to it, although they are doing in most cases, as much as can be expected from them.

Arrangements are made for repairing the fever sheds, and rendering them available as school-rooms for the children.

Mr. Hutchinson, J.P., has tendered to collect the rates in the four divisions not provided for; and I have no doubt that we shall receive many under at the rate of 1*s.* 6*d.* in the pound.

Mr. Clarke will appoint to-morrow (subject to your approval), and the rate will be in full collection.

I go to Castletown to-morrow, and on my return, intend visiting Mr. Marshall at Skibbereen.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 17, 1847.

THE more I see of this district, the more I am convinced that there will be no necessity for any sealed order for out-door relief, taking into consideration an increased workhouse accommodation.

The relieving officers have quite sufficient to do in attending to the three classes now receiving relief, which, with the assistance of feeding the children, does infinite good.

Bantry Union.

The people are stirring themselves, not only manuring the land, but commencing to dig and further to prepare it for potatoes.

The Priests have all promised to assist the collectors, and from the altar insist upon all parties paying the rates; and the poor classes say, "The minister had his driver, the landlord has his, and now we have ours."

It has been blowing a gale of wind for a considerable number of days; and on my arrival here (Castletown Berehaven) on the 15th, I found there was but a very small supply of provisions.

By the last minutes of the Vice-Guardians, it will be seen that they have ordered all outstanding claims to be laid before them.

In consequence of Dr. Willis not having arrived, the warrant for collecting the rates in the two divisions to which Mr. C. O'Donovan was appointed cannot be signed, nor can any money be drawn from the bank.

Lord Berehaven has applied for 4000*l.* more, under the Land Improvement Act in this locality, and I need not impress upon you the necessity of the projects being at once reported upon, as well as his application for Bere Island, and also the other memorial forwarded from the Union since. With Lord Bantry's employment about to commence, the greatest part of our pressure will be taken off, and leave us plenty of room in the house.

If the sealed order were issued, I am sure all this employment would at once cease.

I take the opportunity of offering a suggestion, with respect to the sealed order for your consideration, and which might be taken advantage of to check abuses in those Unions where it may be necessary to issue one.

I would recommend in every case, that the sealed order be restricted to the present inmates of the house, or a portion of them, who should be all taken out, and a second order should not be issued until the house was again filled, and so on. I do not think any Union would require even a second, certainly not a third order.

I trust an answer from the Board of Works may soon be received with respect to the tools, since we are much in want of them.

REPLY to the above:—December 21, 1847.

THE Commissioners have communicated with the Board of Works, with reference to the completion of the arrangements, preliminary to the granting of loans for the improvement of property in the Union.

I am at the same time to state, as regards your suggestion relative to the issue of orders for providing out-door relief for the destitute poor, that a Board of Guardians has full power, without a special order, to carry such an arrangement as that which you suggest into effect, in a case where an order for out-door relief, under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, has been issued; I am further to state that the reception of able-bodied persons into the workhouse has been suggested by the Commissioners as a means of testing their destitution where out-door relief to the able-bodied has been authorized.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 21, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to state that every applicant for the workhouse was admitted this day, and room remains in the house for more; indeed for upwards of 200, if we only had the clothing which was ordered long since.

I would call attention to the minute respecting the publication of the parties receiving out-door relief, since we may detect many abuses thereby.

Collectors are found for every division now, and the rate is coming in; and I am in hopes in another month, in those divisions where there is no employment given, exertion will be made to have another rate struck.

I go to Skibbereen to-morrow to see Mr. Marshall, and next week by Kenmare to Castletown, as I am anxious to see Captain Ommanney.

I shall be able to manage at Castletown without any other assistance. The person required there is a representative of property.

REPLY to the foregoing :—December 28, 1847.

Bantry Union.

THE Commissioners have received the minutes of proceedings of the Vice-Guardians on the 21st instant, to which you refer, and they do not object to the publication of the names of the persons to whom the Vice-Guardians are affording out-door relief as proposed by the resolution of the Guardians.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 5, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state that I was principally engaged last week in visiting the different parts of my district, and seeing if the relieving officers were doing their duty, and I may, with one exception, give a more favourable report of them than last week.

The rate is coming in, but I regret to say much confusion arises in consequence of the revisor not having altered the rate-books prior to the clerk's making out the rate, and he in reply states, that he was not aware of the lands having changed hands.

A great deal of my time is taken up in the schools, and attending to their general superintendence.

This week I was engaged, both Monday and yesterday, at the workhouse discharging paupers and scrutinizing the inmates, which will take my entire time for some days longer.

I have now so arranged it that from five divisions we shall not have a pauper in the house, and in one of the four remaining there is only 11, so that almost the entire workhouse establishment is left available for the three remaining divisions, viz., Bantry, Kilcrohane, and West Durrus, and I hope soon to arrange about them, but I am obliged, with pain, to state, that neither Lord Kenmare or Mr. Robert White have as yet done anything, and they might indeed lay out money to advantage in their divisions, Bantry (I wrote on my arrival to both, neither of whom answered my letters), and by so doing avoid another heavy rate that will fall upon them, as well as ensuring for themselves not only their rent next year (which will otherwise go in rates) but also the permanent improvement of their properties.

I trust the Commissioners will not restrict our house accommodation to 600, but issue their sealed order for 800 (including the infirmary and fever hospital), as it has been long since sanctioned and found quite capable of containing that number, under reports of the medical officers; besides this we have additional accommodation for 300, making in all 1100.

We have but about 750 occupying this at present, principally from Bantry and Kilcrohane; from the latter division, yesterday, we had a family of a man, his wife, and 10 children, and two over 15.

I regret to say that the parties discharged show a great disposition not to work, and some even try to come back to the house, where they will not be readmitted; however they will be taught they must work, and that properly, to earn their daily bread.

As we get on, the out-door relief will diminish, since all the able-bodied widows with children must be employed, but everything cannot be done at once.

A slight increase to the paupers' diet has been recommended, preparatory to their being worked well, and they will find the workhouse no place for idleness.

I cannot conclude my report this week without expressing to the Commissioners that my thanks are due to the Vice-Guardians, Mr. Clarke and Dr. Willis, whose exertions are indefatigable, being often at the house at eight and nine o'clock at night, using every endeavour to check abuses, and carry out the law.

The Board of Works require an immediate payment for their implements. I have latterly understood that it only needs an application from the Poor Law Commissioners to secure the tools required as a loan, provided they are for Poor Law purposes, I need not recommend that the Vice-Guardians would take every care of them.

REPLY to the above :—January 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners have communicated with the Board of Works with reference to the payment required for the working implements supplied to the Board of Guardians.

Bantry Union.

I am at the same time to state, with reference to your observations as to the number of persons for whom you consider there is accommodation in the workhouse, and additional buildings, that the subject will receive the attention of the Commissioners.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 11, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to refer to the minutes of this day's proceedings, by which it will appear that the Vice-Guardians were compelled to issue certain instructions to the master, relative to parties admitted into the house provisionally.

The relieving officers do not attend to their duty as they should do (I allude particularly to Messrs. Eccles and Power), and this places the Guardians in, at times, an awkward position.

This day, our door was surrounded by a mob of over 500 persons, and principally by those never expecting to be admitted.

The work test is our safety; and although we have many inmates, yet we have room for more, and will give them the test to the utmost of our ability.

It must be satisfactory to the Commissioners to know that our house has only to meet the destitute of four divisions, and one of these has only 11 paupers.

Mr. Timothy O'Donovan is about to make an application for Kilcrohane, under the Land Improvement Act.

I trust and hope that the loan to Mr. O'Sullivan, of Carrigunass, and to Lord Berehaven, for Bere Island, may soon be sanctioned under the Land Improvement Act; and also that the Board of Works will order the immediate inspection of Lord Berehaven's application for drainage in Kilcatherin and Kilnamanagh, and which, from their kind co-operation, I am sure they have already done.

I would call particular attention to the idleness of those discharged for work, many of whom try to return to the house, sooner than take task-work. This, of course, is not permitted.

The duties of the master are very great, and this may be seen by reference to the discharges and admissions; and I may say, if this last week were taken as a criterion, it would be discouraging enough. However I think that many, when they are well worked, will demand their discharges, as some did this day; and I certainly never contemplate out-door relief under the second section, since the workhouse accommodation, capable of meeting 1100, has only to meet the destitution of, I may say, three divisions.

The present pressure is evidently an attempt that never will be yielded to, if half the town of Bantry had to be taken for additional accommodation.

I am to see Mr. O'Sullivan, the rate-collector, to-morrow, and will take care that he is more active, or I shall take measures that will not please him. A reference to him is also made in the minutes.

I have advertised for a site for a workhouse at Castletown, and the Guardians have complied with the recommendations of the Commissioners. I will not at present offer any remarks upon this important matter.

In conclusion, I would refer to the conduct of Mr. Payne, J. P., Lord Bantry's agent, and Captain Reed, of the Berehaven mines, who appear both willing and anxious to co-operate with me, and save the country from destitution and ruin.

REPLY to the above :—January 15, 1848.

I AM to request that you will report specially as to the conduct of any of the officers of the Union who do not obey the directions of the Vice-Guardians and the orders of the Commissioners, with a view to their dismissal by an order under seal, and to the appointment of more efficient officers in their room.

An extract from your report, with regard to the loans applied for by Mr. O'Sullivan, of Carrigunass, and Lord Berehaven, will be forwarded to the Board of Works.

The minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians, on the 11th instant, have not been received yet by the Commissioners.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 14, 1848.

Bantry Union.

I HAVE the honour to inform you that I saw Mr. John O'Sullivan, the rate-collector for the three divisions comprising the Castletown district, and after explaining to him that neither the Vice-Guardians nor myself were satisfied at the progress he was making, he promised that he would lodge a large sum next week, over I trust 200*l.*, exclusive of the arrears (if an instalment is paid).

The immediate lessors are very difficult to arrive at, and I am anxious to know whether the collector or the Vice-Guardians, should be the party to make an application to the Court when the property is in Chancery, as that of the representatives of John O'Sullivan.

The difficulties are very great, since a very extensive tract of country, up to a short time ago, was undivided, and the late Mr. Hedges Eyre left his portion $\frac{1}{4}$ to Lord Berehaven, the other proprietors being Mr. Puxley, Mr. Hutchins, and Mr. Herbert. This land was again underlet, and has caused great confusion; as, although the partition has been agreed to, the occupier refuses to give possession.

I have given Mr. O'Sullivan specific directions to go upon, and as far as the occupier is concerned, have further said that I am ready at any time, to accompany him if he expects opposition.

I cannot detail the points at issue, but will name one which appears extraordinary.

Mr. Eugene O'Sullivan holds land in the electoral division of Kilnarnagh, on a lease under Mr. Puxley; by the partition, Mr. Puxley takes land in the electoral division of Kilcathreen instead, and extraordinary to say, in consequence, Mr. E. O'Sullivan is ordered to move his tenure to Kilcathreen, as the land he holds falls to Lord Berehaven; but this he refuses to do. Who, then, is the immediate lessor? If Mr. E. O'Sullivan, who is the lessor where Mr. O'Sullivan ought to be?

I have decided that Mr. O'Sullivan shall pay where he holds possession, and Mr. Puxley for the property that Mr. O'Sullivan has refused to take.

P.S. I enclose a letter from the revisor.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. STAVELEY to Captain GORDON:—January 14, 1848.

I HAVE to state that a large portion of this Union situated in Berehaven, and comprising the electoral divisions of Kilcathreen and Kilnarnagh, and a portion of Killaconenagh, is at present in a situation of peculiar difficulty as regards the striking of a rate.

The proprietors hold those jointly in the following proportions:—

Lord Berehaven	.	.	.	.	11/21
Samuel Hutchins	.	.	.	.	4/21
John L. Puxley	.	.	.	.	4/21
Rev. Edward Herbert	.	.	.	.	2/21

The present difficulty is, that a Commission which was held for the purpose of dividing those lands has ended, and that the decree of the Chancellor has issued, allotting to each his own separate lands; that on going on the lands to get possession this order was resisted by the tenants in being, who refused possession, and who are served with notices to quit on next 25th March. Under those circumstances, there is great difficulty in finding out who is the right person to rate. I have now to request instructions preparatory to a revision of the same; and I have to add that those lands being mostly let in small lots, which throws the bulk of the rate on the immediate lessors, increases the difficulty.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain GORDON:—January 21, 1848.

IN pursuance of an order made by the Court of Chancery on the 12th November, 1845, and another by the Court of Exchequer dated 22nd May, 1846, where the payment of rates devolves exclusively on the landlord, it is to be made, if the property be in the Courts, by the receiver, guardian, committee, or sequestrator; and therefore the collector should apply accordingly.

I am at the same time to state, that in the case of the newly partitioned property of the late Mr. Hedges Eyre, where the immediate lessor is liable for the rate, the party who stood in that relation to the occupiers when the rate was made, should be applied to, and that in any future rate the party who shall at the time of making it stand in the same relation must be regarded so liable: but the Commissioners desire to observe that in making a rate, it is not necessary to name the immediate lessors where any doubt exists, as the Act 6 & 7 Vict., c. 92, in such case authorizes the words "the immediate lessors" to be inserted, without any name or further addition.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 16, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, that on Saturday (yesterday) afternoon, we had 1164 in the house. This rapid increase has taken place from this division, and is evidently an attempt made to force an order for out-door relief. In this case I was determined to counteract it, and made arrangements with Dr. Willis to admit 1600, if necessary, since we have plenty of accommodation.

The parties admitted were principally fine healthy-looking men.

I have made arrangements with Mr. Payne, Lord Bantry's agent, whose services I cannot too highly value, and he will take out for drainage, to-morrow, 100, and next day another 100, if necessary. The first 100 will take with their families over 400. Three stewards have been hired to commence to-morrow morning, and we will give our inmates plenty of work, and that of a remunerative nature for the Union.

REPLY to the above:—January 19, 1848.

THE Commissioners are prepared, if you recommend it, to issue an order, authorising the Vice-Guardians to give out-door relief, under the second section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, to widows with one child, and children, both of whose parents are dead.

By the discharge of these classes much additional workhouse accommodation would probably be at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain GORDON:—January 18, 1848.

I AM directed to forward herewith, for your information, the enclosed copy of a letter which the Commissioners have received from the Board of Works, relative to Lord Berehaven's application for a loan of 4000*l*.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. WALKER, Secretary to the Board of Works, to Mr. STANLEY:—January 14, 1848.

IN reply to your letter of the 20th ultimo, forwarding an extract from the report of Captain Gordon, Temporary Poor Law Inspector of Bantry Union, relative to Lord Berehaven's application for loan of 4,000*l*. I am directed to inform you that the memorial from Lord Berehaven for 4000*l*. has not yet been received, but at Captain Gordon's request, Mr. Hussey, (the Board's Inspector), has been instructed to report on it, in anticipation of the receipt of the memorial.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 18, 1848.

I AM anxious to correct an error in my report of last week, since instead of Mr. Eugene O'Sullivan holding land, in the case alluded to, under Mr. Puxley, it should be under Lord Berehaven; and that another party gets Lord Berehaven's portion, which Mr. E. O'Sullivan had and still retains possession of.

In this day's minutes some other curious details respecting the tenure of land appear; and I trust the Commissioners will approve of the opinion expressed.

Next week we shall have in a large amount of rate.

On Thursday next I attend at petty sessions to support the rate collector in some seizures he has made, and where the cattle were rescued. The parties must be convicted, although the case is a hard one. In consequence of the fences being down, the cattle strayed into some waste lands and were taken. They belong to the poorest classes, some of whom showed no opposition.

Several petty thefts have also been committed, and some of the parties detected.

I trust the Commissioners will also approve of the steps taken respecting the employment of the paupers. The women are made to break stones.

It was found necessary, pending your decision, to assist the relieving officer of this district (who may improve). I shall act upon the Commissioners' instructions in this matter, and recommend, in cases of incompetency, the dismissal of the party.

All the relieving officers settled their accounts this day.

The clerk explains respecting the non-arrival of the minutes, that he posted them in time on Thursday. I trust they have since reached.

The Vice-Guardians were employed all yesterday discharging some 300 paupers from the house for work, and thus the numbers are again reduced in the house, and we have room. Many go out of their own accord.

At a late hour last evening Mr. Anthony Nicholson, one of the relieving officers, brought up 171 paupers from Kilcatherin, a distance of over 30 miles. The Vice-Guardians cautioned him upon the subject, as will be seen by the minutes, and explained that they could not suppose that such a number could become suddenly destitute, although they would be prepared to take them in, but would not permit their coming in mobs. The minutes of last week also refer to this subject. The entire number were admitted and discharged this day for work and sent down in charge of the relieving officer.

I consider the affairs of the Union going on favourably, and next week I propose testing our out-door relief lists, by giving tickets of admission to the house, and so reducing the numbers.

I have addressed a communication to the Count Strzelecki this day about the schools, since they are open to great abuse, and I have proposed, in my opinion, a way to check this, and at the same time prevent any kind of proselytism by means of food. At present, in spite of all my orders, the poorest classes are the least cared for.

I am anxious to have the lists made out under my superintendence, and made the relief assist us in our work.

I am sure by this means I can reduce the numbers and expenses, instead of being at present pressed on all sides to increase; and education would be better attended to.

I hope the Commissioners will recommend it to the favourable consideration of the Count.

P.S.—I hope soon to have employment in Kilcrohane, and have received a note from Mr. O'Donovan, J. P., saying that the rate-payers were about to check the out-door relief lists.

REPLY to the foregoing :—January 29, 1848.

WITH respect to the employment of women in stone-breaking, I am to request your attention to the enclosed copy of a letter which they addressed in 1846 to the Board of Guardians of the North Dublin Union.

The Commissioners are convinced that the Vice-Guardians, in requiring the female paupers to break stones, had no intention of exercising any unnecessary severity towards that class of destitute persons; but still the Commissioners are desirous that the Vice-Guardians should, in accordance with the views expressed in that letter, make arrangements for the employment of the females in the workhouse in some other manner.

The Commissioners have approved the appointment of three overseers of work in the workhouse, so long as their services may be required, in addition to the ordinary workhouse officers; and they have addressed the Vice-Guardians on the subject of the rating of certain hereditaments to which you advert in your Report.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS of the North Dublin Union :—
October 27, 1846.

THE Poor Law Commissioners observe from the minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians of the North Dublin Union, on the 21st instant, that the Guardians have had under their consideration the propriety of employing female paupers of the workhouse in breaking stones, and that they have negatived a proposition for imperatively forbidding the practice.

The Commissioners are well aware of the difficulty frequently experienced by Boards of

Bantry Union.

Guardians in finding suitable employment for female paupers in workhouses, and they would be unwilling to do anything which might needlessly embarrass the Board of Guardians of North Dublin Union in this respect.

At the same time as the Commissioners have a decided objection to the employment of female paupers in breaking stones, they deem it right to communicate their views on this practice to the Board of Guardians.

The Commissioners regard it as highly desirable that every pauper in the workhouse should be set to work in a manner suited to his sex, age, and strength; and this rule applies to females as well as to males. But they are of opinion that the employment of breaking stones is not suitable to a woman. By common usage men only are employed in this kind of labour; and if in some instances it has been extended to women, it has been the result of peculiar circumstances, and could scarcely be regarded as an exception to the rule for their exemption which prevails generally, as the Commissioners believe, in all the countries of Europe.

In reference to resorting to this kind of employment, as what is called a test of destitution for able-bodied women, the Commissioners desire to state that the object of a workhouse is to give relief to the really destitute, and as it is demoralizing to maintain able-bodied persons in idleness, all such inmates should be set to work.

At the same time the Commissioners do not think that this, which is a mere incident of relief in the workhouse, should be made use of as an instrument for deterring applicants from accepting it. The attempt to convert employment to this purpose would tend to invest relief in a workhouse with somewhat of a penal character, and would thus be contrary to the mild and benevolent intentions of the Legislature in passing the Irish Poor Relief Act.

In conclusion, the Commissioners desire to state that they communicated the above views some months ago to a Board of Guardians which had introduced the employment solely as a mode of punishment for violent and ill-conducted women, and the Commissioners had then occasion to ascertain that no such employment or punishment was permitted in any of the prisons in Ireland. The Board of Guardians referred to immediately discontinued the practice on receiving the above information; and the Commissioners request the North Dublin Board of Guardians to be good enough to reconsider the subject in reference to the foregoing exposition of the views of the Commissioners.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 22, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 19th instant; and in reply, I have to inform you that, as will have been seen by my report of the 18th January, the pressure upon the workhouse is over, and in fact we have plenty of accommodation and are prepared to meet any emergency.

The orphans are certainly numerous, but I do not think it would be advisable to turn them out, since many are of a very tender age.

The widows with two children, I hope, will also soon be employed in their districts, where work is going on, and thus be struck off the out-door list.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 23, 1848.

I AM anxious to ask your advice in the following matter, and to know if I am correct in my views upon the subject.

I consider that every pauper who is admitted into the house has no means whatever, and further surrenders his cabin, (which is generally pulled down) having no longer a place of residence.

I am further of opinion that if work is found for him in his division or adjacent to it, that the Guardians are empowered to discharge such pauper and his family from the workhouse, and he must locate himself near the work, but if he chooses to lodge at a distance, I do not consider it an affair of the Guardians.

I may be wrong in my idea of the case, but come to this conclusion, since otherwise large public and private works would not in many districts find labourers, such as reclamation of waste lands; and on those occasions I think the labourer must follow his work as the navigator does in England.

I think the matter a very serious and important one and well worthy of attention.

REPLY to the above:—January 29, 1848.

THE Commissioners are not aware of any practical difficulty that the Vice-Guardians of the Bantry Union should have in the case stated, if they merely discharge the pauper from the workhouse, and apprise him where employment can be obtained. They have no power to interfere further; and in all such cases they are best capable of determining what is fit to be done.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain GORDON:—January 31, 1848.

Bantry Union.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a copy of a communication which the Commissioners have received from the Under Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a child (named Honora Shea) who is supposed to have died from destitution; and I am to request that you will make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief, either to the Vice-Guardians of the Bantry Union, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers.

ENCLOSURE.

*County Cork, W. R.,
Castletown, January 21, 1848.*

A CHILD named Honora Shea, of Iris, in the parish of Kilcathreen, and barony of Bere, aged two years and a half, is reported to have died of destitution on the 16th instant. Its mother died of fever a short time ago, and the father emigrated to America about the same time. An inquest is to be held.

H. MORGAN, Sub-Inspector, 3rd Class.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 2, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, in answer to your communication of the 31st ultimo, that I had on the 19th January made inquiry into the circumstances attending the death of the child Honora Shea, and enclose the statement of the relieving officer in answer to my queries, which I consider quite frees him from any neglect.

ENCLOSURE.

Queries for Anthony Nicholson, relieving officer, Kilcathreen.

Did the late Honora Shea, of Iris, aged two and a half years, or any of her family, apply to you for relief?

If so, what steps did you take, and what was the date of the application to you?

Have you given provisional relief to the child of the same family who is said to be in want.

If not, why?

Captain Gordon desires that Mr. Nicholson will immediately inquire into the circumstances of the case, saying whether the child died of want?

And also, whether there was no one to look after it?

Mr. Nicholson will see by his instructions that there is a way to meet every case, and no one need starve or perish from famine. In the case of the child in question, after giving it immediate relief, when he heard of the want of the family, he might have had the child and young sister conveyed to the workhouse here.

(Signed) H. GORDON,
Captain, 59th Regiment.

Bantry, January 19, 1848.

Answers for the information of Captain Gordon in reply to the queries proposed.

Her sister, Mary Shea, aged 17 years, applied for relief on behalf of a junior brother and three sisters.

Received application in due form, and gave one stone of meal, provisional relief, on the 11th December.

Yes, on 11th December and 19th January.

It appears that the child suffered from want, but she was for many months, since the decease of her mother, in a most delicate state of health.

Yes, Mary, the eldest member of the family, and her aunt.

On the 17th December the case was brought before the notice of the Vice-Guardians who refused a continuance of out-door relief. A ticket to the workhouse was then offered, and subsequently to the decease of the child, which was on both occasions peremptorily refused.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 27, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that everything is going on favourably, although many attempts are made to embarrass the Vice-Guardians and myself in our proceedings.

The amount collected may appear small, but since the banker's account was received, and prior to the ending of the week, John O'Donovan has lodged

Bantry Union.

146*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*, and Mr. O'Sullivan 310*l.*, and I hope a further increase next week.

I consider it necessary to recommend, that unless Mr. Eccles, the relieving officer for Kilmocomogue, resigns, that he be suspended in his appointment, since nothing can justify his non-compliance with the instructions; and although willing, yet he is not competent to fill the situation.

On Thursday last I attended at the petty sessions, and informations were taken against the parties who made the rescue from the collectors.

On Saturday Dr. Willis and myself counted the house, and made the numbers 845 instead of 940 that the master returned; and in consequence of this, Mr. Clarke and Mr. Crawford attended on Sunday, and we called the names from the relief list, but although we were at work until after dark, yet we only got through 400 names, and on counting the parties remaining, made the number the same as Saturday.

I can easily understand how such an error occurred, since many parties must have absconded, and been discharged without entering their names. I acquit the master of all attempts at fraud, and he is a hard-working man. The causes of this irregularity will be inquired into and rectified as soon as it possibly can.

In some cases women who were deserted by their husbands were receiving outdoor relief, but not being entitled under the first section of the Act, the relieving officers were ordered to discontinue it, and give tickets to the house instead.

The disinclination to work continues, and Mr. Payne has great difficulty in getting labourers.

During our meeting yesterday we were interrupted by the abrupt entrance of the Rev. C. Freeman, R.C.C., who exclaimed,—“Captain Gordon, I have to state “to you that a child has just died at my door, being the third within these last few “days; and it can no longer be concealed that the people are starving.” I was quite astonished at this statement, since neither the sub-inspector of police, the relieving officer, or myself, had heard or have since heard of anything of the kind.

The Rev. Mr. Freeman further stated that he had brought the body to the house, and I directed the relieving officer's attention to the case. Hearing, however, a great noise, I went out, and hearing Mr. Freeman exclaiming about a post-mortem examination, I demanded who brought the parties to the house with such a crowd. Mr. Freeman stepped forward and said, “I did;” and on my remarking that it would have been better if he had sent for the relieving officer, he exclaimed that such officers could not be found (although at the workhouse), and abruptly left the room as he had entered.

(I need not at this time remark upon the necessity of not allowing dead bodies to be brought to the house, since every one who died of any disease would be brought there to be interred.)

On examining the poor child in question, I found it exhibited a very pallid appearance, and observed that it was not dead; and on calling the attention of the medical officers of the house to the case, it was at once attended to; and although their subsequent certificate showed that it was suffering from want, yet at the same time it had a violent attack of dysentery.

Mr. Power (the relieving officer) informed the Board that neither parents had applied to him for relief until Monday, or he would have attended to it, and even on that day the case did not appear a pressing one. The family were entitled to out-door relief under the first section of the Act.

The Rev. Mr. Freeman, after leaving the house, went down and brought up Dr. M'Carthy to make, I suppose, a post-mortem examination, since they proceeded to the dead-house; but subsequently, Mr. Freeman had the presumption to bring Dr. M'Carthy into the hospital, and he examined the child, although it was under the charge of our medical attendants, Drs. Jagoe and Leckey. This would not have occurred if we had known it in time; and on hearing the facts of the case, we requested Rev. James Barry, P.P. Union chaplain (who is most attentive), to give us his attendance, and explained to him we could not allow such interference in future; and at the same time requested him to demand from Mr. Freeman the names of the two other children alluded to by him as dying at his door. We have not yet got them, but I will report when we can ascertain particulars.

I have strictly investigated into the matter, and cannot learn of any one dying or having died of famine.

REPLY to the foregoing :—January 28, 1848.

Bantry Union.

WITH reference to your observations respecting Mr. W. Eccles, one of the relieving officers in the Union, I am to request that you will report the circumstances under which Mr. Eccles has failed to comply with the orders of the Vice-Guardians or the Commissioners; and on receipt of your report they will immediately take the subject into consideration, with a view to his removal from office if requisite.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 26, 1848.

WITH reference to my report of this day's date, I have the honour further to inform the Commissioners that the Rev. C. Freeman did not furnish the names of the children who he alleges died of starvation at his door.

I have made inquiry, and can hear of no one having died of starvation.

With the minutes of this day a letter is sent from the relieving officer, stating, that the parents of the party in question (who is out of all danger) never applied to him or any other relieving officer for relief.

Mr. Eccles, relieving officer, has resigned, and so there is no necessity for his dismissal.

I am well pleased with the way we are going on; many are demanding their discharge in consequence of the work.

P.S.—My report this morning should be dated 26th instead of 27th January.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 30, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward another complaint of the Rev. C. Freeman, R. C. C.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. R. POWER, Sub-Inspector, to Captain GORDON:—January 30, 1848.

I HAVE to inform you that just this moment I received a note from the Rev. Mr. Freeman, stating that a child belonging to a man named Thomas Foley, residing on Blackrock-road, had died of starvation. May I take the liberty of calling your's and the relieving officer's attention to this case, and will feel obliged for a report on the subject, as to whether application was made for relief for this child.

P.S.—I beg to send you Mr. Freeman's communication on the subject.

Rev. C. FREEMAN, R. C. C., to Mr. POWER:—January 30, 1848.

BEARER, Thomas Foley, now living in Blackrock-road, has a child dead. I have made inquiries as to the cause of death, and in my opinion this unfortunate child died from the effects of starvation. You, of course, will act in this case as you deem fit.

Captain GORDON to RELIEVING OFFICER.

Queries.

Thomas Foley, of Blackrock-road, is reported to have a child dead from starvation.

The relieving officer is requested to state whether Thomas Foley applied to him for relief.

Date of application.

Mode of disposing of it.

The name and age of the child.

Further particulars.

January 30, 1848.

Answers.

I have made inquiries, and find that the child in question died about Christmas-Day, having, as the mother informed me, been ill for a week previously of a bowel complaint.

No application was made to me for relief by the parents, who are strangers in Bantry, from another district.

I regret such reports should be made without any inquiry previously as to the facts.

January 30, 1848.

Captain GORDON to Mr. POWER:—January 30, 1848.

IN answer to your communication of this day's date, and enclosing a note from the Rev. C. Freeman, stating that Thomas Foley had a child dead, and saying in his opinion it died from the effects of starvation, I have to inform you that the child in question died so long ago as Christmas-Day, and, from all inquiries that can be made, it appears from dysentery.

Bantry Union.

Mr. Freeman made a report on last Tuesday, the 25th, that he has not yet accounted for, since he stated to the Vice-Guardians and myself, that two children had died of want at his door, and he had brought with him the body of a third, which was still living and taken into hospital, the father never having made any application to the relieving officer. He was called upon to name the other two, and, failing to do so, I consider his report without foundation.

Captain GORDON to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 31, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report with respect to the workhouse at Castletown, after having well considered the proposal, I am induced to think that such a building could never be properly conducted or controlled in that unhappy district, such is the present state of society.

I am also of opinion that the present workhouse is sufficient for the Union.

However, a good site is to be found, and I shall have the proper tenders in a day or two.

Some building is necessary there; and I would strongly recommend a permanent hospital, since the district has nothing of the kind to meet any epidemic; and in that particular we are almost as badly off here.

REPLY to the above :—February 3, 1848.

THE Commissioners have fully considered the question of whether it is desirable to have a workhouse at Berehaven; and they have decided the question in the affirmative.

They think on general grounds that the requiring destitute able-bodied persons to go from Berehaven to the workhouse at Bantry amounts practically in some instances to a denial of relief.

The Commissioners are sensible that there will be great difficulty in securing a good Board of Guardians for the new workhouse and the new Union; but it is to be remembered that the Commissioners have it always in their power to dissolve a Board of Guardians which fails to discharge its duties duly and effectually.

CASTLAREA UNION.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 28, 1847.

I BEG to send you a statement of the condition I found this Union in. Yesterday was the first meeting I had with the Board of Guardians; there was a full meeting, as I sent a circular to each of them to attend. The collectors have got till next Board day to return the names of all defaulters. The Guardians struck a rate of 2s. 11d. in the pound, and afterwards passed a resolution that only one-half was to be collected at first; nearly three months have passed over, and all the money paid in by the collectors is about 2500l. But for this resolution, I am informed a large sum would have been paid in. The collectors are now taking steps to collect the rate. I found the master and matron of the workhouse most attentive, and the upper part of the house very clean; the yards in a shocking state of dirt, the grass growing in the yards, the windows broken. The paupers can get over the walls as they please. I wanted the Guardians to grant money to raise them, but they refused. They have given an order that a quantity of implements should be bought from the Board of Works; when I get them I shall soon have the place in order. I found most of the children in rags, many of the men without shirts, and not the half of them in the workhouse dress yesterday. Some of the paupers did not get their breakfasts till half-past 1 o'clock, for want of fires. There are five girls sleeping in some of the beds, and four boys in others. No room to class the children, from the crowded state of the house; all the sewers about the house choked up. Shall I order the solicitor to attend the Board, to take proceedings against the large rate-payers? I am told that the collectors find it hardest to get them to pay. No paupers admitted yesterday.

REPLY to the above:—December 3, 1847.

THE Commissioners do not approve the receipt of any instalment of the rates now due; and they request that you will recommend the Guardians to press forward the collection.

With regard to the proceedings for enforcing payment of the arrears of rate in the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners do not consider it necessary that the Guardians should incur the expense of having their solicitor in attendance to receive oral directions. They recommend lists to be made for him, of the rate-payers to be proceeded against by civil bill, or by action in the superior courts; and they will be prepared to sanction the latter proceeding, on receiving the list of the immediate lessors, who may be so proceeded against, in which list the residence of each lessor should be stated.

With respect to the state of the workhouse, I am to request that you will have a list made of the articles and quantities of clothing and bedding required, and that you will ascertain what course the Guardians propose to take for providing the supplies, which you will be so good as to report, at the same time annexing a list of the requisites wanting.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 5, 1847.

I BEG to inform you that the affairs of this Union are getting into a better state than they were the week previous. The rate collectors have lodged 150l. more than they did the former week; but there is still a great neglect on their part. I am going to the petty sessions on Tuesday, to see that every person is decreed, whom they have summoned. I have to report that the workhouse premises are getting into some state of order, the Guardians have given an order for clothing for the paupers, and all necessaries required.

Castlereagh Union.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 12, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to state, for your information, the business I have had on hand for the last week. I have attended at the workhouse with some of the Guardians, and have been revising the lists of the paupers in the house. As far as I have gone, I find there are numbers of people in it holders of land; as an instance, one person is a 10*l.* freeholder of the county. I am in hopes by the end of next week, to have completed a thorough revision of the entire house, and am certain we shall reduce the numbers by 300. I read out to the Guardians, as far as I got the returns, the names of all immediate lessors who are defaulters; they have ordered application to be made to them for payment. I would suggest to the Commissioners, that the present rate-collectors should be changed. From what I see of them, they never will do their duty in collecting the rate; some from intimidation, others from being in the hands of the Guardians and magistrates. I think there ought to be a person sent down to reside in this town to collect the entire rates of the Union, with full power to have the stipendiary magistrate, and the police to assist him. I regret to state that this part of the country is in a very bad state; the magistrates are afraid to act; in fact, no man's life is safe that has any dealing with the country people.

 Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 15, 1847.

MAY I request you will inform me how I am to act? Numbers of the most wretched creatures are brought to the workhouse door in fever; the Guardians, from kind motives, order them to be admitted; the doctor opposes it as much as possible, on the grounds that there are too many in the hospital. I should be much obliged by your giving me instructions against next Board day. I send you the master's report.

 REPLY to the above:—December 17, 1847.

As it appears there have been five temporary hospitals established in the Castlereagh Union, under the Act 10 Vic. c. 22, it would be advisable to render these available; and if they are not at present in use, the Relief Committees should be called upon to re-open them, in which case they would have to be supported by the Guardians, as pointed out in the 15th section of the Act; but that if the Committees will not act, there should be an application made to the Board of Health, for a requisition to the Board of Guardians, which will enable them to charge the support of the hospitals to the Union, under the 6th section of the Act 9 Vic. c. 6; or in case of abandonment of the hospitals and refusals of the Committees to act, the Guardians may take possession of them as fever wards to be provided for under the 6 and 7 Vic. c. 92; in which case, however, the Union medical officer would require assistance, and it would be more advisable to have the hospitals managed under the 9 Vic., c. 6, if the first course cannot be adopted.

 The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. AUCHMUTY:—December 20, 1847.

I AM to forward to you herewith, a communication which the Commissioners have received from the Under Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a man named Michael Cunnawn, who is stated by the jury on the inquest held on his body, to have come by his death from starvation, and I am to request that you will have the goodness to make such inquiry into the circumstances, as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief either to the Board of Guardians, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers.

 Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS, in reply:—December 26, 1847.

I BEG to state for your information, that I went myself to make inquiries as to the cause of Michael Cunnawn's death; there is no doubt but that he died from starvation. From every inquiry I made at the workhouse, he never made application for admittance; the relieving officer states that the family are on his register since the 8th of this month.

Castlerea Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. AUCHMUTY:—December 28, 1847.

WITH reference to the statement of the relieving officer, that the names of Cunnawn's family had been on his register since the 8th instant, I am to request that the Commissioners may be informed whether relief had been afforded to the family previous to the decease of Michael Cunnawn.

The object of the Commissioners in making inquiry into the circumstances of the case is, to ascertain whether the death occurred from the neglect of the Board of Guardians or any of their officers; and the Commissioners are desirous that you should direct your inquiries with a view to elicit information on that point.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS in reply:—December 31, 1847.

I BEG to state that I made inquiry from Patt Cunnawn, the father of Michael Cunnawn deceased, and he states that he never applied to any of the Guardians for relief; the master states that he never applied to him to be admitted into the workhouse; he has not been receiving relief since the Temporary Relief Act ceased.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. AUCHMUTY:—January 7, 1848.

I AM to request that you will have the goodness to furnish the Commissioners with further particulars with regard to the fact that the family of Michael Cunnawn were on the relieving officer's register since the 8th ultimo.

It does not appear from your reports whether the relieving officer or the Board of Guardians are answerable for neglecting to afford relief to this family.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS in reply:—January 9, 1848.

Mr. EKANS, the relieving officer, states that Patt Cunnawn's family were on his relief list since the 8th of December; but Michael Cunnawn died two days before they were put on. The relieving officer stated to me that he went on hearing of the distress the family were in, and registered their names himself, as the family never made application to him; he had no funds available to give them any relief.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. AUCHMUTY:—January 7, 1848.

I AM to forward to you herewith, a communication which the Commissioners have received from the Under Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a man named Mark Granville, who is stated by the jury on the inquest held on his body, to have died from want; and I am to request that you will have the goodness to make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief either to the Board of Guardians of the Castle-rea Union, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS, in reply:—January 9, 1848.

I BEG to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that I made every inquiry from the Board of Guardians yesterday, and from the master and every person connected with the workhouse, and they state that Mark Granville never made application to be admitted into the workhouse. Mr. John Tighe, the relieving officer, had Granville's name on his registry a week before his death; he states that Granville was an old man, and had been in bad health for some time. The relieving officer had no funds available to give him relief.

Castlereagh Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. AUCHMUTY:—January 10, 1848.

I AM to state that as Mark Granville died on the 30th ultimo, and the relieving officer had his name on the registry a week previously, there must have been a meeting of Guardians during that time; and the Commissioners consider a further explanation necessary, showing why some provision was not at such meeting made for this poor man.

The Commissioners are also desirous to know precisely what provision is made weekly for the destitute persons on the out-door relief lists; and further, whether you are satisfied that sufficient exertions are being made by the Guardians to enforce activity in the collection of the rate, and proceedings against defaulters.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS, in reply:—January 11, 1848.

THE Guardians of this Union have never ordered out-door relief to be given out. The Treasurer last week was in advance 240*l.* 17*s.* to the Guardians. Cosgrave, a creditor, was paid 200*l.* lately. Mrs. Neale claims 369*l.* for blankets, which must be paid before the 1st of next month. Mr. Daniel also insists on being paid 20*l.* due to him since 1846. There was only 145*l.* paid in by the collectors last week, not much more than would support the house. The rate-collectors are doing their duty, in nearly every instance. If the immediate lessors are not made to pay, it will be impossible to get the small ratepayers to pay. There is not a collector in the Union that has not numbers of decrees out against them, but without the assistance of the police they cannot act. I am going to the Petty Sessions to-morrow to see that the rate collector decrees every person he has summoned. I send the number of applications for the Loughlin division, where Mark Granville died: able-bodied, 292—infirm, 230—destitute, 30.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS:—January 14, 1848.

THE Commissioners having been apprised that the rate collected in Castlereagh Union during the last week, amounted only to 145*l.* they desire to draw the attention of the Board of Guardians to the very critical state in which the destitute poor of the Union are placed, by the insufficiency of the funds collected at once to meet the urgent liabilities of the Guardians, and provide for the extent of relief which they should be prepared to afford.

The amount remaining uncollected on the 31st ultimo, appears to have been 12,848*l.*; and the Commissioners must believe that at least a large portion of this sum could be promptly collected, if more strenuous exertions be made, as the ratepayers who may be expected to be at any time capable of paying the sums due, ought in the ordinary course of affairs to be at this period of the year in possession of means of payment.

The Guardians and the ratepayers generally cannot now require to be made aware that the present support of the destitute poor is dependent on the rates to be collected.

The Commissioners lament to have been informed that already cases of death have occurred in the Union, through want of timely relief to families in a state of destitution; and there is no avoiding the conclusion that such deaths are ascribable to the inadequacy of the means of relief which the Guardians have as yet provided.

The Commissioners feel under such painful circumstances imperatively called upon to remind the Guardians of their responsibility to provide fully for the relief of all destitute persons in the Union, and see that the relief is duly given: failing in which they will compel the Commissioners to consider their own responsibility under the 18th section of the Act 10th Vict. chap. 31, for the dissolution of any Board of Guardians, the duties of which shall not be duly and effectually discharged.

The Commissioners are informed that considerable arrears of rate are due by immediate lessors; they therefore beg to refer the Guardians to the provisions for recovery of such arrears contained in the 2nd section of the Act 6th and 7th Vict., chap. 92; and should the Guardians consider it to be necessary in any of such cases to proceed by action in the superior courts, the Commissioners will be prepared to give their sanction for that object on being supplied with a list of the immediate lessors so to be sued, stating their places of abode, and the amount due by each.

Castlereagh Union.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 9, 1848.

I BEG to send you the proceedings of the Board of Guardians yesterday. There were 14 members present. They are most anxious that the ovens should be erected at once, as the distress throughout the entire Union is dreadful. I made application to the Guardians to give shoes for all the children in the house; but they would not grant them. There are nearly 400 persons ill in the house, principally from dysentery, and the doctor states it is for want of warm clothing and shoes. The Guardians have agreed to take Wills' Grove, three miles from this, as additional accommodation for paupers; it will contain about 500, and is in good repair. Mr. Wills wants 75*l.* a-year for it; it is the only house that can be procured. The Guardians have dismissed all the nurses, and intend only to have a head nurse at a salary of 12*l.* a-year and rations; the present ones have been found dishonest. The Guardians propose taking a field at the back of the workhouse, containing about eight acres, to employ the men on. There is a part to be let off for a burying-ground, as the present one inside the walls, is quite full of graves. I read out the names of some of the immediate lessors who are defaulters; the Guardians ordered that they should be made to pay in every case. Shall I send up all the names to the Commissioners, so that Mr. Dillon should apply to them at once? I had the rate collectors before the Board; they have all a number of decrees taken out, but they cannot execute them without the assistance of the police.

Number of paupers in the house this week, 1124.—Died, 18. Amount of money collected, 145*l.*

REPLY to the above :—January 12, 1848.

THE Commissioners will communicate with you in a few days, with respect to the erection of an oven at the workhouse.

As regards the want of clothing and shoes for the workhouse inmates to which you refer, I am to state that a portion of some clothing which has been placed at the Commissioners' disposal, has been allotted to the Castlereagh Union; this supply may not, however, be sufficient to meet the demand in the Castlereagh workhouse, and the Commissioners request that you will bring the subject under the notice of the Guardians at their next meeting, and report specially what steps are taken on the subject.

The Commissioners approve of the proposed occupation of the building at Wills' Grove to which you refer, and they request that you will state what class or classes the Guardians propose to send to that building, and what provision they propose to make for the superintendence of the establishment.

The Commissioners trust that by the occupation of that building, and by affording out-door relief to all the classes under the first section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, the Guardians will be enabled to provide room in the workhouse, for the relief of the able-bodied.

The Commissioners approve of the proposal to take an additional piece of ground, to afford employment for the able-bodied men and boys in the workhouse, a portion to be used as a cemetery; I am at the same time to observe, that the total quantity of ground which the Guardians can occupy is 15 acres, exclusive of the land which the workhouse buildings actually occupy; and I am to request that you will report the particulars of the terms upon which the Guardians will be able to obtain the land.

In cases in which the collectors require assistance, they should make application in the ordinary manner, to the stipendiary magistrate.

Castlereagh Union.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 16, 1848.

I BEG to state, for the information of the Commissioners, the difficult position the rate collectors are placed in. There has not been a petty sessions held in most parts of this Union for some time past; the stipendiary magistrate, from press of business, was unable to attend, and the local magistrates rarely attend at petty sessions. The collectors have a number of decrees taken out for poor-rates; but they cannot execute them without the assistance of the police, and they cannot act without the stipendiary magistrate being present. I send you two letters from collectors, that were submitted to the Guardians yesterday. I am making out a list for the Commissioners, of all immediate lessors who are defaulters.

Mr. MICHAEL CONNELL, Collector, to the BOARD of GUARDIANS of the Castlereagh Union:—
January 13, 1848.

I BEG to state that the great cause of my collection being so backward is poverty. Some of the people are well inclined to pay, but they have not the means. The persons who have means to meet my demands their stock and corn is under seizure by the landlords. My district is a rural one, no gentlemen living in it. I also require either the military or the police to assist me in collecting the rates of some of my district, the people of which say that they will not allow me to make a distress.

Mr. MICHAEL WALDRON, Collector, to the BOARD of GUARDIANS of the Castlereagh Union:—
January 15, 1848.

I MOST respectfully take leave to state, that I have attended at Ballinrobe quarter sessions, to prosecute several persons who have rescued me in the execution of my duty as poor-rate collector.

The result of my proceedings was, that my bills were found true, and the trials were adjourned to the ensuing sessions of Clarendon. Gentlemen, I have to observe that the result of this stay of execution has made an impression on the minds of the cess-payers in my district, so that I apprehend I will meet with violent opposition henceforth, and I trust that, under these circumstances, you will please to authorize me to call in an armed force.

I have three townlands in my district, where I could not attempt doing any duty unless protected by an armed force.

I have also to remind you that I have no assistance to get or expect by way of an advice or otherwise, from any Guardian or Magistrate except from the Stipendiary Magistrate, who was not at Ballyhaunis petty sessions this month past, so I am obliged to prepare informations to have them sworn before him on this day, as I have no other remedy left to prevent them, save putting them under bail. I have to state that I have above 60 decrees obtained, and am sure that if I attempt to execute them, my life would be endangered.

REPLY to the above:—January 18, 1848.

THE Commissioners have communicated with the Chief Secretary on the subject of the obstruction offered to two of the collectors of poor-rate in the Castlereagh Union, and they have reason to believe that steps will be taken to remedy the evils complained of by you.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 16, 1848.

I BEG to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that, from the experience I have had lately, the Guardians here never will carry out the Poor Law; from some of the electoral divisions they hardly ever attend on the Board day. I spoke to the Chairman, Mr. Wills, yesterday, and to some others of the Guardians, and they are of opinion that there ought to be a paid Board sent down here at once.

Some of the Guardians state to me that they will not attend any more, for this reason: the poor blame them for not giving out-door relief, and from the state this country is in, it puts them in a very dangerous position. The Guardians did not meet yesterday till two o'clock, and broke up at four; most of them are afraid to be out after that hour.

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 17, 1848.

THE Commissioners request that you will be so good as to refer to the 18th section of the Act 10 Vict., cap. 31, by which you will observe that a Board of Guardians can only be dissolved when regular meetings shall not be held at the times appointed, by the orders of the Commissioners, or when, through default of the Guardians, the duties of the Board shall not be duly and effectually discharged.

The Commissioners will be prepared to consider their responsibility under that enactment, whenever you can show that the regular weekly meetings are not held by the Guardians of the Castlereagh Union, or that the laws for the relief of the poor are not duly carried into effect, by the Guardians neglecting to provide for the proper support and management of the workhouse, or the adequate and legal relief of all destitute persons applying for it, by in-door maintenance, or where the applicants may be of any of the three classes specified in the 1st section of 10 Vict., cap. 31, by an out-door allowance sufficient for their subsistence.

The Commissioners wish you to understand, however, that they will be ready to dissolve the Board of Guardians of the Castlereagh Union, when a statement of the default of the Guardians to discharge their duties has been placed on record, and proved to the Commissioners' satisfaction.

As, in order to the affording of relief where requisite, the Guardians are responsible for the collection of sufficient funds, as far as practicable, they must also be considered to have failed in carrying the law into effect whenever you can show, that they have not properly and actively used the means at their disposal, for having the rates collected or enforced.

MR. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 19, 1848.

HONOR BOLAND, a child and an orphan, three and a half years of age, was left at the workhouse door by John Carty, of Clondahara, and then went away, refusing to take her with him. He states that he gave the mother a few nights' lodging; she died in his house, and that he does not know where she came from. I have admitted her into the house, as the child would have died. I should like to have the Commissioners' opinion how I am to act, by the next Board day.

REPLY to the above:—January 21, 1848.

THE Commissioners consider that the course to be adopted in the case of desertion described by you, must depend on the result of a local inquiry through the constabulary, or otherwise as found necessary, to ascertain whether the child Honor Boland is really the orphan of a woman who died while lodging in the house of John Carty, who left the child at the workhouse, and is not the child or grandchild of Carty, who would, in the latter case, be liable to punishment, under section 2 of the Act 10 and 11 Vict., cap. 84.

MR. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 23, 1848.

THE master of the workhouse still continues in fever, with very little hopes of his recovery, the schoolmaster is in charge, and has the establishment in most regular order. Mr. O'Connor, a magistrate of this county, ordered the police to attend James Finerty, one of the collectors, and in two days he collected 172*l.*, which will appear in his next account. Finerty states that the people had their cattle locked up in many places, when they saw the police approach, and in many other cases there was nothing to distrain. The sheriff of the county came yesterday, while the Guardians were sitting, and seized everything in the house at the suit of Gunn and Cameron. The debt was only 36*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.* The Guardians have got till next Saturday to pay it. The Guardians are going on Saturday, to sell all the manure on the workhouse premises; this will be very conducive to the health of the inmates of the house, as it has been accumulating since the house has been opened. Mrs. Loughlin was appointed head nurse yesterday, at a salary of 12*l.* a-year and rations; there was only one Guardian opposed her election. I have further to state that nothing has been done by the stipendiary magistrate, to give the collectors the assistance of the police; he states to me that his time is taken up in granting licences for holding arms. I would suggest to the Commissioners to apply to get the Sub-Inspectors in each district, to attend with the police to protect the collectors.

Castlereagh Union.

REPLY to the above:—January 27, 1848.

THE attention of Her Majesty's Government has been drawn to your recommendation, with regard to the assistance required by the collectors of poor rate in the discharge of their duties.

Mr. AUCHMUTY to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 6, 1848.

I BEG to state, for the information of the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, that the master of the workhouse is recovered from fever, and is now able to attend to his duty. I would suggest that there ought to be tradesmen employed to teach the boys different trades, the expenses of tailoring, shoemaking, and carpenter-work is a large item in the expenditure of the establishment. I had an interview with Mr. Kincard, the agent to Daniel Farrell, he refuses to pay the poor-rate due by him. I have further to state that Mr. Flanagan and I are of opinion that nothing will save this Union except a paid Board; yesterday the Guardians did very little business. This is a very large Union, none of the landed gentry ever attend the Board, the only two gentlemen that attend are Mr. Wills, and sometimes Mr. Strickland, they are only agents. I regret to state that distress is daily on the increase.

Mr. FLANAGAN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 7, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to inform you that, on Saturday, the 5th instant, I attended a meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union.

I regret having to report that the present Board of Guardians is wholly unequal to the discharge of the duties which the law has imposed upon them, namely, relieving the destitute poor of the Union, and providing funds for that purpose.

The extent of destitution may be conceived from this fact: there are (as I am informed by Mr. Auchmuty) at least 10,000 names on the Application and Report Books of the different relieving officers, and of this number Mr. Auchmuty estimates that about 8000 are proper objects for relief, and destitute within the meaning of the Act.

The adequacy of the relief provided is easily stated. Of the 8000 (and in my opinion they form but a small portion of those who will be, or ought to be, ultimately upon the relief lists), not one single person of either of the classes coming under the 1st or 2nd sections of the Act is receiving out-door relief.

Of the efforts made, to provide means for affording relief to those persons, the following return of the state of the collection will furnish a test.

On the 21st August, 1847, the last rate, amounting to 17,456*l.* 8*s.* 10½*d.*, was struck. The collecting books were not given out until from the 18th to the 30th of September. Since that time, during a period of four months and a half, about one-third only of that rate has been collected; the present arrear being 11,471*l.* 12*s.* 7½*d.* Progressing in the same ratio, the entire rate would not be collected for a period of eight months more; and recollecting that the months of October, November, and December, are by far the best in the whole year for collection, the probability is that the rate would not be collected even within that time, and, in fact, the collection for last week was only 256*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*

By the last monthly return of the state of the funds, it will appear that the liabilities on the 31st of December, were 4150*l.* 13*s.* 11*d.* Several actions have been brought against the Board by different creditors, and unless some more vigorous and effective means be taken to enforce the collection than have hitherto been adopted, the affairs of this Union will become inextricably embarrassed, and the poor be wholly unrelieved.

Estimating the average cost of a pauper at 7*d.* per head per week (and the estimate is a very low one), the necessary expenditure for out-door relief only will, for the 8000, amount to nearly 350*l.* a-week; adding to that the ordinary work-house expenditure, the sum required every week will amount to nearly 500*l.*, a sum very nearly double that collected in the course of last week.

When it is considered that several members of the Board of Guardians are defaulters, it cannot be a subject of wonder that they do not adopt vigorous means for enforcing the collection of the rate. Amongst others, the following Guardians have been returned to me as defaulters in the electoral division of Began:—

Very many names have been returned to me of Guardians who have paid a moiety only of their rates; as they have promised to pay the rest in a short time, I do not think it necessary to bring, at present, their names under the notice of the Commissioners.

I trust the above statement of the destitution in this Union, the utter want of relief, and of exertions for procuring the means to provide it, will induce the Commissioners to exercise the powers vested in them, and to dissolve forthwith this most negligent and inefficient Board.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the CASTLEREA UNION—Dissolution of the Board of Guardians:—February 11, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under their consideration reports which they have received from their Inspectors, Mr. Flanagan and Mr. Auchmuty, in reference to the administration of relief in the Castlereagh Union.

The Commissioners learn from these reports, that there are at least 10,000 names on the Application and Report Books of the several relieving officers of the Union, of whom there is reason to believe that 8000 persons are proper objects for relief. The Commissioners, however, only regard this statement as an estimate; but they must consider that, even if the actual number destitute was found to be much less, still the inadequacy of the relief afforded by the Board of Guardians is made sufficiently apparent by such a fact; considering, too, that the workhouse has been for some time full, that not one person is as yet receiving out-door relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, and that the Guardians have made no representation to the Commissioners of any necessity for affording relief, under the 2nd section of the Act in the Union.

The exertions made by the Board of Guardians, to provide funds for affording relief to the destitute poor seem to have been, in like manner, inadequate to the emergency. It appears that, on the 31st of August, 1847, a rate was made, amounting to 17,456*l.* 8*s.* 10½*d.*, on a valuation amounting to 114,349*l.*

The collecting books were not, however, given out until between the 18th and 30th of September, since which time about one-third only of the rate has been collected, the present arrear being 11,471*l.*

As the collection of the rates has been thus slackly pressed forward, the Commissioners are not surprised to ascertain, from the last monthly return of the state of the Union funds, that the liabilities of the Board of Guardians amounted, on the 31st of December, to 4150*l.* It further appears that several actions have been brought against the Board of Guardians by different creditors, and unless some more vigorous and effective means are taken to enforce payment of the rates, the affairs of the Union must become inextricably embarrassed, and the destitute poor be wholly unrelieved.

The Commissioners find that several members of the Board of Guardians have not paid any rate, and that other members have paid only a portion of the rates due by them.

The Commissioners also find that the majority of the landed gentry who are Guardians never attend the Board.

Taking into consideration the extent of destitution in the Union, the absence of any adequate effort on the part of the Board of Guardians to afford relief to the destitute, and the want of exertion on their part to provide the funds requisite for the purpose, the Commissioners feel that they cannot longer refrain from the exercise of their powers under the 18th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, in the Castlereagh Union.

The Commissioners have accordingly resolved to issue an order, dissolving the present Board of Guardians, and they will immediately proceed to the appointment of paid officers to administer the affairs of the Union.

WESTPORT UNION.

Mr. LYNCH, Temporary Inspector, to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 17, 1847.

SINCE my last communication, I have visited the electoral divisions of Kilmeena, Kilmaclasser, and part of Aughagower for the purpose of making the necessary inquiry as to the number of children attending the several schools, to enable me to make up the return required by the Committee of the British Association; this return I forwarded to the Count Strzelecki on the 13th instant.

I attended the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, and though the house is not yet quite full, they deemed it advisable to allow 42 persons, being widows and their children, to leave the house, giving them a weekly allowance of Indian meal, 7 lbs. for persons above nine years of age, and for those under nine half this quantity, or 3½ lbs., being the same allowed throughout this Union under the Temporary Relief Act 10 Vict., cap. 7. The Vice-Guardians adopted this course, as they considered it unsafe to increase the number of inmates under existing circumstances, fever being, I am sorry to say, very much on the increase, and the supply of clothes, &c., at present at their disposal, far short of the quantity required, while the number of applicants for admission was much larger than usual.

Mr. Valentine Hines arrived last night, and attended at the Board this day, but not having produced his bond of security, and Mr. Londen consenting to undertake the collection of the rate in the electoral divisions of Westport, Louisburgh, Clare Island, Aughagower, Kilmeena, Kilmaclasser, and Islandeady, the Vice-Guardians, with my full concurrence, signed the several warrants authorizing him to collect the rate in these several divisions, appointing Sir Richard O'Donnell, Bart., to the remaining three divisions, being Westport, Achill, and Ballycroy.

REPLY to the above:—November 19, 1847.

THE Commissioners will communicate with the Vice-Guardians with respect to Mr. Hines, whom it was heretofore proposed to employ as a collector of the poor-rate in the Union, and the Commissioners will inform you of the communication made to the Vice-Guardians.

Mr. Hines has been requested to return to Dublin.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 17, 1847.

OUT of the rate of 2s. 6d. in the pound, struck in February last, on the electoral division of Westport, a sum of only about 300*l.* has been collected. A large sum appears due by the Marquis of Sligo, but previous to the rate-books being made out, he advanced in cash, a sum larger than the rate charged against him for the maintenance of the house, which should have been otherwise closed for want of funds; this advance the Vice-Guardians consider should be allowed to Lord Sligo, and consequently he has not been pressed for the 2s. 6d. rate. The arrears due by all other parties, have been regularly transferred for collection, to the new rate-book, and added to the rate of 5s. in the pound, struck on the 1st of November instant.

The balance remaining in the hands of the collector, who is now re-appointed by the Vice-Guardians, is no more than about 16*l.*, and I have directed him to pay it in forthwith, to the credit of the Union.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 24, 1847.

SINCE my last communication, I visited the electoral division of Louisburgh, and am sorry I cannot represent the condition of the poor people in that district as anything better than in any of the other electoral divisions in the Union of Westport. Turnips appear to be the principal food, and the crop is now nearly exhausted; but with all this destitution, it is pleasing to observe the great industry exhibited in the preparation of the land for next year's crop. Had half as much

Westport Union. attention been paid last season, there would be very little distress at the present time.

The state of the Union workhouse is, altogether, very satisfactory; fever is not increasing, and all the new cases which have occurred within the last three weeks, were in the probationary wards, where the paupers were detained for several days, for want of a sufficient supply of clothing, but measures have been taken to supply this deficiency.

The collectors have perfected their bonds of security, and have received the warrants to collect the rates for the entire Union; and I have every reason to expect that a considerable sum will be paid into the treasurer, before the end of the year.

I have been anxiously employed, in carrying out the benevolent instructions of the Committee of the British Association. The two principal schools in Westport, numbering over 600 children, were this day supplied with a most excellent meal, consisting of rye bread and broth, and in the course of next week, I hope to have the system extended to several other schools throughout the Union, thus affording most seasonable relief to from 2000 to 3000 of the poorest children in my district.

MR. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 1, 1847.

WITHIN the last two days, I visited the remote district of Ballycroy, where I regret to say, the greatest distress prevails, and where there is not one resident proprietor, nor any employment, either public or private. The turnip crop is exhausted, and a large portion of the population is literally in a state of starvation; the same may be said of a considerable part of Burrishoole, or Newport, as well as Achill, and the island of Clare and Innisturk.

I attended the weekly meeting of the Vice-Guardians this day; the number of applicants exceeded 300, principally from the districts above alluded to, and no words can describe the misery they exhibited, some of them having travelled on foot over 30 miles. The utmost number the Vice-Guardians could receive into the house was 120, refusing admittance to nearly 200, who have no means on earth wherewith to support themselves, and, being generally many miles from home, will thus be thrown as an additional burthen, on the charitable inhabitants of Westport and its neighbourhood. Under these circumstances, I would most respectfully submit that the time has arrived, when the Vice-Guardians should be authorized to extend out-door relief to others than those described in the 1st section of 10th Vic., cap. 31.

The state of health in the workhouse is very satisfactory; the inmates are all employed, and the strictest attention is paid to cleanliness and regularity; the food supplied is of an excellent quality, and the poor people appear satisfied and resigned.

THE COMMISSIONERS to MR. LYNCH:—December 6, 1847.

AN order will be issued to morrow, authorizing the Vice-Guardians to administer out-door relief in accordance with the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

A copy of a similar order issued in another Union, is enclosed herewith for your information.

MR. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 8, 1847.

AT the meeting of the Board of Vice-Guardians held here this day, at which I attended, there were about 400 applications for admission into the workhouse; of these 117 were admitted, 108 being "old," "infirm," or "widows" with two or more children, were ordered to be placed on the list for out-door relief, and for want of sufficient room in the workhouse, the Vice-Guardians were most reluctantly compelled to refuse admission to the remaining number.

The Vice-Guardians received the sealed order authorizing them to grant out-door relief, according to the 2nd section of the Act of 10th Vict. c. 31; and have directed advertisements, stating that on Tuesday next, the 14th, they will proceed to the appointment of competent persons to assist in carrying out the contemplated relief.

Mr. John Large, clerk to the Union, tendered his resignation, which was accepted by the Vice-Guardians, and they have directed an advertisement to be issued, stating that they will elect a person in his place on Wednesday the 22nd instant. I perceive the Commissioners have determined that a sum of money shall be borrowed for the purpose of enlarging the workhouse; I would suggest that this addition should be made, by erecting two separate houses for the accommodation of the children, one for the boys, the other for the girls; say to give accommodation to 150 to 200 in each, and convert the present school-rooms into day-rooms for the men on one side, and for the women on the other; these new houses I would raise two or three stories, and so provide sleeping apartments for the children, as well as school-rooms.

I respectfully take leave to suggest the propriety of employing a steady intelligent person as steward or overseer, to take charge of the able-bodied paupers, and enforce regular work; such a person could I think be had for about 10*l.* per annum with rations, and should live in the house, and make himself generally useful in assisting the master.

REPLY to the above:—December 11, 1847.

WITH regard to the refusal of relief to a number of persons for whom there was not room in the workhouse, I am to inquire whether the means of accommodating them might not have been provided, by discharging some of the persons in the workhouse, and affording them out-door relief. It was also in the power of the Vice-Guardians to have afforded out-door relief under the Commissioners' order of the 7th instant, to any class of persons in the workhouse, if considered advisable to confine relief at present to persons whose destitution may have been thus tested; and, on the other hand, such relief might have been legally given under the order to any class of destitute persons who were then applying.

With respect to your observations relating to the money to be expended in making an addition to the workhouse, I am to state that the funds from which a loan for that purpose may be obtained, have been placed at the Commissioners' disposal solely for the purpose of providing accommodation for fever patients, and that the sum to be expended in the Westport Union is to be appropriated to the erection of a permanent fever ward to the workhouse, or partly to the erection of temporary sheds for the reception of fever patients, if the latter course is found to be necessary.

The Commissioners have no objection to the employment of an overseer of works by the Vice-Guardians, if on due consideration, they consider such an officer to be requisite.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—Dated December 11, received December 15, 1847.

EVERY exertion in their power, was made by the Vice-Guardians, to increase the accommodation in the workhouse. They discharged all the infirm and disabled, as well as widows having two legitimate children, and put them on out-door relief; they also extended out-door relief to all of that class who applied on Wednesday, the 8th instant; but notwithstanding, they were obliged to refuse admission to 170 persons, who did not come under the class described in the 1st section of 10th Vic. cap. 31.

The order of the Commissioners, dated 7th December, was not received in time to act upon it, further than to advertise for assistant relieving officers (the letters are not delivered in Westport till after 4 o'clock); the selection is to be made to-morrow, and on Wednesday next relief will, no doubt, be ordered to all destitute persons, for whom accommodation cannot be provided in the workhouse.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 15, 1847.

OWING to the great number of destitute persons who applied this day to the Vice-Guardians for relief, they were under the necessity of adjourning the Board till to-morrow. Messrs. Cary and Thomas will attend to-morrow at Ballinrobe, while Mr. Lecky remains here to finish the business of the Westport Union. He sat yesterday for six hours; to-day for eight, and still there are three large electoral divisions, the applications from which have not as yet been disposed of. I am, therefore, obliged to postpone my weekly report till to-morrow evening.

Westport Union.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 15, 1847.

WITH reference to the disposal of a supply of naval clothing and purser's stores for the use of the poor, I am requested by the Vice-Guardians of this Union, to state to the Poor Law Commissioners how thankful they will feel for any portion which it may be in their power to allocate to Westport Union; for it is with great difficulty, and at very considerable expense, that they are enabled to provide clothing sufficiently fast for the vast number of men and boys who are seeking admission into the workhouse.

If not irregular, I would suggest that, as these clothes will be a free grant to the Union, the Vice-Guardians might be allowed to dispose of a small quantity of them to the most distressed able-bodied men about to be employed under the order for out-door relief.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 16, 1847.

ON Tuesday, the 14th instant, the Vice Guardians held a meeting of the creditors of the Westport Union, to whom the proposition already sanctioned by the Commissioners, of paying out of the present rate, 10s. in the pound on each debt, was made and cheerfully accepted by all the creditors present, thus settling the many claims left unpaid by the late Board of Guardians.

The Vice-Guardians then proceeded to the election of one assistant relieving officer for each electoral division, and after a patient and careful examination into the fitness of the many applicants, they selected 10 individuals, who, I trust, will so conduct themselves as to secure the proper administration of the out-door relief; and while on this subject, I would take leave to suggest the necessity of appointing two additional assistants for the electoral division of Clare Island, which consists of three separate islands in the Atlantic Ocean, containing a most impoverished population of over 4000 souls, each island being fully nine or ten miles distant from the other, and in stormy weather frequently shut out for two or three weeks at a time, from all communication with the main land.

The Vice-Guardians held their ordinary weekly meeting yesterday, and as it was generally known that they were about commencing to give out-door relief, the number of applicants was considerably greater than usual; the Vice-Guardians were prepared for this increased demand for assistance, and had allowed 110 persons to leave the house on the out-door allowance, thus leaving room in the workhouse to admit those who were fitter objects for such an asylum, and offering admission to others of whose real destitution they had any doubt. In this manner, they were enabled to deal with all the cases which came before them yesterday, and to-day they admitted 124 into the house; they offered admission to about 100 who refused to come in, and they entered 285 for out-door relief, making arrangements to put all the able-bodied males to work at stone-breaking, in the respective electoral divisions.

I regret to be obliged to report, that from all I can learn the distress in this Union continues to increase daily; the turnips, on which a large portion of the people has been living, are now nearly consumed, and large numbers of the people are absolutely without food; and amongst this number are many who, being holders of land, are not entitled to relief under the Poor Law.

In consequence of the increased business to be transacted by the Board, occasioned by the extension of out-door relief, the Vice-Guardians have determined to devote two days in each week to the Westport Union; and for the future, they will transact the business of the Board on Tuesdays, as well as on Wednesdays; and to relieve the destitute poor of the electoral divisions of Achill and Ballycroy, which are distant 30 to 40 miles from Westport, they have determined to sit every alternate Tuesday at the village of Mulranny, to determine on the applications from these two divisions. Mr. Lecky and I have arranged to meet at Mulranny on Tuesday next, the 21st instant, while Captain Cary and Mr. Thomas will proceed with some of the other divisions in Westport, all four meeting as usual on Wednesday; these arrangements will, I trust, meet with the approbation of the Commissioners.

REPLY to the above:—December 20, 1847.

THE Commissioners approve of the proposal of the Vice-Guardians to meet on two days in each week, for the transaction of the business of the Board. They also approve of the appointment of assistant relieving officers.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 22, 1847.

Westport Union.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that, according to arrangements, Mr. Lecky, Chairman of the Board of Vice-Guardians, attended with me, on yesterday, at the village of Mulrannay, for the purpose of ruling the books of the relieving officer of the electoral divisions of Achill and Ballycroy. The number of applicants did not exceed 300, and of these, 188 were put on the out-door relief list, a few were directed to proceed to the workhouse, and the remaining number were refused relief principally on the grounds that they held more than a quarter of an acre of land. There is a very large number of the most destitute persons holding from one to three acres of poor mountain land, but who are excluded from relief under the 10th section of the 10th Vict., cap. 31; this class is to be found in these two electoral divisions, as well as in the islands of Clare and Innisturk, and if some exception be not made in their favour, or if relief is not afforded to them from some other source, I have the most serious apprehension that their existence cannot be prolonged beyond a few months.

I attended this day at the Board-room in Westport, where we were occupied to a very late hour in deciding on the cases left over since yesterday, and such was the sad picture of destitution presented, that we considered it necessary to extend either in-door or out-door relief to the great majority of applicants, of course rejecting the claims of those whose real distress was not made apparent to the Vice-Guardians. The result of the two days was, that in the whole Union 1395 persons were put on the out-door relief, and 239 were admitted into the workhouse; nothing can be more satisfactory than the arrangements made by the Vice-Guardians for the supply of the meal to the out-door recipients, contracts having been entered into in almost all the electoral divisions with most respectable parties at 9s. 6d. and 10s. per 112 lbs. for Indian meal, the cost for the food of each adult being thus kept under 8d. per week. Notwithstanding all this has been done by the Vice-Guardians, as well as by the Committee of the British Association, who are now feeding daily near 4000 children, I regret to be obliged to report that the destitution of this Union is rapidly increasing, and the Commissioners must be prepared to see a most serious increase to the number on the lists for out-door relief.

The collectors of rate appear slow in getting in money. I have spoken to them, and they tell me they have been very busy in serving notices, and furnishing statements of particulars to immediate lessors; next week I hope to be able to report more favourably on their success.

REPLY to the above :—December 30, 1847.

WITH reference to the number of poor persons holding from one to three acres of land, whose existence you apprehend cannot be prolonged beyond a few months unless relief be afforded to them, I am to state that in the administration of relief, the Board of Guardians are wholly precluded by law from granting relief out of the poor-rate, to persons holding more than a quarter of an acre of land, which should be made known to the applicants for relief.

The Commissioners recommend that inquiry be made of the Society of Friends (Fleet Street, Dublin,) to ascertain whether relief is in contemplation for the fishing, or other population of the Achill and Ballycroy electoral divisions, and the islands of Clare and Innisturk.

The Commissioners trust that the relief through the schools under the British Association, can be applied as extensively in these divisions as in other parts of the Union.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 29, 1847.

I REGRET to say the amount of destitution throughout the Union appears to increase. The Vice-Guardians met here yesterday, and to-day the number of cases brought before them exceeded 2200; of these, 224 were received into the workhouse, 1923 were put upon the out-door relief list, and over 50 refused to accept of the relief offered to them in the house. Nothing could exceed the misery and wretchedness exhibited by these poor people; their very appearance was enough to convince the Vice-Guardians that they were fit objects for relief; their cases were, however, most satisfactorily reported by the several relieving officers, who appear to use great diligence in the discharge of their very arduous duties.

Westport Union.

Much inconvenience is experienced by the want of a supply of the necessary implements to keep the able-bodied at work; and, I fear, if habits of idleness and insubordination are now formed, there may be much difficulty in setting matters right when the labourers become more numerous, and it is therefore most important to have the order for the implements forwarded from the office of Public Works with the least possible delay.

Fever and dysentery are, I regret to say, much on the increase in the workhouse, owing, I think, in a great measure, to the increased number of admissions within the last three weeks; almost all the fresh cases occurring amongst those recently admitted into the house.

The Vice-Guardians this day elected Mr. John Egan as clerk of the Union, and propose that he should receive a salary of 80*l.* a year, which I do not consider unreasonable, when the increased labours of the office are taken into account. Mr. Egan states he is willing to devote his entire time to the business of the Union, and, as far as I am able to judge, I consider him, in every respect, fully competent to discharge his duties.

REPLY to the above:—January 1, 1848.

THE Commissioners have communicated with the Board of Works, with reference to the implements required to keep the able-bodied at work, who are in receipt of out-door relief.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 5, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that I spent two days this week in the electoral division of Achill, where, I regret to say, the greatest destitution prevails, with the least local means of relief; for there is but very little difference between the lowest cottier and the most extensive holder of land, they appear all reduced to the same level. Mr. Nixon, the relieving officer, has been very active within the last week in investigating the claims made to him for assistance, and on Tuesday (yesterday), 700 persons from this electoral division were put on the out-door relief at Mulranny, in addition to about 300 who were before receiving it. This I trust will in some degree lessen the pressure, and put a check to the extensive peculation which has hitherto existed in the island.

I attended the Board of Vice-Guardians this day; there were about 3000 applications laid before them in addition to the 700 disposed of at Mulranny, yesterday; out of these about 2800 were rated for out-door relief, and 92 were admitted into the workhouse, making the total number now receiving relief out of the house, 7778, and to supply these persons, it requires 20 tons of Indian meal per week, at a cost of about 200*l.*, in addition to the expense of relieving officers and their assistants. Hitherto, the Vice-Guardians have been enabled to pay the weekly expenditure out of the incoming rates, but unless the collectors are more active in their several districts, it is quite clear the Vice-Guardians will have to come to a stand-still. I have directed the collectors to furnish me with a list of all the individuals whose rate exceeds 5*l.*, and who have neglected to pay, that they may be handed over to the solicitor of the Board for recovery, and thus, I trust, funds will be provided to continue the cash payments of the Union for some weeks longer; but when it is recollected that the Vice-Guardians have agreed to allocate half the incoming rate to the payment of the debts contracted by the late Board of Guardians, it is quite apparent that the funds of the Union will not long be adequate to the relief required.

I have again to call the attention of the Commissioners, to the necessity of urging the Board of Public Works to send down the order for the delivery of the implements, required to put the able-bodied paupers to some useful employment.

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 10, 1848.

WITH reference to the proceedings which you propose to have adopted against defaulters whose rate exceeds 5*l.*, I am to state that a solicitor should only be employed for cases in which the Guardians must proceed against occupiers by civil bill, or against immediate lessors by civil bill, or by action in the superior courts; or in some other case of special necessity for professional legal assistance.

I am at the same time to observe, that every exertion which the collectors can make by summary proceedings, should be now promptly used to enforce the payment of the rates outstanding; and I am to request your attention especially to section 73 and 78 of Act 1 and 2 Vict., c. 56, and sec. 2 of Act 6 and 7 Vict., cap. 92.

The Commissioners have again communicated with the Board of Works, as regards the implements required to set the able-bodied paupers to work.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. LYNCH—Memorandum for Papers and Inquiry:—
January 11, 1848.

I.—Inquiry on 5th of January into charges against the relieving officer for Newport district, for corrupt conduct in the administration of out-door relief.

II.—Practice in this Union, except on the estate of the Marquess of Sligo, to require the occupiers of cabins and land to throw down the former before obtaining relief.

III.—Catherine Murray, a widow with six children, applied on the 29th December for relief, after travelling 13 miles, and had to return without relief, not being able to get a hearing. There was a sleet storm when she was travelling home.

Applied again on the 5th January with the like result, except that she got a hearing, and complained of having had to bury her child Bridget without a coffin on Christmas eve or night; and when she returned home on the 5th, after Mr. Leckey had rejected her complaint on the evidence of the relieving officer, against whom she made it, her son Michael died of hunger, which is known to the clergymen of both religions there, as well as the physician and police officer.

As there do not appear to be any reports or minutes from Westport Union which contain references to these cases, the Commissioners request Mr. Lynch to report on the facts, and in the first case to give the name of the relieving officer, and the result of the inquiry.

ENCLOSURE referred to Mr. LYNCH with foregoing.

Westport Union—Newport Electoral Division.

COMPLAINTS made against Mr. WILLIAM NIXON, Relieving Officer, January 5, 1848.

I.—Henry Phillips, of Glenamo, a barger or water-bailiff to William Nixon, relieving officer, gets three stone meal weekly; has land, more than one rood, a cow, and a year-old heifer and calf; put on relief on 22nd December, 1847.

II.—James Nixon, water-bailiff to William Nixon, relieving officer, gets meal; walking about.

III.—John Moran, aged 14, grandson to Winifred Gallagher, Rossgaliff; said John Moran being the legitimate son of Michael Moran, of Westport, who keeps jaunting-cars, all with the knowledge of the relieving officer.

(Signed)

JAMES HILLES,
5th Jan., 1848.

I.—It appears that Henry Phillips is a very poor person, with eight or nine children; had been a mountain herd, and received from Mr. William Nixon, the relieving officer, the sum of 1*l.*, for looking after the river near which he lives, for the quarter ending Christmas last; has no land, and no cattle.

II.—Was once in Mr. Nixon's employment at 2*l.* per annum, looking after his river; is very destitute, and has a wife and young children; not able to work, as he has lost one hand.

III.—On inquiry it appears that John Moran was put on the list as one of Widow Gallagher's family; the relieving officer states positively that he was imposed on, and the Vice-Guardians acquit him of blame; the boy is since struck off the list.

RICHARD M. LYNCH.

Westport, Jan. 14, 1848.

(Copy.)

JOHN EGAN, Clerk.

Westport Union.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS, in Reply:—January 14, 1848.

I.—On 5th January, Mr. James Hilles brought three charges, in writing, before the Vice-Guardians against Mr. William Nixon, relieving officer for the electoral division of Newport. I annex a copy of the charges (which were written), together with the explanation given by Mr. Nixon, which appeared quite satisfactory to the Vice-Guardians.

II.—It is the practice with some landlords and agents in this Union to require their tenants to throw down their cabins before they take up possession of their holdings. The relieving officers cannot report them for relief till they give up their land; but the relieving officers are no parties to the throwing down of the houses.

III.—I have made inquiry into the case of Catherine Murray, a widow. She does not appear to have come up to Westport on the 29th December; she applied about this time to the relieving officer, who visited her house, and found she held $2\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land, and consequently did not report her case to the Vice-Guardians, though she was wretchedly destitute. He advised her to give up her land. She afterwards came to him a second time; and, to satisfy her and Mr. Hilles, he reported her case, and several others similarly circumstanced, on the 5th January, and they were refused by Mr. Leckey, as they held more than a quarter acre of land. On the 10th January she applied a third time, and stated she had given up her land: this was also reported to Mr. Nixon by some other parties, and her case was brought before the Board on the 12th instant, when she was ordered one week's relief till her case is further inquired into.

REPLY to the above:—January 18, 1848,

THE explanation with respect to the relief given to Henry Phillips and James Nixon by the relieving officer, William Nixon, is not satisfactory.

The first would appear to have been his water-bailiff at the time; and the smallness of the recompense allowed does not appear to justify the relief which, in such a case, can only be regarded as relief in aid of wages.

It is presumed that some of the children of Henry Phillips obtain the school relief.

As from the present time forward, for some months, the water-bailiff's duties in watching the river, to prevent salmon from being taken by poachers, should be actively performed, the Commissioners wish to be informed whether either of these men be now employed in that capacity, or be on the relief lists. Mr. Lynch will be so good as to make this inquiry.

Mr. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 27, 1848.

ON further inquiry, I find that Henry Phillips was in the employment of Mr. Nixon for the quarter ending 1st January, and was put on the out-door relief on the 22nd December. I also find he had a cow and two heifers, which he sold on the 6th January; but the price of them went to pay debts contracted for food during the last year. None of his children receive relief at the schools, and it is admitted that he is in a most destitute condition.

James Nixon was not employed by the relieving officer since November, 1846, as water-bailiff.

Both these men are still on the relief lists for the out-door relief.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. LYNCH:—January 19, 1848.

Mr. LYNCH is requested to inquire and report upon the circumstances referred to in the accompanying communication.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. HILLES to Mr. REDINGTON:—January 7, 1848.

I BEG to call your attention to the annexed statement, in which you will perceive two persons have lost their lives (and I wish I could confine myself to two) in consequence of the conduct of the relieving officer and his son, Thomas Nixon, his assistant. I am aware that such conduct in England would be at once visited with legal inquiry and punishment; and will thank you to say if I am to take any steps in law, and the mode you may deem advisable under the circumstances.

Westport Union.

Complaint against Mr. William Nixon, Sub-Agent of Colonel Gore, and Relief Officer of Electoral Division, Newport, in Westport Union, made before R. Lecky, Esq., paid Guardian, at Board-room, Wednesday, 5th January, 1848.

1st. That Henry Phillips, Glenmase, a barger or water-bailiff of the relieving officer, gets three stones of meal weekly; has land more than one rood; has a cow, a two-year-old heifer, and a calf.

2nd. That James Nixon, water-bailiff to relief officer, gets meal, and is walking about.

3rd. That John Moran, aged 14 years, the grandson of Winifred Gallagher, Rossgaliff, is getting meal; the said John Moran being the legitimate son of a man of the name of Moran, living in Westport, keeping jaunting cars; all of which in the knowledge of the relief officer.

Three cases selected out of a vast number of extreme destitution ejected:—

1st. Catherine Murray, widow, had six children; applied frequently to relief officer; went to obtain a hearing at Board-room on the 27th December, going and returning a distance of 27 miles in sleet, storm, and rain; failed to get a hearing; went through the same painful ordeal with a like result on the 5th January, when her case was brought before the chairman by an ex-officio Guardian, who mentioned the fact of her having buried her child Bridget without a coffin, on Christmas Eve or night, unassisted, in a snow-storm, who died of hunger, and that her family must perish if rejected. The chairman refused all evidence though tendered, and would act only on the simple assertion of the relief officer, against whom he had just then heard the foregoing complaints. I may here add that this poor widow could only reach home, when she found her son Michael dead from hunger on the following day, aged 12 years. This child was seen by the Protestant and Catholic clergymen, the doctor, and officer of police; and they can affirm a more frightful, humiliating spectacle of hunger and suffering never yet has been surpassed in Mayo. The relieving officer was here again called upon by the said ex-officio Guardian to administer to the urgent wants of the survivors, the dead boy on its sister's back before him, and his reply was, "I won't."

2nd. Francis M'Namara applied often, and for the last time on the 1st January to relief officer, at his (the officer's) house, from whence he wandered forth to the open field, where he laid down his body to the land and laws, and soul to the Judge of all.

The coroner held an inquest on this man, and the facts are sickening, in which it appears his family, except one, died for want of food.

3rd. Daniel Ruane, Rosskeane, a cripple, in extreme destitution, with wife and two children, went through the form of application to the relief officers on the 1st January, and after attended the Board on the 5th January; going and returning (not being the owner of jaunting cars), though miserably disabled, a distance of 30 miles—got no hearing or relief.

The machinery of the Poor Law, and its working and effects here are—that the driver on all estates (except Lord Sligo's) refuses to give a certificate to the relief officer until the applicants first throw down their cabins. The relief officers, being always under the control of the landlords, or being (as in the case of Newport electoral division) an agent or head bailiff, refuses to put on the applicant's name without such certificate unless coerced, which occurred at the meeting on the 5th instant; and then he asserts that they have land, which assertion the paid chairman takes as conclusive, and refuses to listen to any evidence to the contrary. Therefore the result is, the paid chairman, relieving officer, and driver, form one of the most arbitrary, life-destroying courts of ejectment (from which there is no appeal) ever yet established in Ireland.

January 7, 1848.

J. HILLES, Maryland, Co. Mayo.

REPLY to the above:—January 27, 1848.

1. It appears that Catherine Murray applied frequently to the relieving officer, Mr. W. Nixon, for relief, but was refused, on the ground that she held land. I examined several witnesses, and am now of opinion that this poor woman did not hold more than 20 perches of land since the month of March last; but I find that the bailiff of Sir R. Palmer, on whose estate she resided, informed the relieving officer, Mr. Nixon, that she held 2½ acres. I find that this woman and two of her children were admitted into the workhouse in September last, but only remained in it five days, leaving it at her own request. There appears no doubt that the child died of want, and I cannot exonerate the relieving officer of blame.

2. In the case of Francis M'Namara, who also died from want, there is no evidence that he applied to Mr. Nixon. Mr. Nixon states positively that he did not.

3. In the case of Daniel Ruane, there is not evidence that he applied at Mr. Nixon's house, though directed to do so by Mr. Nixon.

Westport Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—January 31, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration observations which they have received from Mr. Lynch, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, relating to the conduct of Mr. William Nixon, relieving officer for the Newport district of the Westport Union, from which it appears that he placed his river keeper, or fish protector, on the relief list upon the 22nd December, at a time when that man had in his possession a cow and two heifers.

In reference thereto I am directed to state, that after such a violation of the relieving officer's trust, and the evidence of his neglect in the case of Catherine Murray, the Commissioners must request the Vice-Guardians to appoint a person in his room, and the Commissioners will immediately issue an order for his dismissal.

MR. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 12, 1848.

IN making my weekly report to the Poor Law Commissioners, I regret to have to inform them of the death of Mr. Henry Roe, the master of the Union workhouse. He died on Sunday, the 9th instant, from the effects of fever, after an illness of 14 days. His loss will be seriously felt in the present state of the Union. The Vice-Guardians have fixed the 26th instant for the election of his successor, and have given directions to have the usual advertisements published.

I attended the Board of Vice-Guardians yesterday and to-day. The number of cases brought before them was much smaller than usual, as the relieving officers had received directions at the former meeting, to devote their time more to the revision of the lists, with a view of removing any parties who might have been improperly entered for out-door relief, than in investigating the claims of new applicants; this the relieving officers appear to have done most satisfactorily. Several persons have been removed from the list, while others of the really destitute class have been put on. The lists have in this way, been increased by about 600, the total number now on the out-door relief being 8400. The number admitted into the house this week, does not exceed 60, and of these, 16 were admitted provisionally after the meeting of the Board. Care shall be taken to fill the house, before any further addition is made to the out-door list; but in consequence of the death of the master, there has been some confusion in the house, and the Vice-Guardians considered it more prudent not to add to the embarrassment, by admitting a very large number of paupers on one day. There are vacancies at present for about 120.

Mr. John Londen, the collector for seven of the ten electoral divisions of this Union, attended with his books, &c., on Monday last. They were all most carefully examined by the clerk, and found quite correct. The only fault I have to find with him is that he is slow in getting in the money. He promises to use every exertion in his power, and I hope by the end of the month, he will be able to have a large sum put to the credit of the Vice-Guardians.

Sir Richard O'Donnell, who is the collector for the other three electoral divisions, neither attended nor sent in his books.

In my last report, I referred to the financial state of this Union. I am now requested by the Vice-Guardians, to point out the particular position in which they are placed before the Commissioners. Rates have been struck, which, with arrears due, amount to 8386*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*; out of this the Vice-Guardians have bound themselves to allocate 2400*l.* towards the payment of the debts contracted by the late Board. The expense of the Union, since the Vice-Guardians have taken the charge of it, amounts to 2665*l.* Of this, 1216*l.* still remains due. The weekly expense exceeds 300*l.*, while the amount of the rate collected comes to little more than half this sum. The Vice-Guardians at this moment are in debt over 1200*l.*; and if they do not receive some assistance, either from the Government or from the British Association, before their next meeting on the 18th instant, they will be compelled to discontinue the out-door relief altogether. I write fully, by this post, to the Agent of the British Association on the subject.

Mr. R. M. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 19, 1848.

Westport Union.

YESTERDAY Mr. Thomas, one of the Vice-Guardians, attended with me at the village of Mulraney, for the purpose of revising the relieving officers' books for the electoral divisions of Achill and Ballycroy. The applications continue very numerous, especially from Achill, where the poor people are abandoning their houses and land, for the purpose of availing themselves of the relief afforded under the existing law; they have, in fact, no provisions, and very few have the means to purchase food. In Ballycroy, the destitution does not appear so general, and the relieving officer reports to us, that the total number to be relieved in this division will not be more than 700 or 800; the population of 1841 was 3,611; but in Achill he can form no estimate; and he reports, that he finds much difficulty in enforcing the labour-test. We were obliged to strike off from the list over 700 persons, who had received relief the previous week, and who refused or neglected to attend the place of work fixed on by the assistant relieving officer. This example will, I have no doubt, have a very salutary effect.

To-day, I attended the meeting of the Board of Vice-Guardians in Westport, where the applicants were also very numerous; but as there were several vacancies in the house, they were enabled to give in-door relief to 150. They were also obliged to add 1,966 to the out-door list, including those put on yesterday, from Ballycroy and Achill.

The state of the house appears improved; the officers are more attentive to their several duties; the inmates are, generally speaking, kept at work; and though the number in the hospital exceeds 130, the sanitary condition of the house is, on the whole, tolerably good.

Last night's post brought me a letter from Assistant Commissary-General Cameron, enclosing a bank letter of credit for 300*l.*, which I lodged to the credit of the Vice-Guardians, for the relief of destitution in this Union, and handed their treasurer's receipt to the clerk. This sum, together with the rates collected during the week by Mr. Londen and Sir Richard O'Donnell, enabled the Vice-Guardians to discharge debts exceeding 1,000*l.*; of this sum checks were drawn for 515*l.* 6*s.* 5*d.*, to pay the contractors for meal delivered for the out-door relief. There is still a sum of about 60*l.* due to one of the contractors, who did not furnish his account; and on this day, the Vice-Guardians had to issue orders for over 25 tons of Indian meal, value 250*l.*, to keep up the out-door supply for the ensuing week; and as they will have to pay 2,400*l.* out of the current rate towards the liquidation of the old debts of the Union, and will have to support the house, and pay the salaries of the officers, &c., I do not think that they will be enabled to apply any portion of the incoming rates, to the payment of the contractors who supply the meal for the out-door recipients: it would, therefore, be well if the Vice-Guardians were informed whether they may calculate upon a continuance of assistance, from the Committee of the British Association.

The rate collectors have been more active since my last report; they have lodged over 700*l.* within the last week, and having served all the notices, and furnished several of the landlords with statements of their liabilities, as immediate lessors, there is every reason to expect a good collection during the next few weeks. The Marquess of Sligo has paid in his own rate, and a considerable sum on account of rate for which he is liable as landlord, without waiting for the bill of particulars, which is being made out by Mr. Londen; and his lordship has expressed himself most anxious, both by example and by every other means in his power, to secure the collection of the rates in this Union. Sir Richard O'Donnell is also very anxious to have the rate paid in; he has lodged nearly 200*l.* of his own rate, and has also collected 80*l.* from the poorer class of rate-payers, and would have attended on last Monday week, as required by the Vice-Guardians, but was called suddenly on business to Dublin. On Monday next both collectors are to attend with their books, when I trust they will be able to show that they have used due diligence in the collection of the rates, and the Commissioners may be assured that I shall do every thing in my power, to enforce the payment of every shilling that it is possible to collect.

Westport Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 22, 1848.

THE Commissioners are desirous of being informed whether you are able to certify, that the rate-payers of the Union will not be able to meet their liabilities, and that they are making such exertion as can reasonably be expected from them.

The Commissioners also request, that you will be so good as to report specially on the following points:—

1st. What is the sum total of the poor-rates paid in the Westport Union, since the Vice-Guardians were appointed, and to how many shillings in the pound on the net annual value, does it amount?

2nd. What is the obstacle for the rate being collected? Is it that there is negligence or dishonesty in the collectors or rate-payers? Is it that the crops have failed? Are the means of the proprietors and occupiers exhausted, or likely soon to be exhausted? And if so, how is this proved?

MR. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 27, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 22nd instant, and in reply I beg leave to state, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that I am of opinion that the great majority of the rate-payers of this Union will be able to pay the present rate. I have further to add, that I think the collectors are making as much exertion as can reasonably be expected from them.

The sum total of poor rate paid in the Union of Westport, since the appointment of the Vice-Guardians is 1834*l.* 18*s.* 5*d.*, and this amounts to nearly one shilling in the pound on the net annual value of the rateable property in the Union.

There does not appear to me to be any obstacle to the collection of the rate; but, as there are but two collectors for this very extensive Union, there is of necessity some delay, and considerable difficulty in collecting a sum which is very large, as compared with the poverty of the district.

I attended the meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians on the 25th and 26th; the number of applicants for relief still continue to be very numerous, and of a class who exhibit the greatest destitution; and amongst them I am sorry to find several persons who had hitherto been holders of small quantities of land, but who have been compelled to give it up, to entitle themselves and their families to relief; of this class we had a large number from Clare Island. The number admitted this week into the workhouse was 80, and the number put on the out-door relief list amounted to 3294.

The expenses of the Union are daily increasing, and it is quite impossible that the rates can be collected fast enough to meet the demands on the Vice-Guardians; it therefore becomes absolutely necessary that further assistance should be afforded to them, for in the present embarrassed state of the Union, it cannot be expected that the contractors for food will be willing to give credit to any large amount. The Vice-Guardians had no funds at their disposal this week, to pay for the meal given to those on the out-door relief, being obliged to allocate the small sum in their treasurer's hands to the payment of some of the old debts, in pursuance of the agreement entered into with the creditors.

Yesterday was the day fixed on for the election of a master in the place of the late Mr. Henry Roe; only two candidates appeared, and as neither appeared qualified for the situation, the election was postponed to Wednesday next, the 2nd February.

REPLY to the above:—January 31, 1848.

UNDER the circumstances stated by you, the Commissioners have applied for the advance of another sum of 300*l.* to Westport Union.

At the same time, the Commissioners are anxious to draw your attention to the second series of questions contained in the Commissioners' letter of the 22nd instant, namely—

What is the obstacle to the rate being collected? Is it that there is negligence or dishonesty in collectors or rate-payers? Is it that the crops have failed? Are the means of the proprietors and occupiers exhausted, or likely soon to be exhausted? And if so, how is this proved?

Before the Commissioners enter on a course of advance to any Union, they are anxious that these questions should be fully and distinctly answered.

Westport Union.

They observe that, in your opinion the number of collectors in the Union is too small. This will be a material point for consideration when a new rate is to be struck; but the Commissioners are still desirous of calling your special attention to all the other questions contained in their letter of the 22nd instant.

The Commissioners are much gratified by the support which the Marquess of Sligo has given to the collection of the rates in Westport Union, both by his example and influence. But independently of the rates paid by his lordship and Sir R. O'Donnell, no less a sum than 655*l.* remains uncollected; and the Commissioners wish to know who are the parties owing that rate, whether they are chiefly occupiers or immediate lessors, and why it is that either the one or the other parties have not paid the sums due from them.

OBSERVATIONS of Mr. R. M. LYNCH on a communication from the Rev. Thomas Hardiman, R. C. Pastor, Killmeena, relating to the cases of poor persons in the Westport Union, whose landlords refuse to receive possession of their holdings without they also surrender their cabins:—January 28, 1848.

THE Vice-Guardians are guided in all cases by the report made to them by the relieving officer, as to whether the applicant for relief is in the occupation of more than a quarter of an acre of land or not, but the relieving officer is often placed in a difficult position by finding the applicant in possession of the house, and being told by the applicant that he has surrendered the land; in such cases the relieving officer requires the evidence of the landlord or his agent, that such is the fact, and the landlords and agents very seldom take up the land without at the same time getting possession of the house.

THE COMMISSIONERS to Mr. R. M. LYNCH:—February 8, 1848.

WITH reference to your observations on a communication from the Rev. Thomas Hardiman, relating to the case of poor persons in the Westport Union whose landlords refuse to receive possession of their holdings without they also surrender their cabins, I am to state that the Commissioners have informed the Vice-Guardians that according to the Commissioners' views of the 10th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, it is merely the occupation or non-occupation of a quarter of an acre of land which is made a criterion of destitution, provided that an applicant for relief may otherwise be deemed entitled to it.

Hence the Vice-Guardians, as far as that clause is concerned, are warranted in relieving anybody who is not in such occupation; and they are not bound to investigate title at all, or to ascertain whether the tenant's interest has been legally determined by surrender or otherwise.

MR. LYNCH to the COMMISSIONERS: February 2, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 31st January, in which you state that the Poor Law Commissioners are anxious to draw my attention to the 2nd series of questions contained in their letter of the 22nd January, and in reply to those questions I have to make the following answers:—

There is no insuperable obstacle to the rate being collected.

There does not appear to be negligence or dishonesty in collectors.

There appears to be some negligence on the part of the rate-payers, who are able, and who have not as yet paid their rate. The collectors have summoned several hundreds of them, and will, I have no doubt, enforce the payment, but the course of law is generally tedious.

I do not think that the failure of the crops can be relied on as an excuse for non-payment.

The means of the proprietors and occupiers are not, generally speaking, exhausted, or likely soon to be exhausted.

The collectors are using every means in their power to collect the rate; they have summoned several hundreds of defaulters; and in most cases which have been heard they have obtained decrees. There has been some delay in making out and furnishing the several landlords with the particulars for which they are liable as the immediate lessors; and I have directed the collectors to use every effort in their power to obtain the rate by the ordinary powers of the law, before they apply to the Vice-Guardians for advice. Sir Richard O'Donnell reported to me to-day that there are but two individuals, viz., James Hillas, esq., J.P., and Charles M'Donnell, esq., whose rate exceeds 5*l.*, and who have not paid. He states that he will at once take legal proceedings against these two gentlemen. In Mr. Londen's district, there is a sum of about 1600*l.* still due in large sums. He is directed to serve the regular notice on the defaulters, and if the sum due by them are not immediately paid, legal proceedings will be taken against them by the collector, or the circumstances of their refusal placed before the Board of Vice-Guardians for their special advice. The collectors have lodged since this day week a sum of 550*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*; and the Commissioners may rest satisfied that every effort shall be made to enforce the collection throughout the Union.

This evening's post brought me a remittance of 300*l.* for the credit of the Vice-Guardians, being the amount of a grant from the British Association, which, added to the 550*l.* collected during the last week, enabled the Vice-Guardians to discharge debts to the amount of 847*l.* 2*s.* 11*d.* Of this sum, 515*l.* 14*s.* was paid on account of the old debts of the late Board of Guardians, and 331*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.* on account of the current expenses of the Union. They still owe a large sum, and will require a weekly remittance to enable them to meet the heavy expenses of the in-door and out-door relief. Had the Vice-Guardians not been called on to give out-door relief; they would have been able to defray the expenses of the workhouse, and pay off a considerable portion of the old debt out of the incoming rate; but the out-door relief has quadrupled their estimated expenditure, and it is therefore that they are obliged to look to other sources to meet the present liabilities of the Union.

The applications for relief continue numerous. Yesterday and to-day the Vice-Guardians put 2390 additional names on the out-door list, admitting 21 only into the house; and they had to issue orders on the contractors for 40½ tons of Indian meal, value over 400*l.* In proportion to the population, the number from Newport, Achill, and Clare Island, appears much greater than from any other district in the Union. The relieving officers for these divisions have reported to the Vice-Guardians that several of the small landholders have been obliged to give up their land to entitle themselves to relief.

I beg leave to remind the Commissioners that the order for out-door relief in this Union will expire on the 7th instant, it will therefore be necessary to issue a fresh authority for its continuance, before the next meeting of the Board on the 8th instant.

REPLY to the above:—February 5, 1848.

AN application has been made to Count Strzelecki for a further advance of 200*l.*, to enable the Vice-Guardians to continue the relief of the destitute poor in the Union.

I am at the same time to state, that previous to the receipt of your report, instructions had been given for the renewal of the out-door relief order in the Westport Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 2, 1848.

WE have the honour to inform you that since our last Board-day, 26th of January last, the sum of 550*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.* has been lodged by the collectors to our credit, as paid officers of this Union; and we have received from Mr. Lynch, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, 300*l.*, as a grant from the British Association, in aid of the relief of the destitute poor in this Union; out of which sums we have paid 515*l.* 14*s.* in liquidation of a part of the old debts and 331*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.* towards the current expenses of the Union. We have reason to believe that the collection would have been much larger from the northern electoral divisions, but for the subjoined statement of facts.

Sir Richard O'Donnell, one of our collectors, this day stated to us that he had 200 cases against defaulting ratepayers entered for adjudication at the petty sessions held yesterday at Newport; but that when the first case was called on, Mr. Hillas, one of the magistrates in attendance, delayed the proceedings by objections and harangues for about three hours; and then, taking out his watch, said the hour was then too late to proceed, and adjourned the Court for a fortnight. It would appear that the object of this gentleman was to delay, if not defeat, the ends of justice; the more particularly, as we have been informed, he has not paid his own rates, and has given the collector much opposition and annoyance. We therefore take the liberty of submitting for your consideration, whether it may not be desirable to secure the attendance of the stipendiary magistrate at the adjourned sessions. We requested Sir Richard O'Donnell to lay a statement in writing before the Board; but whilst engaged in doing so, he had to hasten to lodge the amount of his collection before the bank closed, and did not afterwards finish his report; but the chairman has written to request that he will transmit it to you.

Westport Union.

We also take the liberty to state, that your order for out-door relief in this Union will expire on the 7th instant.

REPLY to the above:—February 4, 1848.

THE Commissioners will communicate with the Government with regard to your suggestion, that a stipendiary magistrate should attend at the petty sessions at Newport.

I am at the same time to request, that you will have the goodness to report to the Commissioners, as to the reasons why the proceedings against the magistrate to whom you refer, with a view to the enforcement of the payment of the rate due by him, has not been successful, and what proceedings are now pending to enforce obedience to the law in this instance.

Instructions have already been given for the renewal of the order authorizing you to afford out-door relief to the able-bodied poor in the Westport Union.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 16, 1847.

SINCE my last report on the proceedings of the Tralee Board of Guardians, I have the honour to inform you that several extraordinary meetings have been held, for the purpose of examining into the case of the applicants for out-door relief.

The pressure on the Board was so severe, that they were compelled to meet on Friday, Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, besides Tuesday, their ordinary day of meeting, and on each of these days they divided themselves into committees, and sat in different parts of the house; but, notwithstanding this energetic mode of endeavouring to meet the destitution, the applicants only of 6 out of 18 electoral divisions, have been fully heard, and their cases decided upon.

I have not yet had time to ascertain how many persons in each electoral division, have been ordered out-door relief, nor the proportion which they bear to the population; but as soon as I have compiled this statistical information, I will not fail to acquaint you with the result.

This extraordinary pressure of duty which has thus fallen on the Board of Guardians, and their inability, as yet, to contend with it, have naturally turned their attention to the best mode of relieving themselves of so heavy a burden, and a considerable feeling exists that this Union is double the size which it should be, and that it would be desirable to have it divided, and another workhouse established at Dingle.

Colonel Stokes, an active and intelligent member of the Board, has given notice of his intention to bring forward a resolution to that effect. Any remark which I may have to make, I will reserve until the matter has been discussed; but in the mean time, I may bear witness to the extreme hardship in compelling the inhabitants of Dunquin, Dunorlen, and Ventry, to travel to Tralee, a distance of 35 miles, with the hope, that possibly there may be room for them in the workhouse, but most probably only to be disappointed, with the same distance to return in their exhausted condition.

The Commissioners will perceive, by another resolution, that the Board are desirous of hiring a house for the accommodation of the children in the workhouse. If they should succeed in being able to procure one, it will prove a considerable relief to the pressure; but I feel satisfied that further accommodation will yet be required.

The attention of the Board was also drawn to the collection of the rates, and the names of several of the highest defaulters were laid before the Board; and the Board directed the collectors, in the most peremptory manner, to collect their rates, and further passed a resolution, that on the 24th of February, that they would require that the whole of the present rates should be collected, and that the collectors should be held responsible.

The attention of the Board was also drawn to the accounts of each electoral division, with the view of ascertaining weekly, whether such division was in debt, or in credit, with the house, and the clerk was directed to furnish accounts in such a manner.

On this day the proceedings were again interrupted by a large mob, armed with bludgeons, who broke into the house, notwithstanding the resistance of six policemen. Fortunately a large number of the Guardians were present, and went to the assistance of the police, and secured the ringleaders. It was, however, deemed advisable to send for the military, and a further resolution was passed, requiring their presence on every Board-day.

In giving this account of the past week's proceedings, I must bear witness to the excellent manner in which the Guardians are endeavouring to do their duty.

The Commissioners will see that even Sunday gave them no relief from their labours; and their moral firmness in forcing on the collection of the rates, and personal courage in assisting the police on this day, deserve high commendation.

REPLY to the foregoing :—November 20, 1847.

Tralee Union.

IN regard to the proposal to establish another workhouse at Dingle, I am to forward to you the accompanying correspondence which took place last year on the subject, from which you will perceive that the project of providing a workhouse at Dingle has been favourably entertained by the Commissioners, but that it was abandoned by the Guardians owing to the financial embarrassments under which the Union at that time laboured.

You will be good enough to return the correspondence when perused.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 18, 1847.

THE Tralee Board of Guardians have already made an application to you that two districts may be formed under the 6th section 10 Vict., cap. 31, the one at Dingle, and the other at Castleisland, for the more effectual relief of the destitute in these parts.

My attention has in the meantime, been directed as to the manner in which these Committees are to perform their duty, and I have been making inquiries as to the probable results of this measure, from the most respectable residents in those parts.

The people of Dingle, and of the electoral divisions which are to form that district, are represented to me to be in the most deplorable condition, quiet and resigned to their apparently helpless fate.

The elected Guardians who are to form the Committee of that district are represented not at all capable of the burden about to be thrown upon them, and extremely likely to prevent the relief about to be sent there, from its legitimate end. It has been represented to me that it would be advisable to have paid Guardians to do their work, to which, however, I would not listen.

Thus it appears that the great difficulty is not in relieving the people of that district, but in providing a body of men as a medium through whom the relief is to be given; and if the Guardians of that district are to be compelled to do their duty, compelled by being formed into a Committee, and the poor thrown immediately upon them, it appears to me advisable that some stringent regulations should be drawn up for their guidance, which would prevent them squandering either the funds of the Union or the relief which the British Association may ultimately entrust them with; and although it may be said that such a Committee could not act independently of the Board of Guardians to whom they must resort, yet the Board of Guardians, sitting 35 miles off, although perfectly persuaded abuses are going on, would find it almost impossible efficiently to check them.

The line of policy which I would adopt with these Committees would be as follows, provided it met your sanction :—

The clerk of the Union should submit a statement weekly, of the available funds of each electoral division, reserving sufficient to pay its share of the expenses of the house.

A copy of this weekly statement should be forwarded to the Committee, with an intimation that the Board of Guardians would in no case, encounter liabilities beyond that amount for any electoral division.

When that sum of money had been expended, and the whole of the present rate collected, a fresh rate should be struck; and until such rate had been struck, the British Association should not grant relief.

The British Association to grant a weekly allowance for a limited time to such electoral division, until the proceeds of the new rate could be brought into operation.

The Commissioners will see that the end of these proposed regulations is to clearly show to each Committee that the funds of each electoral division cannot be overdrawn, for I see nothing but confusion if these Committees were to be allowed to be under the impression that the Union was bound, even for a limited period, to advance them money or rather incur liabilities beyond their balances for their wants.

I think we must trust to the pressure of public opinion, that such relief, limited, and scanty as it will be, is devoted only to the really destitute.

I beg to apologize for the liberty I am taking in submitting these propositions to you, but I feel it so important that these Committees should be placed on a proper footing, that I thought it best to acquaint you immediately, with my views on the subject rather than to incur delay.

Tralee Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—November 20, 1847.

THE Commissioners desire to call your special attention to the fact that the Committees, under the 6th section, have no power to order relief. Their functions are merely “to receive, applications of poor persons requiring relief in their district, to examine into the cases of such poor persons, and to report to the Guardians thereon.”

With regard to the proposal respecting the finances of the electoral divisions of the Dingle district, the Commissioners wish to remark that it is contrary to the policy of the law, the object of which is to give the whole Board of Guardians a direct interest in compelling the rate-payers of each electoral division to pay their rates. If destitute persons in an electoral division were not relieved by the Guardians, because there were no funds forthcoming from that electoral division, the tendency of such a course would be to make the Guardians of the rest of the Union comparatively indifferent as to whether the rates were collected for that division. Whereas now they have all a direct interest that every division of the Union without exception, should do its duty in this respect.

The Commissioners wish you to attend the Committee at Dingle, as often as is compatible with your other arrangements.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 23, 1847.

THE Board of Guardians held their usual meeting on this day at the workhouse, and the presence of a large mob of unemployed labourers forced upon them the necessity of taking steps to enlarge their house.

During the latter part of the preceding week I had, with that view, made a careful examination of the workhouse, and the measures which I recommended them to adopt, subject to your sanction, were as follows:—

- 1st. The hiring of a house for the children, upwards of 500 in number.
- 2nd. The converting the present day-rooms into dormitories, and converting the present school-rooms into day-rooms.

Remarks.—The present day-rooms are not large enough, but the two school-rooms would make very superior day-rooms.

- 3rd. The building up of the virandahs at the back of the hospital, and forming them into two dormitories; the increased size of the new day-rooms renders these virandahs less required than formerly.
- 4th. Foreseeing a further demand for accommodation, I recommended the Board to apply for permission, to convert the present hospital into a portion of the workhouse, and hire a building for a new hospital.

Remarks.—It is right that I should mention, that the medical officer disapproves of this arrangement, but I cannot understand on what grounds; I have frequently seen military hospitals at a considerable distance from the barracks, and during last summer I never heard of any case of fever being aggravated by the removal of the sufferer, perhaps for some miles to the fever hospital.

There are two probationary wards which are never used, the other two having been found ample; these I proposed to use in case of any sudden infectious illness, separating immediately the sufferer from the other inmates until he could be removed to the hospital.

- 5th. Further, I proposed hiring a house calculated to hold about 500 adults, and moving, if necessary, all the women from the house and placing them therein.

My object in proposing this, was to keep up the discipline of the workhouse on the men, and reserving the workhouse for them would dispense with the entire female staff, which could be transferred with the women, to the new establishment; whereas if the new establishment were to hold men and women, a great deal of difficulty would arise in separating them, and a double staff, both male and female, would be required.

I calculate the workhouse thus appropriated, would hold about 1200 adults, who would be all able-bodied labourers, their wives and children being in hired houses.

I can assure the Commissioners, that the pressure is becoming so severe as to require these energetic steps; 40,000 rations were issued in this Union under the Temporary Relief Act; and supposing that we can accommodate 3000 in buildings, and distribute relief to 7000 infirm and widows, still our relief would only be one-quarter of what it was last spring.

A select Committee was appointed to take these proposals into consideration, and they were to report to the Board next Saturday.

May I, therefore, request an answer by return of post, which will reach me in time for their meeting.

An order exists limiting this workhouse to 1000 persons; but if the Commissioners approve of the above arrangements that order would be annulled.

The other resolutions of the Board require no further explanation.

REPLY to the above:—November 25, 1847.

THE Commissioners approve generally, of your recommendations in reference to the extension of the workhouse accommodation in the Tralee Union, which are fully in accordance with the views expressed in the Commissioners' Circular of the 26th August last, and they will give the Guardians every assistance in their power, in carrying your recommendations into effect.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 28, 1847.

THE various reports which I have had the honour of forwarding to you, will have shown you the increasing pressure of destitution in this Union; and I am sorry to say that I see no reason to believe that it will not yet increase in a greater ratio, as the winter season advances.

I have thought it therefore my duty to consider, beforehand, the different measures which we should adopt consecutively to meet this evil, and to lay them before you in order to obtain your approval, so that if they proved necessary there should be no delay.

You have already approved generally of our plans, for making the workhouse test as available as possible, by using the workhouse and the hospital for able-bodied men only, and hiring separate buildings for the women and children.

I have had a careful measurement made of the house and hospital, and find that they would hold about 1180 able-bodied men, without decreasing the number of cubic feet of air, which each individual would have had according to the original plan of the workhouse.

We may consider therefore, that hired buildings to hold about 1800 women and children will be required.

On a careful estimate of the expense of hiring and altering the buildings, fitting them with cooking apparatus, buying increased bedding and clothing, and increased staff, I do not think the additional expense of their outfit will be under 25s. a-head for each individual so accommodated, or about 2,300% of immediate outlay, irrespective of the daily sustenance of the increased numbers.

I should doubt if it were wise to carry this system any further, or if the finances of the Union would at all bear it; and if it were determined to carry it further, buildings must be hired to hold the men as well as their families, and the difficulty in such cases of separating the sexes, and preserving proper discipline in buildings never intended for such a purpose, seems to me almost insuperable; and it is quite obvious unless the proper discipline is kept up, and order and cleanliness enforced, these hired buildings will not only fail as workhouse tests, but become seats of disorder, profligacy, and disease.

In the correspondence on the subject of making the Dingle district into a separate Union, which you did me the honour of sending for my perusal, I perceive Mr. Hancock sees the same objections in hiring buildings for independent workhouses.

Supposing then that we limited our workhouse accommodation to 1,180 able-bodied in the house, and provided for their wives, families, and sick outside, and still fresh applicants pressed upon us, which I consider very probable, I don't know on what ground the Board of Guardians or I, would be justified in delaying to represent, that the necessity has arisen for out-door relief to the able-bodied.

Yet I am satisfied that no measure could be more ruinous to the Union, or to the poor themselves that this. The pressure on the relieving officers, severe as it now is, would become such that it would be impossible for them even to endeavour to do their duty. All the available funds would be squandered instantly, and the present relief within the house, scanty as it may be, yet sure, and given to the really destitute, would be in a moment brought to an end.

I do not think anything could induce me to recommend such a course.

The difficulties of the subject forcing themselves on the attention of the Board of Guardians, induced them to recommend public works being resumed.

I need scarcely say my former experience of them, as an Inspecting officer, under the Board of Works, would make me a decided opponent of such a measure.

Yet I confess I have considered whether in the most distressed electoral divisions, meal could not be supplied by the British Association, through a different machinery than the relieving officers (they having already more to do than they can manage), to the destitute able-bodied, who should be compelled to work five or six hours a day in completing some of the unfinished public works. I saw this system pursued, under an energetic Secretary of a Relief Committee with great advantage, in Wicklow.

Yet its disadvantages are obvious, as it prevents the landowners and holders from seeing the necessity of giving employment themselves. It requires men of great firmness and energy to carry out, and unless rigidly carried out, it is apt to degenerate into a farce; and if it becomes a farce, it draws the people away from their legitimate pursuits, the fisherman from fishing, and the husbandman from cultivating, and merely at a great expense, staves off the evil of this year to the next.

The British Association have commenced a very admirable system of relief, in feeding the children who attend schools, between the ages of 6 and 14. 200*l.* has been sent down to me for that purpose, and I enclose a copy of the regulations under which this relief is given.

On a careful examination of the census of these counties, I find one quarter of the whole population is between the ages of 6 and 15. Thus it is clear we have the means of increasing this mode of relief in distressed districts, to a very large extent.

Children are already, on hearing of this, flocking into the schools, so that I shall have serious difficulty in preventing them from being over-crowded.

I would, beg, therefore, to submit to the attention of Her Majesty's Government that in distressed districts, the number of National schools should be immediately increased. I have no doubt many public rooms could be obtained free of all cost, or if not, chapels and churches would be willingly lent on week days. Children who chose to attend should, during the winter season, be fed by the British Association.

I repeat, I consider in distressed districts we should feed certainly one-sixth of the population; we should not only not interfere with the Poor Law, but act auxiliary to it, by indirectly relieving the pressure which threatens to crush it.

We should still compel the landlords and landholders to employ the able-bodied, or that they should be fed at their expense, and still compel the able-bodied willingly to seek for employment, and at the same time afford relief to almost every poor family in a district, and in proportion to the number in that family, and rescue the weakest and most unoffending portion of the population from the fate which at present threatens to overwhelm them, and make them useful and intelligent members of society.

ENCLOSURE in foregoing:—November 26, 1847.

Tralee Union.

THE delay attendant upon the building of ovens and procuring rye-meal, in order to make rye bread, has induced the British Association to sanction the use of Indian meal stirabout in the school of this Union.

Arrangements are in progress, by which I trust, that relief may be speedily afforded; but it must be understood that it can only be on the following conditions, which the British Association have prescribed:—

1. That the bounty of the Association is not to be perverted into a means of proselytism.

2. That each child shall receive the prescribed ration, on condition that he or she attends the school regularly, and remains during school-hours.

3. That a registry of attendance, and of the duration of the attendance of the children each day, be kept by the schoolmaster or schoolmistress, and a return of the same forwarded to me.

4. That the rations, each consisting of three quarters of a pound of meal made into stirabout, and divided into two or three meals as most convenient, shall only be allowed to male children, between the ages of 6 and 12 years, and female children between the ages of 6 and 14 years.

5. That a trough of water, and towels and combs, be provided in a convenient place; and that each child shall be required to wash its face and hands before partaking of the ration.

6. That on no account shall any child be permitted to take any food from the school.

7. That the female children be employed in knitting, and the boys in making nets, as often as their scholastic duties will permit.

8. That the elder children shall be employed in making the stirabout, under the superintendence of the schoolmaster and schoolmistress.

You will understand that the above regulations are imposed by the British Association, as the conditions on which relief should be afforded; and that if any of them require, in your opinion, modification, it will be your duty to obtain my sanction for their change; and that any infringement of them which may not have been sanctioned by me, will cause the withdrawal of further aid from the Association.

The following are the arrangements by which the above relief will be carried out:—

1. Only one week's consumption of meal will be supplied at a time. The week will commence on Monday inclusive, and end on the following Sunday.

2. At the commencement of the first week, you will send either to me or to Mr. Dee, Inspector of Schools (as will be explained hereafter), an estimate of the number of rations required for your school, for the ensuing week. Books of estimates, with counter parts to be retained by you, will be supplied for that purpose by me.

3. On my receiving the estimate and approving of it, an order for the required amount of Indian meal will be transmitted to you, on any of the undermentioned merchants or storekeepers, whom you may name in your estimate. These arrangements are not completed at present, but five depôts will be established in this Union; on your presenting, or having the above order presented, the quantity of Indian meal named therein will be given to you.

4. No charge for the carriage of meal to the school will be allowed; the stores have been named in the most convenient parts of the Union, and it is conceived that a little management on your part, would enable it to be brought to you by the farmers, on going or returning from market, free of all cost.

5. No charge will be allowed for the purchase of a boiler; as it is presumed that the boilers at present in the hands of the several committees or charitable associations would, on your application, be placed at your disposal.

6. The sum of 2*l.* will be placed in your hands to liquidate the expense of setting the boilers up, and purchasing, if necessary, the usual cooking utensils, the trough for water, and the towels before mentioned. Any surplus which may be over, to be employed in purchasing fuel and in postage; and when the money is expended, an account of the expenditure to be tendered to me.

7. On your commencing to issue the rations, the daily register before alluded to must be kept. The register will show the hours each child attended per diem, and the number of rations supplied to it per week. The total number of rations supplied to all the children per week, will be obtained by addition, which will show the actual weekly expenditure of meal. Forms for this purpose will be supplied to you.

8. On your forwarding the estimate for the second week, the register of the first must also accompany it; so that before receiving an order for any additional quantity, the quantity already supplied will have to be accounted for.

9. The estimates for each week, with the corresponding register of the first, should be forwarded by post on Saturday, and on Monday you may expect the required order; an intelligent boy from each school, should be sent with and for the requisite letters.

10. The forms for the estimates and registry of attendance, will be forwarded to you as early as possible; full instructions for their use will be printed upon them.

11. I have further to request of you, that you allow the school, in no case to be overcrowded, so as either to render disease liable to be engendered, or to prevent the usual regularity or discipline. Amongst the numerous applicants which you may have, I have to request that the preference may be given to the poor orphan, or to those whose parents are known to be unable to prevent them from starving.

12. The estimates, registry, and other documents connected with this charity are to be considered as public, and should be laid before any visitor entering the school.

13. The master or managers of the national schools will forward all estimates and documents of all kinds to Mr. Dee, Inspector of Schools, who has been kind enough to say that he will examine them before they come into my hands; and the masters and managers of all other schools will forward their reports direct to me.

14. Finally, it must be distinctly understood that the means placed at my disposal, are exceedingly limited, and that those schools which are situated in the most distressed districts will always obtain a preference. The task of apportioning the relief amongst numerous applicants, all of them distressed, though in different degrees, must be invidious and seldom can give satisfaction; but while I shall be ready at all times to hear the different claims of the different schools and localities, and to decide according to the best of my judgment, I trust they will remember that in such cases there must be an arbitrator, and as long as he endeavours to perform his duty, it is equally their duty to support him and to respect the decision he may arrive at.

REPLY to the above:—December 4, 1847.

IN reference to that part of your report which relates to the relief afforded by the British Association to children attending schools in the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners are desirous that relief should be given to the utmost reasonable extent to children in the Union, in the manner pointed out by you; but at the same time, as the expenditure of the funds is not under the control of the Guardians, the Commissioners do not deem it within their province, as a public Board, to offer any opinion on the regulations as long as they do not interfere with the proper working of the new Irish Poor Law.

The Commissioners deem it desirable that you should communicate direct with Count Strzelecki respecting the increasing the number of the schools. At the same time, in order to prevent loss of time, the Commissioners have forwarded to the Count a copy of your remarks on the subject.

In reference to your remarks on the difficulties which will attend the administration of out-door relief to the able-bodied in your Union, the Commissioners desire to state that they are fully sensible that those difficulties are of no common magnitude; but at the same time, they may be in some degree surmounted by energy and intelligence on the part of the Guardians. The Commissioners do not contemplate the granting any out-relief to able-bodied men, without some test; and the Commissioners forward for your information a copy of the conditions on which alone such relief is to be given. At the same time the Commissioners will be fully prepared to increase the number of relieving officers to any extent which you may recommend; and by thus uniting close inspection with a test of destitution, as much will be done as the inherent difficulties of granting out-relief to able-bodied men will permit.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 30, 1847.

Tralee Union.

THE usual meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union took place, this day.

Colonel Stokes brought forward the resolution he had given notice of, for dividing the Union into two, which after considerable discussion was agreed to.

The furnishing of funds to build a workhouse at Dingle, is the real difficulty of this question.

The Guardians are in hopes, that the Government may entertain a favourable view of their case and grant them pecuniary aid, and involved as they are in enormous expenses, with the uncertainty hanging over them as to the intentions of the Government about the repayment of the advances under the Temporary Relief Act, I should doubt very much the prudence of their involving themselves in so heavy an expenditure, however necessary such an expenditure might be.

I also doubt the possibility of their obtaining any large loans from private bodies or individuals, under their present circumstances.

It would be also absurd their thinking of borrowing from the Government, as they have not paid off any of the original loans for building their house.

Under these circumstances, I recommend this case to the favourable consideration of the Government.

A workhouse at Dingle is positively necessary ; humanity and the notorious insufficiency of the present accommodation require it. It is also necessary that the Union should be divided, as it is perfectly impossible for the Board of Guardians at Tralee to get through all the work on their hands. I may mention that to-day, although we had a very efficient Chairman, we were compelled to separate without examining or signing a single relieving officer's Application Book ; and we cannot expect that Guardians, sometimes farmers, or men in trade, will spare time to come in 36 miles to attend to their Poor Law duties.

I think if the Government would, in such a case, grant an equal sum to that advanced by the Guardians, they would render considerable encouragement to Unions desirous of performing their duty.

We had, as usual, a large mob outside the house, who threw several stones through the windows, and when I left the house they had not dispersed.

The Board then adjourned until to-morrow, in order, finally, to make arrangements for the hire of a large building to be formed into an auxiliary workhouse, capable of holding 800 persons ; Mr. Wilkinson has examined it, and given us his valuable advice.

Two thousand and two hundred persons were returned from 12 electoral divisions as receiving out-door relief, and as returns from six others had not come in, we may estimate the number in the whole Union at 3100, or about $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. of the whole population.

I am requested by the Board of Guardians, to accept your offer of a French hand-mill to grind corn.

REPLY to the above :—December 4, 1847.

THE Commissioners are in communication with the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury respecting the erection of a workhouse at Dingle.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 4, 1847,

WITH reference to the Act 10 Vic., cap. 31, section 2, I should be obliged to you if you would inform me whether you consider the responsibility devolves upon me or upon the Board of Guardians, of making the report (if requisite) "that adequate accommodation cannot be afforded to the destitute "by reason of want of room in the workhouse," with a view that out-door relief to the able-bodied may be sanctioned.

Tralee Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—December 6, 1847.

I AM to inform you that it is your duty, as well as that of the Board of Guardians, to make the report to which you advert, when it becomes necessary to do so.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 7, 1847.

I ATTENDED the ordinary meeting of the Poor Law Guardians this day. The minutes of the proceedings will show the business done. The appointment of a Finance Committee generally to superintend the accounts connected with the out-door relief, was made at my suggestion.

Although I believe that this will be found to be a good measure, yet a great deal of difficulty will still exist on that head.

Some of the relieving officers' districts are 30 miles off, and it is all the officers can do to arrive at the workhouse at 12 o'clock on the Board-day; nevertheless the accounts of all their electoral divisions (18 in number) have to be audited before night, in the midst of all the confusion.

These relieving officers are compelled to lose two days in the week, in travelling to and from the Board, a third day in attending the Committee of Guardians in their district, and have only three days left to issue the weekly allowances to paupers, and receive and examine into all cases of application.

The extreme size of this Union renders their duties very severe, and puts them to considerable expense. Two are threatening to resign.

A case was reported to-day of the able-bodied in one district, seizing the supplies intended for the infirm and widows. The Board have, therefore, thought it more prudent that the relieving officers should give checks for meal on the contractors, rather than run the risk of a breach of the peace in distributing it themselves.

I do not know that there was more confusion to-day than on any former day, but as usual there was a great deal. The attention of the Guardians is also constantly diverted from the relief of the poor, by appeals and complaints of different parties about their rates being collected. To-day, we had a case of land let in such an intricate manner, that it occupied much time in ascertaining who was liable to pay the poor-rate, and this is not uncommon.

The building, which was hired in the preceding week, was so far advanced in fittings as to be able to receive the women from the workhouse. The verandahs also at the back of the hospital have been converted into dormitories; we were thus enabled to offer additional accommodation to about 300 persons.

This, however, proved nothing to what was required.

It is almost impossible to give the Commissioners an idea of the struggle which takes place, to get admission into the workhouse, or the efforts made by the several Guardians, that their electoral divisions obtain a fair share of the boon.

The buildings recently hired, when finished, will contain about 400 more, making a total workhouse accommodation for about 1800, without crowding.

The number of persons receiving out-door relief may be estimated at about 5000. The number of children fed in schools by the British Association may be estimated at 2300.

Total number fed gratuitously will be about 9100.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 12, 1847.

ON our last Board day the collector of poor-rates in the Dingle district stated that a large amount of rates was irrecoverable, in consequence of many of the tenantry having omitted to sow their lands this year (through poverty), and having nothing whatever which he could distrain.

I recommended the Board of Guardians not to receive any more verbal statements of that nature, but to desire the collector to make a written report of each individual case in which he could not collect the rates which were due.

I beg, however, to ask the question, supposing that his statement is true, who becomes liable for the rates on such land?

REPLY to the foregoing :—December 18, 1847.

THE occupier continues liable, and the rate can be recovered from him at any time subsequently, when there is a distress on the premises; the rate may likewise be recovered from any subsequent occupier, provided it is duly carried forward as arrear.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 12, 1847.

I BEG to request information on the following question :—

Mr. Walpole, a Poor Law Guardian and tenant farmer, is about to bring forward a resolution that it is necessary to have a re-valuation of the whole Union.

His argument is, that the rates have increased so much since the original valuation, that the net annual value of all property has diminished in a similar ratio (1 and 2 Vict. cap. 56, sec. 64).

His real reason is, that supposing the rents to remain the same, whilst the Poor Law valuation has fallen, the tenant under the same Act, section 74, would be enabled to deduct so much more from the rent of the landlord.

I believe that the landlords and agents will oppose a re-valuation for the same reasons exactly, as Mr. Walpole is anxious that a re-valuation should take place.

Mr. Roach, the valuator, is a respectable man, but a tenant farmer I believe; or certainly closely connected with the tenants in this Union. He has expressed publicly before me a strong opinion that a re-valuation should take place, and also as distinctly said, that he would reduce the valuation in proportion to the increase of poor-rates.

I should propose recommending the landlord section of the Board of Guardians to consent to a re-valuation, if a strong number of the tenant farmers thought it just.

I should recommend them to apply to the Poor Law Commissioners to appoint a valuator, in lieu of Mr. Roach, disqualified from having expressed an opinion on the subject, from holding land in the Union, and being closely connected in family with the class of tenant farmers. I should also state, that I thought it extremely desirable, if another valuation must take place, that Mr. Roach's valuation (the only one existing of this Union) should be checked by another valuator.

I should then point out to the tenant farmers, that the present valuation being generally lower than the rents paid to the most liberal landlords, it might be possible that another valuator would raise instead of lower it; and then ask them whether it is wise, at a heavy expense, to disturb the existing order of things.

I have so little experience on this most difficult subject that I am anxious to have the advice of the Commissioners as to my line of conduct.

The same arguments which Mr. Walpole has advanced must have been advanced by other parties in different parts of Ireland, and as the subject cannot be new to the Commissioners, I should be obliged to them for any information which they could afford.

REPLY to the above :—December 18, 1847.

THE Commissioners concur in the views expressed in your communication, and they will be prepared to take on themselves the appointment of a valuator, under the 7th section of 6 and 7 Vict. cap. 92, in the event of the Guardians making application for a re-valuation of the Union.

You are at liberty to inform the Guardians, should you see fit, that the Commissioners are prepared to take this course, as the one which is most likely to be satisfactory and to reconcile conflicting interests.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 14, 1847.

THE Board met punctually at 12 o'clock this day, and formed two Committees, whilst the ordinary routine duties were carried on as usual by the remaining members present, who formed the Board.

The Finance Committee undertook the examination of the bills presented for payment, and the books and accounts of the relieving officers.

Tralee Union.

Three relieving officers had their books in proper order, whilst the rest differed in a degree, varying from very bad to indifferent.

This was the first meeting of the Finance Committee under the new system, and the result will soon show a material improvement in the keeping of the books and accounts.

The other Committee examined and admitted fresh applicants for out-door relief.

The Board, in the mean time, proceeded to admit paupers into the house. There were 120 vacancies chiefly caused by the newly hired buildings receiving more of the children of the house, and here followed a scene of confusion seldom witnessed.

The paupers themselves strove in every way to rush in, whilst the Guardians made use of all their vehemence and eloquence to get as many in from their own districts as they could.

The day was far spent when this matter was arranged, and after conversation and resolutions, which appear on the minutes, the Board adjourned till to-morrow.

The principal event of the past week is the fast increasing destitution; whole districts of the country seem to have become masses of paupers. The relieving officers in two instances were plundered of their meal, and, in others, had to give some to able-bodied men to be a guard, and protect the remainder; and one relieving officer, frightened at his duty, has resigned.

I cannot conceal from myself that out-door relief to the able-bodied should be no longer delayed, but I would rather that the Commissioners delayed issuing the order for a limited period longer, in order to allow the Poor Law Guardians, who really are well inclined, to take the initiative in reporting it themselves.

In the meantime, the relief now going on is exceedingly extensive. The Guardians, in and out of the house, cannot be feeding less than 7000; and the British Association, through me, are feeding in schools 3,000. Thus 10,000 are receiving relief in a population of 90,000, but yet that really seems to have no effect.

This day I opposed the establishment of a branch house at Dingle. The Guardians have recently hired a building at Tralee, capable of holding 800, and admirably adapted in every respect for the purpose for which it is required; yet extensive alterations and repairs are necessary, and notwithstanding my daily presence, urging on the workmen, seconded by Captain Fairfield, a most active Guardian, 14 days have elapsed, and the building is only half occupied, and another 14 must elapse before the remainder will be ready for use. The expense of fitting it up and buying the necessary clothes and bedding will not be under 1000*l*.

No house at Dingle could be so favourably circumstanced, and none so closely watched by me and the Board, and if one were hired a new and untrained staff must be provided; yet these arrangements could not be completed under two months, and a vast sum of the available funds of the house would be spent on an expensive establishment.

It would be better for us to go on hiring buildings at Tralee than commence again elsewhere. My great fear in the out-of-door relief to the able-bodied, is lest the Guardians, compelled by fear, or driven on by charitable motives, should throw so much duty on the relieving officers as to crush these officers at once.

If it were legal, I would suggest that the Commissioners should limit their permission to give out-of-door relief to the able-bodied to the present inmates of the house. The effect of which would be that we should clear the house of all at present in it, and offer the house again to all applicants. If necessary, this order could again be renewed, and out-of-door relief to the able-bodied creep on, I think, in a safe and gradual manner.

We have every difficulty to contend with in carrying out the Poor Law, but chiefly the size and shape of the Union, and, secondly, the incapacity of the relieving officers; and although the Commissioners might allow us to increase their numbers, it is efficient men, and not increased numbers which we require. Then the system of Committees sitting at Dingle and Castleisland, and reporting to the Board, works but indifferently, and on the Board-days the confusion is overwhelming, so that it is almost impossible to get through business.

The collectors with their accounts, the relieving officers with theirs, the master and his accounts, deputations of clergymen and others, all crowded in a building large enough for its original purpose, but too small for this, with a mob outside, really can be more easily imagined than described.

I can assure the Commissioners my belief is, that in a Union of this kind there must be one or more paid Guardians, not to supersede the elected, but to work in conjunction with them (the same as paid magistrates sit on the same bench as unpaid), and whilst the pressure continues, to form a Board-day every day in the week; there is really work for a Board every day, and no unpaid men, having other duties, can be expected to give up the necessary time. The peculiar situation I hold as Inspector prevents me from taking an active part. My duties are limited to inspect, advise, and report. But one paid Guardian, having the confidence of the Board, and able between their sittings to hold, with their concurrence, all their power, is the person now required. The Commissioners may, however, rely on my doing all that I can to assist.

REPLY to the above:—December 18, 1847.

WITH reference to the division of the Board into Committees, one of which Committees undertook the examination of the relieving officers' books, I am to enclose, for your information, a copy of a letter addressed to the Board of Guardians of the Tipperary Union, which contains the Commissioners' views in regard to the appointment of such Committees.

In reference to your statement of the destitution at present existing in the Union, the Commissioners have deemed it right to issue an Order, authorizing out-door relief in food to the following classes:—

1. Widows with one child dependent on them respectively.
2. Children whose parents are both dead.
3. Able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families, dependent on them for support, are affected by severe sickness or serious accident.

As regards your suggestion, that there should be one or more paid Guardians, not to supersede, but to work in conjunction with the present Board, I am to state that the proposition could not be carried into effect in the present state of the law.

ENCLOSURE.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS:—October 8, 1847.

WITH reference to the proceedings at the adjourned meeting of the Board of Guardians of the Tipperary Union, on the 27th ultimo, at which it was deemed expedient to appoint Sub-Committees to examine the lists of the different relieving officers, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that, as a general rule, they deem it undesirable that a Board of Guardians should be subdivided into Committees for the purposes of deciding on applications for relief, inasmuch as fewer abuses are likely to arise, if the cases are decided on by the whole Board.

At the same time, the Commissioners are aware that the amount of labour thrown on the Guardians may be so great as to render it necessary, for the due despatch of public business, that a division or even divisions of the Board should take place.

There is one suggestion, however, which the Commissioners desire to make on the subject, which they recommend the Guardians strictly to act on, viz., that in all divisions or Sub-Committees of the Board, one Guardian at least should be associated who is not of the particular district from which the applicants come whose cases are to be investigated by such divisions or Sub-Committees respectively.

The Commissioners have to add that no such Sub-Committee or division should consist of less than three members.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 15, 1847.

THE only thing of importance which took place at our adjourned meeting was the re-affirmation of the desire of the Guardians, to establish a branch workhouse at Dingle.

I have very serious doubts as to the practical working of this measure; I doubt our obtaining a store-house large enough for any useful purpose; I doubt its being made available in time to prevent out-door relief; and, above all, I doubt the character of the Guardians, on whom the working of this measure must devolve.

But the Guardians having twice unanimously carried it, I deemed it my duty to inform them that they had full power to act, without forwarding or rather waiting an answer to their resolution.

They, however, resolved on doing nothing until they heard from the Commissioners.

The Commissioners will remember that the Guardians have desired that this Union shall be divided.

In taking this temporary accommodation, would the Commissioners wish me to consider it as the basis of the new Union?

In the event of our meeting with a factory, or some old house which with some alteration could be turned into a permanent workhouse, would the Commissioners allow the alterations and arrangements to be immediately commenced with that ultimate view?

And in arranging the staff, shall we commence with temporary appointments, with a view of making them permanent, if the persons prove competent to perform their duty?

Foreseeing that the present workhouse accommodation would be insufficient for some years in Tralee, I have persuaded the Guardians to rent the building they have hired for at least seven years, and to alter it with a view to its permanent occupation. When it is completed it will be very perfect with sleeping accommodation, day-school, and dining-rooms for 800 or 900, and with infirmary, master's rooms, porter's rooms, probationary ward, and offices complete; boys' and girls' yard enclosed by a high stone wall.

The expense of this has been heavy, but it will be worth it; and if the Commissioners would wish buildings on the same complete scale and plan to be taken at Dingle, of course I could try to obtain them; but if it is to be considered as a temporary arrangement, I could not recommend the Guardians to lay out so much money.

REPLY to the above:—December 18, 1847.

IN the opinion of the Commissioners, the circumstance that the distance of Dingle from Tralee workhouse is so great, is paramount to all other considerations, and counterbalances the weighty objections which you have adduced to the establishment of a workhouse at Dingle.

The course which the Commissioners would recommend the Guardians to adopt, is to take measures for erecting a new workhouse at Dingle. The erection of such a workhouse would be an essential condition to the Commissioners entertaining the proposition of dividing the Tralee Union into two Unions, for they could not deem it right to form a separate Union with Dingle for a centre, if such Union, when formed, were to be without workhouse accommodation.

The Commissioners will thank you, therefore, to communicate the above views to the Tralee Guardians, and to recommend them to take into their serious consideration the propriety of building a new workhouse at Dingle, capable of containing as many inmates as could be relieved in it from the district of which Dingle is the natural centre.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 4, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report to you that I attended the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day.

The first statement of importance which came before them was made by me.

I reminded the Board that two months ago, on my arrival at Tralee, great destitution prevailed in the Union; that the meetings of the Board were invariably interrupted by large mobs of distressed people seeking for admissions into the house, that the house was full; that the relieving officers had been appointed, but were utterly untrained, and nothing was done towards bringing out-of-door relief into operation; and that under these circumstances, and foreseeing the enormous mass of business which must fall upon them, I had determined in every way in my power to assist them.

That we had, since that period, cleared the house of all infirm persons, and widows with two or more legitimate children, and filled their places with able-bodied; that we had hired and were fitting up a building calculated to hold 900 persons; that the verandahs in the old workhouse had been enclosed, fever sheds since rendered secure, the dormitories measured, and the numbers each was to hold painted on the door, to prevent over-crowding; that the children had been turned out of the house, and fresh alterations made calculated to increase the accommodation; that the clothes and utensils of the house had been examined, and a general repair taken place in the store, and other departments generally; and that, finally, the out-of-door relief was brought into operation, and that the relieving officers had commenced in some degree to understand their duties.

I then reminded them that, in carrying into effect these alterations, I had acted more as if I was a paid Guardian than an Inspector only; and that the result has been that a considerable misapprehension as to the nature of the duties I had to perform had gone abroad.

I then pointed out that my instructions in no case authorized me to release the Board of Guardians from any part of their legitimate functions, and that the Board were in no case authorized to yield them up to me, or to any one else; and that seeing the state of the country was such that the Board of Guardians would be enabled to manage their own affairs, I had come to the determination that I was not justified in co-operating with them so actively as I had done, and that the time was now coming when they must be prepared to take the whole burden on their own shoulders.

I hope the Commissioners will agree in the general view I have taken of my own position here. My first object was, to force relief into operation as rapidly as I could; and my object now is, to make the Board take it on their own hands.

I have so often reported upon the extraordinary press of business which there always is on a Board day, and on the difficulty that there is in carrying out out-of-door relief in so large a Union, that the Commissioners must not conceive that I believe a Board of Guardians in Ireland capable of managing such a system on so large a scale, without some directing or controlling assistance; but when the law did not authorize any assistance of that nature, I felt that I was no longer justified in offering it, when the extraordinary cause which had required it had ceased. For instance, to take the relieving officer of Ventry, which is 33 miles from Tralee. He travels to Tralee on Monday, to pass his accounts. Tuesday, he waits the orders of the Board. Wednesday, he returns. Thursday, distributes relief. Friday, attends Committee of Guardians at Dingle. Saturday, receives applications, visits houses of applicants, and investigates their cases.

When we consider the discretion which should actuate a relieving officer in his decisions, we must allow that we are not likely to attain that if we give him so much bodily work.

For another example, to show how bad these large Unions are, the Commissioners will remember that I have reported that the pressure for in-door relief has been diminishing, and again to-day, although all our vacancies were readily filled up, yet we had not a great many to send off.

Co-existing with this, the destitution in the distant divisions is increasing. If we had a workhouse at Dingle capable of holding 1500, it would be filled in a day; but it is never worth while for this 1500 to travel into Tralee for the chance of admission, to return again if refused.

Another feature in the present out-of-door relief, is the constantly increasing numbers.

REPLY to the above:—January 8, 1848.

WITH reference to your statement regarding the part which you have hitherto taken in the administration of relief in the Union, I am to state that the Commissioners agree in your general views on the subject, and they think that you should on no account undertake to discharge the duties which are devolved by the Legislature upon Boards of Guardians.

Tralee Union.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 11, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to inform you, that I attended the Board of Guardians this day.

I am sorry to state, that the number of applicants for in-door relief had increased very seriously. The Board, however, were able to receive 100; but very many had to return again to their homes.

The Board have determined to prosecute Mr. Manning, Poor Law Guardian, for being concerned in supplying meal of a bad and deleterious description for out-of-door relief at Dingle.

The serious business of the day was the consideration of the out-of-door relief. Captain Fairfield, as Chairman of the Finance Committee, made a long and able report to the Board, which was ordered to be printed, and a copy of which I will send to you.

Our real difficulty was the Dingle district. The relieving officer of Ballinacourty was there, with his Application Book full of names; but there was no district Guardian who knew anything of the cases. He stated that in the Dingle district, the out-of-door relief to the able-bodied was in operation; and because he would not give to any one who was not initialed, his life had been threatened.

Charges were brought against the relieving officer of the Dingle district, and proved: 1st, that persons were in receipt of relief who held land; 2nd, that women were returned as widows who were not; 3rd, that some families received relief three or four times over, under different names; and, 4th, that he had allowed the contractors at Dingle to supply bad meal to the paupers, without reporting it to the Board. On finding himself thus hard pressed, he resigned his situation.

Meantime, the Dingle books were half uninitialed, and no one at the Board who knew the district appeared ready to examine them.

The Commissioners' letter on the subject of building a workhouse at Dingle, naturally brought the question fully before the Board.

Mr. Guy, a Dingle Guardian, brought forward a resolution to have paid Guardians at Dingle; Mr. Hussey mentioned to me that he had communicated since the morning with several persons holding property, and that they were in favour of it.

I then told the Board the plan which I had laid before the Commissioners—of immediately dividing the Union, with paid Guardians at Dingle. I added that I considered paid Guardians essential for Dingle at present, inasmuch as it was a very serious affair starting a Union in these times with only hired houses, and with all the officers to teach; and because a heavy expenditure in purchasing the necessary outfit was immediately necessary; and I did not think the Board, while prosecuting one Guardian for fraud, and having a grave case of suspicion against another, would like to spend their money entirely on their recommendation.

The whole of these observations was assented to, and the only remark was that the Castlegregory electoral division should belong to the Dingle Union, and not to Tralee, on the ground that the Dingle Union would have an establishment to support on too few electoral divisions, to which I urged that although Castlegregory was exactly half-way between Dingle and Tralee, it was nearer Tralee, as there was a high mountain which divided it from Dingle; and as Tralee had now workhouse accommodation for 2000, and would have for 2400, while Dingle would only have for 600, the bulk of the population should be thrown on Tralee; but I think the question is one which the Commissioners had better consider.

On the whole, the Board requested me to communicate fully and openly with the Commissioners for them, stating that I was as fully aware of their situation and difficulties as they were themselves, and that they would delay taking any steps about signing the required document to procure them a loan of money to build the Dingle house, until the wishes of the Commissioners were more fully expressed.

The Board would then wish to know, 1st. What the Commissioners will do about dividing the Union?

2nd. In the event of its being divided, will the Dingle Union be responsible for the money for their house, if the Tralee remains responsible for theirs?

3rd. Or will the sum spent on both houses be charged evenly on both Unions, according to valuation?

4th. In the event of the Union not being divided, how will the establishment charges of the new house be apportioned?

5th. If the Guardians sign it in its present state, will it remain a charge on the entire Union?

As my communication of January 7, which I requested the Commissioners to consider "confidential," has been publicly acknowledged to be true, the Commissioners can make any use they please of it; and I forward a letter from Mr. Chute, agent to Lord Ventry, to Captain Fairfield, narrating the proceedings at Dingle, which I request the Commissioners will return to me after perusal.

REPLY to the above:—January 15, 1848.

THE Commissioners have applied to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury for permission to appoint a special Inspector at Dingle; and they trust that such an appointment, together with the exposure of the proceedings of the Committee which has taken place, and the prosecution which the Board have determined to institute against Mr. Manning, a Guardian, for being concerned in supplying meal for out-door relief at Dingle, will have a salutary effect, and tend to produce a more correct course of proceeding in future.

As regards the out-door relief, the Commissioners await the report of Captain Fairfield, of which you state you will forward a copy.

With reference to the case of the Dingle relieving officer, the Commissioners will feel obliged by your informing them whether you consider that the charges against him were proved, and whether, in your opinion, his resignation should be accepted, or the Commissioners should mark their sense of his conduct, by issuing a formal order for his dismissal.

Mr. Chute's letter to Captain Fairfield, which accompanied your report, is herewith returned in accordance with your request.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 15, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to inform you that I arrived at Dingle from Tralee on the 13th instant; and, in continuation of my reports of the 7th and 11th instant, I beg to give the following particulars:—

Mr. Richard Chute waited upon me, and put into my hands the accompanying document, marked No. 1. The only remark which I have to make upon it is, that it was drawn out by a farmer, who was afraid to give up his name; but the writing, and the manner in which it is arranged, prove that, under a better order of things, Poor Law Guardians could be obtained even in these districts.

Mr. Richard Chute reiterated his complaints against the Dingle Committee of Guardians, charging them with general inefficiency, misappropriation of the relief, and costing the electoral division a large sum of money.

The Rev. M. Devine, the intelligent parish priest of the district, waited upon me, and repeated Mr. Chute's assertion, and, without my hinting that I have reported in favour of paid Guardians, earnestly requested me to obtain them.

Lord Ventry, and Mr. Hussey, a gentleman of property, expressed their desire to have paid Guardians, for the same reason.

I attended the Committee on this day, and repeated what had been charged against them; no one denied that abuses of a grave nature had taken place, but urged in extenuation the difficulty of carrying out the system of relief, using the same arguments which I advanced to the Commissioners in my letter of the 4th instant.

I watched the mode of doing business, and nothing could exceed the irregularity. Putting aside any dishonest motive which some parties may have had in screening these abuses, I do not think that the Committee have business-like habits enough, or energy to contend with their extraordinary difficulties. I may say that the personal attendance of paupers who required relief was no longer required; a scrap of paper, signed by any farmer, certifying that the applicant was in distress, was sufficient; names were entered down on the books without the date of the order, or duration of relief being mentioned; and relief administered in that manner, without the sanction of the Tralee Board of Guardians.

I should not, in these times, and under the peculiar difficulties of this Union, have been over severe at any digression from the strict letter of the law, provided such became necessary, and was done with an honest intention; but when I went outside, and saw people dying at the door, and knew that the relief was jobbed away inside, it certainly filled me with indignation.

Three women were laying down exhausted, with death on their countenances; so much so, that, instead of relief, the dispensary medical officer was sent for.

I directed provisional relief to be administered immediately to several, including able-bodied, to save their lives, and then we commenced the usual routine business, conducting it myself; and in a short time the Committee were compelled to acknowledge that more had been done in one hour by me than they could have done in four themselves.

The miserable state of many of the poor in their district, the acknowledgment of abuses, the knowledge that public feeling will assuredly, at some time or other, call them to account, and a feeling of their own inefficiency, weighed with them; and, after a short debate, they passed the accompanying resolution, marked No. 2.

The Commissioners may now rest assured that the immediate division of the Union, and the appointment of paid Guardians at Dingle, would be the most wished-for consummation that would be desired; and I have ascertained that two stores, capable of holding 300 paupers each, could be immediately hired, pending the erection of a workhouse. I know that the money given by the Board of Guardians for these divisions is superabundant for their necessities; but if it is not differently administered the consequences will be too apparent.

Although I have been compelled to censure in the strongest manner this Committee, I must allow their difficulties have been unequalled; but nothing can excuse dishonest intentions: and, although I have said that several severe cases of distress came before us, I am bound to report that the health of the general population, as one sees in the streets, has improved; and Mr. Herbert, the member for the county, who travelled with me, and went to the western districts of Ventry, Drumlin, and Drumquin, reports that, though the people seemed sunk in abject poverty, such as he never witnessed before, they had not a remarkable unhealthy appearance.

There is no gentleman in Ireland whose opinions I would sooner take on these or any other points than Mr. Herbert's.

	Dennis Nelligan . .	Sold two cows, and ten pounds worth of corn this year, and is drawing meal.

There are several other cases of this description which we have brought before the Committee and relieving officer, and got no hearing, and they refused to investigate the matter; unless speedily stopped, the entire barony will be ultimately ruined.

No. 2.

Proposed by Michael Gallwey, Esq., seconded by Patrick Hannifin.

Resolved,—That we, as much as we are of opinion that the Guardians of this Committee are not inclined as a body to attend to their duties as Poor Law Guardians, and to carry out the Poor Relief Act, we are of opinion that this Committee should be dissolved, and the duties thereof placed in the hands of Government.

January 14, 1848.

JOHN HICKSON, Chairman.

REPLY to the above :—January 18, 1848.

I AM to refer you to the Commissioners' letter of the 15th instant, which, of course, had not reached you when your report was written.

I am at the same time to state that the immediate appointment of paid Guardians in a new Union, to be called Dingle Union, would be impracticable, inasmuch as the Union must first be divided; then there must be an election of Guardians for Dingle Union, and sufficient time must then elapse to show that the new Board of Guardians for the new Union had not discharged their duties properly, inasmuch as the Commissioners could only appoint paid officers for Dingle Union on the default of the Guardians of Dingle Union.

The Commissioners have again to state that the Tralee Board of Guardians are responsible for the proper administration of relief at Dingle, and that it is impossible, under the present system of Poor Laws, to make any legal distinction between the Guardians for Dingle and its neighbourhood, and the Guardians for the rest of the Union.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 17, 1848.

I BEG to enclose you Captain Fairfield's report, as requested.

I have no doubt that an Inspector may put a stop to disgraceful abuses, and see that the food supplied to the paupers is of a proper quality; but the great evil connected with those districts is the enormous amount of extra travelling which is thrown upon the relieving officers, occupying the greater part of their valuable time.

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, they are coming into Tralee, and leaving Tralee; Friday attending the Dingle Committee of Guardians; leaving only Thursday and Saturday to issue relief, receive applications, and visit the houses of the applicants, which they can hardly attempt now. This travelling, besides occupying their time, entails upon them a most serious expense, which, being deducted from their salary, really makes their situation hardly worth having. These are facts which no Inspector at Dingle can grapple with.

Tralee Union.

I am not insensible to the necessity of having a proper Union workhouse; but the accompanying document shows out-of-door relief is what we must grapple with; and I have already reported that two temporary workhouses, enclosed and walled, can be procured at Dingle, in which cleanliness and discipline can be enforced.

I hope I may be excused in urging this matter, but, wherever I am, I am anxious, for my own credit, that public affairs should go on well; and I really am afraid I can never get the relieving officers' duties properly done, unless we allow them, inexperienced, and, in many cases, stupid as they are, full and ample time.

ENCLOSURE.

Captain FAIRFIELD, Vice-Chairman, to the BOARD of GUARDIANS of the Tralee Union:—
January 8, 1848.

IN performance of the duties which have lately devolved upon me, as a member of your Finance and Select Committees, I have had the fullest opportunities of making myself acquainted with your financial affairs, and with the management of the relief administered to the poor throughout this extensive Union.

As you have recently done me the honour to elect me to fill an important post at your Board, I feel justified in submitting to you the following statement of the affairs of the Union; a statement which, I believe, will cause considerable surprise and apprehension amongst the rate-payers generally:—

ACCOUNTS OF THE TRALEE UNION, January 1, 1848.

Creditor.

By amount remaining in treasurer's hands, as per Abstract, January 1	5,643	15	10
By amount of rates uncollected, as per account submitted this day	6,310	14	6½
Total creditor this day	11,954	10	4½

Debtor.

By collectors' poundage	£2,000
By rates which cannot be collected, say	500
By sundries, bills, and salaries, as per annexed return,	1,300
	3,800 0 0
Balance creditor of Union, January 1, 1848	£ 8,154 10 4½

EXTRAORDINARY EXPENSES.

Amount of furniture, fittings, clothing, and bedding, &c., to be purchased previous to the occupation of the hospital and other additional buildings, now nearly completed, on the old workhouse site	500	0	0

Note.—I do not estimate the cost of completing the permanent building at a cost of 1400*l.*, as the money will be advanced by the Commissioners in the first instance, and only repaid by instalments.

This sum, deducted from the balance as above, leaves a sum in the hands of the Guardians, available for all purposes, amounting to 7354*l.* 10*s.* 4½*d.*

ESTIMATED EXPENSES of the WORKHOUSE EXPENSES for 28 Days, STAFF, &c. &c.

28 days' maintenance, clothing, fuel, &c. &c., of 2000 paupers, at 2 s. 4 d. each per week	933	6	8
28 days' establishment charges and relieving officers	133	2	0
28 days' vaccination, revising, funerals, &c. &c.	9	5	0
28 days' rent of buildings and ground	12	0	0
28 days' expenses of fever hospitals in Dingle, Castleisland, and patients in County Hospital*	30	0	0
Total expenses for 28 days	£ 1,117	13	8

The cost of maintaining the two houses for five months, up to the 1st of June next, will thus amount to the sum of 5588*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*, leaving a balance of 1766*l.* 2*s.* 0½*d.* only for the purposes of out-door relief, without estimating the increased expenses which will ensue when the new buildings in the main house are occupied.

* Understated.

Tralee Union.

The expenses for out-door relief, up to the present time, have been as follow:—

Week ending October 30	..
„ November 6	..
„ November 13	86
„ November 20	105
„ November 27	133
„ December 4	141
„ December 11	216
„ December 18	206
„ December 25	287
„ January 1	370

We have thus expended the sum of 1,544*l.* in eight weeks. The sum estimated for the week ending the 7th of January is, I observe, 383*l.; and from the vast number of new names which are every day placed on the relieving officers' books, the same steady ratio of increase must be expected to go on for some time, if not checked.

If this lavish expenditure is kept up, it is quite obvious that the limited balance available will be totally exhausted, at no very distant period of time: the house must be closed, and relief to the really destitute must in fact stop altogether. I am satisfied that the Guardians and the rate-payers generally, will contemplate such a result with the liveliest alarm.

Unless, then, a more firm and equitable mode for the distribution of relief is adopted at once, the rate-payers will be reduced to bankruptcy, and the miserable poor will die of starvation.

I will appeal, gentlemen, to your experience of the working of out-door relief in Ireland in the past year—a system of relief which has been so full of difficulties, and which has proved so pregnant of abuses, that all the efforts of a powerful Government could not cope with the evil. On referring to the Treasury Minute of March 11, 1847, I find these words:—"We feel that as long as the number of destitute continues to increase as it has done, at the rate of 20,600 per week, all effectual constraint has for the present been lost;" and further, the Lords of the Treasury direct that notice be given, that from Saturday, March 20, the number of persons on the relief works shall be reduced by not less than 20 per cent. The Government found it impossible to check the steadily increasing demand for relief, without having recourse to the most stringent measures. When the system of issuing rations commenced, the same pressure for relief occurred—daily progressing and increasing:—"Regulations," "Admonitions," "Orders," were alike disregarded, until at length the Relief Commissioners were constrained to reduce the numbers on the lists, by a peremptory order for curtailment, which admitted of no evasion.

By a document lying on your table I observe, that 51,043 persons were receiving rations in this Union in the week ending 4th of July last, out of a population of 91,000—more than one-half. It will be admitted, I believe, that vast numbers were receiving relief at that time, who were not proper objects; and as the law now stands, a great proportion of those persons are disentitled from getting anything.

22,000 persons (including the school children who are so generously fed by the British Association) are at this time getting rations daily within this Union!

This number of rations, I verily believe, if properly distributed, would prevent the possibility of any deaths occurring from starvation; but I am constrained to say, that I believe it to be quite impossible to check the malappropriation of the relief—the closest investigation will be unavailing—all limitations by certain classes allowed by law will be, as they are now, evaded. The vast numbers on the lists preclude the hope of making them what they ought to be; and, from the intimidation which is constantly manifested towards the relieving officers, it is vain to expect that they will give any effectual assistance in reducing the numbers of applicants. It is now evident that no reliance can be placed on that local information which it was expected the district Committees would have afforded.

The district of Dingle is a direct example of that: in that locality one-half of the entire population is receiving relief, and yet we are told, and I myself believe it, that many persons are actually dying of hunger there—the natural result of neglect and malversation. Your duties, as a Board of Guardians, gentlemen, are of a most painful nature. Feeling, as I know you all do, for the miseries of the poor, commiserating their sufferings, and inclined to carry out the most liberal measures for their relief, you will now find yourselves called upon, as guardians of the property of the Union, to control your expenditure with a firm and unflinching hand.

I before stated that the total sum available for the purposes of out-door relief amounted to 1,766*l.* 2*s.* only. At the rate you are now proceeding, this sum will be totally exhausted in less than five weeks from this date; and it is with a view of fixing your attention upon the awful position in which you will shortly be placed that I am induced to trespass at such length upon your valuable time.

After a careful and anxious consideration of the difficulties in which your Union is placed, I can see no possible way of averting a calamity which is so much to be dreaded, but by adopting a reduced scale of expenditure, gradually diminishing after the termination of the present week, until it is finally discontinued on the 1st of June next; when we may hope that the accommodation then disposable within the houses, will be sufficient to meet the distress likely to prevail at that period—an anticipation which, humanly speaking, we may be allowed to indulge in.

In suggesting a scheme for the progressive reduction of your expenditure, I feel that I am asking you to accede to a measure which will expose you to obloquy and misrepresentation; but, gentlemen, unless you determine to act regardless of every other consideration, but that of doing your duty to all classes, you will be the instruments of unmeasured evil.

Gentlemen, if you determine on a scale of relief as follows, and resolve to fix the out-door relief at

£350	per week for January,
300	„ for February,
250	„ for March,
200	„ for April,
150	„ for May,

you will still require over 5000*l.* to meet this demand for the five months, up to the 1st of June, which will leave you in debt on that day in the sum of 3,234*l.* 0*s.* 0½*d.* As I said before, if you continue your present course, you will be out of funds in five weeks.

In conclusion, gentlemen, I would recommend you to appoint a special Committee of three of your members, who should undertake to apportion the expenditure by electoral divisions, according to the amount of poverty and destitution prevailing in the different localities.

But above all, gentlemen, I would recommend you to make an earnest appeal to the assistance of the Government and the British Association, giving them an assurance that you will endeavour, by every means in your power, to distribute any aid they may give you, faithfully and impartially, according to the distress prevailing in the several electoral divisions, to the best judgment of the Select Committee, as above named, with the assistance and advice of the Government inspector; and, gentlemen, you will, I am sure, have no hesitation in pledging yourselves to strike new rates, as soon after the making up of your accounts on the 25th of March next, as circumstances will permit.

On reading this report, the following resolution, proposed by John Hurly, Esq., and seconded by Edward Hussey, Esq., was unanimously adopted:—

“That the statement laid before the Board this day by Mr. Fairfield, with respect to the financial state of this Union, be laid on the table and be printed, for the purpose of circulation; and that the further consideration of it be deferred until the next meeting of the Board.

(Signed) “WILLIAM DENNY, Chairman.”

REPLY to the above:—January 20, 1848.

THE Commissioners are desirous of knowing by what time, in your opinion, the proposed temporary workhouse at Dingle could be properly fitted up and furnished, and provided with bedding and clothing, and be otherwise fit for the reception of paupers.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 18, 1848.

THE only subject of importance which was discussed on this day at the meeting of the Guardians of this Union, was Captain Fairfield's financial report, a copy of which I forwarded to you last post.

Mr. Stokes, a Guardian, condemned it on its illegality, and stated that the Board were bound to relieve all destitute persons, and find funds accordingly.

Captain Fairfield allowed that to be the law, and stated that his report did not propose so much a reduction as the thinning out of the lists, of persons who should not have been entered on it at all.

The line of argument which I held was, that no one must starve; and destitute persons must be relieved; that under the present system it was notorious that persons did starve, and that all destitute persons were not relieved. That this was to be attributed, in some cases, to corrupt motives, and in others to the extent of the duties of the relieving officers. That I was of opinion, that the amount of relief proposed to be given during January, or 350*l.* per week, was sufficient, but that it must be properly applied. That I thought the appointment of a committee to superintend the out-of-door relief important. That I thought it would be the duty of such committee, in case they consider any electoral division was receiving too much money, to represent the necessity of a revision of the lists. That Guardians, by holding meetings of farmers in the several electoral divisions, and reading out the names of persons receiving relief, might obtain more accurate information; and that possibly such a course might be stimulated by a reduction in the money allowed, but that no person must be allowed to starve.

We had many more applicants for in-door relief than we had room for.

REPLY to the foregoing :—January 22, 1848.

Tralee Union.

THE Commissioners observe by the Guardians' minutes which they have since received, that the Guardians have appointed a select committee to carry into effect the general recommendations of the report, and they feel bound, therefore, to object to the scheme proposed for the progressive reduction of expenditure, by determining on a scale of relief, and fixing the amount of out-door relief at a certain sum each week; inasmuch as the Guardians are by law responsible, for the due relief of the destitution in their Union, and have not the power of deciding that no more than a specified sum shall be expended in the Union in any one week.

It will give the Commissioners great satisfaction if it should turn out that no greater sum than the sum estimated in the report will be required by the Guardians for the effectual discharge of their duties; but it must be borne in mind, that the main point to be looked to is, whether the destitute poor of the Union are duly relieved, and questions of expense must be regarded as secondary to that paramount consideration.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 18, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to inform you, that on the 12th instant I proceeded to Dingle, for the purpose of ascertaining an eligible site for a workhouse, in accordance with your letter of the 8th instant.

On the ensuing morning, the Hon. D. Mullins, the eldest son of Lord Ventry, Mr. R. Chute, Lord Ventry's agent, and Mr. Hussey, called upon me, and I thought it advisable to request Mr. M. Galway's presence, inasmuch as he had previously suggested that a workhouse should be built on the commons.

I then informed them that my inquiries would be limited to the uninclosed commons, and proceeded in their company to view them.

The present commons of Ballinaboly consist of the top and the sides of a high hill, whose altitude is marked on the Ordnance map at 752 feet above the level of the sea. The top and sides are stony, and the latter steep; but as the ground falls, the steepness diminishes until it extends to the grounds now under cultivation.

The proximity to Dingle being our principal object, my inquiry was chiefly confined to the angular part of the commons, between the townlands of Fannauffaherty and Ballinaboly. Such a site, moreover, would have the advantage of a southern aspect. A reference to the Ordnance map will clearly show the spot I allude to.

After an attentive consideration, I was of opinion that there was a site on which a house could be built; but even there the ground must be a good deal levelled, and most probably, the several yards must rise like terraces, one above the other; and the foundation of the back buildings would be on a higher level than the front. This circumstance, however, in moderation, I did not consider a disadvantage.

The advantages of building on this site, may be considered as follows :—

1. Vicinity to the town.
2. Ground rent-free.
3. Good fall for sewerage; situation healthy.
4. Saving of future expense in the vicinity of a turf bog belonging to the commons, whereby the fuel of the workhouse could be cut by the paupers themselves.
5. This bog could also be worked profitably to the establishment. Turf in Dingle is very dear.
6. Employment of the paupers in reclaiming land. I consider with an unlimited supply of labour, perhaps 50 acres might be recovered, and set at a rental of 1*l.* per acre.
7. Even if the land should not turn out so valuable, having abundance of healthy employment for the paupers is desirable.
8. The stone all round the premises would cause a great diminution in expense in building.

Tralee Union.

Its disadvantages are as follows:—

1. Its exposed position. Its height is marked on the map at about 260 feet above the level of the sea. This however is to a certain extent modified, by its being sheltered from the north-west, and even partially from the east, but towards the south it is wholly open.
2. Water is abundant on the hill, but not in that spot. I should think, however, a well might be sunk with effect.

The Ordnance map clearly shows the way in which the house would communicate with the existing roads; and it must be observed, that although placed in an elevated situation, it is only 100 feet above the existing high road, and a greater ascent might be easily made.

The view from the proposed site is one of the finest I ever saw. The bay of Dingle lay below us, with the further mountains of Kerry, and the islands of Valentia, and the Skelligs in the distance. But it must be remembered, that its commanding situation, which, in a calm fine day, causes beauty, renders it the more exposed in winter, to the fury of the storm.

On leaving the ground on our return home, we received a message from Lord Ventry, offering us a particular field rent-free for a site, something between the proposed site on the commons, and the town. Unfortunately the field of his Lordship was too small for the required purpose; it had moreover the disadvantage of removing us from the lands in which we were to work, and the turf bog.

Understanding that the intermediate fields were part of the Ventry trust estate, to which Mr. Mullins, who accompanied me, will succeed after the death of his father, but over which neither he nor his father have any control at present, I suggested that an exchange might perhaps be effected between the lands offered to us, and a field adjoining the commons; or else, that perhaps the trustees of the Ventry trust estate, might, perhaps, be inclined to make a grant of land for the purpose, in lieu of the land at present offered by Lord Ventry, if Mr. Mullins, the future possessor of the property, should offer no objection.

With that view I obtained the signature of Lord Ventry, and his son, to papers which I now enclose; and I have consulted the agent in charge here, Mr. Stokes.

Mr. Stokes offered every assistance in his power, but he was afraid that the lands which we required, which are those next to the commons, were already under lease. However, he said he would be in Dublin, at 3, Upper Gloucester-place, on or about Monday the 31st instant, when the Commissioners could send their law agent to communicate with him on the subject.

On the whole, I beg to report, that weighing the advantages and disadvantages of the proposed site on the commons, I am induced to report, that I think the site might be rendered available. And that, further, if a field adjoining the commons, but lower down, could be procured, such a site while it would be more sheltered, would unite all the advantages derived from the commons, and in every respect be most desirable.

I think it desirable now, that the Commissioners should send Mr. Wilkinson down to view the ground in question, and guided by his report, they would then decide whether it is necessary to negotiate for the lands of the Ventry trust estate; if it was decided that it was advisable, they would have an opportunity of doing so, when Mr. Stokes was in Dublin on the 31st.

The gentlemen who attended me generally concurred in these opinions, and I thought it desirable that as they were Guardians, they should forward to me a report on the subject. This report which I have appended, was drawn up by Mr. Galway, and read at the Committee meeting the ensuing day, and signed by the Chairman. It was however felt by all, that Mr. Galway had been too enthusiastic in stating the advantages of the site on the commons.

I do not think it advisable to take any further steps until I receive further directions from the Commissioners.

ENCLOSURES.

Tralee Union.

I do hereby certify, that having heard that Captain Hotham had come to Dingle to look out for an eligible site for a workhouse, I accompanied him in his examination of the commons of Dingle, and subsequently was authorized by my father Lord Ventry, to offer for a site, one field between the town of Dingle and the commons, and having again proceeded with Captain Hotham to examine the field, and Captain Hotham having stated that it would have been desirable if the said field had been adjoining the commons, in order that the paupers might be employed in reclaiming and improving that land, and having understood that a portion of the Ventry trust estate which will descend to me hereafter, adjoins the commons and would form a convenient site, I do approve, and will hereafter urge no objection to an exchange being effected between such portions of the estate, as may be eligible for a site for the proposed workhouse, and that field which my father, Lord Ventry, would have given up for the purpose, in order that Lord Ventry may have it in his power to give a more convenient site than the one he has offered at present; or should that prove inexpedient in law, that I would make no objection, now or hereafter, to the trustees of the Ventry estate making a free grant of a plot of land adapted for the purpose, either by a lease for ever at a nominal rent, or by a sale at a nominal price, in lieu of the land at present proposed to be given by my father.

Dated at Dingle, this 13th January, 1838.

I do hereby certify, that having heard that Captain Hotham had come to Dingle to look out for an eligible site for a workhouse, and being anxious that the public should be accommodated, that I offered to him one field between the town and the commons of Dingle, either as a grant, or at a nominal rent for ever, according as I might hereafter determine.

Witness,

EDWARD HUSSEY.

CHARLES HAWKEY, Lieut. R.N.

The REPORT of the POOR LAW GUARDIANS of DINGLE, in the County of Kerry, on the proposed Site for a Workhouse on the Commons of Dingle.

That the Commons of Dingle were granted by charter, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth to the late corporation of Dingle, for the benefit of the people.

That they contain an immense tract of land, some miles in circumference, portions of which are contiguous to the town of Dingle, and several hundred of acres thereof can be easily reclaimed, the soil being deep and stones easily removed.

That the portion adjoining the town is a southern aspect, and the situation most healthy and dry, and in our opinion best suited for the building of a workhouse.

That any quantity of land required can be brought into cultivation for the use of the inmates, and thereby after some time make it a self supporting establishment, and save the Union from poor rates.

That there are several quarries on said commons, some of which have been used from time immemorial for the building the houses of the town.

That there is also an extensive turf bog thereon, containing several hundreds of acres, which would supply fuel for the use of the workhouse, besides which large quantities of said turf could be cut and saved annually by the inmates, and sold at a considerable profit to the people of the town and applied for the support of said workhouse.

That at present there is no road to said turf bog, but the paupers could be usefully employed in making one through said commons, which road would be also useful with a view to reclaim other portions of said commons, which are at present of little value for want of a road thereto.

That a large expenditure for milk could be saved, as by having a dairy attached to said workhouse, milch cows could even at present be pastured on said commons.

That there is very fine water close to said commons, and though no springs appear on the proposed site for said workhouse, still from the contiguity of said springs to said site, there is no doubt by sinking for same that water would be found near the surface.

That under the existing law, said commons are now vested in the Poor Law Guardians of this Union, who are entitled to apply the profits thereof towards the reduction of the poor-rates.

That in consequence of the great extent of destitution in this barony, it being calculated that there are 11,000 persons (some of those on the poor list) without food or employment, it is therefore impossible that the entire property of the barony can support its paupers.

That we therefore deem it incumbent on us, in order to relieve the district from even a portion of its taxation, to request of the Poor Law Commissioners to erect this proposed workhouse on these commons, as in the course of time hundreds of its acres can be reclaimed by the inmates, the cultivation of which will accomplish many useful ends. First—by giving useful employment and active habits to the people, and, under an intelligent agriculturist, affording them a practical knowledge of farming; secondly—in place of supporting the inmates in idleness, (as is at present the practice in workhouses,) and at great expense, the paupers can by their labour reclaim a sufficient quantity of land for their support; thirdly—the saving of rent or purchase money to the ratepayers, and also effecting a saving in the building of the workhouse by having materials on the spot; fourthly—the saving of fuel by means of said turf bog, and the source of profit by the sale of said turf; fifthly—the saving of the purchase of milk, as cows can at present be pastured on said commons; and also the profit by letting out said commons for grazing, said commons being at present used by the people for the grazing of thousands of sheep and cattle, free; sixthly—the income by way of rent, to be derived in future years by the letting of such portions of said commons, as shall be hereafter reclaimed, beyond what will be required for the support of said poorhouse; and lastly—the strong test this workhouse will afford, because the knowledge of the fact of the inmates being obliged to work and cultivate the soil, will prevent the able-bodied from seeking relief, unless compelled from dire necessity to do so.

That for the foregoing reasons, we confidently hope the Poor Law Commissioners will not allow private interests to operate with them, and thereby be induced to take any other land for a workhouse, because the barony being at present over-taxed cannot bear any additional burden. The renting or purchase of any other land cannot be had without great expense, and without many of the advantages to be derived from the commons.

That the estate of Lord Ventry adjoins a portion of said commons, and it appearing to the Guardians, that it would be important in order to procure a level site for said proposed workhouse, that said portion of said estate of Lord Ventry should be procured for said purpose; and we deem it our duty to inform the Commissioners, that his Lordship has in the handsomest manner, voluntarily offered the portion of his said estate so required, at a nominal rent for the purpose aforesaid.

Approved,

JOHN HICKSON, Chairman.

REPLY to the above:—January 22, 1848.

I AM to state that the Commissioners will forward your communication to Mr. Wilkinson for his report.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. WILKINSON:—January 22, 1848.

I AM directed to forward to you the enclosed report which they have received from their Inspector, Captain Hotham, relative to a site for a workhouse at Dingle; and I am to request that you will be so good as to furnish the Commissioners with your report on the subject.

I am at the same time, to call your attention to the circumstance that it is desirable that the Commissioners should, if possible, be in a condition to enter if necessary, into negotiation with Mr. Stokes, on his arrival in Dublin on the 31st instant; should it become necessary to endeavour to effect the exchange which Captain Hotham refers to.

Mr. WILKINSON to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 22, 1848.

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the above date, directing my attention to a report of Captain Hotham, on some sites proposed to be taken for the poor-house intended to be built at Dingle. It will, doubtless, be difficult to find a site possessing every requisite, but the most important, perhaps, is a good supply of water; and secondly, if the water be a running small stream, which is capable of being conveyed through the premises. It is then of the next importance to get a fall of ground, and such outlet for the drainage as will not hereafter be objected to, on the ground of its contaminating a water-course, or being otherwise offensive to any persons whose property may adjoin it; for sites possessing great natural advantages in this respect, have been often ultimately found no better than others, where the soil had originally to be conveyed to manure pits.

Unless there is a running stream of water as above, it will not be possible to convey away the soil from the house, and the outlet for the drainage will then have to be considered only with reference to the waste water from the kitchen, wash-house, and yards. In the course of time, I have no doubt but that the latter drainage, or rather the overflow and waste water only, will be all that it will be considered advisable to allow off the premises, whatever the complaints may in the meantime be, arising from neglect of manure and soil pits; and at the present time, they are greatly neglected in many of the poor-houses.

As Mr. M'Mullen, assistant architect, will be in the neighbourhood of Tralee next week, and as he is very competent to form a good opinion of the sites offered, I think it may perhaps be considered sufficient by your Board for him to be directed to visit Dingle, to examine and report before the 30th instant, on the sites offered; in such case I would communicate with him accordingly, and hereafter I could proceed to Dingle, and finally examine the sites now proposed, or any others that may in the meantime, be thought suitable.

Tralee Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—January 25, 1848.

THE Commissioners will inform Captain Hotham, Temporary Inspector, of Mr. M'Mullen's visit to Tralee.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain HOTHAM :—January 26, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to request that you will be so good as to report to the Commissioners the precise line of division of the Tralee Union which you would recommend. The Commissioners are aware that in your report of the 7th instant you made a specific recommendation on this subject; but as the matter has since been discussed at the Board of Guardians, the Commissioners are desirous of knowing whether you still recommend the division suggested in that report, or whether you consider any modification of it desirable.

The Commissioners also request that you will ascertain and report to them, in accordance with the 16th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, the proportionate value to any and every townland affected by the alteration of any property held or taken for or relinquished by the Union in its altered state, and the proportionate amount chargeable on every townland in respect of all the liabilities of the Union existing at the time of the alteration.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS, in reply to the above :—
January 28, 1848.

CONCEIVING that the general feeling amongst the rate-payers is that Castlegregory should belong to Dingle, and knowing that it can make but very little difference to the poor of that district to which Union they belong, as both work-houses would be equally distant from them, I beg to modify the proposition which I made on the 7th instant, and I recommend that the Tralee Union consist of—

1. Tralee electoral division.
2. Castleisland.
3. Brosna.
4. Ballincussane.
5. Bally M'Elvigot.
6. Castlemaine.
7. Kilgarrylander.
8. Kilgoblin.

And the Dingle Union to consist of—

1. Ballinoshee electoral division.
2. Ballinacourty.
3. Minard.
4. Castlegregory.
5. Balliduff.
6. Dingle.
7. Kilquane.
8. Ventry.
9. Dunorlin.
10. Dunquin.

In reference to the concluding paragraph of your communication, I have the honour to request that you will procure for me from the Relief Commissioners a return of the liabilities of the Union at large, and of the several electoral divisions, on account of advances made to the Finance Committee under the Temporary Relief Act, specifying for what electoral divisions such advances were intended.

I have the honour also to remind you that I could not send up any final return of the liabilities of the Union, by which you could ascertain the exact balance remaining or to be paid by either parties of the Union, until all the paupers belonging to the Dingle Union are removed from the Tralee workhouse,—for until that is done, a current account with all the electoral divisions of the present Union must be kept up; and with a view of closing the accounts at the most convenient period both for the Tralee Union and the Dingle Union, I would suggest the following arrangement:—

1. On the Union being divided, the Dingle Union should take upon itself at once the management of the out-of-door relief, which the Tralee Board cannot control at so great a distance.

2. The Dingle Board should immediately hire temporary buildings, and get them ready for reception by the 10th of March, providing by that time the necessary staff.

3. The Tralee Board should discharge all the Dingle paupers by detachments from their workhouse between the 10th and 25th of March, and the Dingle Board receive them in their hired buildings.

4. Finally, on the 25th of March, when the Union accounts are closed, the Dingle electoral divisions should be released from all charges, establishment or otherwise, of the Tralee workhouse, and their accounts be then made up, and a final settlement effected.

Should the Commissioners approve of this arrangement, it will be necessary that a sum of money be advanced to the Dingle Board, to be repaid when their exact balance at the Tralee workhouse is known.

It would also then be desirable that the returns called for by the 16th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act should not be made out until after that date (March 25th).

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 26, 1848.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians on the 25th instant.

I do not think there was anything which occurred worthy of special mention, except that the consent which was required to be signed prior to the Treasury advancing 7000*l.* for building the Dingle workhouse was considered; and, to my surprise, it was decided that it should not be signed, by a majority of one out of 29 present.

I remonstrated very strongly on the subject against such a decision, but in vain.

However, I have ascertained that it is probable that the Board of Guardians, or that a majority of the Guardians, may reverse this decision; and as some have already commenced to sign it, I think that if under the present circumstances of the Dingle district (I refer to later communications from the Commissioners), they should deem it advisable that it should be signed by the Tralee Board, a remonstrance from them to that Board might have some effect.

REPLY to the above :—January 29, 1848.

I AM to express the regret of the Commissioners at this refusal of the Board of Guardians to sign the consent; but I am at the same time to inform you, that it is not absolutely necessary that the Board of Guardians should give their consent by a formal vote of the majority at any particular meeting. All that is essential is, that a majority of the Guardians, including the ex-officio Guardians, should signify their consent in writing, whether that consent is signified either at a meeting of the Board, or at the houses of the individual Guardians.

Captain HOTHAM to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 27, 1848.

MR. PHELAN, in his report dated January 18, 1848, writes as follows :—

“My time did not permit me to inspect the body of the house; but I should not consider the master or matron to be fully competent persons; and, so far as I observed, the order and discipline which should be carried out, was not enforced.”

In reference to which I beg to acquaint you, that I consider not only the master and matron to be inefficient, but the assistant matron and assistant master likewise, and almost all the relieving officers.

I regret to state that this arises, in my opinion, from the Guardians of the Union appointing friends and relatives of their own to these situations, without either knowing or caring whether they were competent to perform their duties.

When we have an appointment to fill up the Guardians attend in a crowd; when it is filled up, however important may be the business going forward, they leave the Board, while the few zealous and hard-working men which there are, are left to work the Poor Law with the incompetent men which others have thrust upon them.

I think this is a heavy and serious discouragement to the carrying out of the law, and really tends to disgust those who wish well to the measure.

I mention these particulars because I have often thought that it would be advantageous if Guardians should not have a vote for any appointment with a salary attached to it, unless they had paid their own rates, and attended one-third of the meetings of the Board held in the preceding six months.

This would throw all appointments in the hands of those who were anxious to carry out the law.

As it is, I have not thought it advisable to take any further steps than regularly to expose the incompetence of the persons whom the Board have appointed, and the waste of the public money which they cause, hoping that these facts, together with the heavy taxation, will induce the rate-payers of the Union to be more careful as to the persons whom they may select as Poor Law Guardians.

REPLY to the above :—February 1, 1848.

WITH reference to your statement, as to the general incompetency of persons filling situations under the Board of Guardians of the Tralee Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that if any officer of the Union appears to you be incompetent or unfit for the duties connected with his office, they would suggest to you the propriety of drawing up a formal report on the subject, setting forth the grounds on which you have arrived at that conclusion.

The Commissioners would then consider your report, and would be in a position, if they thought fit, to remove such officer from his situation.

At the same time the Commissioners would observe, that by communicating with the Board of Guardians you might convince them of the incompetency of the officers referred to.

The Commissioners would refer you to their Rules and Regulations for the grounds on which they would regard an officer as incompetent or unfit for his office. Any general or habitual violation of any of those Rules and Regulations by an officer whom they concern, would form a ground for his removal from his office.

Sir THOMAS ROSS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 30, 1848.

I took the liberty of detaining Mr. M'Mullen, on my arrival here last night, in order to have his opinion as to the probable expense of fitting up the proposed temporary workhouse at Dingle, as also to examine the site recommended by Captain Hotham for a new workhouse. With respect to the latter, I believe he agrees with me that it would be premature to determine finally upon any particular site, because there has not been sufficient time for inquiry and examination of other places in the vicinity of the town. There is, however, one place (part of the Ventry trust property), about half a mile due west of the spot offered by Lord Ventry, which appears in every respect more eligible than either the commons or any of the others which have been already under consideration, but which, until I have seen his lordship's agent, I cannot say if it is attainable or not; it possesses the advantage of a good road from the town, not requiring a shilling outlay for repair; a good and cheerful aspect, tolerably well sheltered, not being within 100 feet as high as the "commons" site, and having from 20 to 30 acres which may be rented or purchased by the Guardians, an object, in my mind, of paramount importance, as calculated to give reproductive employment to the paupers; besides which, it adjoins the commons, some part of which might be reclaimed by spade labour. With reference to the store in Dingle, which it was proposed to fit up for a temporary workhouse, Mr. M'Mullen and myself made a careful inspection of it, and we find that, with an outlay of about 150*l.*, it would be capable of accommodating about 200 paupers only, a master, porter, and matron, &c. I did not inquire what rent would be charged, as, for obvious reasons (there being no other place), I discouraged the idea of taking it at all; but I hope to have a meeting of the Guardians to-morrow, and talking the matter over, as also forming some plan of operations for revising the list of paupers, which, notwithstanding that there is great destitution, I have reason to believe can be reduced very considerably, as, from the manner of admission which I witnessed this day (individual Guardians giving tickets), and which I mean to reform, I have no doubt great abuses will be found to exist in this respect alone.

I take no share in the responsibility of recommending a division of the Union, because, as in this case, by so doing you separate the rich from the poorer parts, and throw the whole burden of supporting the poor upon the poorer part; but, if to be divided, the sooner the better, as the closing of the financial year is at hand, and this Union should be ready at that period to assume its duties. I was given to understand at Tralee that the funds of the 10 electoral divisions which are to form this Union will be entirely exhausted by the 25th of March, whilst there will be a considerable balance in hand in favour of the Tralee divisions. If this be so, it will be my duty, I presume, to apply to the Commissioners for an advance to fit up the temporary workhouse, purchase clothing, furniture, &c.; but I will bring all these matters before the Guardians to-morrow, and will let you know the result.

REPLY to the above:—February 3, 1848.

THE Commissioners await a further communication from you, after you have conferred with the Guardians.

With reference to that part of your letter in which you state that you take no share of the responsibility of recommending a division of the Union, because, as in this case, by so doing you separate the rich from the poorer parts, and throw the whole burden of supporting the poor upon the poorer part, I am to state that the Commissioners have already given the subject their fullest consideration, and have given directions for the immediate division of the Union, as recommended by Captain Hotham. The main ground on which the Commissioners have arrived at this decision was, that from the great size of the Union, and the distance of the Dingle district from the workhouse, the relief of the destitute poor in that district, in accordance with the provisions of the Irish Poor Relief Acts, is either practically denied, or must be administered without any efficient control by the Board of Guardians at Tralee.

THE COMMISSIONERS to Captain HOTHAM:—February 2, 1848.

THE Commissioners propose to divide the Union, in accordance with your suggestions, and they will issue an order accordingly, as well as an order providing for the election of Guardians in each Union; and I am to request that you will be so good as to recommend a returning officer for the election of Guardians for Dingle Union with the least possible delay.

THE COMMISSIONERS to Captain HOTHAM:—February 3, 1848.

I AM to forward, for your information, the enclosed copy of a memorandum giving instructions for the orders which will explain to you the course the Commissioners propose to pursue.

ENCLOSURE.

1. An order dividing the Union, as recommended by Captain Hotham, reciting the formation of the Tralee Union, and that it is expedient to alter the said Union by separating from it certain townlands, and to form the said townlands into a new Union under the name of the Dingle Union. Then state the townlands in the usual way, and declare the new Union, and the old Union to be hereafter as now altered. Preserve in both the present electoral divisions. This order to take effect from 25th March, or as soon as Guardians elected.

2. An order reciting the above, and providing for election of Guardians in each Union.

3. A returning officer for Dingle must also be appointed.

MILFORD UNION.

Mr. HORSLEY, Temporary Poor Law Inspector, to the COMMISSIONERS :—
November 29, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Milford Board of Guardians this day. There was a pretty full attendance of Guardians.

The internal economy of the house has of late, been much neglected, but the Guardians are now sensibly alive to the necessity of looking more narrowly into it in future.

On Wednesday, I inspected every part of the house, and found it in a very improved condition, as far as regards cleanliness, since my former visit.

With the additions to day, the house now contains 434 inmates, chiefly women and children.

On next Board day, there is to be a revision of the registry book, and the relieving officers are to be in attendance. Destitution is fast increasing, and out-door relief will have to be resorted to soon, in some of the west electorates.

The collectors have not yet received their books for the collection of the new rate, but the clerk has been ordered to procure additional assistance, and he expects to have both rate and collectors' books completed by Monday next.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 6, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day.

Previous to the ordinary hour of meeting, the Visiting Committee inspected the house, and having reported, verbally, on its condition to the Board, arrangements were made for putting it in a proper state of repair; and also for procuring a sufficient supply of clothing, and of those utensils in which it appeared, to be deficient.

The rate-books and collectors-books are now completed, the latter only requiring the signatures of the Guardians.

I have constantly urged on the Board, the expediency of getting out these books as speedily as possible; and to-day told them that all over the Union, I saw the haggards were being fast emptied of their contents; and that unless they (the Guardians) forthwith got out the rate-books, all tangible security for the collection of the rate would soon be removed, and that any delay or dilatoriness on their part, besides perilling the realization of the rate, is extremely unfair to the collectors.

The Board assured me the collectors' books should be perfected on Monday next. The collectors are ordered to be in attendance on that day.

The relieving officers were in attendance, it having been supposed that in some of the electorates, out-door relief would have to be given this week. The medical officer, however, having reported that the house can safely, in the absence of epidemic disease, afford accommodation for 500 inmates, out-door relief may be staved off for another week, or perhaps, a fortnight to come.

With the admissions to day, the house now contains 469 paupers.

The Board investigated a series of charges preferred to-day by Biddy Gallagher, against the master and matron. Those charges will be forwarded, together with the minutes of the proceedings, to your office, by the clerk of the Union.

I need only say with reference to them, that the master admitted, generally, the truth of the charges preferred against himself, pleading ignorance of his duties in palliation. The matron followed the same course. Both he and she are, as you are aware, newly appointed officers, and seem, on entering office, to have adopted the lax system pursued by their predecessors.

You will see from the minutes, how the Board of Guardians dealt with the foregoing matter.

Milford Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—December 11, 1847.

THE Commissioners fully concur in your views, as to the great importance of commencing the collection of the new rate without delay.

As regards the commencement of out-door relief, I am to state that the Commissioners' architect has expressed an opinion that not more than 440 can be properly accommodated, in the existing workhouse buildings; and the Commissioners fear that 500 would be too great a number. At any rate, the Commissioners cannot think it prudent to defer the commencement of out-door relief, until the workhouse is so full that no more can be received into it; and the Commissioners think you should press this view upon the Board of Guardians, and urge them to commence the administration of relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

With reference to the charges against the master, the Commissioners will take such notice of the circumstance as may seem necessary, when they have the minutes of the Guardians' meeting of Monday last, before them.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 13, 1847.

I ATTENDED a meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, and beg to annex the following report with regard to their proceedings.

After the Board had gone through the ordinary routine business, the medical officer came before the Guardians, and represented that sickness was on the increase in the house, there being no less than 64 patients under treatment in the hospital and the fever-sheds, and that unless some steps were immediately taken for improving ventilation throughout the house, he feared great mortality would ensue.

I laid before the Board your architect's report on ventilation, sewerage, &c., and, together with the medical officer, offered some suggestions on these important points, for the consideration of the Guardians. Upon which, they agreed to receive from competent tradesmen, estimates of the probable cost of making the necessary alterations, improvements, and repairs required in the house, and to have them put in hand as speedily as possible. They also agreed to enter into annual contracts with the several tradesmen, to keep the house henceforth, in a proper state of repair.

The rate collectors were then brought into the Board-room, and it having been ascertained that their bonds were according to form, and that the sureties in each case were alive, solvent, and in the country, the new books were handed to the collectors, and those officers were instructed by the Board to set actively about the collection of the rate.

The Board next proceeded to elect a medical officer for the electorates of Carigart and Meevagh, and after examining the papers and testimonials of the only two candidates, they selected Dr. Samuel Johnston, ten Guardians having voted for him, and three having voted for the other candidate.

Dr. Johnston's testimonials and diplomas were of a very high order, and I think the Guardians exercised a sound discretion in appointing him, in preference to the other candidate. The Board next examined the applications for admission to the house, admitting 48 and rejecting 44. On Saturday last, the house contained 458 inmates; with the admissions to-day there are now in it 506 souls.

Of the 44 rejected, many had a long distance to travel after dark, to their wretched homes.

The Guardians seemed unprepared for the rush made to the poor-house to-day, although, ever since my arrival in this Union, I have not ceased to urge upon them the necessity for abandoning a hopeless struggle against out-door relief, and that it was mere false economy to defer the salaries of the relieving officers, when, for weeks past, those officers might have been usefully employed, in ascertaining the actual condition of the population in the respective districts; in preparing to meet the claims of the really destitute, and in overthrowing the schemes of the designing and fraudulent. The Board instructed the clerk to write to each Guardian, requesting his attendance on the next day of meeting, to assist in carrying out the necessary measures for affording out-door relief. The relieving officers are to be in attendance on that day, to receive full instructions, &c.

The Guardians seem determined to act energetically now, but they have been somewhat dilatory, and I can only trust that no loss of life amongst the poor, may result from the attempt to stave off the system of out-door relief.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 20, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day. There was a full attendance of Guardians.

After the transaction of the ordinary routine business, the relieving officers were called before the Board, and informed that their respective salaries were to date from the 1st of the present month; and they were instructed to inform themselves on all points connected with their duties, and to ascertain as speedily as possible the condition of the necessitous families within their districts.

To enable them to do this, they were handed the duplicate Relief lists in use under the Temporary Relief Act, and advised to consult the members of the former Relief Committees under that Act, and were further instructed to confine provisional relief to parties legally entitled thereto, to give no assistance outside the workhouse to the able-bodied class, unless in cases of sickness or inability to work, owing to accidents or temporary disablement; and further, to take every precaution to prevent imposition being practised against them by persons holding more land than a quarter of an acre.

The medical officer reported to the Board that the house was too full, especially as sickness, in the shapes of fever and diarrhoea, was rapidly increasing within it.

I urged on the Guardians the necessity of immediately reducing the numbers in the house, by handing over to the relieving officers a portion, at any rate, of those classes who are eligible to out-door relief, without application being made to the Commissioners.

Accordingly, the registry book was gone over, and 105 paupers are to be discharged from the poor-house to-morrow.

On Monday next I hope to effect a further reduction.

Indian meal will be furnished to-morrow to the relieving officers, to distribute food (when practicable in a cooked form) to the out-door paupers.

The rate collectors were called in, and ordered to attend the clerk on Friday next with their collecting books, receipt check books, and receipt abstract books.

During the last week the collectors have got in a very trifling sum, owing to their having been engaged in executing levy warrants, granted for the collection of arrears on the previous rate, prior to the making of the present one. The collectors met with considerable obstruction in this matter, and unless vigorous measures are taken to enforce the collection of the present rate, and proper assistance afforded to the collectors, I much fear there will be great difficulty in realizing sufficient funds to carry on the ordinary in-door expenditure of the Union, to say nothing of that which will be required for out-door relief.

With the admissions to-day, 485 souls will sleep in the workhouse to-night, but, as I have stated above, 105 paupers are to be discharged to-morrow morning.

REPLY to the above:—December 27, 1847.

I AM to remind you that, except in cases provided for by the 7th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, viz., cases which are sudden as well as urgent, the ordering of relief rests solely with the Board of Guardians, the duties of the relieving officers being confined, except as regards the class abovementioned, to inquiring into the cases of applicants for relief, reporting to the Board of Guardians thereon, and afterwards dispensing the relief which may be ordered by the Board.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 27, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, and beg to submit the following report thereon.

The routine business having been disposed of, the Board, in compliance with a few suggestions offered by myself, agreed to take immediate steps for organizing a system of industrial occupation amongst the inmates of the house.

Milford Union.

Hitherto, nothing whatever has been done in the way of affording industrial employment to the paupers within the house, and the day-rooms have consequently been crowded with idlers cowering round the fires, fighting for the best places, consuming the livelong day in idle talk, acquiring no moral or decent habits, and consuming an unlimited quantity of coals to keep circulation, unstimulated by exertion, from stagnation.

The consumption of coals in the Milford Union workhouse during the few weeks I have been here, has averaged from 9 to 10 tons per week; whereas in other workhouses of the same size (Letterkenny house for instance), from $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 tons have been found sufficient.

I called the attention of the Guardians to this, among other extravagant items of expenditure, at the second meeting of the Board which I attended, and have on every Board-day since insisted on the proper remedy being applied.

At last, as you will observe from the minutes of to-day's proceedings, the Guardians have determined to check reckless expenditure, and, at the same time, have taken initiatory steps to provide useful and wholesome occupation for the pauper inmates of the house.

The Board next agreed that the hour of meeting should be changed from 12 o'clock to 11 o'clock, subject, of course, to the approval of the Commissioners, and I think the earlier hour of the two would be preferable, inasmuch as a great variety of business has to be transacted at the Board meetings, which cannot be overtaken after the present hour of meeting without compelling the Guardians to travel home after dark, over roads to which, comparatively, nullahs would be easy and safe.

There would be a better attendance of Guardians from the distant electorates if they saw any chance of reaching home before nightfall. As it is now, they seldom come, and they represent the most destitute districts within the Union.

The collectors (by their own account) were actively engaged during the past week in endeavouring to obtain payment of the present rate, but their success has been anything but great. The whole sum realized by them only amounted to 95*l.*, and some odd shillings. One collector obtained nothing, another only 13*s.* 6*d.* They told me they seldom "take much by the first call." I instructed them to call on the immediate lessors first, as the Guardians must be put in funds as speedily as possible; and in this Union the large amount of rate has to be paid by immediate lessors.

The relieving officers were in attendance with their books, and several parties coming within the provisions of the 1st section of Act 10 Vict. cap. 31, who could not be admitted to the workhouse in consequence of its crowded state, were handed over to the relieving officers as fit subjects for out-door relief.

Destitution is frightfully on the increase. There is no employment for the able-bodied poor, and I fear it will be necessary for the Commissioners to authorize, very shortly, out-door relief to that class. Numbers of them have given up their small holdings to the landlords, and their houses have been in very many instances thrown down. Indeed, the classes eligible to out-door relief under the 1st section of the Act, cannot be turned out of the house to make room for the able-bodied, as they have no place to go to for shelter from the winds of heaven. Within the last three months almost every landlord or occupier has, on the admission of such parties to the workhouse, instantly levelled their wretched hovels with the ground; thus making permanent paupers of these classes. It would not be affirming too much to say there has been a race to get these classes into the workhouse, for the purpose of clearing the particular lands of them.

The law of residence, as defined by Act 10 Vict. cap. 31, is not taken into consideration by the Milford Board of Guardians when making paupers chargeable to electorates, or the Union at large. They (the Guardians) have an understanding among themselves on this point, but I am humbly of opinion that, unless the law be put in practice, the unhousing of the population (except in the workhouse) will lead to a sacrifice of life. Were the law put in force, three-fourths of the paupers of this Union would be chargeable to it at large, as they are, and have been, from childhood, a wandering mendicant race, and it would be difficult to find a family who had resided 30 months out of the last 36 in any one electorate.

Let the law of residence be properly enforced, and the inducement to immediately clearing lands of paupers would be in some measure removed. Time would be afforded for devising and carrying out improvements in agriculture and husbandry, and those who are now being rendered houseless outcasts and permanent paupers, might be rendered capable of supporting themselves, and of adding to the prosperity of the landlord and tenant.

The medical officer (Dr. Molloy) spoke to me to-day in reference to your letter to the Board of Guardians, disallowing the increased dietary to the women engaged in the laundry, and asked me to state that he considers the increased dietary ordered at his suggestion to be given to the night nurses in the infirmary and fever sheds perfectly necessary for the preservation of their health amid contagion, and therefore hopes you will not apply the rule of disallowing the increased rations to them.

I may mention, that out of 410 inmates of the house, 78 are at this moment in the infirmary and fever sheds. The former department is overcrowded, and the medical officer wishes to be allowed to remove the old infirm people who have no epidemic disease, or any, indeed, except that arising from a decay of nature, to the infirm wards in the body of the house, if you will sanction his doing so.

Should you do so, he is of opinion the general health of the house would be benefited thereby.

A very painful matter was mentioned at the Board to-day. A widow and two children were discharged on Tuesday last to go to Carronkeel to receive out-door relief, the mother having been given a ticket to the relieving officer. She set out on her journey, was not strong, and going into a waste house, laid down and died. The coroner held an inquest on the body to-day. I have not heard what the verdict was, but I distinctly told the Guardians they should not discharge any but those who had homes to go to, and who were in a condition to reach them before night-fall. I will communicate further on this matter when I am in possession of the particulars.

REPLY to the above:—December 30, 1847.

WITH reference to that part of your report which relates to the industrial employment of the workhouse inmates, the Commissioners request that you will be so good as to furnish them with the details of the suggestions made by you to the Board of Guardians on this subject. The Commissioners merely make the request with a view to their own information; they desire, however, to add, that the subject is not referred to in the Guardians' minutes of Monday last.

As regards the collection of the rate, the Commissioners rely upon your adopting every means in your power to stimulate the collectors, and to ensure a prompt and efficient collection of the rate; and on this head the Commissioners desire to call your especial attention to their circular letter of the 26th October last.

With reference to your statement, that the classes eligible for out-door relief, under the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, cannot be turned out of the house to make room for the able-bodied, as they have no place to go to for shelter, the Commissioners desire to remind you that the Guardians have full power to grant sufficient out-door allowances to these classes, for lodging, clothing, and fuel, as well as food; and the Commissioners are of opinion that such allowances ought to be given where necessary, and that under the present circumstances of Milford Union, it will be found more economical to give them, and thus to keep the workhouse available, as a test for the able-bodied applicants for relief, than to allow the classes to whom out-door allowances might legally be given under the 1st section, to remain in the workhouse, and thereby render it absolutely necessary, owing to the want of workhouse accommodation for the able-bodied, to authorize out-door relief to that class, under the 2nd section.

With reference to your observations in regard to the Guardians' neglect of the law of residence, as affecting the chargeability of paupers, and the importance of putting that law in force, I am to request you will be so good as to state in what respect, and in what way, the law is departed from, and what is the understanding on the subject, which you state the Guardians have among themselves.

With regard to the increased dietary to certain inmates of the workhouse, the Commissioners desire to state, that although as a general rule, departures from the established dietary, in favour of particular paupers, are objectionable, the Commissioners do not think that the rule is applicable to the case of the paupers who are employed as night nurses in the infirmary and fever sheds; and if the medical officer is of opinion that extra allowances beyond the ordinary diet, are necessary, in order to preserve the paupers so employed in health, such allowances may properly be given.

As to the wish of the medical officer to be allowed to remove the old infirm people from the infirmary wards to the body of the house, the Commissioners would suggest the propriety of granting out-door relief to the individuals referred to, taking care that such allowances are sufficient to secure them from suffering by either cold or hunger.

The Commissioners will be glad to receive the particulars relating to the case of the woman referred to in your report, as having been discharged from the workhouse, for the purpose of receiving out-door relief, and who died on her way home.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 27, 1847.

I BEG to report that the Milford Board of Guardians will gratefully avail themselves of the offer of Government to erect an oven on the workhouse premises for the purpose of baking bread for the support of those requiring out-door relief within the Union.

The grounds around the workhouse are not enclosed, and the Guardians are of opinion that the best place for erecting the oven will be at the back of what is now used as the coal-cellar. There is ample room, a chimney into which the flues could be conducted—a supply of water close by—and the bread when baked, could be put into the carts at the back gate for delivery to the several relieving officers.

It would be necessary to build up the present coal-cellar door, and to strike a fresh one out at the gable end of the building.

How are the Guardians to proceed? Will an officer be sent to look at the proposed site, and report thereon?

The sooner the oven can be erected, and brought into operation, the sooner the Guardians will be able to grapple with the difficulties of out-door relief.

The present system of giving dry meal is highly objectionable, and yet if an oven is to be put up, capable of baking a sufficient quantity of bread for the wants of the Union, it would be injudicious to enter into expensive arrangements for storing provisions in dangerous localities, and organizing a staff for cooking and administering stirabout.

The Guardians could take contracts for having the bread carted to the several relieving officers, and as Milford is very central to the Union, there could be no difficulty in having it delivered during daylight to them.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 31, 1848.

I BEG to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 30th December, 1847, and to submit the following report, with reference to the points on which you desire information.

The details of the suggestions offered by me to the Board of Guardians, with relation to industrial employment in the house, were in substance as annexed. I told the Board it was painful to observe the inmates of the house engaged in no useful occupation whatever, and that it appeared to me that much might be done by the Board, to remedy such a state of matters; that they, the Board, might purchase flax, two or three sets of hackles, a few spinning wheels, and even two or three looms, and thus find work for both sexes of all ages; that they might purchase wool, skins, and carding-brushes, with a similar view; that they might instruct the master to find out what useful trades the different inmates had at any time pursued, shoemaking and tailoring, for instance, and then set such parties to work at their respective trades, and make them instruct others; that in like manner, basket-making, and mat-making, and various other branches of industry might be introduced. That pauper women who could cut out and shape materials for clothing, should be made to do so, and that the schoolmistress should be instructed to select the best sempstresses to make it up. In short, that where at all practicable, everything, whether clothing or other articles required for the use of the house, should be in some measure produced by the labour of those who are clothed, fed, and housed at the expense of the rate-payers. That a habit of industry should be kept alive among the destitute, and where that habit did not exist, it should be inculcated and enforced in practice. That of course the Board of Guardians should not think of making pauper inmates produce articles for the market; but that they were fully justified in making the paupers obviate, as far as possible, the necessity of the Guardians going to market. I moreover suggested to the Board, that were they to cut down extravagant items of expenditure, coals especially, the saving affected in such items, would enable them to accomplish the first outlay necessary for organizing an industrial system within the house.

With reference to that part of your communication which bears on the power of the Guardians to find lodging, clothing, and fuel for the recipients of out-door relief, I beg to state that at every meeting of the Board, I not only told them they had such power, but that they were bound to execute it, whenever and wherever the necessity for so doing should arise; but notwithstanding more than one Guardian (being agents) told me they had thrown down, and would continue to throw down the hovels of paupers finding admission to the workhouse. The effect of such a system, is to make the proprietors who have no paupers on their land, pay in an unfair ratio for those of their less scrupulous neighbours, in addition to the risk which such proprietors run, of having pauper lodgers fixed on their properties by the Board of Guardians and the relieving officers.

With regard to the law of residence, I have to repeat that the Milford Board of Guardians do not carry out the 12th section of the Act 10 Vic., cap. 31; were they to do so, three-fourths of the paupers now chargeable in single electorates, ought to be transferred to the Union at large, that is, if paupers who cannot establish a residence of 30 months in any one electorate, out of the 30 months previous to their application for relief, be eligible to any assistance.

The Milford Board of Guardians pursue the old system of charging a pauper to the same electoral division, as that to which at any previous occasion he was made chargeable, and in cases where a pauper now entered the house for the first time; they charge him to that electorate in which he may have been resident for the last 12 months, or more, previous to his admission; or to that one to which his vagrant visits may have been most frequent.

As long as the Guardians pursue this system, vagrancy and mendicity will prevail, for there is neither a sufficient police force, nor sufficient energy among the better classes of society to put them down.

If I am right in supposing that paupers who cannot establish a claim of residence on a single electorate, are chargeable to the Union at large, and if the rate were to be enforced, self-interest would soon operate with those who would have to bear the tax, and induce them to confine paupers to the districts to which they properly belong.

Till this is done the Vagrant Act will remain a dead letter, and the monster evil of the country remain unremedied.

With regard to the death of the poor woman, Margaret Haggerty, who died on her way to her home, in Tanet, I have to report that I have it from chief constable Cassidy, stationed at Ramelton, that he was present at an inquest held on the body, and that the poor woman never got farther on her way home than half a mile beyond Milford. She had her four children with her; it appears she slept in Milford on the Tuesday night on which she was discharged from the poor-house, and set out on her way home on the following morning, but feeling unable to proceed more than half a mile, lay down under a hedge, where she was found by a man who pointed out a waste house near, and she having crept into it, he furnished her with straw for bedding, and some turf for fuel. The poor woman sent her eldest son, a mere lad, with the ticket given her by the relieving officer, at Tamny, describing her situation, and begging to be sent for; on the evening of the same day (Wednesday), she sent her second son on a similar errand, having heard nothing from the eldest; on the following morning (Thursday), she was found dead in the empty house, and her remaining two children asleep by her side. From Tuesday night to Thursday morning, the poor creature was within half a mile from the relieving officer of Milford, who would have attended to the case, had any one informed him of it. The jury brought in a verdict of "died of cold, and want of sufficient nourishment."

On the Tuesday alluded to (December 21), a great number of paupers were discharged from the poor-house to receive out-door relief, and this poor woman amongst them. A great part of the day was occupied in taking the workhouse clothes from them, and restoring their own, and thus it was the evening before Margaret Haggerty was discharged. The fact is, had she been discharged in the morning, she was not fit to undertake the journey she had to go, and if the master had had any discretion, he should either have retained her in the house, or sent her in a cart to her destination. Still it is strange that no one mentioned the case to the relieving officer at Milford, for it was known to many on Tuesday evening.

Milford Union.

The Guardians were much shocked at the dreadful termination of this case, and will take care in future, that infirm paupers shall be conveyed to their homes.

The two children who were found with their mother, were taken into the workhouse, I have not as yet learned whether the other two reached the relieving officer at Tamny, but will report to you as soon as I have seen him, and ascertained what he knows of the case.

REPLY to the foregoing :—January 6, 1848.

THE Commissioners propose to address the Board of Guardians at their next meeting, on the subject of that part of your report, which relates to the law of residence as defined by the 12th section of the 10th Vict., cap. 31.

With reference to the case of Margaret Herraghty, who died on her way home, after being discharged from the workhouse, the Commissioners think that the matter should be fully investigated by you.

It appears from your statement, that the woman was discharged from the workhouse on Tuesday evening, that she was not then in a fit state to undertake the journey she had to go; that she slept in Milford on Tuesday night, and commenced her journey on the following morning; that although her case was known to many in Milford on Tuesday evening, it never came to the knowledge of the relieving officer; that when she found herself unable to proceed, she sent two of her children at different times of the day to the relieving officer, describing her situation, and begging to be sent for: it does not, however, appear whether either of the children reached the relieving officer, but on the following morning the poor woman was found dead in a waste house, with her two youngest children asleep by her side, the two whom she had sent to the relieving officer not having returned.

On this statement of the facts of the case, the Commissioners think that there are several points which require explanation. It should be ascertained whether the master was or was not aware of the state in which Margaret Herraghty was, when he discharged her, and whether her state was known to the Board of Guardians, when her discharge was ordered. It should also be ascertained whether the children found the relieving officer to whom they were sent, and if so, why he did not attend to the case, or if not, whether there was any difficulty, which prevented their making the case known to him, and which any other arrangement than those existing would have obviated; and generally it should be also ascertained, whether any blame is, or is not to be attributed to any party charged with the administration of relief to the destitute in Milford Union.

With this view the Commissioners request you will be so good as to take evidence on oath on the circumstances connected with the case, and report specially to the Commissioners respecting it.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 4, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to submit the following report of the proceedings at the meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday.

After disposing of the ordinary routine business, the Guardians examined the Application and Report Books, and the Receipt and Expenditure Books of the relieving officers, and were engaged for a considerable time in deciding upon the claims of the applicants for relief, and in determining upon the nature, amount, and duration of the relief to be afforded.

Destitution is daily increasing throughout the Union, and the number of candidates for admission to the workhouse yesterday was so large, that the Guardians could not possibly see one-half of them. All they could do was to have the able-bodied class selected from the crowd, and taken into the workhouse. The other classes were handed over to the relieving officers, with instructions to afford them provisional relief until next Board day.

The Guardians determined to adjourn the meeting to Thursday next, at 11 o'clock, for the purpose of having all classes coming under the 1st section of the Act, 10th Vict., cap. 31, discharged from the workhouse, and conveyed to their respective localities, to receive out-door relief; thus hoping to make sufficient room for the reception of the able-bodied class; but I much fear it will be found, that a poor-house, double the size of the Milford one, could not contain the paupers of that class within the Union; and that your order for extending out-door relief to it, will very shortly have to be issued in order to save life.

Millford Union.

The collection of the rate goes on very slowly, and the collectors must be compelled to serve the legal notices on the rate-payers, and proceed against them before the magistrates, or the Guardians will not long have the means for meeting the support of those who must receive out-door relief.

In two or three of the worst electorates, the whole rate, if collected, would not, I am convinced, suffice for the support of the destitute within them, for a longer period than six weeks.

The Board of Guardians are forced to take the rate, as it is collected, to meet the exigencies of out-door relief, and there is danger that the contractors for the house, to whom they are largely in debt, will refuse to extend credit to them much longer.

The rate collectors were summoned to attend the meeting of the Board on Monday week.

You will observe from the minutes, that the state of the poor-house, as regards cleanliness, and other matters affecting discipline, is far from satisfactory; and I fear the master is deficient in energy, and has but little aptitude for performing his duties, with that degree of method and system, so necessary to the proper regulation of the internal economy of the workhouse. His only excuse is, that hitherto he has not been supplied with all the requisite matters for having the house put into a thoroughly clean state.

On this account, and because his dismissal just now would occasion great inconvenience and confusion, I (and Mr. Otway takes the same view as myself) abstain from recommending it.

The Guardians have given him one last chance of holding his situation.

What I have reported with regard to the master, applies equally to the matron.

I beg now to put you in possession of all the further particulars which I have been able to learn with reference to the death of Margaret Herraghty, since I reported to you on her case on December 31, 1847.

I cross-questioned Mr. White, the relieving officer, as to whether either of the poor woman's sons whom she sent to him, on the Wednesday morning, had reached him, and he told me he never heard of the poor woman till after her death, and that neither of the sons had applied to him. In this he was corroborated by the poor woman's eldest son, now in the poor-house. He (the son) told me he went to an uncle, instead of to Mr. White, thinking his uncle would send a cart to take his mother home. The second son did not go to Mr. White, and his present residence is unknown. He is probably wandering about from house to house. The master states most positively that, in accordance with the instructions given him, he discharged the woman at 12 o'clock noon on the Tuesday, and not in the evening as alleged; but that he was aware she lingered about the house outside for some time, being unwilling to leave it, and being dissatisfied with her own clothes, which had been returned to her.

REPLY to the above:—January 8, 1848.

IN reference to your observations as to the increasing destitution in the Union, and the prospect of its being necessary for the Commissioners to issue their order, authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied; I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that when all persons entitled to out-door relief, have been removed from the workhouse on out-door allowances, in order to make room for able-bodied men; and when the workhouse is, notwithstanding full, the Commissioners will be prepared, on your recommendation, to issue an order, authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men. In the meanwhile, the Commissioners issue a limited out-door relief order, a copy of which is inclosed, and they trust, that by acting on its provisions, the necessity for a further order will not immediately arise.

As regards the collection of the rate, the Commissioners desire to observe that the Legislature has given complete and ample powers for the enforcement of the collection; and the Commissioners rely on your using every means in your power to stimulate the collectors, and to compel them to take such steps as may be necessary, with a view to a prompt and efficient collection. The case of any collector who fails in his duty in this respect, should be reported specially to the Commissioners.

The Commissioners, by the Guardians' minutes of the 3rd instant, observe that the case of the master and matron is to be again brought under the notice of the Guardians on the 17th instant, and the Commissioners will therefore defer taking any step in the matter until after that date.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 7, 1848.

I ATTENDED the adjourned meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, and have the honour to report on the proceedings as follows:—

The Board went carefully over the Registry Book, and selected therefrom the names of 68 adults and children eligible to receive out-door relief; and having determined on the amount of relief in food and lodging money to be administered in each case by the relieving officers, instructed the master to discharge the said paupers after breakfast this morning; ordering him at the same time to provide for the conveyance of the infirm to their respective localities, and in no case, to discharge a pauper whom he believed to be in an unfit state to bear the fatigue of removal without first consulting the medical officer.

The Board appeared to be much indisposed to grant relief, in any other shape than food, having a not unreasonable dread of being called upon to give money for lodging and fuel in the majority of out-door relief cases.

I am humbly of opinion that it would be wiser and more economical for the Guardians, to order a liberal allowance of food to be supplied to the recipients of out-door relief, than to place money at their disposal.

The relations and friends of such recipients would in most cases, gladly give them shelter, provided they were able to throw a liberal supply of food into the common stock; but if a bare allowance of food be given, together with a small weekly payment of money, I apprehend the money will not be properly applied by the recipients. Instead of procuring lodging and fuel therewith, from my knowledge of the improvident habits of the people, I have no hesitation in asserting that they would expend it on tea, tobacco, and other articles not necessities. Payment in money for lodging and fuel, would be found to terminate in mere promises to pay.

The Board also determined to provide increased accommodation at the workhouse, by the erection of a shed in the girls' yard, to be used as a schoolroom and dormitory; and to-morrow, I am to meet the contractor for the erection of the fever hospital at the workhouse, with a view to obtaining from him a rough plan of such a shed whereon contractors who tender, may be enabled to base their estimates.

If the shed in the girls' yard be found to answer its intended end, and the pressure on the workhouse should continue or increase, a similar one will be erected in the boys' yard.

By the above means, the Board of Guardians hope to be able to keep the workhouse as a test, in the first instance, for all classes, whether they be able-bodied or otherwise.

REPLY to the above:—January 13, 1848.

WITH reference to that part of your report, in which you state, that the Guardians appear indisposed to grant out-door relief in any other shape than food, I am to state that the Commissioners consider it to be a question within the discretion of the Guardians, to give out-door relief to the impotent poor, either in money or food; and the Commissioners have laid down no regulation on the subject.

At the same time, the Commissioners deem it of the highest importance, in every Union wherein out-door relief to the able-bodied may become necessary, that, as far as possible, all the workhouse inmates entitled to relief under the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, should be put on the out-door Relief Lists. If this can be done by giving allowances of food only, the Commissioners do not raise any objections. If, however, the granting allowances in food only is made a reason for not granting out-relief to the impotent poor, and widows with two legitimate children, the Commissioners then deem it necessary to interpose; for then a point, in itself subordinate, is raised into such importance as to counteract the main policy of the Commissioners, as to making the workhouses almost exclusively available, for the relief of able-bodied men and their families.

The Commissioners, therefore, think, that one of the greatest mistakes which a Board of Guardians can commit in a distressed Union is, to retain in the workhouse, persons entitled to relief under the 1st section of the Extension Act, for any reasons connected with supposed abuses which may arise from money allowances.

In your letter of the 27th ultimo, you observed that the classes eligible for relief under the 8th section, could not be turned out of the house to make room for the able-bodied, because they had no place to go to for shelter. Now, in such a case, it appears to the Commissioners unreasonable merely to offer food to those who have no shelter; and the Commissioners, therefore, deemed it right to remark that the Guardians had sufficient power to grant out-door allowances for lodging, clothing, and fuel, as well as food.

With regard to meeting such cases by what is termed a liberal allowance of food, this would only be effectual on the supposition, either that the paupers converted part of their food into money, and then, with such money, provided themselves with lodging, fuel, and clothing; or that they bartered their food for lodging, fuel, and clothing. But the Commissioners think that both these alternatives are uneconomical, and otherwise objectionable.

The Commissioners rely on your carrying out the Commissioners' views on this head, and on your recommending the Guardians to consider the question of whether out-relief to the impotent should be granted in money or food, as altogether secondary at the present time, to the principle of making the workhouse available to the utmost possible extent, for the able-bodied.

With regard to the erection of the shed in the girls' yard to which you advert, I am directed by the Commissioners to request that you will be so good as to inform them whether the same shed is intended to be used as a dormitory and school-house. The Commissioners think that such an arrangement would be objectionable.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 10, 1848.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, and have the honour to submit the following report of the proceedings thereat.

After transacting a portion of the ordinary routine business, the Board, in accordance with a determination come to by them on the previous day of meeting, proceeded to examine the applicants for admission to the workhouse. The relieving officers were present, and took down the names of all applicants eligible to out-door relief under the 1st section of the Act, and your extended order of the 8th instant. There could not have been less than 300 applicants in all. Many of them would not stand the workhouse test; and this showed the Guardians the necessity for straining every nerve to keep the house as a test.

The pressure of applications for admission on Board days is excessive, as the persons applying do not go in the first instance to the relieving officers; and even where they do, they also present themselves at the workhouse. The relieving officers were instructed by me to prevent, as far as possible, any but able-bodied persons applying at the workhouse for relief, as the Guardians should have to deal with the classes at present eligible to out-door relief, through the several relieving officers only.

The pressure of destitution is such, that I recommended the Board to take advantage of the 6th section of the Act, and appoint a Committee of their members in the distant districts, to receive applications from poor persons within them, and report thereon to the Board.

Several hours were consumed in examining into the cases of the applicants for relief to-day, and there can be no doubt that a rush is being made on the poor-house, for the purpose of forcing a general system of out-door relief upon the Guardians.

That great destitution now prevails, and is increasing daily within the Union, there can be no doubt, and unless auxiliary accommodation at the workhouse is obtained, that afforded by it at present will not serve much longer, in the way of offering a test to the able-bodied. I therefore trust the Commissioners will sanction the proposal of the Guardians to run up sheds in the school-yards, for the purpose of providing dormitories and school-rooms for the children.

I also think it would be expedient to have some limit as to the age at which a pauper may be looked upon as able-bodied; numerous persons over 60 years of age and under 75 years, are returned by the relieving officers as able-bodied, and have to be received into the workhouse. Now, I am humbly of opinion, that after a person has reached 60 years of age, he or she cannot be expected to be sufficiently able-bodied to earn enough for the support of a family by manual labour; and that to such persons it would be good policy to extend a modified amount of assistance in the shape of out-door relief, in aid of what their diminishing strength enables them to earn; and thus to keep the house as a test for the young, strong, and healthy able-bodied classes alone.

The rate collectors were present, and you will see by the minutes that the Board of Guardians have (at my suggestion) called upon them to put the powers afforded them by the law into force.

During the course of last week, the collectors served the six days' notice on numerous rate-payers, and I beg to say I should have compelled them to do this sooner, had it not been that I was left in ignorance with regard to the actual state of the law.

Agents have been in the habit of giving separate receipts to joint occupiers for small sums (and that where no lease exists), the names of such occupiers being merely bracketed in the rate-books, without any reference to the immediate lessor.

How is the collector to levy in such a case? Is he to proceed against any one name, or all names jointly within the bracket?

In those cases where the property of immediate lessors is in Chancery, can the collector serve a notice of six days, or of fifteen days for payment of rates, on the receiver appointed by the Court?

One such receiver has refused to pay the rates.

The Board of Guardians adjourned till Wednesday next, when they intend to create as much vacant room as possible in the house, by ordering the discharge of all the paupers eligible to out-door relief, who may be in a fit state to be removed with safety, and for the transaction of business not overtaken to-day.

REPLY to the above :—January 15, 1848.

IN reference to the proposal to erect sheds in the children's yards, for the purpose of providing school-rooms and dormitories for the children, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they will raise no objection to the proposal, provided it is understood that the same sheds are not to be used both as day-rooms and dormitories; but they could not sanction the occupation of the same apartments by the children by day as well as by night, as they consider that such an occupation of them would be prejudicial to the health of the children. At the same time, the Commissioners think that it would be preferable to obtain some suitable building detached from the workhouse, to which the whole of the children might be removed under the charge of the schoolmaster and schoolmistress.

As regards your suggestion, that there should be some limit as to the age at which a pauper may be looked upon as able-bodied, and that it would be good policy to extend a modified amount of assistance in the shape of out-door relief, in aid of what the diminished strength of persons beyond that age may be enabled to earn, and thus to keep the house as a test for the young, strong, and healthy able-bodied classes alone, I am to state that the Commissioners are not prepared to lay down any general rule regarding the age at which a man may be considered to cease to be able-bodied. In England, it is usually considered that a man ceases to be able-bodied at the age mentioned by you (60); but at the same time there are many exceptions to this rule, for while on the one hand it frequently happens that men cease to be able-bodied before they attain the age of 60 years, on the other hand, there are many instances in which men retain their physical powers almost wholly unimpaired long after that age.

With reference to the suggestion, that a modified amount of assistance should be given in the shape of out-door relief to the partially disabled, in aid of what their diminished strength may enable them to earn, the Commissioners desire to state that such a course would be absolutely illegal, unless the Commissioners were to issue an order under the 2nd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, and that the principle involved in granting relief to persons in the receipt of earnings, (whether such persons are able-bodied or partially disabled) is fraught with dangerous consequences, and would, in the opinion of the Commissioners, be seriously injurious to the permanent welfare of the Milford Union.

With reference to your statement, that you would have caused the collectors to serve the usual six days' notice for payment of the rate, had it not been that you were left in ignorance of the actual state of the law, the Commissioners desire to observe, that the words in the collectors' warrant to which you allude, relate only to his own proceedings under his own warrant, and have no reference whatever to proceedings before the justice. You will see by reference to the 73rd section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, and the 152nd section of the Grand Jury Act, that the collector is authorized to proceed as soon as he shall have received his warrant; the sections referred to will be found at pages 53 and 130 of the compendium of Irish Poor Law, a copy of which has already been forwarded to you.

The Commissioners will feel obliged to you to procure from the clerk, and forward to them an exact copy of the entries in the rate book, in the cases upon which you wish to have the opinion of the Commissioners for the guidance of the collectors, and the Commissioners will then give the subject their consideration.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 12, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that no Guardians attended the adjourned meeting of the Milford Board to-day, and consequently the business untouched on Monday last, is still in arrear. A number of cases on the relieving officer's books are not yet adjudicated upon; and the workhouse is not cleared of all persons eligible to receive out-door relief, under the 1st section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, and your extended order of the 8th instant.

The non-attendance of the Guardians to-day, is perhaps attributable to the practice of adjourning from one day to a second in the same week, having only been introduced last week.

As there is to be a road sessions meeting on Monday next at Letterkenny, to which most of the influential Guardians will probably go, I intend taking steps to have a special meeting of the Board of Guardians summoned for as early a day as possible after that day; when I trust, there will be a full attendance of Guardians, especially of the most influential ones, to dispose of the present arrear of business.

It is matter for regret, that some of the influential Guardians have not of late been so regular in their attendance at the meetings of the Board, as could be desired.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. HORSLEY:—January 17, 1848.

THE Commissioners rely upon your taking every opportunity of impressing upon the Board of Guardians the great importance at this particular period, of duly and punctually attending for the discharge of their duties in relieving the destitute poor in the Milford Union.

I am at the same time, to state that if you think it desirable, the Commissioners will write to the several Guardians individually on the subject.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 12, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to transmit herewith the evidence taken on oath by me with reference to Margaret Herraghty's case, and also a copy of the evidence taken at the inquest on the body.

I beg to report that, from the evidence given before me, it would appear that neither the Guardians nor the officers of the house were aware of Margaret Herraghty's infirm state of health when she was discharged from the workhouse; that she was given a ticket to the relieving officer of her district, authorizing him to supply her and her family with the same allowances as other paupers receiving out-door relief; that, in consequence of 71 paupers having to be discharged from the workhouse on Tuesday, the 21st of December last, she did not leave the workhouse until 2 o'clock, or thereabouts, on that day; that she did not complain to the officers of the workhouse, or to any pauper within it, of being unwell or unable to reach her home; that after she was taken ill, and went into the waste house at Drumberne, no one told either the relieving officer at Milford, or the relieving officer of her own district, at Tamny, of her condition; that neither she, nor any one on her behalf, applied between Tuesday, the 21st December, and Sunday, the 26th (on which day she died), for her re-admission to the workhouse; that her son, Brian Herraghty, never applied to the relieving officer at Tamny; that his (Brian's) uncle was made aware by him of his mother's state, but took no steps to render her any assistance.

I referred to the medical officer's Report Book and found that Margaret Herraghty had been discharged as "relieved" from the workhouse infirmary on November 16, 1847, upwards of a month previous to her discharge from the workhouse; and Dr. Molloy deposed to this fact at the inquest.

Looking to all the circumstances attending the case, I am inclined to think that Margaret Herraghty's death was produced by natural causes rather than by "exposure to cold and want of nourishment;" and that, in all human probability, the event would not have been deferred had she remained in the workhouse. Perhaps the very circumstance for which she "thanked God," namely, the drying up of the ulcer in her back, may have been the proximate cause of her death—especially as she complained to Susan M'Bride (who gave evidence at the inquest) of being "bad with a dizziness in her head."

There seems to have been no harshness used towards Margaret Herraghty, either by the Guardians or the officers of the workhouse, in so far as I could discover; and her case appears to have been of that unfortunate kind in which blame is imputed to parties without strong grounds for so doing, but which, nevertheless, requires investigation.

ENCLOSURE.

EVIDENCE taken on Oath with reference to the Death of MARGARET HERRAGHTY, at an Inquiry held by Samuel Horsley, Union Inspector, at the Milford Union Workhouse, on Monday and Tuesday, the 10th and 11th of January, 1848.

Milford Union Workhouse, January 10, 1848.

Evidence of Mr. George White, Relieving Officer for the Electorates of Carrowkeel, Greenfort, and Glinsk.

First heard of the death of Margaret Herraghty on Sunday, the 26th of December, or on Monday, the 27th of December, 1847; not sure on which day. Neither received a list containing her name, nor a ticket authorizing him to afford out-door relief to her and her family. Was in his district all the preceding week. Heard that an inquest was held on Margaret Herraghty's body, on Monday, the 27th of December, 1847, but knows nothing further of the case.

G. WHITE.

Mr. George Buchanan, Relieving Officer for Milford.

* [Qy. 26th?]

Heard of Margaret Herraghty's death on Sunday night, the 27th* of December, 1847. Did not know till then that she had been discharged from the workhouse. Was not told by any one of Margaret Herraghty's being in his district and unwell. No application was made to him on her behalf. Made inquiries after her death, and was told by some persons, who were examined at the inquest, that they knew of deceased being in a waste house for a few days previous to her death.

JOHN BUCHANAN.

Milford Union Workhouse, January 11, 1848.

Thomas Alcorn, Master of Milford Union Workhouse.

Discharged from the workhouse on Tuesday, the 21st of December, 1847, Margaret Herraghty, and her four children. Discharged her by the order of Robert Patten, Esq., Guardian of the Woman's Electorate, who had been requested to point out to the master persons to be discharged for the purpose of receiving out-door relief. Desired Margaret Herraghty to go to the probationary ward before 1 o'clock, P.M., in order to give up the workhouse clothes and receive her own. Margaret Herraghty made no objection to leaving the workhouse, and did not complain of any mistake being made about her clothes, to the best of his recollection. Did not particularly observe her condition, but knew that she had been discharged, as relieved from the infirmary by the medical officer. Believes she got a ticket to the relieving officer; but in consequence of he (the master) having to discharge 71 paupers on Tuesday, the 21st of December, 1847, the schoolmaster assisted him in making out the tickets, and he cannot, therefore, positively say whether he or the schoolmaster wrote the ticket for Margaret Herraghty; but he is confident no pauper left the house without being given one. Cannot recollect any circumstance which would lead him to suppose that either the deceased, or any one on her behalf, made application for her re-admission to the workhouse. First heard of the woman's death on the day of the inquest. Never heard on any day previous that she was lying ill in any house.

THOS. ALCORN.

Miss M'Clure, Matron of Milford Workhouse.

I knew of Margaret Herraghty's having to be discharged from the workhouse by the order of the Board of Guardians. Saw her on the day of her discharge taking off the workhouse clothes, about 12 o'clock noon, and putting on her own; also saw her children engaged in a similar way. Saw her clothes aired at the fire. Did not think Margaret Herraghty in an unfit state of health to leave the house. Did not hear of any application being made either by Margaret Herraghty, or by any one else on her behalf, for re-admission to the workhouse. Did not hear Margaret Herraghty express any unwillingness to leave the workhouse.

SARAH M'CLURE.

Samuel Ellison, Porter of Milford Workhouse.

Recollects Margaret Herraghty and her children being discharged from the workhouse. Does not recollect at what hour of the day they were discharged, in consequence of his being engaged in finding the clothes of the numerous paupers who were discharged on that day, and Nathaniel Taylor kept the front door, whilst he (the porter) was so engaged.

Nathaniel Taylor, Pauper in Milford Workhouse.

Remembers keeping the front door of the workhouse on Tuesday, the 21st December, 1847; recollects seeing Margaret Herraghty leave the workhouse on that day, about 2 o'clock, P.M.; saw her little boy fetch some stirabout for her and her family a short time previous to her quitting the workhouse.

NATHANIEL TAYLOR.

Jane Duffy, Pauper in Milford Workhouse.

Recollects Margaret Herraghty being discharged from the workhouse on Tuesday, December 21, 1847; remembers to have seen the said Margaret Herraghty's clothes aired at the fire in the probationary ward on that day, and, to the best of her recollection, Margaret Herraghty was given stirabout about two o'clock on said day; Margaret Herraghty did not complain, in her hearing, of being too ill to leave the workhouse.

I recollect Margaret Herraghty being discharged from the workhouse on Tuesday, the 21st December, 1847, and think Margaret Herraghty got her own clothes about twelve or one o'clock on that day; saw her little boy bring down two tins of stirabout a little before two o'clock, and saw her and her children eating the same; shook hands with Margaret Herraghty before she left the house; she did not complain of being ill.

Brian Herraghty, Pauper in Milford Workhouse, and eldest son of the deceased Margaret Herraghty.

Brian Herraghty deposes that he went out of the Milford workhouse with his mother on Tuesday, the 21st December, 1847; that he remained all night with his mother at Pat M'Colgan's, at Farquhar; that on Wednesday morning following his mother desired him to go to Bunnaton, to his uncle "old Herraghty," to get a car and beast to take her down to Fannet, as she was unable to travel; that he accordingly went to his uncle, told him his mother's state, and the uncle said he would send a beast and car the next day, but did not do so; that his mother also gave him a ticket to take to Mr. White, the relieving officer at Tamny; that he did not take the ticket to Mr. White, having met Mr. White's brother-in-law (whose name he does not know), who said that Mr. White had bought, at his own cost, 400 cwt. of meal, and that it was all given away, and for that reason he did go to Mr. White; that he never sent any message either to his mother or the relieving officer; that he never saw his mother again, having remained at his uncle's till after her death, when he came to Milford, and was re-admitted to the workhouse; that he, his mother, and the three other children, got their breakfasts on the day of their discharge from the workhouse, and also a small quantity (one Irish pint) of stirabout about two o'clock, before they left the house; thinks it was about three o'clock before they left the house, as they were detained waiting for a ticket to the relieving officer; the sun had set before they reached Pat M'Colgan's house, distant about a quarter of a mile from the workhouse.

Lawrence Pearson,* late policeman, sworn—Lives in Drumberne; saw deceased woman first on Wednesday evening last; she had three children with her, and called at my father-in-law's house, and wanted lodging for the night. From the appearance of the woman being so like that of one having fever, she could nowhere procure lodging. Deceased complained greatly of cold, said her children were cold, and complained to deponent of being put out of the Milford poor-house at night on the day before; told deponent that she was very weak, unable to walk, but did not complain of hunger at that time, although she remarked that on the day before she did not get any dinner on leaving the poor-house. Deceased then went into and lit a fire in a waste house in Drumberne; deponent did not go to see deceased while in this house, but she previously told deponent that while in the poor-house she had had an ulcer in her back, and had been treated by the doctor, and that the ulcer or running was now, she thanked God, dried up. Knows nothing more until Sunday evening, the 26th instant, when he heard that the woman in the waste-house was dead, and immediately reported the same to the constabulary in Milford. This deponent saith no further.

Susan M'Bride sworn.—Deposeth that she lives in Drumberne; deceased, Margaret Herraghty, came to my house and wanted lodging; I was afraid to let her in; thought she had the fever. On Friday morning last made some stirabout for deceased; does not know whether deceased eat the stirabout or not; sent her some bread same night; sent her some broth on Saturday evening; heard the children of deceased crying about three o'clock on Sunday evening; they said they wanted a drink, and stated that their mother was asleep. Deponent then went into the house and found the woman dead, and immediately reported the same to her neighbours. The children were about three and five years old. The eldest boy was away at the time of his mother's death. Deceased further told deponent that she was bad with a dizziness in her head, and said she had not eaten anything for a long time, but did not complain of hunger, although she was thirsty and drank some milk. One of the children told deponent that its mother had taken the broth.

Nelly Sweeny sworn.—I live with my uncle, Pat M'Colgan, at the end of the town of Milford. On Tuesday evening last a woman, having four children with her, came to the house and asked lodgings; said she was weak, and could go no further; it was at that time nearly dark, and the woman told deponent that she had asked leave to remain in the poor-house all night, and would not be allowed. Deceased was lodged in Pat M'Colgan's house that night, and complained that her clothes when given back to her previous to leaving the poor-house were damp, and that she was cold; does not recollect hearing deceased complain of hunger; deceased left the house about nine o'clock next morning; deceased was very delicate looking, but did not complain of being unwell.

William Molloy, M.D., sworn.—I am dispensary doctor of Kilmacrenan and Milford, and live in Milford; I have examined the body of deceased woman, and have found no external marks of violence. From the appearance of the body and the evidence I have heard, I have no doubt that deceased is a woman who was under my care in the hospital of Milford poor-house, and was discharged from hospital not cured but relieved. I believe that deceased died from exposure to cold and want of proper food.

W. H. MOLLOY, M.D.

We find that the deceased Margaret Herraghty, otherwise M'Grory, died at Drumberne on Sunday, the 26th day of December, 1847, from exposure to cold and hunger.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 19, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that I attended the adjourned meeting of the Board of Guardians to-day. There was a full attendance of Guardians, and I took the opportunity of remonstrating with them on the impolicy and impropriety of long supineness on their part, in the present crisis; showing them that regular attendance, and careful and energetic attention to business on every Board day, were absolutely required, both to meet the general clamour for relief now raised by the labouring classes, and to enable the Guardians to resist it successfully in every case where they had reasonable grounds for coming to the conclusion, that it was either ill-founded or fraudulently preferred. The Board acquiesced in the general justice of my statements, and proceeded to dispose of the following business, which I sketched out for their consideration.

First. The collection of the rate.

Second. The clearance of the workhouse of all paupers at present eligible to receive out-door relief.

Third. Auxiliary accommodation either at the workhouse, or in its neighbourhood.

Fourth. The scrupulous examination of the relieving officers' Application and Report Books.

With reference to the collection of the rate, I called the attention of the Board to the fact, that although the collectors had been in possession of their books, &c., for more than a month, only 230% out of a rate amounting to 3180%, had been collected; and therefore summary proceedings must be adopted to enforce its payment. A resolution with a view to effect this, was placed on the minute book.

In order that the house might be clear of paupers eligible to receive out-door relief at present, the Guardians and relieving officers of the several districts went through the house, and selected such paupers, the master subsequently receiving the order of the Board to discharge them to-morrow.

The question of auxiliary accommodation, either at the workhouse or in its neighbourhood, was fully discussed; and the Guardians having agreed that no house or building of sufficient size to answer the end desired, could be obtained within the Union, determined on receiving from contractors, tenders for the erection of two sheds in the girls' yard, each to be 40 feet by 15, and to have the work commenced and finished, with all possible despatch.

On Monday last, the relieving officers' books had been partially examined, but there still remains a large arrear of cases to be investigated; unfortunately two of the relieving officers are in fever, caught in the execution of their duties, and consequently their books, &c., could not be satisfactorily gone into to-day. This is the more distressing, because those relieving officers' districts comprise that portion of the Union in which the greatest comparative amount of destitution prevails.

The Board of Guardians to-day displayed a much greater amount of energy, and of determination to do business, than has marked their proceedings on any previous occasion, since my coming to the Union; and I have great hopes they will continue to work zealously and untiringly in future.

Had they only, in compliance with my repeated solicitations, adopted the right course sooner, I am of opinion they would have been enabled to resist for a long period, any attempt on the part of the able-bodied classes to force on a general system of out-door relief. They may still, however oppose it for some time; and I shall not think of recommending an order for out-door relief to able-bodied paupers, to be issued by your Board, until it shall appear to me to be imperatively demanded for the preservation of life.

REPLY to the above:—January 25, 1848.

THE Commissioners presume that the Guardians have made provision for the discharge of the duties of the two relieving officers who are in fever.

Mr. HORSLEY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 24, 1848.

Milford Union.

I ATTENDED the meeting of the Board of Guardians to-day, and have the honour to submit the following report relative to their proceedings.

There was a tolerably full attendance of Guardians, and a considerable arrear of business was satisfactorily disposed of.

All the cases on the relieving officers' application and report books were gone into and adjudicated upon.

The rate collectors were called before the Board, and instructed to procure summonses against every rate-payer on whom the six days' notice had been served, unless he shall pay his rate on or before the 29th instant; and they were, moreover, ordered to go on serving the six days' notice against all defaulters without distinction.

This course, I doubt not, will ensure the speedy collection of a large amount of the rate.

The Board accepted Mr. Isaac Henderson's proposal to complete the sheds in the girls' yard for a sum of 220*l.*; and he (Mr. H.) undertakes to have them ready for the reception of the children in two months' time from this day's date.

The sheds are to be substantially constructed and slated, so as to render them permanently available as auxiliary accommodation in connexion with the work-house.

I was requested by the Board to endeavour to procure your sanction for the appointment of a second Guardian for the electoral division of Oughterlin at the election in March next.

The population of Oughterlin is only 1593, but the area of the division contains 9140 statute acres.

The Rathmullen division, containing a population of 2199, within an area of only 4423 statute acres, has two elective Guardians and one ex-officio, whilst Oughterlin is represented by one elective Guardian only.

There appears to me to be but one objection to the appointment of second Guardian for Oughterlin,—it would give a preponderating influence to a party representing the wealthiest and best conditioned section of the Union at the Board; but this objection might be obviated by your ordering the appointment of an additional Guardian for either the Carrigart or Carrowkeel division.

Should the Board of Guardians continue to act as energetically and zealously for the time to come as they have done on the last two days of meeting, there is every reason to hope that they will be able to overtake the management and necessities of the Union satisfactorily.

There is a point on which I am extremely desirous of obtaining your opinion and advice. I annex the circumstances out of which it arises in as brief a shape as possible.

At the close of the operations under the Relief Commission, four electoral divisions had considerable sums remaining to their credit with the Finance Committee, and those sums were paid to the respective treasurers of said electorates.

It so happens that those four electorates have large balances at their credit with the Union, and the old Relief Committees are averse to expending the balances of their relief funds until the sums at the credit of their divisions with the Union shall have been eaten up: their credit with the Union is only on paper, as the money has been taken to meet the exigencies of the Union.

Would the Board of Guardians be justified in refusing to make provision for out-door relief in those divisions where there are Relief Commission balances still available? And might they throw any responsibility attaching to the refusal of relief on those parties who object to applying the charitable funds themselves, and yet will not pay them over to the treasurer of the Union to be administered by the Board of Guardians?

The Relief Committees and the rate-payers would at once undertake the responsibility of relieving the classes eligible to out-door relief in their electorates, provided they had any guarantee that, when a fresh rate comes to be struck, the balances at their credit with the Union would be taken into account.

Can I, as your officer, give any assurance to the parties interested that they would be thus dealt with?

Milford Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—January 29, 1848.

WITH reference to the Guardians' request to have a second Guardian elected for the Oughterlin electoral division, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that they will give the subject their consideration.

With regard to the balances remaining in the hands of the treasurers of Relief Committees, the Commissioners desire to observe, that those balances should be paid over to the Board of Guardians, to the credit of the electoral divisions to which they belong, provided there are no fever hospitals for such divisions, to the maintenance of which such balances would be applicable according to the provisions of the Temporary Fever Acts. If paid over to the Board of Guardians, the electoral divisions to which the balances belong will be credited, and the next rate made on such electoral divisions will be proportionably less. But in any case the Boards of Guardians are solely responsible for making due provision for the relief of the destitute poor in all the electoral divisions of the Union, and they cannot divest themselves of this responsibility or throw any portion of it on the old Relief Committees or on any other parties.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 2, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report, that at the meeting of the Poor Law Guardians held this day, the proceedings of the Workhouse Extension Committee were approved of, and the suggestions of Mr. Wilkinson, the Architect, who on Tuesday visited the newly-rented premises, agreed to be acted upon. It is proposed to place therein about 400 children under the schoolmaster and mistress, and thus make room in the poor-house to that extent, for the able-bodied; but it will not be possible to have the premises ready to be occupied until the second week in January next, and no other premises could be had that would answer.

In the mean time, the pressure of deplorably destitute applicants for admission or relief is so great, that the Board have come to a resolution to apply to the Poor Law Commissioners for an order to allow, provisionally, out-door relief to the able-bodied; and they deeply lament the necessity, which might have been for the present avoided, had they earlier taken the active measures to provide more workhouse accommodation, and to set the collectors and relieving officers to work, which they have done lately, since my coming amongst them.

It is my duty to state that the necessity is urgent, arising from the great extent of the distress already existing throughout the Union, and more particularly along the western coast. Robberies, particularly of food, are beginning to be frequent; and outrages have commenced by persons in disguise breaking into houses and forcibly seizing arms.

It has been resolved to remove such of the inmates, disabled paupers, widows and children, as can be removed out of the workhouse, and have houses to go to, that they may be relieved at home, to the number of about 100, to make room for able-bodied paupers; but this step cannot yet be taken, for although most of the relieving officers have entered into securities, received the books and instructions, and are preparing to give out-door relief to classes entitled to it, the Guardians are nearly without funds, the balance in the Treasurer's hands, deducting needful payments made this day, being scarcely 150*l*. The collector's rate-book for the new rate of 3*s*. in the pound, will not be ready for signature until next week.

The reply of the Commissioners to the inquiry in my letter of the 29th, having reference to the duty of the relieving officer to receive all applications, came to my hands at the meeting to-day, but previous to its arrival, and my laying the same before the Guardians, a resolution had been passed, in effect to limit those officers to receive applications from, and enter on their list only such destitute persons as may be found by them, after due enquiry, to be legally entitled to relief. It was urged that overwhelming numbers would otherwise make it utterly impossible that these officers could act, and that the Board of Guardians could not have time weekly to go through the "application," and "report book," and decide on the large number of cases that would come before them.

A working and finance Committee was appointed at my suggestion originally, to examine into and report upon all matters whatever, connected with the expenditure and accounts of the Union. It was resolved that this Committee should also decide on the cases of all applicants for relief, brought before the Board weekly by the relieving officers.

I beg to state that, in my opinion, this Committee, with the latter heavy duty added to the former, will not be found to act well; the business of it will be thrown on two or three gentlemen, residents in or near the town of Listowel, who already complain of the great weight of work thrown upon them by the general absence of Guardians resident at a distance.

I strenuously recommended that district Committees should be appointed to aid the relieving officers, and decide on the claims of applicants, but this was objected to; yet in a Union of such great extent and large destitute population, I do not believe the duties will be carried on with regularity and precision without them.

Listowel Union.

In concluding this necessarily hurried report, I beg to state that the Board adjourned to meet again to-morrow, and from day to day, for the despatch of the pressing business before them.

REPLY to the foregoing:—December 7, 1847.

THE Commissioners have received the resolution of the Board of Guardians to which you refer, requesting authority from the Commissioners to administer out-door relief to the able-bodied; and the Commissioners have issued an order authorizing out-door relief accordingly for a period of two months.

A copy of the order is enclosed, together with a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have addressed to the Board of Guardians on the subject.

As regards the appointment of a Committee to decide on applications for relief which may be brought before the Board by the relieving officers, and your recommendation that district Committees should be formed to aid the relieving officers, the Commissioners desire to state, that such district Committees should only be appointed in accordance with the 6th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, and their functions should be confined to the performance of the duties contemplated by that section, viz., to receive applications for relief, to examine into the cases of the applicants, and to report to the Guardians thereon.

The general views of the Commissioners in regard to the appointment of Committees for assisting in the administration of out-door relief, otherwise than as provided by the 6th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, are set forth in the accompanying letters addressed by them to the South Dublin Board of Guardians, and to the Tipperary Board of Guardians respectively. The draft letters are forwarded for your information, and should be returned when perused.

ENCLOSURES in the foregoing LETTER.

ORDER AUTHORIZING OUT-DOOR RELIEF.

To the Paid Officers acting in execution of the duties of the Board of Guardians of the Listowel Union; to the Clerk and other officers of the said Union, and to all other persons whom it may concern.

WHEREAS it has been shown to our satisfaction, that, by reason of the want of room in the workhouse of the said Union, adequate relief cannot be afforded therein to destitute poor persons not being persons permanently disabled, or destitute poor persons disabled by sickness or accident, or destitute poor widows having two or more legitimate children dependent on them, and it is expedient to authorize and empower the paid officers acting in execution of the duties of the Board of Guardians of the said Union, to administer relief out of the workhouse to such destitute poor persons, for a limited time as hereinafter mentioned.

Now therefore, we, the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, do hereby authorize and empower the said paid officers to administer relief out of the workhouse, in food, to destitute poor persons not being persons permanently disabled from labour by reason of old age, infirmity, or bodily or mental defect, and not being persons disabled from labour by reason of severe sickness or serious accident, and thereby deprived of the means of earning a subsistence for themselves and their families, whom they are liable by law to maintain, and not being poor widows having two or more legitimate children dependent on them, for two months next ensuing after the date of this order.

And we do hereby make the following rules and regulations as to the granting, ordering, and giving of relief to all persons who shall be relieved by the said paid officers, under the authority of this order, that is to say:—

1. Every person relieved under the authority of this order, shall be relieved in food only, and such food shall, as far as is practicable, be cooked food.
2. Every able-bodied male person relieved under the authority of this order shall, so far as is practicable, be set to perform a task of work during eight hours at least of every day for which he receives such relief.
3. No able-bodied person who shall be in employment, nor any part of his or her family, shall receive relief as a destitute person under the authority of this order.

And for the more effectual administration of relief under this order, we do hereby authorize and direct the said paid officers to appoint so many relieving officers as shall be found sufficient from time to time, to superintend the labour of such persons as shall be set to work, in pursuance of the regulations in this order contained, and otherwise to assist in the administration of relief under this order, as the said paid officers, subject to our approval, shall direct.

Sealed with our seal, this seventh day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-seven.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS, Listowel Union :—December 7, 1847. Listowel Union.

THE Commissioners have had under their consideration the resolution passed by the Board of Guardians of Listowel Union, on the 2nd instant, to the effect that from the extreme destitution which prevails in the Union, and inasmuch as the workhouse is at present crowded, and the auxiliary workhouse under repair cannot be occupied before the 10th of January, the Commissioners be requested to issue their order, authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied.

The Commissioners have also had before them a report from their Temporary Inspector, Captain Spark, in which he states that the necessity for such an order is urgent.

The Commissioners have accordingly issued an order authorizing out-door relief, under the 2nd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, for the period of two months from the date of the order.

The Guardians will observe that no relief under this order can be legally given to persons in employment; that such relief must be in food only, and that no able-bodied man should receive relief except in return for work.

With regard to the nature of the work which should be offered to able-bodied men, the Commissioners recommend the setting able-bodied men to stone-breaking by taskwork, as a condition of relief; and as much will depend on the knowledge, firmness, and discretion, of those who may be appointed to superintend the stone-breaking, the Commissioners cannot too strongly urge the Guardians to be peculiarly careful in permitting themselves to be influenced by no other consideration than those of personal fitness, in selecting candidates for that highly important office.

The Commissioners will take this opportunity of observing that, in specifying the period of eight hours at least, in the day, during which every able-bodied pauper should be required to work, they have made allowance for the present season of the year, and for the possible circumstance that some of the able-bodied paupers may come to the stone-breaking from a considerable distance. It is not, however, by any means intended to prevent the Guardians from requiring work during a still longer period of time. The period of eight hours is, in fact, merely the minimum space of time in the day, during which every able-bodied pauper should give the value of his labour to the Union.

In conclusion, the Commissioners desire to remind the Guardians that the order is merely temporary; and they should in the mean time use every possible exertion to render the additional workhouse accommodation which is in preparation, available at the earliest possible period, so that the children may be removed, and the existing workhouse made available, almost exclusively, for the relief of able-bodied men.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS, South Dublin Union :—
October 20, 1847.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have had under consideration, the explanation of the Board of Guardians of South Dublin Union, respecting the appointment in each electoral division of a Sub-Committee under the Board, to superintend the relieving officers in the discharge of their duties under the Irish Relief Extension Act.

The Commissioners have likewise had under consideration, a report from their Inspector, Captain Huband, on the subject.

As the principle involved in the existence of these Committees, is of considerable importance for evil or for good; as the system of out-relief and of relieving officers is wholly new in Ireland; and as the effects of a course similar to that on which the Guardians are now entering have been fully experienced elsewhere, the Commissioners deem it right to express their opinion on the subject at the present time.

The Commissioners entertain no doubt that the appointment of these Committees is contrary to the spirit of the Irish Poor Relief Acts; and however excellent the intentions of those who are in favour of such bodies may be, the Commissioners are convinced, by extensive experience, that the existence of them will lead to pernicious consequences.

The system of out-relief established in Ireland by the Legislature is to be carried on by Guardians, acting as a Board, with paid officers under them. When a poor person applies for relief, the undivided responsibility of becoming thoroughly acquainted with all the circumstances of the applicant rests with the relieving officer of the district to which such applicant belongs; on the other hand, the undivided responsibility (except in cases of sudden and urgent necessity) of deciding whether the applicant shall or shall not be relieved at all, and whether the relief to be given shall be in the workhouse or out of it, rests solely with the Board of Guardians.

To render ordinary relief legal, it must be sanctioned by a majority of the Board of Guardians, and authenticated by the initials of the presiding chairman. The correct mode of proceeding, when an application is brought before the Board, is for the chairman to call upon the relieving officer to state everything which he knows respecting the case. When the relieving officer has concluded his statement, if any Guardian is aware of any material circumstance which has been omitted by the relieving officer, he should communicate the additional information to the whole Board; and the Board being thus put in possession of all the facts, should pronounce its final decision.

Neither the Irish Relief Extension Act, however, nor the regulations of the Commissioners, recognise any authority whatever in individual Guardians, or in any local body other than the Board of Guardians, to control the relieving officers, or to make an order for relief; and the Commissioners strongly recommend the Board of Guardians of South Dublin Union to be careful in keeping their own undoubted power in their own hands, and under no pretence whatever to recognise any authority in this respect, either directly or indirectly, in any individual Guardian or Committee.

Listowel Union.

The plea which has been usually advanced for a departure from the course above recommended by the Commissioners is, that individual Guardians or a Committee, who belong to the peculiar locality of an applicant for relief, are likely to know more of the case than the Board of Guardians. It will be found, however, that this plea involves a fallacy of reasoning as to time. It is perfectly true that before an application for relief is brought formally under the consideration of the Board of Guardians, an individual Guardian, or a Committee, is likely to know more of the case than the whole Board collectively. When, however, the Board of Guardians has assembled; when the relieving officer has stated everything which he knows respecting the case; and when the individual Guardian supplies whatever has been omitted by the relieving officer, the Board of Guardians ought to know as much as the Committee or the individual Guardian, when he first entered the Board-room, and they will frequently know much more. On the other hand, it is obvious that when the facts of the case are once fully known, the Board of Guardians is likely, in the majority of instances, to decide on the course to be pursued, in giving or refusing relief, with greater coolness of judgment and freedom from misleading prejudices than any individual Guardian, however excellent his intentions may be.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the GUARDIANS, Tipperary Union:—October 8, 1847.

WITH reference to the proceedings at the adjourned meeting of the Board of Guardians of Tipperary Union, on the 27th ultimo, at which it was deemed expedient to appoint Sub-Committees to examine the lists of the different relieving officers, I am directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to state that as a general rule they deem it undesirable that a Board of Guardians should be subdivided into Committees for the purpose of deciding on applications for relief, inasmuch as fewer abuses are likely to arise, if the cases are decided on by the whole Board.

At the same time, the Commissioners are aware that the amount of labour thrown on the Guardians may be so great as to render it necessary, for the due despatch of public business, that a division, or even divisions, of the Board should take place.

There is one suggestion, however, which the Commissioners desire to make on the subject, which they recommend the Guardians strictly to act on, viz., that in all divisions or Sub-Committees of the Board, one Guardian, at least, should be associated who is not of the particular district from which the applicants come, whose cases are to be investigated by such divisions or Sub-Committees respectively.

The Commissioners have to add that no such Sub-Committee or division should consist of less than three members.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 4, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that, at the meeting of the Guardians held yesterday by adjournment, the following was the most important business transacted.

The medical officers' report having represented that there was a great increase of disease in the infirmary, no less than 29 cases of fever, 27 of measles, and of small-pox 3, recommending that these should be immediately removed, I called the Guardians' attention to the necessity for it being done, and that not a moment should be lost to prevent a direful spread of disease among the inmates of the workhouse. There is a Temporary Fever Hospital Committee appointed, who have hired one small house, now getting ready, and others are being negotiated for; but some time must elapse before the patients can be removed. These premises are to be used only until the new fever hospital is ready; but I must call the Commissioners' attention to the circumstance, that the contractor is obliged to stop this most needed work for want of money, and that the sum of 200*l.* is requested to be furnished by the Poor Law Commissioners, which the advanced state of the building it is represented to me warrants the Guardians in applying for. It will be found noticed in the minutes of the meeting.

The Application and Report Books of six of the relieving officers were gone through, and the cases therein of such as are entitled to receive out-door relief under the Act 10 Vict., cap. 31, section 1, decided upon; and checks for money, to the extent of 10*l.* each, were supplied them to enable them to purchase and commence the distribution of Indian meal in the quantity of one pound to adults, and of half a pound to children under nine years.

In consequence of the low state of the funds of the Board, the clerk was ordered to apply to the treasurer to permit that the balance in his hands should be overdrawn to the extent of 250*l.*, to meet present exigencies, and until part of the new rate be gathered and paid in, to repay it.

I beg to report that contractors for supplies to the workhouse have, heretofore, not been called upon to enter into any bond for the fulfilment of their engagements, and contracts have consequently been broken, to the prejudice of the Union, and causing suffering and disease among the pauper inmates; the contractor for milk has failed to supply that article to the amount of 50 gallons daily, unnoticed; a resolution is now on the minutes to enforce the observance of the law on this head. The Guardians adjourned, after a lengthened meeting, until Thursday next, the day for the ordinary assembly of the Board.

I wish to state that it is my intention, so soon as the relieving officers are fully at work, to go frequently round amongst them, and see that they perform their duty honestly.

Listowel Union.

REPLY to the above :—December 7, 1847.

WITH reference to your observations that the contractor for erecting the fever hospital is obliged to stop the work for want of money, and that he is entitled to the sum of 200*l.* on account of his contract, which the Commissioners are requested to furnish, I am to state that the Commissioners received no application for this payment previously to the receipt of your report on yesterday, they, however, at once referred your communication to their architect, and have now received his recommendation that the money be paid, and they have accordingly given directions for an immediate remittance of the sum of 200*l.*

I am at the same time to state that, the Commissioners approve of your proposal to go round amongst the relieving officers, and see that they perform their duty honestly.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 9, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, the following as the principal business transacted at the ordinary meeting of the Board of Guardians held this day.

The Rate Books were duly signed, and a rate made on all the electoral divisions of the Union, and the warrants or Collecting Books were also signed and delivered to the collectors, who will at once proceed to collect.

The Finance Committee examined into some accounts and claims for payment, and made their report, and the clerk was ordered to obtain all outstanding unpaid bills.

I laid before the Board the order for out-door relief, which was received with thankfulness for the promptitude the Poor Law Commissioners have shewn in complying with their wishes; but such is the low state of credit in which the Union stands, or rather the Board of Guardians, through mismanagement and neglect of its affairs, that the treasurer has refused to advance them the trifling sum of 250*l.*, and to day it has been resolved to apply to the old Relief Committees, lately under 10 Vic. cap. 7, to advance them money which they have still in hand, to enable them to carry into effect the out-door relief so urgently called for, to save from positive starvation thousands of the destitute population, who, in the western districts particularly, are living on turnips alone, and seaweed, and such potatoes as after repeated diggings, may be found left in the fields.

Tenders having been advertised for supplying Indian meal to the depôts, only one man offered, and that at about 4*l.* per ton above the price it could be obtained for. This again is the result of the bad odour in which the Guardians are held as paymasters.

The medical officer's report showed the alarming state of the house; but I regret to say that with every effort made, it has not been possible to obtain premises for temporary fever wards. The Committee are promised that in two days hence they shall have possession of tenements that will hold about 50 parties.

Above 200 applicants for admission into the workhouse were necessarily rejected, after coming some of them twenty miles with their miserable families, many of them in a famishing state; and the Guardians very humanely ordered them a meal of bread to sustain them to endure their journey home. Their names were entered in the Application and Report Books of the relieving officers present, several of which were submitted to the Board for examination and decision of the cases, which caused the meeting to be a very lengthened one, and it was adjourned for to-morrow at 10 A.M., the proceedings of which I will report.

The medical officer reports "that there are 276 patients under medical and "surgical treatment in the workhouse hospitals, being more than one-third the "present number in the house. Of this number there are 45 in fever, "2 deaths, and 6 discharged convalescent since last Board's meeting, leaving "now 37 in fever, 82 in measles, 4 in small-pox, 31 dysentery, one of whom "has died; there are 120 in other diseases."

The medical officer states "that there are 211 in the infirmary alone, which "properly cannot accommodate more than 60 patients."

P.S.—I beg to remark that in the teeth of this report the rural Guardians urged strenuously that further admissions should be granted from the crowd of applicants clamouring outside, which I insisted most positively against, on the ground of humanity even, and I carried my point.

REPLY to the above:—December 14, 1847.

THE Commissioners trust that, as the collectors' warrants have been signed, no exertions will be spared to realize some of the rate immediately, and thus enable the Guardians to administer relief to the destitute efficiently. The Commissioners request you will be so good as to direct your special attention to this point, and they request also that you will confer especially with the Board of Guardians on the subject of the medical officers' report, and urge them to adopt every means in their power to render the sanitary state of the house more satisfactory than at present.

The Commissioners trust that the additional tenements to which you allude as sufficient to accommodate 50 patients, may be obtained without delay.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 11, 1847.

I BEG to report, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that at the adjourned meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union yesterday, the only business was the following:—

The remainder of the relieving officers' Application and Report Books were gone through, and the cases decided on.

And a resolution was come to that the relieving officers should be directed to offer to all applicants a ticket of admission into the workhouse, and that such as refused to receive the same should be reported to the Board.

It appeared to be considered, that this being refused would be a fair proof that the applicant could not be in a state of destitution, but it is obvious that when the house is full, all will say they are ready to accept it, and that as a test it will fail.

Out-door relief was commenced this day, to be given to the able-bodied in the Listowel district.

REPLY to the above:—December 14, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state that it is of course proper and desirable to apply the workhouse test as far as practicable, and while there is any considerable amount of workhouse accommodation available, the Commissioners think that out-relief ought not, under any circumstances, to be given to the able-bodied; at the same time they think, that if the Guardians and the relieving officers adhere strictly to the terms of the order, and are careful that the relief afforded is given in cooked food only, and that a task of work is required to be performed by each able-bodied person receiving such relief, they will find that these regulations afford, to a certain limited extent, a test of destitution, although such test is undoubtedly far less efficient than the test of a workhouse.

Listowel Union.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 13, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to return herewith the letter addressed to the Board of Guardians of the Tipperary Union, and the other papers sent me for perusal, containing the valuable opinion and suggestions of the Poor Law Commissioners, and the views of Captain Huband on the subject of sub-committees, and I fully concur in the same; but I beg to take the liberty to state my impression, that a staff of only 10 relieving officers in this extensive Union, containing a population of upwards of 70,000 souls, two-thirds of whom are in reality paupers, and will all be clamorous applicants for relief, if not legally entitled to it, is totally inadequate and cannot work. I believe it to be impossible that these officers can each week receive the names of all applicants, go to the houses and inquire carefully into the circumstances of each, take charge of the dépôts for food, and weigh out and distribute it, keep the books and accounts, attend the clerk at his office one day in the week, with the same for examination, and on another the Board of Guardians, coming, and having to return, many of them a distance of 10 or 15 miles.

I have expressed this opinion to the Guardians, and shall, after further experience, be prepared to propose, with the concurrence of the Commissioners, that there shall be appointed an increase of relieving officers, and of assistants also, if found necessary, properly to carry out the law.

At the full meeting of the Board of Guardians on Thursday last, the press of business prevented the consideration of appointing overseers for labour to be performed by paupers receiving out-door relief, but at the next meeting on Thursday next I will take care to bring the subject before them. These overseers might assist the relieving officers to distribute the rations.

REPLY to the above :—December 14, 1847.

THE Commissioners deem it undesirable that the relieving officers in the Listowel Union should have anything to do with the management of the dépôts; and that if the Guardians see this matter in the same light, the labour of the relieving officers will be materially lightened.

The Commissioners do not object to any moderate remuneration for those who are in charge of the dépôts.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 16, 1847.

AT a meeting of the Board of Guardians this day, a reply was received to the application made to the old Relief Committee for Listowel, under the Lord Lieutenant's order, for the loan of a portion of the fund still remaining in the hands of its Treasurer, in the form of a resolution unanimously agreed to by that Committee, at a meeting held yesterday, of which the following is a copy: "Resolved, that the secretary be required to inform the clerk of the Union in reply to his Circular of the 11th instant, that this Committee has authorised its treasurer to hand to the Board of Guardians a sum of 500*l.* as a loan, under the circumstances stated, and subject to the conditions specified in that letter; and provided, also, that the Board will take immediate steps to relieve the poor, and appoint at once such additional relieving officers as authorised and directed by the Poor Law Commissioners' sealed order of the 17th instant, and obtain the sanction of the said Commissioners to their receiving, and the Board of Guardians repaying the aforesaid sum out of the rates about to be collected, on the understanding that the Committee requires no interest nor remuneration of any kind for the use of the same."

And I am requested by the Board of Guardians to solicit the Commissioners' sanction, that the said loan of 500*l.* may be accepted upon the liberal sums offered by the said Committee.

P.S. I beg to state that I have not time to transmit a report of this day's proceedings, and save the post, which leaves this place at an early hour in the morning. I can merely state, that the necessary steps were taken at my request, to carry out strictly the order for out-door relief, with the exception of giving cooked food, which was deemed impracticable. The meeting sat late, occupied with the relieving officers' heavy lists of applicants, and adjourned to assemble again to-morrow morning at 10.

Listowel Union.

I will do myself the honour to report to the Commissioners by the next post.

REPLY to the foregoing:—December 18, 1847.

THE Commissioners will readily sanction the receiving and repaying the money on the terms proposed.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 18, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report for the information of the Commissioners, the proceedings of the Poor Law Guardians of this Union, at their ordinary meeting on the 16th instant, and the adjourned meeting held yesterday.

At the commencement of the proceedings I called the attention of the Board to the obligation it was under to afford relief to the able-bodied only, in accordance with the provisions set forth in the order under seal of the Commissioners, dated the 7th instant.

After considerable discussion, tending to show that in the present circumstances of the Union to provide cooked food was impracticable, a resolution to that effect was inserted on the minutes, and unanimously agreed to; but that able-bodied paupers should be set to task-work as soon as possible—to consist in collecting and breaking stones on the several unfinished roads, commenced under the Labour-rate Act, in fencing or other public works required in the several electoral divisions; and that a sufficient staff should be appointed to superintend such labour.

That the Guardians of the different electoral divisions be authorized to give effect to this resolution, by selecting the particular works, and to name stewards or overseers to superintend the same, subject to the Board's approval; and taking care that all such works shall, in accordance with the Commissioners' order, be task or piece work.

The proposed loan of 500*l.* from the Listowel old Relief Committee was thankfully received; and I was requested to ask the Commissioners' sanction, as stated in my letter of the 16th.

On the medical officer's report being read, I forcibly called the attention of the Board to the great spread of disease within the house, and the necessity for vigorous steps being immediately taken with regard to the same. A resolution was accordingly come to, that a further change of diet to one more nourishing should be adopted, by the introduction of bread and soup for dinner. And the Sanitary Committee was appointed with full powers to inquire into the causes of the great increase of sickness in the house, and to take such steps to arrest the progress of disease as they may consider proper.

The medical officer's report gave the following:—

Cases of fever	.	.	.	48
Measles	.	.	..	88
Small-pox	.	.	.	3
Dysentery	.	.	..	36
Other diseases	.	.	.	112

287

About 40 fever patients have been and are being removed to two temporary fever hospital wards; and another house hired for the purpose, will be ready in a few days.

Tenders for Indian meal and oatmeal were received and accepted for six months, at a much lower rate than previously offered; and after a prolonged sitting, devoted to a revision of the Relieving Officers' Application and Report Books, the Board adjourned until yesterday, at 10 A.M., to complete the whole, when five Guardians only assembled, including the Vice-Chairman.

I laid before the Board the Commissioners' letter of the 14th, in reply to mine of the 13th instant, in which I am informed that they deem it undesirable that the relieving officers should have anything to do with the management of the depôts, but that the Commissioners do not object to any moderate remuneration for those who are in charge of them.

Whereupon it was resolved, that the Guardians of the several districts should select proper persons to take charge of the depôts, and assist the relieving officers in dispensing relief; and report to the Board their proceedings thereupon at the next ordinary meeting.

In consequence of the absence of the Guardians for Kiltomy, Ballyheigue, Kilflyn, Kilmoily, and Ballylongford, the Board came to a resolution not to take upon itself the responsibility to decide upon the cases in the Application and Report Books of the relieving officers of those districts, until those gentlemen (the Guardians) attend to afford the necessary information.

The Board adjourned until Monday next, then to receive the report of the Sanitary Committee.

With reference to the resolutions above mentioned, come to by the Board of Guardians, to carry out the measure of out-door relief in accordance with the conditions laid down by the Commissioners in their order dated the 7th instant, to my letter of the 13th, and the reply to it dated the 14th, I beg leave to request that I may be informed what additional staff, and what rate of remuneration to each person employed, the Poor Law Commissioners deem necessary in order fully and efficiently to fulfil the said conditions, consistently with due economy; for although I have had some experience as Government inspector, under 10 Vict. c. 7, my ideas may not meet the Commissioners' views upon this subject, and I am not disposed to suggest anything, or to permit any step to be taken by the Board of Guardians, contrary to the latter.

I beg to report that there are already on the lists for out-door relief, about 3,500 heads of families and adults, and in the whole from 12,000 to 14,000 individuals, after scrutiny by the Board.

The collectors are out, and at the end of this week now closing, will have paid into the hands of the treasurer, it is supposed, about 250*l*. I have not failed to stimulate those gentlemen to use their utmost efforts to gather the rate, to meet the greatly increasing want in the Union.

REPLY to the above:—December 21, 1847.

WITH reference to the resolution of the Board of Guardians to which you refer, affirming that under the present circumstances of the Union, it is impracticable to provide relief in cooked food, I am to request you will be so good as to state, for the information of the Commissioners, the grounds on which the Guardians arrived at this conclusion. The Commissioners will be glad at the same time, to learn your own views on the subject.

With reference to your request for information as to what additional staff, and what rate of remuneration to each person employed, the Commissioners deem necessary, in order fully and efficiently to fulfil the conditions of the order of the 7th instant, I am to state that this depends to a certain extent upon local circumstances, and the Commissioners would recommend you to ascertain the rate of remuneration in the Listowel Union to similar officers under the Temporary Relief Act. When you have obtained information on this head, the Commissioners trust that you will not experience any material difficulty in making a specific recommendation on the subject.

In regard to your statement that, in consequence of the absence of the Guardians for certain electoral divisions, the Board came to a resolution not to take upon itself the responsibility to decide upon the cases in the Application and Report Books of the relieving officers of those divisions until the Guardians attend, I am to state that this is a course entirely contrary to the Irish Relief Acts, and that the responsibility of relieving the destitute in those divisions rests solely with the Guardians as a Board, and not merely with the Guardians of the electoral divisions.

Listowel Union.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 21, 1847.

IN reference to the great increase of fever and disease in the workhouse of this Union, as represented by the medical officer in his reports laid before the Board of Guardians on the 9th and 16th instant, the Sanitary Committee appointed to investigate the causes of the same, and to take steps to prevent the further spread of disease, have with myself, found reason to believe that great irregularities and abuses exist in the conduct of that department, and it is desirable that an investigation of the same should take place immediately, by competent medical authority; and I am requested to solicit the Poor Law Commissioners to permit Dr. Phelan, the Medical Inspector, to visit Listowel, to aid the Committee and myself in the investigation required. Should Dr. Phelan be absent from Dublin, and so far away from it as to render his early presence here impossible, I beg to request the Commissioners' sanction that some other medical person or persons may be called on by the Committee, for the purpose mentioned.

The COMMISSIONERS to MR. PHELAN :—December 24, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed copy of a report which they have received from their Temporary Inspector, Captain Spark, relative to the conduct of the medical department of the workhouse of Listowel Union; and I am to request that you will be so good as to proceed to Listowel, and institute the investigation suggested by Captain Spark, and report to the Commissioners thereon.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 23, 1847.

AT a meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union, held this day, the resolution subjoined was proposed by a legal gentleman, a member of the Board, Mr. Maurice Leonard, the Vice-Chairman, which was negatived, and an amendment adopted, that the question contained in it should be referred to the Poor Law Commissioners; and I am requested to lay the same before them, that a legal decision may be furnished to settle this point.

I beg to state that it is my opinion that such holders of more than a quarter of an acre are not entitled to relief under the Act 10 Vic., c. 31, s. 10: and I read to the Board the interpretation of the word occupier, upon which I grounded that opinion.

"That on considering the 10th section of the Irish Poor Law Extension Act, 10 Vic., c. 31, this Board is of opinion that its provisions are not referable to "score or con-acre tenants, and that persons having such holdings are entitled "to relief."

REPLY to the above :—January 21, 1848.

THE Commissioners have now received the opinion of counsel on the point, as to whether the provisions of the 10th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, are referable to score or con-acre tenants, and whether persons having such holdings are entitled to relief, and they are advised that, although the question is by no means free from doubt, the Judges have been inclined to hold, in those cases in which the point has been discussed in the Irish Courts, that from the peculiar nature of the contract, the party taking con-acre acquired a kind of easement and a right to farm in a particular manner a portion of land, the occupation of which was still retained by the landowner; and counsel is of opinion that the provisions of the Act referred to, would not be considered applicable to persons having con-acre. Something however might, he thinks, depend upon the custom in the particular locality.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 24, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report the proceedings of the Guardians at their ordinary meeting yesterday, the 23rd instant.

After the general business had been gone through, Mr. Leonard proposed the resolution relating to the score or con-acre holders, which I had the honour to lay before the Commissioners for their decision, in my letter of yesterday.

To carry out the order for out-door relief, 14 persons were appointed, at a salary of 7s. a-week, as store or depôt keepers, each under a bond and securities for 50*l.*, being one storekeeper to each depôt; and 21 persons, one for every electoral division, were appointed to be overseers, at a pay of 1s. 6*d.* for each working day, to superintend and measure the task-work of able-bodied paupers; and the Guardians of the several electoral divisions were authorized to hire, when necessary, horses and carts of indigent persons to draw stones and materials for the work selected.

I trust the Commissioners will approve of these appointments, and the rate of remuneration.

The medical officer's report was read, and exhibited a decrease of disease. Cases on the books: of fever 54, generally mild in its character; these have all been removed to the temporary fever hospitals: of measles 72, principally children: of dysentery 43: other diseases 97—total 266. There have died during the past week—of measles 5 children, of dysentery 3 persons, of other diseases, old age and infirmity 3—total 11.

It is my duty to report to the Commissioners that, it appears to be believed by several of the respectable members of the Board, that many paupers have been entered on the medical officer's books, and kept thereon; first, in order to make a show of numbers, and to give him a claim to an advance of salary; and secondly, to favour particular individuals, favourite inmates of the house, to whom, being on the sick list, he has ordered a higher diet.

These views have been supported by the facts that a notice has been given for an increase of salary to be moved for Dr. Rice, which no doubt his great increase of labour, at this time, fully warrants; and that many paupers are on his books, and are enjoying the best diet, who are apparently in good health, and not in the infirmary. On examination of the books, I find some of these have been on the sick list for upwards of twelve months.

It is true some jealousy and party feeling prevail amongst the Guardians here as elsewhere, yet there certainly do exist irregularities and abuses, and great want of economy in this department, that demand investigation by a competent medical man, unbiassed, and not of the neighbourhood; and I therefore recommended the request of the Sanitary Committee, made in my letter of the 21st instant, that Dr. Phelan should come to Listowel for that purpose.

At this meeting, several of the Application and Report Books, and accounts of the relieving officers were gone through, and the Board adjourned at 6, P.M., to meet again at 11 this day, when the remainder of the relieving officers' books were finished, and they were supplied with funds to commence generally the out-door relief.

A resolution was placed on the minutes, to be decided at next meeting, having reference to the great number of sick, and the prevalence of disease still in the house and fever hospitals, and stating the necessity for an additional medical attendant, who should be employed for a period of one month, or for a longer period if required. And the following is the copy of a resolution carried unanimously, the object of which the Board of Guardians hope, will meet the approval and support of the Poor Law Commissioners:—

“That the attention of the Commissioners of the Board of Works be immediately called to the several applications made for loans under the
“ from the baronies of Irraghticonnor and Clanmaurice, comprising this Union; from which, in many of the cases, no benefit has yet “ resulted, in consequence of the grants not having been issued, although most “ of the applications were made a very considerable time ago.

“The non-issue of those grants has greatly augmented the difficulties and “ distress of the labouring classes, who might, and in the opinion of this Board “ would, in several districts, be now in full employment, had the applications “ referred to received that prompt attention which it is considered they justly “ demand in the present circumstances of the country; surrounded as we are “ with difficulties unprecedented, from the want of employment amongst the “ labouring classes, which we consider the Act referred to was specially framed “ to meet.”

Listowel Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. PHELAN:—December 28, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the accompanying extracts from a report which they have received from Captain Spark, relative to the medical department of the workhouse of Listowel Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD OF WORKS:—December 31, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you, to be laid before the Board of Works, the accompanying extract from a report which the Commissioners have received from their Temporary Inspector, Captain Spark, relative to applications made by the Board of Guardians of the Listowel Union for loans.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 24, 1847.

IN reply to your letter, dated the 21st instant, in which I am requested to state the grounds on which the Guardians of this Union arrived at the conclusion that it is impracticable, under the present circumstances, to provide relief in cooked food, and to state my own views also on this subject; I have the honour to inform you that the Guardians so concluded because of the vast numbers of destitute, the necessity for immediate relief being given, and the totally unprovided state of the several very extensive relief districts of this Union for such a measure.

There are no boilers, nor are they to be had in sufficient numbers to feed many thousands of people, without very great delay, and expense also, as well for the boilers as the materials for, and cost of, setting them. The obtainment of cooking-houses, &c., for this Union could not, and did not, accomplish the distribution of cooked food during the late relief measures.

My own opinion is, that under the pressing circumstances of the moment—the people in many parts dying from want and clamouring for relief—that the Guardians have acted wisely and humanely in adopting the most prompt mode of meeting their wants, as otherwise outrages against persons and property would certainly have soon been manifested.

As regards my statement alluded to, that in consequence of the absence of the Guardians of certain electoral divisions, the Board came to a resolution not to take upon it the responsibility to decide upon the cases in the Application and Relief Books of the relieving officers of those divisions until the Guardians attend, I beg to observe, that the words “to afford the necessary information” should have been added; which will be found in the resolution on the minutes to which I referred, and beg leave now to refer—when it will be seen, I trust, that the course taken was not contrary to the Irish Relief Acts, there being no question as to the responsibility of the Board, as a Board, to give relief to the destitute. The members of it present considered they were using only a sound discretion in requiring the presence of those Guardians who chose to absent themselves when their presence was most needed at the Board to give the information required of them.

REPLY to the above:—December 28, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state, that the reasons stated in your letter may account for its having been impracticable to give relief in cooked food immediately on the receipt of the out-door relief order, but they do not justify the omission to make arrangements for introducing the use of cooked food at the earliest opportunity.

The expense of boilers does not seem to the Commissioners a valid objection, inasmuch as any expense for boilers would be far more than compensated by the greater effectiveness of cooked food, as a test of destitution.

In reference to your statement, that the people in many parts are dying from want of food, the Commissioners request you to be so good as to explain how this can be the case now, when the Guardians have full power to grant relief to able-bodied persons out of the workhouse; and the Commissioners particularly desire to be informed, whether you can speak of such cases from your own knowledge, and if so, the Commissioners are anxious to receive the details of all such cases.

Listowel Union.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 30, 1847.

IN my letter dated the 24th instant, whilst I gave the reasons of the Guardians for the assumed impracticability of giving cooked food immediately, I did not advance those reasons at all as justifying them in an omission to make arrangements for introducing it. I have already pressed the subject strongly on the Board's attention, and shall again at the next meeting. The Board have been occupied in revising the lists of the relieving officers and other matters, so as to preclude my insisting on it at the late meetings; I might have done so to-day, but I was obliged to absent myself early, being afflicted with influenza.

And in regard to my observation in the same letter, that in many parts the people were "dying for want," that observation, as the Commissioners will find if they do me the honour to re-read it, could only have reference to the misery and destitution prevailing previous to the distribution of out-door relief. It is within my own knowledge that many of the people were existing on turnips and seaweed; and it will be believed that on such food they could not be otherwise than in a dying state, as their looks, poor creatures, too plainly evidenced.

The Rev. E. M'CARTHY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 19, 1847.

IN your letter of the 30th ultimo you are pleased to state that "the Commissioners trust that the steps taken on the 18th by the Guardians (Listowel Union) will be found effective in relieving the destitute in Listowel Union."

There is as yet no relief for the poor of these three parishes—Rattoo, Ballyheigue, and Killeery. In the latter some widows and poor had gotten something about 10 or 11 days ago. Everybody remarks "it is Providence alone is keeping the poor alive."

In September last there was a list taken by the now relieving officer of 977 who had no means whatever of support at that time, and that list been given by persons on oath to give a list of the poor, each in his own farm, and that list was for Killeery alone. There were then, at least, as many more for Rattoo and Ballyheigue, i. e. a total of entirely destitute in these three parishes of about 4000 souls in September last; the number must be now 2000 more, and no relief.

In my letter of the 13th, through the Under-Secretary's office, I had committed a mistake in stating that the Rattoo poor were relieved; I have been since assured they had not.

I am quite convinced that the Poor Law Commissioners and the Government have the best wishes for the relief of the poor; but in those remote districts, the Government and Commissioners can know nothing of us. Some of our Guardians are absentees, and had long since left their poor to do for themselves.

If the Commissioners were pleased to send a trustworthy person of their own, who, without favour or affection, or irrespective of the smiles or frowns of the Guardians, either rural or ex-officio, would visit all the hovels of the destitute in this district, and take a list of the starving inmates and report on all the different cases, what an appalling catalogue of wretched sufferers would be laid before them.

I would presume on imploring of the Commissioners to do something for those thousands of poor here, who are daily pining away by a slow and lingering death.

REPLY to the above:—December 21, 1847.

THE Commissioners will communicate with Captain Spark, the Inspector specially in charge of the Union, and will address you again on receiving his observations.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 24, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of the letter of the Commissioners, dated the 21st instant, transmitting a letter of the Rev. E. M'Carthy,

Listowel Union.

P.P., relating to the existence of distress in parts of the Listowel Union (herewith returned), and requesting my observations on the statements it contains. And I beg to observe that, although there may be some excess in the reverend gentleman's representation as to the numbers, I consider the distress in those parishes to be very great indeed, as it is also in other parts of this Union, and particularly along the whole of the western coasts. I believe there is no part of Ireland where destitution and wretchedness prevail more. There is no employment in prospect, nor at present afforded by the proprietors and farmers in the districts to which I allude.

The measures to afford out-door relief in this Union are, however, now organized, (not a moment having been lost since the arrival of the order,) and I trust in time, to save the poor from the calamities to which their destitute state would otherwise subject them, during the present winter; yet I fear the extent of destitution will greatly exceed any local or legal power of relief the Board of Guardians can command to meet it, unless all the large landed proprietors at once come forward to aid the poor labouring classes, by affording them employment under the Acts of Parliament passed for that benevolent purpose by the Legislature.

The Rev. E. M'CARTHY to His Excellency the LORD LIEUTENANT, referred to the Commissioners:—December 20, 1847.

THE destitute poor who had been in attendance at Ballyden yesterday have requested me, as chairman, to forward the accompanying memorial setting forth their grievances.

I take the liberty of assuring your Excellency that it is not possible to give any idea of the state of suffering of, at least, 1000 wretched families in these three parishes of Rattoo, Killeery, and Ballyheigue.

ENCLOSURE.

To his Excellency the Earl of Clarendon, Lord Lieutenant-General and General Governor of Ireland.

The Memorial of the truly destitute and impoverished inhabitants of the united parishes of Ballyheigue, Killeery, and Rattoo, of the Listowel Union,

Humbly sheweth,—That in consequence of the total failure of their potato crop in the year 1846, they were unable to cultivate the small gardens which they held in the spring of 1847, which now leaves them totally destitute of any means of support.

That memorialists are informed by the relieving officers, that they are not entitled to any relief under the extended Poor Law Act if they possess over one rood of land, unless they surrender their entire holding.

That if this law should be strictly carried out, your unfortunate memorialists will be driven into the open air without shelter, like beasts of the field; that in addition memorialists are informed they will be called on to give eight hours' work in the day as an equivalent for any food they may receive, and that this is in consequence of directions received by the Board of Guardians from the Poor Law Commissioners, the relieving officer having stated on this day that he should see us on the roads at work before he could give us relief.

That your poor memorialists most earnestly, but humbly, entreat your Excellency to give directions that they may receive relief without being obliged to surrender their holdings, as in the event of their doing so they will be left perfectly houseless, and lose all prospect of ever being able to support themselves or their families by their honest industry; and further to direct the Poor Law Commissioners to withdraw the directions as to labour in return for food, as, in fact, from their very destitute state they are not able to work, nor could they in this inclement season with their miserable clothing stand out.

That your memorialists earnestly look forward to the approaching spring, as they hope under a paternal Government works of a remunerative character will be carried on in their localities, and by that means they may be able to earn their bread by the sweat of their brow.

That your memorialists are and ever have been peaceable and loyal subjects, and are determined to continue so, and most earnestly pray that relief may be extended to them in some form that will not oblige them to part with their miserable cabins, or oblige them to look for support by means at which they shudder, namely, the taking of their neighbours' goods.

That from your Excellency's general character, memorialists confidently expect you will give such directions, so as they may obtain relief for the present without being obliged to give up their holdings, and by that means lose all prospect of future support for their helpless families.

And memorialists, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Ballyduff Causeway, December 19, 1847.

Captain SPARK'S Observations on the foregoing.

WITH reference to the distress in those parishes, and the measures now in operation to afford relief under the Poor Law, I beg to refer to my letter of the 24th instant, containing also my observations upon the statements made by the Rev. E. M'Carthy, P.P., in his letter addressed to the Poor Law Commissioners, dated the 19th instant.

I believe the distress of many of the holders of upwards of a quarter of an acre to be as great as that of those who are occupiers of smaller allotments, and who are therefore entitled to relief, which the former are by law shut out from. The demand of eight hours' labour each day is in accordance with the Poor Law Commissioners' directions; but I see great difficulties in the way of exacting it, particularly at this season of the year. I believe a modification of this regulation to be necessary; at the same time I would most earnestly recommend that some degree of labour should be required, perhaps four hours is as much as can be expected at this season from half-clad people, on one pound of Indian meal per diem as food to sustain them.

THOMAS SPARK, Temporary Inspector.

December 25, 1847.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain SPARK :—December 30, 1847.

IN reference to your remarks as to the amount of daily labour required from each able-bodied pauper, I am to acquaint you at the present season of the year the Commissioners would not object to the period for a meal in the course of the day being included in the eight hours; but the Commissioners think that, otherwise, eight hours' work should be strictly exacted from every able-bodied man as a test of destitution.

The COMMISSIONERS to the Rev. E. M'CARTHY :—December 31, 1847.

ADVERTING to your letter of the 19th instant, on the subject of distress existing in certain parts of the Listowel Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you that they have now received Captain Spark's report on your letter, and also on the memorial from the parishes of Ballyheigue, Killeery, and Rattoo, which you forwarded to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

The Commissioners are assured by Captain Spark that the measures for affording out-door relief are fully organized; and the Commissioners entertain a confident hope that these measures, in conjunction with such employment as may be given by the landed proprietors in the Listowel Union, will be found adequate to save the poor of the district from the calamities to which the present pressure of severe distress would otherwise subject them.

With reference to the two points urged in the memorial, viz., the refusal of the relief to persons occupying more than a quarter of an acre of land, and as regards the requiring a task of work from the able-bodied as a condition of their receiving relief, the Commissioners desire to observe that the law is imperative in prohibiting relief to persons holding more than a quarter of an acre of land; and as regards the requiring a task of work from the able-bodied recipients of relief, the Commissioners have given the subject their fullest and most anxious consideration, and they do not think that this test of destitution could properly be dispensed with.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain SPARK :—December 28, 1847.

I AM directed to forward to you the enclosed extract from minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians of the Listowel Union, on the 16th instant, relative to the mode of employing able-bodied labourers, in order to afford them out-door relief; and in reference thereto, I am to request that you will be so good as to report whether the work professed to be given to the paupers is bonâ fide laborious, so as to be a test of destitution.

The Commissioners desire especially to call your attention to the resolution respecting cleaning streets. The impression of the Commissioners is, that such an occupation of paupers is likely to become a mere cloak for idleness.

ENCLOSURE.

Extract from Guardians' Minutes of the 20th December, 1847.

IN pursuance of a resolution of this Board, at their meeting on the 16th instant, authorizing the Guardians of the several electoral divisions in the Union to select the particular works on Listowel Union. which to employ the able-bodied labourers, in order to afford them out-door relief, in accordance with the Commissioners' order, Mr. Leonard handed in the report of the Committee of Guardians of the Listowel electoral division on the works selected by them, and it was ordered that the report be inserted in full on the minutes, viz.,

Meeting of Guardians of Listowel electoral division. Works selected for paupers:—

1st. Breaking stones, public property, on the public road near Finnige, for the new road from Finnige to Billerough.

2nd. Fencing and forming that part of the Billerough road which is in the parish of Finnige.

3rd. Renewing the fencing of the new road from Kilereen to Dirrah.

4th. Scraping and clearing the streets of Listowel.

5th. Collecting and breaking stones for the Coolatoosonane road.

6th. Forming and fencing that part of the new road from Coolatoosonane to Keilbee which has only been lickspitted.

For carrying out the proposed works the following stewards were appointed, under the name of relieving officers:

Michael Maher for the Keilbee and Coolatoosonane road, at 1s. 6d. per day.

Dillane for the town and Greenville, at 1s. 6d. per diem; Patrick Carrol for Finnige, at 1s. per diem.

It is the opinion of this Committee that it will be necessary to issue food to the paupers before calling on them to work, but they must commence to work immediately after getting food; and if they refuse to work, they shall be struck off the relief lists, and shall receive no further supply of food.

Hammers are to be provided by the Board for breaking stones, and the stewards to be held responsible that none of them are lost; spades and shovels to be provided by the paupers themselves.

End of Committee's Report.

(Signed) WILLIAM SANDES, Chairman.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 30, 1847.

THE work resolved upon has been breaking stones, fencing, and other public useful work on the roads, sufficiently laborious for a test of destitution.

And with respect to cleaning streets, which refers to Listowel, I have to observe that the electoral division of Listowel is comprised principally in the town, and has a great number of able-bodied paupers to employ. The cleaning is necessary, previous to stoning. If this is made a cloak for idleness, it will be the fault of the overseers, and I shall recommend them to be dismissed.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 8, 1848.

HAVING, through extreme illness, been obliged to absent myself from the ordinary meeting of Guardians on the 6th instant, I requested Mr. Phelan, the temporary Medical Inspector, to impress upon the Board the necessity for their complying strictly with the terms of the Commissioners' sealed order, by giving out-door relief to the able-bodied in cooked food only, and in return for eight hours labour per day from each individual.

As I am unable to report upon the proceedings of the meeting, I beg leave to be allowed to refer the Commissioners to the minutes this day transmitted, for what took place thereupon.

It will be seen that the storekeeper's assistants to the relieving officers were voted to be unnecessary beyond the next fortnight, when the pressure on the relieving officers will be less, when it is expected few cases entitled to relief will be left uninquied into, and the general store at Tarbert will be in full operation.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 12, 1848.

THE following question and observation have been forwarded to me by Mr. Crosbie, of Ardferf Abbey, a gentleman of large landed property, who is availing himself of the Act of Parliament to improve his estates and afford employment; and I beg to request the Commissioners will be pleased to afford me their opinion.

"Whether works carried on under the Landed Property Improvement Act, 10 Vic. cap. 32, can be performed by paupers, the proprietor paying the Board of Guardians for the labour done by them?"

"A great advantage would be acquired by the employment of the paupers on beneficial and reproductive work, and thus enable the Board of Guardians to relieve their funds to a considerable extent."

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 15, 1848.

Listowel Union.

THE Commissioners do not deem themselves justified in permitting the employment of paupers on private labour. They are of opinion that the strongest possible line should be drawn between relief and wages; it being an essential principle in any sound system of Poor Law administration, that relief and wages should be kept totally distinct, and that a destitute able-bodied man should be relieved wholly by the Union, or employed wholly by the party for whom he works.

The Commissioners are convinced that the infringement of this principle would lead to pernicious consequences; and by making employers of labour suppose that they had a pecuniary interest in introducing a system of out-door relief to able-bodied men, it would eventually entail an enormous burthen on the poor rates, which the property of the Union would be wholly unable to support.

The following additional objections to the employment of the recipients of relief on the property of private individuals may also be stated:—Firstly, such a system tends to absorb the general stock of employment, and so to bring more labourers on the poor-rates.

Secondly, It tends to lower the market value of labour, to the great injury of the self-relying labourer, since the occupier of land will not contract for the employment of pauper instead of independent labour, unless he can obtain some advantage in the rate of wages.

Thirdly, It tends to spoil the industry and habits of the labourer, who will not work with the same energy in return for relief, as when he has a bargain with a private employer to work for wages; the continuance of his employment, and the amount of his receipts depending in one case on his industry and the value of his work, and in the other case, on the necessities of himself and those dependent on him for support.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 14, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report, that at a meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, after the ordinary business, for which I beg to refer to the minutes, Mr. Leonard, the vice-chairman, gave notice for next Thursday of the following motions:—

First—"That the Poor Law Commissioners be requested to authorize the Guardians of this Union to administer Relief out of the workhouse, to destitute able-bodied persons for one calendar month, from the 7th of February, the day on which the existing order will expire."

Second—"That a Committee consisting of five Guardians, be appointed to inquire generally into the financial affairs of the Union, with a view to ascertaining how long the rate now in progress is likely to meet the present weekly expenditure, which exceeds 600%; and if the Committee should find from the depressed state of the Union, and the deplorable amount of destitution in which it is sunk, that it would be either impolitic or impracticable to levy a new rate equal to the emergency, then that the Committee should prepare a memorial calling on the Government to aid, as promised by the Secretary for the Home Department, in his place in Parliament."

With respect to the first intended motion, I beg to observe that it appears to me premature and uncalled for. During the course of next week, the building for the poorhouse extension will be ready to receive between three and four hundred boys and girls; and thus room will be made for so many able-bodied paupers in the workhouse.

And this test rigidly applied in accordance with the motion agreed to at the meeting on the 6th instant, will have a great tendency to reduce the amount of out-door relief, and should at any rate, be tried previously to any such motion being made as that intended by Mr. Leonard.

In reference to the second intended motion, I have to observe that there is already a Finance Committee, whose functions will enable them to embrace the inquiry contemplated. The rate of 3s. in the pound at present in collection, appears to come in very fairly, and even in sufficient amount to meet the present heavy demands. The collectors I have not failed to stimulate to exertion; they are active, willing, and able. Not one-sixth of the rate has as yet been expended; and, therefore, to consider at this time, of a memorial to Government for the purpose stated, appears another premature proceeding, and at present wholly uncalled for.

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 18, 1848.

IN reference to the notices of motion to be brought forward at the meeting of the Board of Guardians of the Listowel Union, on the 20th instant, in regard to the continuance of the out-door relief order, and the financial affairs of the Union, the Commissioners fully concur in the views stated by you, and they do not doubt that you will bring those views strongly before the Board of Guardians, when the questions come on for discussion. The Commissioners, however, do not propose addressing the Guardians on the subject unless the motions should be adopted by the Board, inasmuch as they regard notices of motion, as expressing only the opinion of the individual member of the Board; and as a general rule, therefore, they avoid expressing any opinion upon such notices, except under special circumstances.

Adverting to the work at present exacted from able-bodied paupers as a condition of their receiving relief, the Commissioners are particularly desirous of stating that stone-breaking should be given to as many of them as possible, in the first instance, and that any other mode of employment should be regarded as altogether secondary to stone-breaking. The advantages of stone-breaking consist in its admitting of exact measurement by task-work, and of its being less attractive than any other kind of out-door labour, which it is practicable to carry out on a large scale.

Still, even stone-breaking is very inferior to the workhouse as an effective test of destitution, and it will give great satisfaction to the Commissioners, if at the end of the month, the renewal of the order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men will not be found necessary.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 21, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that at the meeting of the Guardians on the 20th instant, Mr. Leonard withdrew his motion for the further extension of the order for out-door relief. I had strongly made known my views as regards it previously; but Mr. Leonard stated that on reading over the returns of the numbers relieved under the Commissioners' sealed Order of the 7th of December, he found the same so far to exceed anything he could have an idea of that he therefore withdrew his motion, and would leave it to some other gentleman to propose a like motion when necessary. And as regards his second motion for appointing a committee to consider the financial condition of the Union, and thereupon to memorialize Government to aid its funds, he postponed the same, until the next meeting of the Guardians on the 27th instant.

A meeting of the Workhouse Extension Committee took place on the 19th, at which I was present, with Mr. Phelan, Poor Law Inspector. The clerk of the works reported that the premises would be perfectly ready to receive the children on Saturday, the 22nd; but on examination, it was found that the lower floors of the back buildings, comprising the dining and schoolrooms, were not in a fit state, being wet and damp. Mr. Phelan was fully of that opinion, and orders were given in consequence by the Committee that drains should be constructed around the same immediately. The Committee recommended that the boys from the workhouse should, however, be removed to be lodged for the present in the front of the buildings, the same being in good order and perfectly dry. The Committee's report was adopted by the Board of Guardians on the 20th instant; and the boys, to the amount of about 140, under the schoolmaster, will be removed on Monday next, the 24th instant, to make room for able-bodied paupers within the workhouse. During my late illness, I have been unable to look into the progress of the work, or I should have taken steps to have had the premises perfectly ready to receive the girls also by this time.

I have to report that a replevin has been issued by the sheriff in a case where a horse was distrained for the poor-rate in Mr. Sandes' district, the collector, who brought the same before the Board, and who stated that if a replevin would lie, the greatest difficulty would be experienced by the collectors. He stated also that a legal opinion had been given that a replevin would not lie in a case where distraint had been made for county cess, and requested my opinion as regards this point. I am unable to offer an opinion, and I see no notice of the point in any portion of the Poor Law Act, or in my instructions. I shall be glad if the Commissioners will be pleased to afford me information on the subject. The Guardians directed that their solicitor should take the necessary steps to defend the action.

It appears that a great number of appeals were made at the late quarter sessions, against the poor-rate; but such appeals are to stand over until next sessions, that a revision of these particular cases may in the meantime be made by the Board.

It was resolved, that from the urgent necessity that exists, not only from the number of appeals which the Guardians have had to defend, but from the confusion that generally prevails throughout the Union, arising from changes of tenancy, &c., that the Commissioners be earnestly requested to appoint without delay, a fit and proper person to revise the valuation of the Union. But I beg to observe, that should a general valuation of the Union be entered upon at this time, it would seriously obstruct the collection of the present rate, as every man would be holding back under the plea of being about to appeal.

The following notice was given by Mr. Crosbie, of Ardfert Abbey, having relation to this subject:

That a memorial be adopted, and forwarded to the Poor Law Commissioners, requesting them to exercise their authority under the 18th section of the Poor Law Act, with the view of reducing the area of taxation for the purposes of that Act.

A resolution was come to, directing the clerk to forward to the Board of Works a copy of a resolution of the Board of Guardians, come to on the 24th of December last, regarding the non-issue of grants under the Land Improvement Act, and to request the Board of Works to favour the Guardians with its decision on the subject.

The business brought before the Board occupied so much time that an adjournment took place until this day, at which the ordinary business was finished; and I read the communications made on the subject of the ovens offered to be erected by the Government, to afford facilities in giving cooked food for out-door relief, which offer the Guardians thankfully accepted, and they are desirous the same may be undertaken without delay.

REPLY to the above:—January 25, 1848.

IN reference to your remarks regarding the withdrawal of the notice of motion for the continuance of the out-door relief order, I am to request that you will be so good as to report to the Commissioners your opinion as to the necessity of continuing the order, which expires on the 7th of February, for any, and if any what, further period beyond that date; or whether any modification of the order limiting the relief after that date, to certain classes (which you should specify in your report) would be desirable.

As regards the ovens there appears to have been some misapprehension, as the Commissioners are not aware that it is the intention of Government to erect ovens in the Listowel Union.

The Commissioners will bear your observations in mind relative to a revision of the valuation, and will address the Guardians on the subject when the resolution comes before them.

With reference to the replevin, the Commissioners desire to observe that they believe the question, whether cattle taken by distress for poor rate can be replevined, has not been decided in any court of law, and the question appears to be open to considerable doubt. The Commissioners think the Guardians have acted correctly in instructing their solicitor to defend the action; and they direct me to forward for your information, the papers which relate to the only case of this nature which has come before them, which they request you will be so good as to carefully peruse and return to this office.

Listowel Union.

As to your observations regarding the appeals, I am to state that the Guardians cannot alter the rate; and I am to refer you to the 110th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act, which provides, that notwithstanding any such appeal or notice thereof, every rate shall be payable, and shall be levied as if no appeal had been made, until such rate shall be actually quashed or amended.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 25, 1848.

ON looking over the draft of my report dated the 21st instant, I find that I have made an observation, that "should a general re-valuation of the Union be entered upon at this time, it would seriously obstruct the collection of the present rate, as every man would be holding back under the plea of 'being about to appeal.'"

I beg leave to withdraw the observation as therein expressed. It should have been applied, and had reference, to the great number of appeals mentioned in the preceding paragraph, as the probable effect of the revision of so many cases undertaken by the Board of Guardians.

REPLY to the above:—January 28, 1848.

THE Commissioners have already addressed the Board of Guardians on this subject.

The Guardians could not make a revision that would affect the present rate, which can only be altered on appeal, in the manner pointed out by the 106th and subsequent sections of the Irish Poor Relief Act; and 110th section provides, that notwithstanding any appeal or notice thereof, any rate shall be payable and shall be levied as if no appeal had been made, until such rate shall be actually quashed or amended.

Mr. PHELAN to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 20, 1848.

I HAVE the honour of informing you that I have more than once gone through the several parts of the Listowel workhouse lately, accompanied by the medical officer and master, and I have to make the following report thereon.

1. The house, yards, and grounds are in a very uncleanly state; the latter, at the rear and sides, are impassable on foot, from mud and water lodged along the passages. The drainage of the land is much required. The master states that he cannot get stones to be broken by the paupers, and with which the passages could be covered; and he alleges that the work going on at the fever hospital keeps the passages in a broken state; but the same want of attention is exhibited in other parts, even within the walls.

2. The ventilation has not been improved, and is yet insufficient. I have pointed out to Captain Spark how and where it should be done, and have given him written suggestions respecting it, which he promised to have carried out.

I do not, however, believe that any injury has yet arisen from want of ventilation, as the dormitories are not overcrowded.

The inmates are moderately clean. The straw in the beds of several of the aged and infirm class was insufficient, as the master stated, from a scarcity of that article. The diet of several of this class is higher than in other workhouses, as they are on medical diet by the medical officer's order.

The proper nursing and care of infants is, I think, more or less unsatisfactory in most workhouses, particularly in the west and south. It is the same here, which I would partly attribute to the want of energy on the part of the matron, who appears to me to want the necessary qualities of mind and body to be an efficient one, although I believe well disposed, and a person of integrity. In this, as in other houses in the district, several of the infant class are unhealthy and not likely to thrive. Here they are not particularly unclean.

3. The medical officer's attendance is regular; I shall have to report specially in respect to him, I should hope, in a couple of days.

The infirmary is not in a satisfactory state; it is too much crowded, in my opinion unnecessarily so. For instance, cases of itch, scald head, and others of a chronic nature, for which room could be elsewhere made, are put there, and are mixed in it. For some time past, a house has been at the disposal of the medical officer, into which male fever cases might be put, but he has not thought it necessary to occupy it. The male idiot portion of the workhouse also is unoccupied. I suggested that the latter be made use of for those itch or skin cases, and thereby so far thin the infirmary, so that it shall not contain more than it can safely accommodate.

Small-pox and measles have for some time prevailed in the house; the number of the former has not been considerable; the medical officer does vaccinate those who are said to require it. Small-pox will be introduced and kept up in workhouses, in consequence of the indisposition of many of the mothers of the children to have them vaccinated. And it is certain, that under certain circumstances, as when a child is in a very reduced state, or when it is much affected with itch or other skin diseases, vaccination does not succeed. Hence, the introduction of small-pox is facilitated, and the subjects for it remain unprotected.

The cases of fever, 26 in number, are in two detached farm-houses, only three are of a marked character or of a serious nature, the remainder are convalescent or only slightly febrile; most are boys and girls, who become convalescent very soon. In fact, influenza and fibracula constitute the majority of them.

4. It appears to me that the dietary is unnecessarily expensive: each pauper above two years gets 3 ozs. of rice, with more or less of Indian meal, for breakfast. I have suggested that the proportion of rice be reduced to one-fourth of the meal used; that is, to make the stirabout of three parts of Indian meal and one part of rice: as the latter is 19 $\frac{1}{2}$ per ton, the former only 9 $\frac{1}{2}$, the increased expense must be considerable. The medical diets also appeared to require some alterations, which I have suggested, and which Captain Spark promised to induce the Board of Guardians to adopt, with the concurrence, I advised, of the medical officer.

5. This officer has been in the habit of ordering medical diets for paupers not in hospital, but who are in the infirm wards and in other parts of the house, and who are apparently not ill. I have suggested that this practice be discontinued, but that the doctor be at liberty to order such diet as he considers necessary for parties not in hospital, if there be no room for them in it, until the Guardians meet, then to report the case to them, that they may be informed of his motives for ordering medical or higher diets for persons not apparently ill, or much ill, nor in hospital.

The provisions appeared to be good.

6. The discipline of the house is very imperfect: the master is very young, and has not been long in office; the matron, as I before observed, appears to be physically and mentally incapable, although I know anxious to do her duty, at least so far as her slow motions go. Both have succeeded others, under whose management the house was very badly conducted, and by whom, perhaps, the foundation for the present defective working was laid. The master, I should admit, has capacity, but I doubt that under both the house will be well managed.

7. I inspected the premises which the Board of Guardians are preparing for the reception of paupers, being accompanied by Captain Spark and a Committee of the Guardians. They are partly composed of two houses fronting the street, which are dry, and in a fit condition for dormitories. These houses will accommodate about 100; there are back premises which are yet in an unfinished state. I found the workmen boarding a room in them (intended as the girls' school-room), whilst the intervals between the joists were nearly filled with water, which exudes from the ground outside, and passes through to this room. I stated it to be my opinion that, even when boarded, this room in such a state must be unfit for the purpose, as the under moisture will render it very unwholesome; and, acting on my suggestion, the boarding was directed to be discontinued, in order that proper drainage shall be made outside the walls and through the premises, so that this moisture be got rid of. I also advised that proper dry stuff be put between the joists to render the room dry.

This part of the premises will not be ready for the accommodation of paupers for probably two or three weeks. The intention is to send the boys and girls to these premises—the latter to the front portion, the boys to the rear. But as an enormous amount of out-door relief is being given, and as no workhouse test, to a sufficient extent, is now enforced for want of accommodation, I suggested that the schoolboys and schoolmaster be immediately transferred to this front portion, so as to give room, so far, in the workhouse to apply the test. Captain Spark and the

Listowel Union.

Committee appeared to approve of the suggestion, which they will submit to the Board of Guardians this day.

8. I understand that it is not the practice with this Board to insist on one of the heads of such families as the relieving officer enters in his Application Book, and recommends to the Guardians as fit objects for out-door relief, being brought before them to obtain such information as they may deem necessary to satisfy themselves if that officer's account be correct. I apprehend that it is impossible for these officers to visit the residences of all the applicants, and to make the necessary inquiries within the week, or at any time; and that he must, therefore, be often ignorant of their actual condition, and liable to be imposed on. The attendance of the father or mother, to be interrogated by the Board, is insisted on when practicable, and with good effect, by the Kilkenny and other Boards. In Listowel the relieving officer and the Guardian or Guardians of the electoral division are entrusted with the case. I should say that I consider the other mode a far better one. This leaves it too much in the power of the officer and local Guardians to give through favouritism, and to withhold from fit objects.

P.S.—I beg to add that fever of the ordinary kind, such as is considered to be contagious and dangerous as to its results, is not prevalent in the Union: so far as I can learn, influenza is the prevailing epidemic at present; measles have been so in the workhouse, but they are subsiding much, and not now severe.

OBSERVATIONS of Captain SPARK on the foregoing:—January 28, 1848.

1. I HAVE to observe that the workhouse of this Union is most disadvantageously placed, being built on boggy land; and the floors of the building, instead of being elevated above the damp soil, are so low, that most of the yards are on a level with them; in fact, some are even higher. The house is therefore always, in moist weather, in a wet and dirty state, in spite of every effort to keep it clean and dry, as are the paupers also. When Mr. Phelan, with the medical officer, visited the house at the times referred to I was sick, with the exception of his last visit, when I accompanied him. Having been severely ill for nearly three weeks, I found that during the unavoidable suspension of my visits the master and matron had grown neglectful. Both appear to want energy; but they are new in office, and I think will mend.

I can, however, state that, under measures I have taken, the discipline and management of the house are rapidly improving. Assistants to both master and matron are much needed in so large an establishment. I have induced the Board of Guardians to agree to appoint an assistant matron, and there is good economy in it.

2. The ventilation is about being accomplished as recommended; at this cold season there appears little need of it.

3. I have directed the medical officer to place immediately all cases of skin diseases in a temporary hospital—a house hired at his suggestion, and a month since ready, but which he has not thought proper, up to this time, to make use of. The spare idiot ward will be occupied by other patients, to make room in the infirmary.

4. I yesterday proposed to the Board of Guardians, a dietary I had drawn up in accordance with Mr. Phelan's suggestion, as a substitute for that at present in use, as also, (with the medical officer's concurrence,) one for hospital diet: both were adopted by the Board, and will cause a great saving of expense.

5. I also proposed a regulation which was adopted:—

“That no class of paupers in the body of the house be put upon medical diet without the sanction of the Board; but that in case of exigency, and until there be room in the infirmary, the medical officer shall have power to order such diet as he considers necessary until the next meeting of the Guardians, then to report the case to the Board, that they may be informed of his reasons for the same.”

This will be a great check on the irregularities of the medical officer as regards the dieting, and the great expense in his department that has been so justly complained of.

6. See observations above.—Observation 1.

7. The front premises referred to are now temporarily occupied by about 130 children (boys), who are very comfortably lodged. The drainage has been completed, and the floors of the back premises are now dry. The whole will be ready for occupation in about a week from this time.

Listowel Union.

8. The Board of Guardians have not considered it necessary to examine personally any paupers requiring relief, but such as are provisionally sent to the workhouse by the relieving officers, as objects to be received, or who came before the Board after having received an order for the workhouse, as a test. To bring many thousands of heads of families, applicants for out-door relief, from a distance, some of them, of 20 miles, to be perhaps ultimately rejected, is a very serious thing, however justly desirable on the ground stated by Mr. Phelan. The regulations laid down for Guardians and relieving officers in the Commissioners' general order for the administration of out-door relief, do not direct this course to be followed; but if the Commissioners require it to be acted upon, I will do my utmost to enforce it.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 1, 1848.

THE Commissioners approve generally of the steps taken by you on Mr. Phelan's report.

With reference to your remarks as to the house being disadvantageously placed, the Commissioners desire to observe, that it has been found in other cases where the workhouse officers have endeavoured on similar grounds to excuse the house and yards being in a dirty state, that the real cause of their being in that state has proceeded rather from the want of proper arrangements on the part of the master than from any natural dampness or defect in the site. The Commissioners have communicated with their architect on this subject, and they forward for your information and guidance, a copy of his observations.

The Commissioners will not raise any objections to the appointment of an assistant master, and assistant matron, especially as the house is likely now to contain a much larger proportion of the able-bodied class than formerly; but at the same time they are of opinion that, the want of energy and general efficiency in the chief officers of the establishment can never be compensated by the appointment of assistants; and they rely upon your keeping a strict watch over those officers, and specially reporting on the subject to the Commissioners, if the discipline and general management of the house does not improve.

As regards the practice of requiring the father or mother of the family to appear before the Board, when the family is recommended for out-door relief by the relieving officers, the Commissioners think, that where practicable, it should be adopted, and may be productive of advantage; but considering the size of the Listowel Union, the Commissioners are not prepared to require it as a general rule; and provided it is distinctly understood that the final adjudication on each case rests with the Board of Guardians, the Commissioners do not think that any insuperable objection can be raised to their deciding the case on information supplied by the relieving officers and by individual Guardians.

ENCLOSURE.

OBSERVATIONS on the remarks of Captain SPARK on the drainage and alleged damp state of the ground on which the Poorhouse of the Listowel Union is built:—February 1, 1848.

THE statement of Captain Spark, as to the damp and undrained surface of the ground around the workhouse site, is correct; but the cause is entirely different, in my opinion, to that advanced by Captain Spark. Whenever any neglect occurs, there is, unfortunately, too ready a disposition to ascribe it to any than the right cause, and any excuse is sought. So far from the site being, as would be inferred, it is placed on high table-land, within perhaps less than 100 yards of the large river Feale, on the north bank of which it is placed at a level of 30 or 40 feet over the highest flood; and moreover, a large main drain has been built to run through the site, and discharge into the river Feale. No site, therefore, can possess more favourable circumstances for rendering it a dry one. When I last saw it, the ground was, great part of it, untilld; and the surface of it here and there, from being level, was covered with shallow pools of water, which only require those general surface and land drains that the paupers are the proper persons to employ upon. The chief if not the only cause of the dampness may therefore be readily understood; and when instead of leaving some of the ground in the neglected and springy state it has been since the house was built, the master gives the paupers employment in tilling and surface-draining it, I apprehend that the site will be found free from the objections advanced against it, and in other respects a very desirable one.

MEMORIAL from EDMOND WARE to His Excellency the LORD LIEUTENANT.

The Memorial of the destitute and starving poor of the town of Ballylongford in the county of Kerry.

Humbly sheweth,—

That they beg to submit for the consideration of your Excellency's kind, humane, and charitable feelings, as your distressed and indigent memorialists are in a state of actual starvation, dropping with famine, in consequence of getting no justice, nor any part of the relief meal which Her Majesty's Government was kind enough to grant unto the poor distressed people of this country; and being also deprived of any employment that may be a means of giving them an existence, your humble memorialists most sincerely implore that Her Majesty's Government may, from out of the abundance of munificent commiseration, be graciously pleased to grant unto your destitute poor and indigent people, some relief or assistance that may be a means of keeping them alive, as coffins can be scarcely purchased for the numbers that are dropping with famine and distress, for which extension of your Excellency's administration poor memorialists would ever pray.

OBSERVATIONS of Captain SPARK on the foregoing:—February 2, 1848.

I YESTERDAY proceeded to the town or village of Ballylongford, and made strict inquiry in reference to the statements of this memorial, signed by Edmond Ware, of the state of absolute starvation existing there, and of the great number of deaths said to be occurring daily in consequence; all which I find to be utterly untrue.

I first went to the house of the Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Mr. D. M'Carthy, and there met that gentleman, his curate, the Rev. Mr. Mahony, and the dispensary doctor: all concurred in assuring me that the statements in this memorial, which they believed to have emanated from Edmond Ware himself, were wholly false; that the relieving officer was doing his duty carefully but well, and that the deaths in this whole district were, and had been for some time past, positively much less in number than ordinary. It appears that in the town of Ballylongford, only three or four deaths have occurred since Christmas, two only of these were poor persons, aged, and they were receiving relief, and were on the relieving officer's books when they died, and had been on the list from the commencement of that officer's services.

I had the like testimony to the entire falsehood of these statements made by Edmond Ware, from the Poor Law Guardian, Mr. Scanlon, from another Guardian, Stephen Sandes, Esq., who resides close by, and from St. John Blacker, Esq., to whom Mr. Sandes is agent, a gentleman of considerable property here, who is most praiseworthily employing the poor at this season in works of improvement on his estate. These all, and many others asserted that so far from starvation existing from want of food and employment, as is stated in the memorial, that there is difficulty found in obtaining men to work; they prefer idleness, and shun labour under any plea, in order to get the out-door relief, most of them plead sickness, and thus hope to be excused from the labour test. Many able-bodied men have been struck off the relief list of the Ballylongford division, by the Board of Guardians, for refusing the work offered, and amongst them is this Edmond Ware. He is now, and has been since that, in the employ of Mr. Blacker.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 28, 1848.

At the meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, the letter, dated 25th instant, on the subject of appeals against the poor's-rate was read. It appears that none of the numerous cases could be successfully defended by the Board. A compromise was therefore come to in Court by the Board's solicitor, on the understanding that a revision or inquiry with a view to an adjustment in these cases should take place before the next sessions, which are held in April. The letter addressed to the Commissioners by the Board, which will accompany the minutes, will give the needful explanation.

And in reply to the letter of the Commissioners of the same date, recommending the Guardians to delay the revision of the valuation of the Union, until a greater portion of the rate be collected, and asking the Board's suggestions, it was resolved in reference thereto, "that the Board is of opinion that no delay should take place in the appointment of a revisor. That the Board and collectors already possess abundant information as to the errors of the present valuation; and the Board beg to suggest that a revision be made as extensive as possible."

A new dietary equally nourishing, but less expensive than that which has been abolished, was adopted by the Board at my recommendation, and in accordance with Mr. Phelan's suggestions; as was also a regulation to restrict the medical officer from giving high diet to paupers in the body of the house. The Board also agreed to appoint an assistant master, to aid the master whose duties and responsibilities have greatly increased since the extension of the establishment. I have noticed these matters in my observations on Mr. Phelan's Report. I beg to state here that a salary of 20*l.* per annum is to be given to the assistant master, but that 10*l.* of this will be taken from the present master, who offered to give up this sum to induce the Guardians to appoint an assistant. I consider the acceptance of this offer as unworthy of the Board, and not just to the man under the circumstances. If the duties have so increased as to require an assistant, the master's responsibilities having increased also, as stated above, it appears to me that the Guardians should themselves pay the whole salary of 20*l.* All the gentlemen of consideration present were of this opinion.

Mr. Crosbie's motion to memorialize the Commissioners to lessen the area of taxation within the Union, was then discussed at some length; and the county member, Mr. Herbert, who was present, addressed the Guardians, with the Board's consent, in favour of the views set forth in the memorial proposed, and which will be forwarded with the minutes. The principal arguments used were that the change solicited would occasion much more employment to be afforded to the mass of the population, both by farmers and landholders, who would have a stronger interest in keeping the poor off the rates; and that however much employment was given by a landlord under the existing mode of taxation, it in no sensible degree lessened his portion of the tax. Great terror appears to exist in the minds of all that the present and coming difficulties will overwhelm them. I must remark an error that appeared in the memorial. It stated that whilst the number on the books for relief at present was upwards of 21,000, that the number of destitute of these was 4848. These are the helpless and widows, the whole 21,000 and upwards are destitute, or are believed to be so.

On the motion of Captain Home it was resolved that application be made to the Poor Law Commissioners to extend the power of granting out-door relief to the able-bodied paupers for another month, from the date of the expiration of the last order on this subject.

With reference to this matter, I am directed by the Commissioners to report my opinion as to the necessity of continuing the order (which expires on the 7th February next) for any, and if any, for what further period beyond that date; or whether any modification of the order limiting the relief after that date to certain classes (to be specified) would be desirable.

I am of opinion that to withhold the out-door relief immediately after the 7th of February, would cause serious evils to the destitute population, at this trying season of the year, and might produce disorders and outrages in the Union which is at present in a peaceable state. It is proposed to continue it one month longer, and I see no reason to doubt the necessity for the measure being continued for that time; at that period there will be a little spring employment, more particularly if it be dry fair weather that the land may be worked; but whether sufficient to justify, even then, an entire suspension of the order I am not in a condition to offer an opinion, but I would certainly withhold it after that, and even before that date, if circumstances permit, from all single able-bodied paupers, and from such as are married having one child or perhaps two children. These classes could, I suppose, find employment from the farmers.

With reference to any present modification in the order, limiting the relief to certain classes, I beg to state, as will be inferred from my observations above, that I do not see that to any class it can now be dispensed with, for there has been no change of circumstances in favour of the poor and destitute, to justify the recommendation.

Listowel Union.

REPLY to the above:—February 1, 1848.

THE Commissioners will refer to the former correspondence, and communicate with the Guardians on the subject of the appeal cases and the revision of the valuation.

As regards the memorial on the subject of the area of taxation, the Commissioners will address the Guardians at their next meeting on the subject.

With regard to the supposed error in the memorial, the Commissioners find on reference to the copy which they have received from the clerk, that the statement is that only 4848, including their children, are returned as HELPLESS destitute.

The Commissioners will give directions for the preparation of an order, extending the period during which out-relief may be administered to the able-bodied for one month beyond the 7th instant.

Captain SPARK to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 3, 1848.

IN reference to the return called for from the clerk of the Union of the number of able-bodied persons receiving relief, of the number employed, and the nature of the employment, I beg to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that in this return there will appear to be employed in most of the electoral divisions far less than the number of able-bodied receiving out-door relief; and one great cause of this is the want of the implements I had promised to obtain from the Board of Works, and which has prevented others being purchased by the Board of Guardians; but I have not yet received the order on the barrackmaster at Tralee, instead of the storekeeper at Listowel, as applied for in my letter of the 17th ultimo.

Every scheme is adopted by the people to avoid work; and it requires the Guardians of the districts to act with more vigour and determination to carry out the Board's directions to cut off from relief such as avoid it.

In the district of Kilmoily and Ballyheige there has been great neglect of this—the Guardian of the former division seldom attends the Board, or, it appears, to any other duty; and the relieving officer is a person who has shown himself far from competent to fulfil his duties as he ought. In the minutes of to-day's meeting of the Guardians, upon which I shall have the honour to report to-morrow, it will be seen by the Commissioners that he was justly reprimanded by the Board for misconduct. I recommended his immediate dismissal—the Board took a milder course, and determined on giving him another trial.

Numbers are excused from work on account of sickness, real or assumed, and other causes, which the clerk of the Union has directions to explain on the face of the return.

I would wish to add, that I went through a long range of country yesterday, through Gunsborough, Lisselton, Ratoo, Drumkeen, and Kiltomy electoral divisions, and everywhere saw paupers at work, but principally fencing the public roads; there was not so much stone-breaking as there would have been for want of hammers. I trust, therefore, the Board of Works will be again moved upon the subject of the orders on the store at Tralee, for the large quantity of implements I have demanded for the use of this Union.

REPLY to the above:—February 9, 1848.

IN reference to your remarks as to the want of implements for getting the able-bodied paupers to work, I am to state that the Commissioners forwarded to you on the 3rd instant the amended orders for such implements which they had received from the Board of Works. These orders probably reached you shortly after your letter was written.

In regard to the case of the relieving officer for the Kilmoily district, who you state, has shown himself far from competent to fulfil his duties, and who was reprimanded for misconduct by the Board at their last meeting, I am to request you will be so good as to report specially to the Commissioners on his case, stating fully the circumstances which induced you to recommend the Board to dismiss him, and the Commissioners will then be in a position to act officially on the case, accordingly as circumstances may require.

JAMES DEMPSTER, M.D.

Dr. DEMPSTER to Count STRZELECKI :—November 30, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to forward a list of places where schools are held, in the Union of Ballinrobe, with the number of children in attendance, as also stating, as nearly as I can ascertain, the accommodation.

When explaining to the poor people the advantages their children would enjoy through the humane interposition of the British Relief Association, they were quite happy at the prospect of their being so kindly dealt by; and all stated that, whilst the children got any food, they themselves would do all in their power to earn a subsistence, however precarious or scanty, rather than go to the workhouse, or even to ask for out-door relief.

The circumstances of this Union at present are not, in my opinion, such as would allow of giving soup generally, as proposed, although it could be done in some instances; but I would venture to recommend a large proportion of bread, as the children already receiving it at Doon (the school under the superintendence of Captain Blake), in many instances come a distance of five miles daily, to obtain instruction and the ration, small as it is, and are content.

I here take the opportunity of observing that, although the National system of education is not sanctioned in the diocese, by orders of the Roman Catholic archbishop, and consequently discountenanced by the respective parish priests, yet the people themselves evince a great anxiety on the subject, and many send their children, irrespectively of this opposition, to school.

The children are almost in all cases, most wretchedly clothed, and I anticipate great benefit and comparative comfort to the poor creatures by the donation of clothes; but it will be a good plan to have all of the same materials, different, of course, for the sexes, and branded so as to prevent an improper use being made of them.

Such funds as you may consider proper to send in the first instance, I shall dispose of myself; and when I become better acquainted with the neighbourhood, I can then instruct them as I see best likely, to carry out the object in view.

Ballinrobe Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS of Ballinrobe Union to the COMMISSIONERS:—
December 13, 1847.

WE have the honour of informing you that on our arrival at Ballinrobe, on Thursday morning, we found, at least, 1000 individuals at the door of the workhouse claiming admittance, and a more wretched or desolate group it would be difficult to imagine; the rain was descending in torrents, accompanied by a fierce wind, both sufficient to destroy the whole body, if left long exposed to their influence. Fortunately some influential persons were in the Board-room, whose assistance we engaged in urging the crowd to depart to their homes, with an assurance that they should receive immediate relief, and also that every properly qualified person should be placed on the relieving officer's lists for out-door relief. It was a most harrowing exhibition, and many and great efforts were required to pacify their clamorous appeals, and persuade them to depart. Having attained this object, we proceeded to the election of the assistant relieving officers, and out of about 70 candidates whom we subjected to an individual examination, selected 14 of the most promising and best recommended. We read to them your instructions, and exhorted them to a faithful discharge of their duties, by affording information to the relieving officers, and duly and strictly superintending the constant employment of the able-bodied men under their charge; and finally, we gave to each man a book to be kept as a diary, and in which should be entered the names of the persons about to be put under their charge, and on the opposite page the work at which they employed them. We then examined the relieving officers' books, and, after a careful scrutiny, found that about 1500 was the total of those to be placed on the lists. This is a fearful beginning, and yet may be viewed as only the first symptom of the dire malady which pervades the Union. Dr. Dempster, we believe, had prevented a great number from coming from the southern electoral divisions. On our next Board day, we hope to succeed in discharging from the house most of the infirm inmates, on the usual allowance of Indian meal and a weekly stipend of about 6d. for lodging money. We have succeeded in making contracts for one month, with respectable persons, at fair market prices, for the distribution of the rations in ten electoral divisions, and expect to have contractors for the other four on next Board day. The supply of those last mentioned has been forwarded by the Ballinrobe contractor.

The appointed meeting of the creditors was held on Friday, the terms of liquidation explained, and a unanimous agreement required; and this last as a sine quâ non of the bargain. The parties seem satisfied, and those present agreed to sign. We left the papers with Dr. Dempster to get the signatures.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 16, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge your communication of the 13th instant, with enclosure from Mr. Redington, herewith returned, relative to the circumstance of a man being found dead near Kilmain, in this Union, on the night of the 8th instant.

The master of the workhouse states that no application was made to him by such a person for relief, and the relieving officer also says he was not applied to; I beg to transmit his report to me.

I never heard of the master till informed by your letter, although I was at Kilmain on the 14th instant for several hours, and until I made the inquiry, as directed, no report of the second death was made.

I have desired the relieving officers in all similar cases to report to me at once, and have requested the coroner likewise to intimate same, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, which he has promised to do.

The severity of the weather for some time back, especially on the 6th, 7th, and 8th instant, was such, that I am astonished we have not had more such deaths to record in this locality.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. BINDON, Sub-Inspector, to the INSPECTOR-GENERAL:—December 8, 1847.

I TAKE care to report that I, this day, attended an inquest, held on view of the body of a man (name unknown) found dead on the side of the road at an early hour this morning, about a quarter of a mile from Kilmain, on the lands of Tawansagh.

His remains were that of a beggar about 22 years of age, and was not known to any of the people in the neighbourhood. Ballinrobe Union.

Verdict of the jury, "that deceased died from destitution and being exposed to the inclemency of the night."

Mr. CHARLES T. CARR, Relieving Officer, to Dr. DEMPSTER:—December 16, 1847.

WITH reference to your inquiry as to the cause of the death of a man found dead on the morning of the 8th instant, within a quarter of a mile of Kilmain, I have to state, as the relieving officer of the district, that I understand he was a beggar, proceeding from the fair of Ballinrobe to Galway, and that he died in consequence of the awful inclemency of the weather.

There was an inquest held on the 8th instant, and he was buried that night without a coffin as I have been told.

I have also to report that on Monday morning, the 13th instant, another man was found dead in a field near the road, midway between Kilmain and Shrue, at a place called Kille; there were no marks of violence on his person, and a sack of wheat was found lying near him.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 25, 1847.

HAVING received the accompanying letter from the Rev. Mr. Phew, P.P. of Shrue, I went to Cross to inquire into the circumstances stated by the reverend gentleman, and certainly witnessed great destitution and misery. The only thing I had to do was to direct the poor creatures to attend at the relieving officer's quarters, and get placed on the lists for provisional relief; which was done.

On Thursday and yesterday, the scenes of abject want and poverty that presented at the workhouse, asking for food for themselves and families, were most distressing. The awful state of the weather added much to the suffering of the unfortunate creatures. The workhouse grounds had the appearance of a fair, such crowds were congregated, and most of the children were carried in panniers on asses, others in cars. How to meet all this wretchedness, and to see that they get what has been allotted to them honestly by the contractors, will require constant and unremitting attention on the part of every one connected with the Union. I consider it will be absolutely necessary to establish a food depôt in the vicinity of Maam for that district and the people at the Killeries; it would be impossible for them to walk to Clonbar, a distance of at least 20 Irish miles, for their allowance, especially in their present debilitated and worn-out state; but the greatest difficulty I see we have to encounter is the finding a trustworthy superintendent, for, from what I see and learn of the country, it will not be easy to do so.

I have advertised for bakers, on account of the schools to be fed from the grants from the British Relief Association, and hope next week to have some in operation.

I arranged with Mr. Lynch to withdraw his appeal against the rates, and he has left to my arbitration the settlement of the matter, which I considered much better than going to the quarter sessions, as all we require is what is legally due from the rate-payers, and I shall try to enforce what should be collected from those entitled by law to pay the rates. Having heard of this matter, I directed the relieving officer to report.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. CHARLES T. CARR, Relieving Officer, to Dr. DEMPSTER:—December 18, 1847.

ON Wednesday, the 15th instant, the sub-sheriff, at the instance of Lord Kilmaine, dispossessed several persons of their houses and holdings of land in the village of Ballywalter, in the electoral division of Kilmolara, and on being informed of it I took the application of as many of the people as applied to me, and they are now receiving out-door relief.

The Rev. Mr. PHEW, P.P., to Dr. DEMPSTER:—December 17, 1847.

I BEG to inform you, that on my way home on yesterday evening, after attending a meeting of the Vice-Guardians, held at the Ballinrobe Union workhouse, I witnessed at Cross (a little village in the electoral division of Cong) a scene more painful to my feelings than all the cases of destitution which I went yesterday to represent to the Guardians; it was, to see the destitute inhabitants of about 12 or 15 cabins in that village squatted about little fires here and there, by the side of the road, without even a screen over them, opposite the cabins they hitherto inhabited, which, indeed, presented a melancholy sight, being all that evening unroofed. En passant, I asked the poor things, "What has happened?" "Oh, Sir, the Ballinrobe Union. — — sheriff has levelled our little houses, at the request of Sir Richard O'Donnell." If it were not inconvenient to you, I would be thankful to you to drive up at your earliest time to see what I have only badly portrayed. I would like to know what efforts have been made by the poor-rate collectors to collect from that gentleman something to enable the Guardians to support in the poor-house the number of families he has thrown on that institution. I also beg officially to call your attention to the destitute poor of this electoral division. I have called and waited to a very late hour in the Guardians' office, to represent the wants of my destitute poor. I have received all courtesy from you and the Guardians, for which I am grateful. I have presented lists of starving families to the Chairman, which was more the immediate duty of the relieving officer to take, and because the relieving officer having more duties to attend than he can actually attend to, having the electoral divisions of Shrulue, Kilmain, and Kilmolara. All these containing 4000 families, and perhaps more, how can one man adequately represent to the Guardians the number of destitute families in these electoral divisions? As for my part, I feel assured that it will not do. I have been for the last week, in addition to my duties as a clergyman, trying to satisfy the poor creatures by saying I would have their names put on the out-door relief list. I have taken that trouble, a pleasing one, indeed, if it had the desired effect, but after presenting that list to the Guardians, I was told it should come through the relieving officer, who can only afford to spend one or two hours on certain days in the week in Kilmain and Kilmolara, but none at all in Shrulue.

The COMMISSIONERS to Dr. DEMPSTER:—January 4, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to state that it has been reported that in the Castlemagarrett district of the Ballinrobe Union houses have been levelled in the absence of the occupiers, who had proceeded to the workhouse for relief; and I am to request that you will have the goodness to inquire into the circumstances referred to, and report thereon to the Commissioners.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 3, 1848.

I CAN, from my own observation, bear testimony to the truth of much of the contents of the annexed letter, but cannot go to the extent the reverend gentleman does as regards the landlords. In many instances the wretched creatures, after having yielded possession of their lands and cabins, have been unable for many days to procure food under the out-door relief system; and where, or how they sheltered themselves from the inclemency of the weather I cannot conceive.

I beg to suggest to the Poor Law Commissioners that it is absolutely necessary in order to save the people from perishing, that the Vice-Guardians should contribute a few pence weekly to each family similarly circumstanced as those described by the Rev. Mr. Phew, to enable them to pay for lodging—two or three pence, I understand, would be sufficient for the purpose; and also that means should be adopted by which those who are almost in a state of nudity should obtain some description of clothing: food alone will not suffice. On my way to Maam, a short time ago, a woman rushed out of a cabin on the shore of Lough Corrib, asking for charity, in a state of utter destitution; all the clothing she had on was an old red petticoat, which she had over her shoulders, and it only covered her to the middle of the thigh. I could only give her the price of a stone of meal, and ordered her case to be investigated by the relieving officer.

In an interview which I had with my Lord Oranmore on Tuesday last, he expressed his intention, wherever any tenants of his, holding more than a quarter of an acre, surrendered their holdings in order to seek Union relief, of giving them back possession of their cabins and a quarter of an acre of his land, so as they might be in a position to receive out-door relief, and at the same time have a roof to shelter them. This intention of his lordship is a humane one, and it would be well if it were adopted by other landed proprietors.

His lordship, by taking the land into his own possession, will be able to cultivate it, which the tenants are not; and in doing so will afford employment, as labourers, to those people, and, it is to be hoped, eventually relieve the Union of their support.

Persons holding as high as eight and ten acres of land have expressed their intention of surrendering their holdings, and becoming paupers: this is a sad proof of the complete loss of that independent feeling which, though never very extensive, yet was hitherto mainly instrumental in preventing this class of persons from seeking for public charity under any privation.

I much fear there is no means of relief provided for those poor persons who, holding more than a quarter of an acre, refuse to yield possession of the cabin built thereon, it being part and parcel of the premises which they are obliged to surrender to the landlord, under the 10th section of the Irish Poor Law Extension Act, before they can become recipients of relief.

Ballinrobe Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—January 5, 1848.

WITH reference to your proposal that able-bodied destitute poor who are ejected from their cabins should, in addition to rations, be allowed 2d. or 3d. per week for lodgings, and be also supplied with clothing, I am directed to state that such a proceeding would be directly contrary to the 2nd section of the Extension Act, which directs that relief shall be given in food only; and although cases of sudden and urgent necessity, referred to in another clause, are excepted, these latter cases can only be of rare occurrence and of a temporary nature, and the powers of the relieving officer to give relief would cease at the meeting of the Guardians next after so granting it; but no permanent or continuing relief to able-bodied persons out of the workhouse appears to be allowable except that given in food.

The Commissioners recommend that sheds, to be covered with thatch, should be speedily constructed on the workhouse site, but not within the yards, to afford accommodation for able-bodied persons who have not cabins, and are without relations with whom they could reside while compelled to subsist as paupers.

The Commissioners at the same time desire to observe that persons holding more than a quarter of an acre of land who actually give up possession, and are subsequently allowed by the landlord to occupy their cabins, may receive out-door relief; but great care will be necessary to prevent evasion of the law under the pretence of having surrendered the holding.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 6, 1848.

I BEG to forward a copy of a letter which I this day addressed to the Vice-Guardians of this Union.

ENCLOSURE.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the VICE-GUARDIANS.

Ballinrobe Union.

As it will not be in my power to attend your meeting to-day, not being yet sufficiently recovered to admit of my leaving my office, I am desirous of calling your attention, through the medium of this communication, to the very unsatisfactory state of the collection of poor-rates in this Union, with a view to having the necessary steps taken under the statute, to enforce a more zealous discharge of their duties by the collectors.

I find that the last rate, amounting, with arrears of previous rate, to 14,126l. 18s. 4½d., was made so far back as the 15th day of October last, since which time, a period of nearly three months has elapsed; and within which, the entire sum lodged by the collectors, who have had their books very nigh two months, amounts to only 1118l., or about a fourteenth part of the entire sum to be collected. There ought to be at least 3000l. collected and lodged by this time; and according to the pace the collectors have been heretofore moving, it will take many months before the entire rate is collected. As the sum of 560l. per month bears only a small proportion to the expense of the Union within the same period, you will see the necessity of at once adopting stringent measures against the collectors, to oblige them to perform their duties.

Many of the landlords in the Union have been permitted by the collectors to postpone the payment of their rates, which (as the landlords have now got in almost all the rents they are likely to get this season) every day's postponement jeopardize more or less.

I beg to suggest to you the propriety of passing a resolution at your meeting to-day, authorizing proceedings against those collectors you may deem most remiss; and I will take care that such proceedings are vigorously followed up.

REPLY to the above :—January 8, 1848.

THE Commissioners fully concur with you in thinking, that it is of the utmost importance to press forward, by all the means in the power of the Vice-Guardians, the immediate collection of the rate, and the Commissioners are very desirous that your continued attention should be directed to this point.

I am at the same time, to request that you will have the goodness to obtain from the collectors and forward to the Commissioners, a statement of the names of the several immediate lessors who are defaulters; showing the sum due by each, and the steps which have been taken to obtain payment of the rate in each case.

It will be desirable that the collectors should receive specific instructions to serve the 15 days' notice, under the second section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, in every case in which the immediate lessor is accessible to them, preparatory to their taking steps to summon the defaulters before the magistrates.

Forms for the returns are sent herewith.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 4, 1848.

REFERRING to a former report, wherein I stated my suspicions that the meal contractors, engaged by the Vice-Guardians to supply the out-door rations to the poor people of these districts, were not honestly fulfilling their duties, I have the honour to annex, for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, a report received last evening from one of the sub-relieving officers, Myles Nally, for Robeen electoral division, corroborating my suspicions; and I feel satisfied a like practice is being carried on in the other electoral divisions.

On my way to Claremorris, on the 28th ultimo, I called on Nally, and gave him instructions to weigh the meal delivered to some of the unfortunate creatures, and to let me know the result.

I think the contractor could be indicted for fraud; and I respectfully request the case may be laid before the law officers, as I should like to make an example of such persons, who rob the poor of their allowance and defraud the Union.

ENCLOSURE.

I, MYLES NALLY, assistant relieving officer for the electoral division of Robeen, do hereby certify that I weighed the meal of the following persons on Sunday, the 2nd instant, and found them to be short as follows:—

No.			lbs.	oz.
No. 3	on Relief list, Mary Giles, Carranore	short	3	8
„ 52,	entitled to 24½ lbs., Peter Grady, do.	do.	2	13

The above to be short can be proved by me and them. Given under my hand this 3rd day of January, 1848,

MYLES NALLY, A. R. O., Robeen.

Many others were also short.

This account of matters is from instructions I gave Nally on Tuesday, 28th ult., having a strong suspicion of the integrity of the meal contractors.

J. D.

The COMMISSIONERS to Dr. DEMPSTER:—January 7, 1848.

I AM to state that the contract should be terminated at once, and another made; after which the Commissioner's will be prepared to sanction proceedings under the 92nd section of the 1st and 2nd Vic., c. 56, on being more fully apprised of the evidence of fraud which can be adduced.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 10, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, relative to the collection of poor-rates in this Union, and I beg to inform the Commissioners that I shall, without loss of time, endeavour to procure from the collectors the statement which they require.

I shall not fail to instruct the collectors relative to the service forthwith of the 15 days' notice, under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Amendment Act, in every case in which the immediate lessor is accessible to them; but I have reason to fear that there will be considerable difficulty in getting Messrs. Fair and Walsh to act, as they have expressed their intention of resigning their office. If they should be at liberty to do so, now that the difficult portion of the collectors' duties are about to commence, I fear that serious consequences will be the result, owing to the delay that would be likely to ensue in obtaining other collectors, and the consequent stoppage of the funds necessary for carrying out the provisions of the law.

It would appear from the enclosed letter which I have received from Mr. Fair, that he is not under bond, and I understand Mr. Walsh is similarly situated. Under these circumstances, I am in doubt as to the proper course to pursue on Thursday next, in the event of their declining to execute bonds, and tendering their resignations, and I respectfully request the Commissioners' instructions on that day, for my guidance.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. FAIR to Dr. DEMPSTER:—January 8, 1848.

MR. CARROLL has just called on me with a bond to have perfected for the collection of poor-rates.

From the reasons I stated to you on Thursday last, I believe Mr. Walsh and also myself are of opinion that we could not continue to hold the situations of poor-rate collectors, as from what has already occurred we are afraid we could not give satisfaction in the collection to the Guardians; however I will call on them on Thursday, and have this matter finally settled either one way or the other.

REPLY to the above:—January 12, 1848.

I AM to state that it is perfectly competent to the Guardians to decline to accept the resignation of a collector of poor-rates, and to compel him to discharge the duties of his office in accordance with the obligations of his bond.

It will be for the Vice-Guardians of the Ballinrobe Union to consider whether they will accept Mr. Fair's resignation, or require him to complete the collection according to his agreement.

As regards your apprehension as to the bonds of Messrs. Fair and Walsh, I am to state, that it appears by a letter from Mr. Leckey and the late Mr. Cary, dated the 26th November last, that at the time, there was no instance of a collector in either of the Unions under their charge, not having perfected the necessary bond.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 14, 1848.

A THOROUGH understanding was had with Messrs. Fair and Walsh, poor-rate collectors, yesterday, which is perfectly satisfactory to all parties. Mr. Bourke was present; and I have the satisfaction of stating that, my letter has proved of benefit for (as per margin,) these two collectors have lodged to the credit of their several electoral divisions, the sum of 733*l.* 3*s.* 8*d.* this day.

The Rev. Mr. PHEW to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 8, 1848.

I BEG to state for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that the poor starving people of this electoral division are almost neglected by the Vice-Guardians of this Union. About three or four hundred of the most destitute families of this division have crawled to Ballinrobe (a distance of 10 or 12 miles) every Friday for the last month, seeking admission to the workhouse or out-door relief. This I can certify, for I have accompanied the poor creatures thither in order to represent their wants to the Guardians; and yet, though they remained each day until night, standing in wet and cold at the workhouse door, craving for admission into the house, they have got no relief and I do now most solemnly assure you that, but for a few shillings which I used to distribute to buy bread to enable their poor families to return home, very many of them would have died by the road-side whilst returning from Ballinrobe. Six poor creatures who have been dragged to Ballinrobe in this manner, have died in this electoral division this week, and I am greatly afraid that treble that number will meet the same awful death before this day week.

I also beg to call the Commissioners' particular attention to the fact that there is no relieving officer resident in this electoral division. The gentleman, Mr. Charles T. Carr, who is the relieving officer for this division, has also upon his shoulders two other electoral divisions, viz., Kilmain and Kilmolara, and resides not in any one of the three electoral divisions, but in Ballinrobe; he is not even allowed to spend one hour in each week in this electoral division. So far from visiting the residences of the applicants for relief, not a single cabin has he visited since his appointment, save the cabin where a coroner's inquest had been held on the body of John Toole, who was found dead by the road side on his return from the Ballinrobe Union workhouse, whither he had gone on Friday, the 31st December, to seek admission to the workhouse or out-door relief, and died same night. This plainly shows the necessity of a resident relieving officer in each electoral division. Mr. Carr is not to blame; he has as much duty imposed on him as six could not adequately attend to; besides, it is no saving whatever to the Union; on the contrary, because, when the relieving officer is not resident, and goes not to visit the residences of the applicants for relief, there is no check on imposition. I have been informed that two families from the Galway Union have imposed on him, by stating they were from this electoral division, and have been rationed and received rations.

The COMMISSIONERS to the Rev. Mr. PHEW:—January 20, 1848.

THE Commissioners beg to state, in reference to your letter of the 8th instant, already acknowledged, that a considerable number of destitute persons appears to be receiving out-door relief in the Shruil electoral division of Ballinrobe Union, as well as in the other two divisions mentioned by you as requiring attention. The Commissioners will, however, address the Poor Law Inspector of the Union in relation to the arrangements for receiving applications and dispensing relief.

OBSERVATIONS of Dr. DEMPSTER on Rev. Mr. PHEW's Letter:—
January 15, 1848.

I THINK the best refutation of the letter of the Rev Mr. Phew that I can offer to the Commissioners, is the return received from the Vice-Guardians as to the state of the out-door relief granted in the districts alluded to by the reverend gentleman, on the day complained of, and also the explanation of the relieving officer, who I can state is zealous and efficient; but I fear the Vice-Guardians must, with the sanction of the Poor Law Commissioners, appoint a relieving officer for each electoral division of this Union, independently of the assistants already appointed. The duties are more than one man can attend to, and the constant imposition these officers are subjected to not only by the parties asking for relief, but by certain gentlemen who consider that, if their word or recommendation is not at once acted upon by the relieving officers and Guardians, all is wrong.

ENCLOSURES.

RETURN for the day alluded to by the Rev. Mr. PHEW.

Numbers put on out-door relief, week ending 25th December, 1847:—

Carr's District,	{ Kilmolara . . .	256 Adults,	62 Children.
	{ Kilmain, . . .	254 " . . .	58 " . . .
	{ Shruil . . .	340 " . . .	82 " . . .
		850	202

Total 1,052 adults and children.

Received from Vice-Guardians, 13th January, 1848.

Mr. CARR to Dr. DEMPSTER:—January 13, 1848.

Ballinrobe Union.

IN reply to your enquiry as to the state of the poor in the electoral division of Shruil, I have to inform you that, to the best of my opinion, the most pressing cases of destitution in the entire division are now relieved by being placed on the out-door relief list. The population of the Shruil electoral division appears to be by the census return of 1841, 5,087—an entirely agricultural people. Of that number there are at present receiving out-door relief 1,439, or one in every three and a half of the whole population.

I am aware that there are many more in great distress, but excluded from any relief by the 10th section of the Irish Relief Act.

I have also to inform you, that I have the names of 226 families on my Application and Report Book, which I submitted to the Vice-Guardians on the 7th instant; and on the names of the applicants being repeatedly called over, only 15 families or 69 individuals answered, all of whom were placed on the out-door relief list, and those who did not answer are marked on my book “no appearance.”

There are numbers of persons applying to me for relief, who have tendered their land to their landlords, but the landlords will not accept of it unless they give up their cabins also. Those people are thus still in possession of their land and excluded by the 10th section of the Relief Act from any relief, and my firm and unbending adherence to that section has earned for me the anger of parties from whom better ought to be expected.

Another thing, my insisting on certificates from either the landlord or his known agent, that the applicants have given up possession of their land, instead of taking their own words, has also increased their anger.

I, Sir, seek the strictest scrutiny into my conduct since my appointment, and will satisfactorily prove, that I have been unceasing in my endeavours to carry out fully the “benevolent purposes of the Irish Relief Acts,” consistently with my duty as laid down by the general order of 1847 (2nd August).

I certainly have not visited the houses of all the applicants, though I have of some, and for this reason, that it was utterly impossible to do so up to the present, unless I allowed, I solemnly believe, hundreds to die of starvation, the numbers in immediate and pressing want being so very great; but the pressure being now greatly abated, I am enabled to visit the houses, and have since Monday last strictly visited the house of every applicant, and the houses of those paupers already receiving out-door relief and living in the neighbourhood in which I went, and am thus revising the relief list.

I also beg leave to inform you of the manner in which my time is occupied. On Monday, I am in Shruil receiving applications for relief; on Tuesday, in Kilmain; on Wednesday, in Kilmolara for the same purpose; on Thursday and Friday in the Board-room in attendance on the Vice-Guardians; on Saturday, in the Clerk of the Union's office, registering the names of those placed on the out-door relief list; on Sunday, making up my accounts and writing tickets to give out the rations for the three following days.

REPLY to the above:—January 20, 1848.

THE Commissioners state that they will be prepared to sanction the appointment of as many additional relieving officers as you and the Vice-Guardians of Ballinrobe Union consider necessary.

The Commissioners, however, request that each officer now or hereafter to be appointed, may be assigned the sole charge of a district for which he will be accountable; and should it be necessary to appoint two for any electoral division during the pressure of distress, a defined district must still be assigned to each officer.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 13, 1848.

ENCLOSED I beg to forward two returns of defaulting rate-payers handed to me by Mr. Brannick, rate-collector for Ballindine and Claremorris. From his activity, I am certain a considerable sum of money will be lodged to the credit of the Union within one month.

He requires some notices—six days—to serve on persons in his neighbourhood.

This day he lodged to the credit of the Union 256*l.*, as per margin.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. BRANNICK to Mr. DEMPSTER:—January 13, 1848.

I BEG leave to inform you that I have just lodged 256*l.* with the treasurer of the Ballinrobe Union, and that I have promises from persons to pay their rates within the next fortnight that I have no doubt of. I also have furnished the Vice-Guardians with returns of those who I fear must be sued in the higher courts.

REPLY to the above:—January 18, 1848.

I AM to return herewith the list of rate-payers, who are defaulters in the Ballindine and Claremorris electoral divisions of the Ballinrobe Union, and

I am to request that you will lay the list before the Vice-Guardians at their next meeting, in order that the collector may receive directions to proceed to enforce payment of the rate from the parties who may not yet have paid.

Ballinrobe Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Dr. DEMPSTER :—January 14, 1848.

I AM directed to forward to you herewith a communication which they have received from the Under Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a poor man named P. Maguire, who is stated by the jury on the inquest held on his body to have died from cold and starvation; and I am to request that you will have the goodness to make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners the facts of the case; and especially as to the cause of the deceased leaving the workhouse, and whether he made application for out-door relief either to the Vice-Guardians of the Ballinrobe Union, or to any of the relieving officers.

ENCLOSURE.

Headford, January 5, 1848.*

A WANDERING beggar, who left Ballinrobe Union workhouse, named P. Maguire, died on the 3rd instant in a shed. Copy of verdict—"We find that the deceased came to his death from cold and starvation."

*The Inspector-General,

GEO. WRIGHT, 2nd Sub-Inspector.

REPLY to the above :—January 15, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge your letter of the 14th instant, with the communication received from the Under Secretary's office relating to the decease of a poor man named P. Maguire at Headford, county Galway. I beg to forward the report of the clerk of this Union on the subject for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, by which it will be seen that no man of the name left the Ballinrobe workhouse, as stated to the Inspector-General of Constabulary; nor did he make any application at the workhouse, or to any of the relieving officers for out-door relief.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. CARROLL, Clerk of Ballinrobe Union, to Dr. DEMPSTER :—January 15, 1848.

IN answer to your inquiry relative to P. Maguire, on whom the inquest was held at Headford, in the county of Galway, I beg to state that I examined the workhouse register very carefully, and could find no person of the name of Maguire on the book except a Martin Maguire, who died in the workhouse on the 31st October, 1847. I am perfectly convinced that the person on whom the inquest was held was never an inmate of the Ballinrobe workhouse.

The COMMISSIONERS to Dr. DEMPSTER :—January 21, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward herewith a copy of a communication which they have received from the Under Secretary's office, relating to the decease of a man named Martin Bourke, who is stated by the jury, on the inquest held on his body, to have died from starvation; and I am to request that you will have the goodness to make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made application for relief, either to the Vice-Guardians of the Ballinrobe Union, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 22, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to return, by desire of the Vice-Guardians, the copy of a verdict of a jury on the body of a man, named "Martin Burke," who was found dead in a pool of water at Kilmain, in this Union, with the report of the relieving officer for that electoral division, also that of the master of the workhouse, and likewise of the clerk of the Union.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. CARR, Relieving Officer, to Dr. DEMPSTER:—January 22, 1848.

I BEG leave to state in answer to your inquiry, that Martin Burke, upon whose body an inquest was held near Kilmain, never applied to me for relief.

Mr KILGARRY, Acting-Master Ballinrobe Union Workhouse, to Dr. DEMPSTER:—
January 22, 1848.

No person of the name of Martin Burke applied at the workhouse for relief.

UNDER directions of the Vice-Guardians, I have examined the House Application and Report Book from 18th November to the 14th of January, and cannot find the name of Martin Burke on it, as having made any application for admittance.

M. W. CARROLL, Clerk of Ballinrobe Union.

I HAVE the honour to transmit herewith, a return of the number of persons on out-door relief on the 21st instant, and regret to state that on next Board-day, the number will be greatly increased. The destitution and misery we daily witness is frightful, and I can see no limitation to it.

It is truly lamentable to observe, that there is little or no preparation for spring sowing, no tillage going on; in fact, no out-door work whatsoever, of course I mean among the smaller classes of farmers. All industry is at an end, and if some remedial measures are not speedily adopted, there will be almost no corn in this Union next harvest. All is waste; the people have no seed, and if they had, I fear there is little inclination on their parts to labour; every one running to the relieving officers to be placed on the books.

How to cover the enormous expense of this Union is to me a source of great anxiety. Although the rate collectors are now exerting themselves, yet there are great difficulties in consequence of the deeply embarrassed state of almost every landed proprietor here.

The rate collectors having applied to me last week, for protection in the discharge of their duties; I had the necessary affidavits prepared, but owing to the absence, on leave, of the resident magistrate, the collectors could not get them sworn; however, at Petty Sessions here this day, I trust the preliminary steps will be perfected, and thus enable us to proceed with vigour in the col-

I am to request that you will be good as to furnish the Commissioners with a detailed report, as to the arrangements for the employment of paupers receiving out-door relief in the Ballinrobe Union; with a statement of the numbers so employed, the amount of labour exacted from each, the rate of remuneration to each, and the kind of work (if any) in addition to stone-breaking, on which such paupers are employed.

Ballinrobe Union.

In consequence of having been very severely attacked with the prevailing epidemic, I was unable for the last three weeks to leave my office; but I now purpose to make a tour of observation through the Union, of the result of which I shall have the honour to communicate to the Commissioners.

JAMES DEMPSTER, M.D.

REPLY to the above:—January 26, 1848.

I AM to request that you will be good as to furnish the Commissioners with a detailed report, as to the arrangements for the employment of paupers receiving out-door relief in the Ballinrobe Union; with a statement of the numbers so employed, the amount of labour exacted from each, the rate of remuneration to each, and the kind of work (if any) in addition to stone-breaking, on which such paupers are employed.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 24, 1848.

SOME of the rate collectors have made distresses of cattle and sheep, for the poor-rates, belonging to gentlemen in this neighbourhood. The sale day has been adjourned by consent till 2nd proximo, to give time to make up the money. However, in event of the sale going on, which is not improbable, I fear no purchasers will come forward; in such a case, I beg to be informed what steps should be adopted to prevent the auction, viz., a mockery, which would damage the collection of the rates for the future. Two or three determined examples will much facilitate the collection; as an impression had gone abroad that the Government would forgive all the demands.

REPLY to the above:—January 26, 1848.

I AM to state that, failing other purchasers for the cattle distrained for non-payment of poor-rate, you might make application to the Commissariat officer to become a purchaser, or one of the Union officers might be requested to purchase the cattle.

The attention of the Government will be drawn to your communication.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 24, 1848.

WE take the liberty of drawing your attention to the near approach of the time when your allowance for out-door relief in the Ballinrobe Union will expire, namely, the 2nd of February next; and as you will have been informed by the minutes of proceedings of our Board there on the 20th and 21st instant, of the numbers we have placed on the out-door relief lists up to this last date in the several electoral divisions of the Union, in addition to 800 pauper inmates in the workhouse, you will be able to arrive at a proper conclusion as to the propriety of continuing your sanction for a further defined period.

It may not be amiss at this time to point to the fact, that since the 2nd of December, the date of your sealed order sanctioning out-door relief to others than those recognised by the 1st section of the Extension Act, we have placed on the register 23,419 individuals, which, with the inmates of the workhouse, amount to about one in every $3\frac{1}{2}$ of the whole population of the Union; and taking into consideration the extraordinary sub-division of land in the county of Mayo, these numbers must afford satisfactory evidence that the great bulk of the properly qualified persons, consistent with the provisions of the 10th section of the said Act, have been provided for; doubtless under the great pressure in which we have been involved, and with a staff scarcely sufficient for the occasion, the relieving officers may have admitted on their books families which were not legally entitled to relief, and also that some who were qualified have been unintentionally passed over; yet still, with all allowances for cases of this nature, it is surprising to witness the crowds of applicants, which continue to assail the workhouse on Board-days, and press their claims with the greatest importunity, and the greater number of whom nothing but the intelligence and trustworthiness of the relieving officers would have enabled us to reject.

We think the time has arrived when we are called upon to make you more particularly acquainted with the position in which we stand with respect to funds. We take the liberty of reminding you, that the uniform rate of 3s. in the pound over the whole Union, which we adopted, was only estimated to meet the current expenditure of the workhouse when full, the salaries of officers, the liquidation of the outstanding debts of the Union, and any surplus to be applied to the discharge of the advances from the Treasury. With reference to the outstanding debts, on contemplating the expected difficulties of a renewed visitation of destitution, and the consequent calls upon all the resources of the Union, we were induced to request a meeting of the creditors, and detailing to them the state and prospects of the funds, to claim their forbearance, and their acceptance of an instalment of 50 per cent. out of the present rate, and the payment of the remainder out of the next succeeding rate, the payments to commence on the 1st of the present month. In justice to the parties, we feel bound to admit, that this offer was generally and freely accepted; but hitherto we have been unable to fulfil our part of the engagement, as all the surplus means which have come into our hands, after the current expenses of the Union and the discharge of a few of the old debts, have been absorbed by the large and increasing expenditure for the out-door relief, at present amounting to 533*l.* for the week. This outlay we have been hitherto enabled to sustain; but we scarcely expect, with all the urgency we can reasonably bring to bear on our collectors, that the next week's receipts will continue as in the same independent position towards our contractors, and all the time we suffer from the importunate demands of the creditors which we cannot meet, or hold out any hope of discharging, while the funds are exhausted by our present great and unthought of outlay, and which did it even stand alone, could not much longer be provided for.

As therefore the present limit for out-door relief in the Union rapidly approaches, and the contracts we have entered into with the merchants will simultaneously terminate, we deem it right to place the circumstances of our position before you, in order that you may advise us on the most fitting course to pursue.

REPLY to the above:—January 27, 1848.

THE Commissioners have made application to Count Strzelecki for an advance of 300*l.*, to enable you to continue the relief afforded to the destitute poor in the Union.

The Commissioners regret to find, that so much of the rate remains uncollected in the Union, and they request that they may be informed whether you are able to certify that the ratepayers of the Union will not be able to meet their liabilities, and that they are making such exertion as can reasonably be expected from them.

The Commissioners also request that you will be so good as to report specially on the following points:—

1st. What is the sum total of the poor rates paid in Ballinrobe Union since you were appointed, and to how many shillings in the pound on the net annual value does it amount?—

2ndly. What is the obstacle to the rate being collected? Is it that there is negligence or dishonesty in collectors or rate-payers?

Is it that the crops have failed? Are the means of the proprietors and occupiers exhausted or likely soon to be exhausted, and if so, how is this proved?

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 29, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state for the information of the Poor Law Commissioners, that the rate collectors have lodged to the credit of the respective electoral divisions the sums as per margin this week, and are actively engaged in the collection.

Having maturely reflected on the state of the valuation of this Union, I considered it my duty to address a letter to the Vice-Guardians on the subject, and respectfully submit a copy.

I trust the Commissioners will concur in my view.

ENCLOSURE.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—January 27, 1848.

I BEG to call your attention to the necessity that exists for having an immediate and complete revision of the valuation of this Union effected.

Owing to the number of persons who have surrendered their holdings in order to be placed on the relief lists, as well as the number that have lost them from various other causes, or parted with them since the last revision of this Union, it would be unjust to all parties to strike another rate upon the existing valuation; as the appeals against such rate by parties improperly rated would be endless, and would involve the Union in very considerable law expenses.

As it is probable that it will be necessary (in order to meet the expenses of the Union) to make another rate in a couple of months hence, I am desirous of bringing this question of a revision before you now, in order that we may have a perfect valuation when the time arrives for the making of such new rate; and not to be then obliged to postpone the striking for some months, until the revision shall be completed.

I beg therefore to suggest to you the propriety of having advertisements inserted in the local papers, inviting tenders from competent persons to revise the entire Union; the tender to state the sum for which the business will be performed, and which sum is to include all expenses consequent upon the revision, and also to state the time required for its due performance.

REPLY to the above :—February 2, 1848.

THE Commissioners approve of the communication which you addressed to the Vice-Guardians on the subject of a revision of the valuation of the Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 31, 1848.

IN reply to the first paragraph of your letter of the 27th inst., we have to state, that the Temporary Poor Law Inspector handed us orders on the Commissariat store at Ballinrobe for the very seasonable supply of 300*l.* worth of Indian meal, which we have applied to the relief of the destitute poor in the Union.

To the second subject upon which you desire information, we beg to say, that although many rate-payers may be unable to meet their liabilities, yet we have good reason to expect that the far greater portion of the still uncollected rate will be paid in.

In answer to the other queries upon which you call for a special report, we have to inform you, that the sum of 3350*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* is the total amount paid in to the treasurer of the Union since our appointment, being about 9½*d.* in the pound on the net annual value; secondly, we do not think that there is either negligence or dishonesty on the part of our collectors. On the contrary, they show every diligence, and appear determined to compel payment by distress under the protection of the civil authorities, if necessary; yet, with every exertion that we can fairly expect from them, we regret to say the rates are coming in slowly, which arises, we believe, from the general inability of the rate-payers, and the opposition the collectors occasionally meet with; but we cannot ascribe dishonesty either to the majority of the proprietors or respectable rate-payers of the Union. An instance of the rescue of sheep seized for the non-payment of rate, was reported to us on Thursday last, and we directed the collector to lodge an information before a magistrate, and have the parties made amenable to the law.

We cannot report any failure of the crops beyond a very partial loss of potatoes, of which, however, a very small breadth was sown this season. The corn crops, as far as came under our observation, were extensive and luxuriant; but, owing to negligence on the part of the owners, great losses must have been sustained by the ravages of storms and inclemency of weather.

We believe many of the landed proprietors find much difficulty in meeting their engagements, owing to the non-payment of rents; but we do not feel justified in stating that their means, or those of the extensive occupiers, are exhausted. With respect to smaller occupiers, of which there is a numerous class, we know that a very large proportion of them is not only totally unable to pay their rate, but that a great number of them is at present either on the register as destitute poor receiving relief, having surrendered their holdings, and been permitted by their landlords to re-occupy their houses as caretakers or lodgers, or have been admitted to the workhouse as paupers, having totally abandoned them.

Upon a full consideration of the general condition of the people of the Union, and the wide-spread destitution which prevails over its almost entire extent, the consequences of which are felt by every class in society, we feel satisfied that we have come to a just conclusion in stating that it will require some forbearance to arrive at a successful collection of the residue of the rates; and whilst we will not relax in our efforts to attain this very desirable end, we would strongly recommend that a reasonable moderation be observed in the matter. The adoption of a more urgent and peremptory management, certainly productive of much exasperation and probable destruction of many now struggling with their difficulties, and who might eventually surmount them, would only gain an end which a more considerate course would as surely and more creditably accomplish. We would not, however, have you infer that we have suggested or permitted any temporizing on the part of the collectors; but we are aware that some individuals have asked them for as much forbearance as their duty would allow.

REPLY to the above:—February 2, 1848.

In reply to your observations with regard to the collection of the arrears of rate in this Union, I am directed to state, that the Commissioners are unwilling to urge you to do anything which is unnecessarily harsh; but the Commissioners are bound to state, that they are unable to concur with you in the course to be adopted towards the defaulting rate-payers of the Ballinrobe Union; and the Commissioners recommend that stringent measures should be resorted to, in order to compel payment of the rates with the least possible delay.

At the same time, the Commissioners will transmit a further sum of 200*l.* to you from the British Association.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 1, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to forward a letter from Mr. Brannick, poor-rate collector for the electoral divisions of Claremorris and Ballindine, for the information of the Commissioners, requesting that the Commissariat may be directed to become purchasers of farm produce seized by him for rates.

From the circumstances of this case, a safe must be had as an example in that part of the Union; I therefore respectfully request instructions, being determined by every exertion in our power to get in the rates.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. BRANNICK to Dr. DEMPSTER:—January 29, 1848.

I beg leave to inform you that I attended this day to sell by auction farm produce on the lands of Lawan, seized by me, for poor-rates. There being no purchasers obliged me to postpone the sale to Tuesday, the 1st of February next. May I take the liberty of suggesting to you the necessity of the Commissary being in attendance to purchase on that day, as his doing so will produce the most beneficial results in the collection of the rates hereafter.

N.B.—The distress consists of hay and corn in stack. Amount of rate due, 21*l.* 16*s.* 7*d.*

Arranged to postpone till Monday, 7th February.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 4, 1848.

I AM to state, for your information, that the Commissioners have reason to know that a communication on the subject of your letter has been made to the resident magistrate, and they do not anticipate that you will find any further difficulty in the matter.

The Commissioners concur with you in thinking it of great importance that the payment of the rates should be effected as speedily as possible, by every means at the disposal of the collectors and the Vice-Guardians.

Dr. DEMPSTER to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 5, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that Deputy Commissary-General Dobree, who came here on a tour of inspection, having reported to me a case of very great apparent hardship which he was witness to "en route" from Maam—that of a man being compelled to level his cabin, and in fact, from the man's story to him, set fire to it, before a surrender of his land would be accepted by his landlord, and thus become eligible for out-door relief—I proceeded to the district to ascertain the facts.

The man's name is Patrick Philton. He and his family had been receiving provisional relief; but when it was investigated by the Guardians, that he was holding more land than is allowed by the Act, he was struck off. He lived on the lands of Doughty, belonging to Sir Richard O'Donnell; but held the cabin and acre of land he occupied from a co-partnership of tenants, to whom he would pay no rent for several years; and being withal a very bad character, living by plundering his neighbours, they compelled him to leave the neighbourhood, and gave him the timbers of the cabin, which he was removing at the moment Mr. Dobree was passing, and to whom he told his own tale. I saw the relieving officer of the district of Cong, and had his name placed on the list for relief. This man is the husband of the woman mentioned by me in my report 1st January, whom I saw almost in a state of nudity on the road; and I have since learned she was in the constant practice of so doing when strangers passed, to extort charity.

From the great distances some of the poor people of Joyce's country have to come to get the rations of meal, in many instances 15 miles, Mr. Dobree and I agreed to recommend that the police station at Maam might be sanctioned as a dépôt, and the constable in charge should be appointed distributor, for I can find no person in that part of the country to whom I would entrust the provisions. Constable Flynn was so employed under the Relief Act last year, and gave great satisfaction to all concerned.

I beg to state that a further adjournment of the sale of stock was granted at the earnest solicitation of the owners; and as I am anxious, if possible, to prevent public exposure, I concurred with the rate collectors as to granting the time asked for, they having proper security for the forthcoming of the stock, or to pay the money themselves.

In the electoral division of Mayo, Mr. Walsh and his assistants were deforced and rescued on the 3rd instant. Informations were this day taken by the resident magistrate at the Petty Sessions of Hollymount, and the necessary steps have been taken to bring the parties to justice.

The amount of rates lodged for the week is as follows:—

Mr. Higgins	25	2	0
Mr. Walsh (and 60 l. too late for treasurer)	148	1	9
Mr. Brannick	54	6	10
	227	10	7

A very inconsiderable amount when the number on Relief List is taken into consideration. I beg to annex a return of the out-door relief to this date.

JAMES DEMPSTER, M.D.

REPLY to the above :—February 8, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration your weekly report to the 5th instant, in which you refer to a further adjournment of a sale of stock, at the request of the owners, of which you approved, from a desire to prevent public exposure, and as the collectors had taken proper security.

The Commissioners presume that this adjourned sale has been the cause of the release of stock impounded, of which the Vice-Guardians complain in a report of the 7th instant, this day referred for your observations.

The Commissioners are not at present prepared to say that arrangements of this kind should not be sanctioned under any circumstances, where the parties owing rate hold back until seizures are actually made. The expediency of sanctioning the collectors giving up seizures, without actual payment of the rates due, is however very questionable; and the Commissioners consider that in such cases the collectors should be left to act solely on their own responsibility. They also think that looking to the difficulty of collecting the rates, and the necessity of making examples, as well as of dealing equally with all classes, no compromise should be assented to from a desire to avoid exposure of the defaulters.

KILRUSH UNION.

Kilrush Union.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 25, 1847.

I ATTENDED the weekly meeting of the Kilrush Board of Guardians yesterday, and have the honour to refer you to the minutes forwarded by the clerk, for their proceedings.

There was a serious press of applicants (many of them removed from want), owing to some popular misapprehension about out-door relief. An offer of the workhouse dispersed them. There were several notoriously bad and turbulent characters among the crowd, whom I observed counselling and inciting the others to clamour for out-door relief and public works.

I have not in any part of the country seen so great a repugnance to enter the workhouse; and the great majority of those who avail themselves of it are evidently in an advanced stage of starvation.

There has been a general scrutiny of the house during the week, when upwards of 100 of classes 1 and 3 were selected to go out; the greater number expressed their willingness to do so, on receiving the amount of food prescribed by the late Relief Act weekly. I found several persons who should never have gained admission, wives of men earning a livelihood, &c.; the Guardians have, at my suggestion, directed the husbands to be made amenable to the law.

The house has improved during the week, in general cleanliness and discipline, and an increased number of men and boys put to work. The assistant master and matron are zealous and efficient; but the master is undoubtedly wanting in many essential requisites for such a calling.

The school is undoubtedly neglected—a mere farce. The master utterly unfit for that or any other calling; attending his school is a pure waste of time. I propose bringing the matter under the notice of the Guardians.

Premises have been taken for a temporary fever hospital, and the patients will be removed from the workhouse in a few days; there is however delay and difficulty in carrying out any detail for want of ready money.

When the fever patients are removed, I calculate upon accommodation for 1200 in the house during the winter season.

The Kilrush workhouse labours under great disadvantages from the obvious want of hospital accommodation in so large a district; the house is, in consequence, to a great extent converted into an infirmary for chronic cases, which ought to be provided for and treated elsewhere. The county hospital adjoining the workhouse, should be given up to the Guardians or enlarged by the county. Its present accommodation is altogether insufficient at any time.

I have visited and walked through a large portion of the Union during the week. The general destitution is undoubted, and the people patient under their privations. Their usually wretched state of living accounts for this apparent apathy. I have gone from house to house, where I was quite unknown, and judged from personal observation.

The north and west of the Union, including the divisions of Kilmurry, Kilmacduane, Killard, Kilkee, and a part of Moyarta, are in a most lamentable state. The parts on the coast are most densely populated, with a turf-digging, seaweed-gathering, fish-catching, amphibious population; as bad fishermen as they are agriculturists. They have no regular mode of gaining a livelihood. They are inert, improvident, and utterly without foresight. Lavish and constant expenditure may keep them from starvation, but it will require years of good management and well-devised measures to make them independent or self-supporting. A few acres of reclaimed bog planted with potatoes has heretofore supplied their wants, and rendered them content on the lowest possible scale of existence. While westerly gales prevail during the winter, large numbers eke out a wretched existence gathering seaweed, which they carry and sell further inland for manure.

The villages of Mullagh, Doonbeg, Bealaha, and Kilkee, are wretched nests of filth, famine, and disease; Carrigaholt and Burrin no better; Kilmekil division is also very miserable, without a single resident who has sufficient means to expend 5% in employment.

Kilrush Union.

The district seems swept of food. The small farmers are realizing their produce, which they are afraid to keep.

In the district I have remarked upon, I believe one-third of the population will be utterly without food at Christmas, two-thirds starving before February, and the whole devoid of food or money before May.

I cannot doubt that all holding over 10 acres (though a small class) are much better off than they appear or are willing to admit. I have no fears for them. In many cases they have withheld both rent and produce from the landlord; living in a state of unwholesome expectancy of some great social or political change.

They are, however, ploughing and preparing their land at this early period, intending, I presume, to pay their rent, where they cannot help it.

That many of the properties in this district, are grossly mismanaged and shamelessly neglected cannot be denied; yet there are several cheering exceptions which strike the most casual observers.

An immense number of small landholders are under ejectment, or notice to quit, even where the rents have been paid up.

The universal and minute subdivision of land may have rendered this a matter of necessity and good policy, but its immediate effect cannot fail to prove most disastrous, a great majority being determined to overhold if they can, and are in the mean time deterred from doing anything to the land.

Such wholesale proceedings must, I fear, also affect the peace of the district.

I have been successful in impressing a better spirit among the rate-collectors, assuring them of countenance and support; and I am happy to say the collection goes on satisfactorily.

Intimidation paralyses all from high to low; and to such an extent, that I feel confident had local and constant support been much longer deferred in this Union, collectors would not have dared to act, nor the Guardians force them to do so. Many who refused to pay their rates before my arrival here, have since done so, from the conviction that immediate and energetic steps would be taken to compel them.

The Guardians generally, and the Chairman in particular, are actuated by a very proper spirit.

I have no doubt I shall be enabled to carry out the views of the Commissioners, without serious opposition.

REPLY to the above:—November 29, 1847.

WITH reference to that part of your report which relates to the state of the schools, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that the Commissioners have, as you will perceive by the enclosed papers, urged upon the Board of Guardians, on several occasions, the propriety of endeavouring to secure the services of more efficient individuals for the situations of schoolmaster and schoolmistress, by offering larger salaries than are at present paid to those officers.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 1, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of No. 39,235, D. 47, and accompanying minutes herewith returned.

I will not fail to press the Commissioners' views upon the Board of Guardians and will report the result.

The school (boys) is at present a mere mockery.

I have also to acknowledge the receipt of Commissioners' report on the training of pauper children, which will enable me to form an opinion on this head, and bring so important a matter before the Guardians.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 1, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated 29th December (November), enclosing a copy of a letter forwarded to the Kilrush Board of Guardians, in reference to the employment of pauper children (female) in a lace factory.

Kilrush Union.

I will bring the matter under the immediate notice of the Guardians, and represent the proceeding as opposed to the Commissioners' orders and views.

I would beg to observe that this practice is one of long standing, commenced before I had charge of the Union, and which, I presume, had not the sanction of the Commissioners.

I will report the result of my communication with the Guardians.

REPLY to the above:—December 4, 1847.

THE Commissioners were not aware that any of the workhouse children were employed in the lace factory until they saw some reference to the subject in the Guardians' minutes of the 17th ultimo.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 1, 1847.

IN reference to the copy of a letter from the Agent of the British Relief Association, dated 4th November, and the information therein called for, I have the honour to state, that I think the proposed relief should not be deferred beyond 25th December. Destitution is so rapidly on the increase, that I am undoubtedly of opinion that out-door relief must be given to other classes than those at present receiving it. The Guardians are exerting themselves laudably and strictly according to law. The prospects of the Union may be gathered from my weekly reports.

I am not aware of the extent of assistance proposed by the Association.

I think a less number than 10 ovens would not afford the necessary relief.

I would propose for their sites,—Carrigaholt, Kilkee, Kilrush, Doonbeg, Cooraclare, Mullagh, Kilmihil, Kilmurry, McMahon, Labasheeda, Kildycut.

Ovens to bake 1600 lbs. of bread per diem (in two batches) may be erected with all necessary appurtenances for 12*l.* each.

They should be adapted for turf-fuel solely.

I shall be ready to afford any more detailed information which may be required.

REPLY to the above:—December 3, 1847.

I AM to acquaint you that the Commissioners have forwarded a copy of your communication to Commissary-General Sir R. Routh.

With reference to your statement, that you are of opinion that out-door relief must be given to other classes than those at present receiving it, I am to request that you will be so good as to bring the question of the propriety of issuing a sealed order, authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men, under the special consideration of the Guardians.

At the same time, the Commissioners forward a copy of the two descriptions of orders sent to Unions for which workhouse relief is insufficient, in order that you may be fully aware of the two alternatives which will present themselves, and may be prepared to make such recommendation as the circumstances of the case may seem to demand.

ENCLOSURE.

Union.

To the PAID OFFICERS acting in execution of the duties of the Board of Guardians of the UNION; to the Clerk and other Officers of the said Union, and to all other persons whom it may concern.

WHEREAS it has been shown to our satisfaction, that, by reason of the want of room in the workhouse of the said Union, adequate relief cannot be afforded therein to destitute poor persons not being persons permanently disabled, or destitute poor persons disabled by sickness or accident, or destitute poor widows having two or more legitimate children dependent on them, and it is expedient to authorize and empower the paid officers acting in execution of the duties of the Board of Guardians of the said Union to administer relief out of the workhouse to such destitute poor persons, for a limited time as hereinafter mentioned.

Now therefore, we, the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in

Kilrush Union.

Ireland, do hereby authorize and empower the said paid officers to administer relief out of the workhouse, in food, to destitute poor persons not being persons permanently disabled from labour by reason of old age, infirmity, or bodily or mental defect, and not being persons disabled from labour by reason of severe sickness or serious accident, and thereby deprived of the means of earning a subsistence for themselves and their families, whom they are liable by law to maintain, and not being poor widows having two or more legitimate children dependent on them, for two months next ensuing after the date of this order.

And we do hereby make the following rules and regulations as to the granting, ordering, and giving of relief to all persons who shall be relieved by the said paid officers, under the authority of this order, that is to say:—

1. Every person relieved under the authority of this order shall be relieved in food only, and such food shall, as far as is practicable, be cooked food.
2. Every able-bodied male person relieved under the authority of this order shall, so far as is practicable, be set to perform a task of work during eight hours at least of every day for which he receives such relief.
3. No able-bodied person who shall be in employment, nor any part of his or her family, shall receive relief as a destitute person under the authority of this order.

And for the more effectual administration of relief under this order, we do hereby authorize and direct the said paid officers to appoint so many relieving officers as shall be found sufficient from time to time, to superintend the labours of such persons as shall be set to work, in pursuance of the regulations in this order contained, and otherwise to assist in the administration of relief under this order, as the said paid officers, subject to our approval, shall direct.

Union.

To the GUARDIANS of the POOR of the _____ UNION; to the Clerk or Clerks to the Justices of the Petty Sessions, held for the Division or Divisions in which the Townlands and Places comprised within the said Union are situated, and to all others whom it may concern.

WHEREAS it has been shown to our satisfaction, that, by reason of the want of room in the workhouse of the _____ Union, adequate relief cannot be afforded to destitute poor persons, being widows with one child dependent on them respectively, or to destitute poor persons, being children whose parents are both dead, or to destitute poor persons, being able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families dependent on them for support are affected by severe sickness or accident.

Now therefore, we, the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, do hereby authorize and empower the Guardians of the said Union, for the period of two months from the date of this order, to administer relief out of the workhouse, in food, to such destitute persons as aforesaid, being widows with one child dependent on them respectively, or being children whose parents are both dead, or being able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families dependent on them for support are affected by severe sickness or accident.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 2, 1847.

I ATTENDED the meeting of Guardians yesterday, and have the honour to refer you to the usual minutes for their proceedings.

The number of admissions amounted to about 360, making in all about 1300, in the house this morning.

Of the 300 admitted yesterday, 60 or 70 have already claimed their discharge; and I have no doubt 100 more will leave the house this day. Many of them acknowledged to me this day, that they came in solely for the purpose of extorting "out-door relief," and had no intention whatever of remaining in the house.

The number on the out-door relief list I cannot accurately state, but will do so as soon as they are registered. These, however, are strictly of Classes 1, 2, and 3; the number on this head must be expected to increase rapidly as their relief was too long deferred.

The clamour and pressure for "out-door relief" is so excessive, that the Guardians have resolved upon testing all cases admitting of a doubt. The lying deceit, and utter absence of truth and shame, render this apparently harsh measure necessary; due discrimination is however used.

Notwithstanding a full explanation of the Commissioners' views, and the expression of my own strong opinion, "out-door relief" is confined to food alone. The Guardians are almost unanimously of opinion, that owing to the density of the population, and number of habitations, all will find a shelter with friends or relatives, if they have means of subsistence, without any addition of money; and that any relief in the latter form would prove so attractive as to overwhelm them with applicants. I neither coincide in this opinion or conclusion.

Sixty or seventy more of Classes 1 and 3 have been selected and discharged during the week.

The temporary fever hospital is in a state of forwardness; there are 280 in the house under medical treatment, which materially interferes with its proper and efficient working.

Fever is on the decrease, but other ailments consequent upon bad and insufficient food, are on the increase.

The house has improved in order and cleanliness, but I apprehend no permanent improvement can result under the present master. He is, I have no doubt, trustworthy and well intentioned, but wanting in all other qualifications for such a calling, and unfit for the head of any establishment. The assistant master is active and intelligent and well qualified, vastly superior to the master in all essentials.

There is a want of clothing, which I have no doubt will be remedied on my representation.

There is a lamentable absence of industrial employment or training, which I will represent and hope to see remedied.

I have visited and revisited during the week those parts of the Union where I have been led to expect the greatest want or difficulty. Kilkee division, taken as a whole, is in a wretched state. That portion of Moyarta lying between the Ferry and Carrigaholt, including Querin and Boonoha, is a fearful example of the misery and demoralization which may be induced by bad management; the subdivision, subletting, extravagant rents, density of population, and consequent misery, exceed anything I have ever seen or heard of. There are holdings under lease, valued at 1*l.* per annum.

This neighbourhood only wants a faithful chronicle to furnish horrors and misery; equal to anything I have heard of elsewhere.

Many of the habitations are no better than a fox earth, and the inmates, in their appearance, clothing, and mode of living, hardly human.

I need not detail miseries I have seen and taken steps to relieve. This class are comparatively content and uncomplaining.

Their mode of scratching the land does not deserve the name of cultivation. Their attempts are inferior to that I have seen among North American Indians.

This division contains upwards of 10,000 inhabitants upon 13,000 acres, and the net annual value under 5000*l.* Without potatoes, it is a permanent pauper colony; the swarms of children incredible.

The division of Kilballyowen* adjoining it is comparatively comfortable; the people have better houses, are better clad, and there are as fine potatoes as I have ever seen for 6*d.* per stone, while they bring 9*d.* in Kilrush.

The properties here have been better managed, and a spirit of improvement and industry is observable among all classes.

Kilmactuane, north of Cooraclara, is very wretched, and I anticipate some loss of rate here, many of the rate-payers being absolutely destitute.

The north part of Kilrush and the east is not much better.

I have fears for the possibility of collecting another rate or instalment this year, a great mass of the small rate-payers will be destitute ere summer.

The rate so far, is being most satisfactorily collected and without any serious resistance, though I am given to understand such will be counselled in some divisions, unless out-door relief (that is to the able-bodied) be immediately given.

Kilrush Union.

There are a few mischievous advisers, with sufficient influence to impede and obstruct, and I only hope they may not adopt such a course.

I see no reason to modify the opinion expressed in my last weekly report, on the prospects of the Union, daily observation, I regret to say, confirms me in it.

The workhouse is now over-crowded, and though a few days may enable the removal of fever hospitals from the house, the accommodation so obtained will not suffice for another day's admission. I would beg the Commissioners' instructions on this emergency.

I would propose other and additional premises being rented.

REPLY to the foregoing:—December 4, 1847.

IN reference to your remarks regarding the crowded state of the workhouse, I am to refer you to the Commissioners' letter of yesterday, in which they request you to bring the question of the propriety of issuing a sealed order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men under the special consideration of the Guardians.

I am at the same time to add that when the Guardians have thoroughly considered the question, and have recorded their views respecting it, and the Commissioners have likewise received your own recommendations, the Commissioners will be prepared to issue an order authorizing out-door relief to able-bodied men under the second section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, if such order appears absolutely necessary.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 2, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to submit a report of the following occurrences for the information of the Commissioners. On my arrival at the workhouse at 11 o'clock, A.M. yesterday, I found about 1000 persons assembled in the neighbourhood, and evidently bent upon some general move. I was not long kept in suspense. A few minutes only elapsed when a general cry for out-door relief was set up, accompanied by unmistakeable symptoms of turbulence and riot; a plentiful crop of blackthorn sticks appearing above the heads of all. I addressed the mob upon the impropriety and impolicy of their proceedings at a time when the Guardians were doing their utmost for them, and acting most efficiently. When I ceased, a simultaneous rush was made to force the outer gate, while numbers at the same moment scaled the walls in all directions. While I was in the act of assisting the officers to bolt the gate, one of the ring-leaders struck at me with a stick; I dragged him in, shut the gate, disarmed him, and put him in the lock-up.

This had an instantaneous effect in checking the mob, and eight or nine others were subsequently taken.

At this time a continuous stream of people was observed approaching from the Kilkee district. Colonel Vandeleur, the Chairman of the Guardians, and the Sub-Inspector of Police, had gone to Kilkee on magisterial business, but meeting such crowds heading to Kilrush, and learning their object, he prudently returned with the Sub-Inspector. Seeing the complexion of matters at the workhouse, where the mob had increased to about 3000, he ordered up the police, and subsequently the detachment of troops quartered here.

The leaders of the mob seeing that measures were taken to repress any attempt at violence, left the miserable and really destitute to gain admission, after being nearly trampled to death. The sufferings of the aged and infirm women and infants, trampled upon and trodden down, were really heartrending. About 300 were subsequently admitted.

Colonel Vandeleur's return was most providential, as I fear no other magistrate (though another was present) could have been found to act; and the consequences of any success on the part of such a mob, would have been most disastrous. Colonel Vandeleur's conduct was prompt and energetic, and had the best result.

From the spirit displayed by some of the people's guides, I see little prospect of law and order being preserved here, without the presence of a paid magistrate in the Union or district. The very few magistrates within reach, may be quite equal to routine duty; but without offering the slightest reflection upon their general efficiency and attention, I must add my honest opinion, that Colonel Vandeleur is the only one who can be reckoned upon, on an emergency. I feel confident that but for his opportune arrival yesterday, the workhouse would have been sacked before another magistrate could have been found to act.

The police conducted themselves admirably, and remained to a late hour, when the mob dispersed.

The fact that only about 300 out of 3000 applied to come into the house, denotes the object of the demonstration.

The prompt measures taken to repress outrage will, I am sure, save all parties future trouble.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 12, 1847.

THE Kilrush Board of Guardians have resolved to rent a house immediately adjoining the workhouse, for the accommodation of some classes of the children. They are at the same time desirous of renting some land belonging to it which also adjoins the workhouse walls. The farm contains about 12 or 14 acres; would the Commissioners sanction this?

The land at present in their occupation is well managed and productive; but by no means sufficient in extent to employ the able-bodied inmates of the house.

REPLY to the above:—December 18, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 12th instant, in which you inquire whether they would sanction the renting by the Board of Guardians of Kilrush Union of 12 or 14 acres of land adjoining the workhouse; and in reference thereto, I am to state that a greater quantity than 15 statute acres, exclusive of the ground actually covered by the workhouse buildings, cannot legally be held with any workhouse, and that of the 15 acres, 12 must be actually attached to, or as the expression of the Act of Parliament is, occupied with the workhouse. The Commissioners will readily give their sanction to the taking land annexed to the workhouse, and the hired house of Kilrush Union, not exceeding in the whole 15 acres.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 16, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to refer you to the usual minutes for the proceedings of the Kilrush Board of Guardians, whose weekly meeting I attended yesterday.

The necessity for applying for a sealed order to authorize out-door relief to the able-bodied was unanimously concurred in. I unhesitatingly state my opinion that it is a measure of absolute necessity, and one which it would be imprudent and impolitic to defer. A good deal of management has been necessary, to render the workhouse available so long. The necessary relief may be gradually given, and if possible obviate the evil of a popular rush, which is no trifling consideration where such a lawless and reckless mass of destitute is to be dealt with.

I would beg any instructions as to the rules and regulations under which out-door relief to able-bodied will be issued.

The workhouse and extra accommodation hired contained this morning, 1708 souls. I was present with three Guardians till a late hour last night, admitting paupers, the majority of them being in such a lamentable state, that they could not have been refused admission but with the certainty of starvation.

About 130 will be discharged to-day, who may (by a stretch) be considered as aged or infirm with helpless dependents. There is sufficient dormitory room, and by day I keep the men working out of doors in gangs, under a paid superintendent. I regret to see a marked disinclination to labour, and the superintendent with difficulty obtains any fair amount of work from them.

Kilrush Union.

I have at length procured the removal of the fever patients from the workhouse to other premises which have been comfortably fitted up. The difficulty I experienced in accomplishing this act of common sense and common prudence is incredible. I had the active obstruction of some and the apathy of all to contend with. I was obliged to see the carts' load of suffering creatures loaded and unloaded, and actually obliged to give them personal assistance off the carts, as I could not procure a man to aid them and the nurses were in some cases unequal to it.

The premises for the accommodation of a number of children are in a state of forwardness, and will be ready for their reception in a day or two.

By the adoption of these measures, the workhouse will be rendered extensively available for the testing of the able-bodied, and I would desire even more extended accommodation for this purpose, if possible.

The attempted fraud and imposture, with a view to getting out-door relief, are most disgusting and discouraging, and the efforts to evade the clause forbidding relief to landholders increasing.

They are too often assisted in these attempts by persons laying claim to respectability, after having squeezed their last farthing as rent.

I have taken every precaution to defeat such attempts.

There is an utter absence of employment of any kind, and the idea seems to be abandoned by the poor themselves. A few days since a large number of spades were required for the paupers trenching the workhouse ground; and on inquiry I ascertained that any number up to some hundreds, could be obtained second hand (but good as new) from pawnbrokers and others in the town for 7d. each. Sold or pawned by their indolent or despairing owners.

A reference to the minutes will show how satisfactorily the rate is being collected from a population little above the class of paupers. Knowing the importance the Commissioners attach to this branch of my duty, I spare no effort, personal or otherwise, to accomplish it. I keep myself in constant personal communication with the "collectors," and have succeeded with many recusants, after a quiet remonstrance, accompanied by an assurance that the law would be enforced.

The tide of destitution is rolling steadily on; those who are evicted, or whose stock is exhausted, dropping in daily. The number of utterly destitute in spring will include a very large proportion of the population. The amount of food and funds required will be large, but beyond this it will only require hard work and unflinching firmness and decision to keep matters straight. I can, however, see no prospect of a speedy amendment; a great breadth of the land is in stubble, and this they have no capital or manure to crop, and worse still, no energy.

Fever is, I regret to say, again upon the increase, and small-pox prevails to a very considerable extent.

REPLY to the above:—December 21, 1847.

I AM to state that in accordance with the request of the Board of Guardians as conveyed in your report, and your recommendation thereon, the Commissioners have issued an order authorizing out-door relief, under the 2nd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, for a period of two months.

With reference to your request for instructions as to the rules and regulations under which out-door relief to the able-bodied will be issued, I am to forward to you a copy of the order, and to draw your especial attention to the three regulations prescribed therein:—

1. That the relief which according to the Act can only be given in food, shall, as far as practicable, be in cooked food.
2. That every able-bodied male person relieved shall, as far as practicable, be set to perform a task of work during eight hours at least of every day for which he receives relief.
3. That no able-bodied person who shall be in employment, nor any part of his family, shall receive relief under the order.

For your further information on this subject, I am to enclose a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have addressed to the Board of Guardians in forwarding the order to them.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK to the BOARD of GUARDIANS :—
December 20, 1847.

THE Commissioners have received a communication from their Inspector, Captain Kennedy, in which he states that the necessity for applying for a sealed order to authorize out-door relief to able-bodied, was unanimously concurred in by the Guardians of Kilrush Union at their weekly meeting on Wednesday last.

The Commissioners have accordingly issued an order, a copy of which is herewith transmitted, authorizing out-door relief under the 2nd section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, for the period of two months from the date of the order.

The Guardians will observe that no relief under this order can be legally given to persons in employment; that such relief must be in food only, and that no able-bodied man should receive relief, except in return for work.

With regard to the nature of the work which should be offered to able-bodied men, the Commissioners desire to recommend the setting able-bodied men to stone-breaking by task-work, as a condition of relief; and as much will depend on the knowledge, firmness, and discretion of those who may be appointed to superintend the stone-breaking, the Commissioners cannot too strongly urge the Guardians to be particularly careful in permitting themselves to be influenced by no other considerations than those of personal fitness in selecting candidates for that highly important office.

The Commissioners will take this opportunity of observing that in specifying the period of eight hours at least in the day, during which every able-bodied pauper should be required to work, they have made allowance for the present season of the year, and for the possible circumstance that some of the able-bodied paupers may come to the stone-breaking from a considerable distance. It is not, however, by any means intended to prevent the Guardians from requiring work during a still longer period of time. The period of eight hours is, in fact, the minimum space of time in the day, during which every able-bodied pauper should give the value of his labour to his Union.

In conclusion, the Commissioners desire to remind the Guardians that the out-door relief order is merely temporary, and that they should in the meanwhile use every possible exertion to obtain additional workhouse accommodation.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 16, 1847.

In a former report I stated my apprehension that the clause forbidding relief to holders of land, would be extensively evaded in this Union; and I have now the honour to acknowledge the Commissioners' remarks and instructions thereon.

The system of evasion attempted is as follows:—The land in occupation of four or five persons is conveyed, pro tem., to one of the party; while the remainder, for a season, enter the workhouse. I regret to say, that there are people of standing and influence who give their countenance to this system, and give certificates and "declarations," such as those I enclose, to "relieving officers."

ENCLOSURES.

PATT DOWNS, of Ballaha, makes and declares, if necessary on oath, that his mother, widow John Downs, of said Ballaha, has no land or property, and that she is in great want and destitution.

Declared before me this 14th December, 1847.

JONAS STUDDART.

MICHAEL TIM DOWNS makes and declares, if necessary on oath, on behalf of his mother, Widow Thaid Downs, that she surrendered her land to himself and deponent, and that she has no land, and is in need of charity.

Declared before me this 14th of December, 1847.

REPLY to the foregoing:—December 20, 1847.

IN reference to the attempted evasion of the provisions of the 10th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, and describing the course adopted in attempting such evasions, I am directed by the Commissioners to state, that the words of the 10th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act are very general; and the Commissioners believe that precise provisions as to what would constitute the ceasing to occupy land under that section, were advisedly omitted in the Act, from the extreme difficulty of laying down definite rules on the subject.

It appears clear to the Commissioners, that an individual may cease to occupy land colourably, while in fact he does occupy it. In such case the Guardians should act upon the reality, and not on the pretence, however specious it may be; but the application of this principle, in each particular case, must depend on the discrimination of the administrators of relief.

In the particular cases which you have specified, the Commissioners observe, that the declarations are made respectively by Patt Downs and Tim Downs, on behalf of their mother; and the latter states that his mother surrendered her land to himself. In this case, therefore, it is worthy of consideration, whether the provisions of the 57th section of the Irish Poor Relief Act should not be resorted to. That section provides, that when any poor person through old age, infirmity, or defect, shall be unable to support himself, every child of such poor person shall be liable, according to his ability, to support, or contribute to support such poor person; and that in case relief shall be given to such poor person, two justices, on the application of the Board of Guardians, may direct a sum not exceeding the cost price of the relief, to be paid by such child to the Guardians; and also to direct what weekly or other periodical payment shall be made by such child to the Guardians in respect of subsequent relief to such poor person: the sum so directed to be paid, to be recoverable in the same manner as penalties are recoverable under the Act.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 23, 1847.

I ATTENDED the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, and have the honour to refer you to the minutes of their proceedings; which, however, convey but an imperfect representation.

The number in the workhouse this day is about 1250: 140 fever patients in the temporary hospital are included in this number; 150 children will be removed to separate premises, on this day or to-morrow.

The number receiving "out-door relief" is, in round numbers, 7000: this number does not include any who are not considered as belonging to Classes 1, 2, and 3.

No relief has yet been afforded to the "able-bodied" out-doors; though the Guardians are in possession of the "sealed order" authorizing such relief, it will not for the present be resorted to. I have satisfactorily demonstrated the necessity of testing this class, from the results of the last fortnight.

On this day week (vide last report) the inmates numbered 1708, and this day only 1250; the reduction has been for the most part voluntary since the able-bodied were put to work under a paid superintendent, and made acquainted with the fact that additional land had been hired to employ them upon.

On the 20th instant, when I visited the workhouse, I found about 200 men congregated in the day-room with a blazing fire. I inquired why they were not at work, and was answered by a universal clamour, that they were unable. I sent for the medical officer, and had them individually inspected: about 13 only of the whole number were passed by him as infirm. The remainder I ordered to be put to work in the yard, breaking stones, under gangsmen; remaining till I saw it in operation; at the same time, explaining that their rations would be stopped, if a fair amount of work were not done. The result was, that of these men and their families, to the number of 100, demanded their discharge that evening, and 121 more on the following day.

I fully ascertained that these persons came into the house without any necessity or intention of staying, but in the expectation of being discharged on "outdoor relief." When the house became crowded many of them candidly avowed it.

I have no doubt that an organized plan to swamp the house in this manner has been suggested to the people, and was for the first time attempted on the 5th instant, (vide my report of that date), and was only defeated by the energetic measures adopted.

Many come into the house, who, on being searched, possess sums of money varying from 1s. to 8s. and 10s., and one inmate of the workhouse not many days ago, laid a complaint of having been robbed of 25s. in the house.

A woman was found to have a quantity of dried mackerel bandaged round her waist, and 2s. tied up in her hair! She was brought to me by the matron, and being questioned, said, "It was just to keep the children in the house till "her husband got out-door relief!"

A man came to the hotel where I lodged on Tuesday last, and attracted a crowd by his lamentations and pitiable tale; begging I would "get him the "relief" to save him from starving. He asseverated, in the most solemn manner, that one of his children was lying at home "dead of starvation," and that the others were little removed from it, and "declared to his God he had "not tasted food for 24 hours." I doubted his overdrawn picture, and brought him to the workhouse promising relief; arrived there, I had him searched, and found 1s. 7d. in his pocket! the Chairman of the Guardians and the Roman Catholic chaplain were present. I exposed him to a multitude of applicants at the door, who seemed to sympathize at the failure of his disgraceful fraud.

This gross and wholesale imposture on the one hand, and the mass of undoubted and daily increasing destitution on the other, are most perplexing, consuming an incredible amount of time, and frequently delaying relief to real objects.

I intend suggesting the hiring of further accommodation to test the able-bodied, as soon as we are more pressed. I however find a difficulty in getting anything done till it is actually required; foresight and arrangement are not characteristics of the Board of Guardians, and I have daily evidence of the necessity of resisting out-door relief to this class.

The rates are being collected most satisfactorily; 200% were collected by one collector in a rural district in 10 days. I still give this matter my utmost attention. I find personal supervision does wonders in getting money in districts where I was, "assured, on the best authority, that no rate could be collected."

The relieving officers are, with one exception, working fairly; those who act conscientiously have a most arduous task. I will bring the one I consider unfit under the notice of the Guardians. He is a worn-out old man incapable of keeping any book of account.

The schools are broken up till the 3rd January, when I intend commencing the relief to children attending them, who are destitute.

In a recent visit to the division of Kilmacduane, Kilmurry, and Killard, I was really scared by the extent of misery and destitution.

The fishermen are particularly to be commiserated, the gaining a livelihood with them is dependent upon the weather, and they are sometimes for days without food; their nets and tackle pawned, or worn out, and they themselves half naked; they are a peaceable, patient, and well disposed class, though not exempt from the general failing of indolence and want of energy.

Fever is on the increase though of a mild type; and dysentery is making considerable ravages.

The house is ill regulated and the master incompetent.

REPLY to the above:—December 27, 1847.

THE Commissioners have issued an order by this evening's post, removing the master of the workhouse from his office; and they trust that this will have, to a certain extent, the effect of enabling the Guardians to make the workhouse a more efficient test of destitution, and to counteract the attempts which may be made to fill it by applicants for relief, who have means at their disposal for their own maintenance.

Kilrush Union.

The Commissioners rely on your using every effort to impress upon the Guardians the importance of their selecting an efficient successor to the present master.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 24, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated 22nd instant, enclosing the copy of a report of Mr. Channer, sub-inspector of a constabulary, relative to the death of "John Reidy," of the parish of Kilmacduane, in this Union; and whose death, it is alleged, was caused by starvation.

Before I enter into the details of this case, I must correct Mr. Channer in, I am sure, an unintentional error. Mr. Channer states,—“the circumstance has been reported to Colonel Vandeleur and Captain Kennedy, Poor Law Inspector of this Union, who remarked, that the said John Lillis (relieving officer) was very culpable in neglecting deceased's application.” I had no communication with Mr. Channer on the subject, and never entertained nor expressed the opinion attributed to me.

The circumstances of the case are as follows:—On Monday night, the 13th instant, Reidy's wife met John Lillis, the relieving officer, at 7 o'clock, P. M., returning from the Kilrush poor-house, and applied for relief; stating that her husband was unable to attend at Cooraclave in person, owing to his delicate state of health. Lillis immediately took down her application, and alleges (vide letter marked A,) that he gave her 4d. Reidy died suddenly that night, and the following day the inquest was held which has given rise to this inquiry.

I proceeded to the neighbourhood and made every inquiry, and ascertained that Reidy had, in addition to great destitution, been long ailing, or what is termed here, “a delicate man,” which means any kind or any stage of internal ailment. He died, as stated, suddenly; the coroner was very alert, and on the opinion of a very young medical practitioner, brought in the verdict stated, but without any post-mortem examination having been made.

The deceased was destitute, as thousands are, without any visible means of living, but neither Reidy or any other proper object has been refused admission to the workhouse, or out-door relief as the case might justify.

I conscientiously believe that Reidy's death was caused by disease, more than probably aggravated by want.

With regard to any degree of blame which may attach to the relieving officer, I have only to observe, that the wholesale imposture and misrepresentation resorted to, oblige these officers to be most careful in taking applications, and render each case a species of trial, before the truth can be arrived at.

I mentioned a case in my last weekly report, where a man alleged that one of his children was lying dead of starvation, and the others on the verge of it, and that he had not tasted food for 24 hours, and complained of the relieving officer. I doubted his tale, searched him and found 1s. 7d. in his pocket!

These are daily, hourly occurrences, and no shame is betrayed on detection. The Catholic chaplain and the Chairman of Guardians were present.

I enclose the relieving officer's explanation and I do not consider him justly blameable.

ENCLOSURE.

(A.)

HONOURED SIR,

Workhouse, Kilrush, December 18, 1847.

I ATTEND on all Mondays in Cooraclave, in my district, to receive applications. On the night of Monday, the 13th instant, at so late an hour as 7 o'clock, on my way home, I met the wife of John Reidy, of Calinquinie, (who is alleged died by starvation,) and I went into the next house and received her application. She stated to me that her husband was a delicate man and unable to come to Cooraclave to make his application before that time. She also said she was at my house some time before, and that I was gone to Kilmikil, my other district. It was impossible for me to be able to ascertain that Reidy was in a very bad state, as the time was so limited, having but the one day between her application and the Board day; besides, Calinquinie is a long distance from me, and having as many bad calls in my district as I could attend to on Tuesday, Reidy was returned on the last Board day, and I gave his wife an order for meal on Thursday last.

Kilrush Union.

JOHN LILLIS, Relieving Overseer.

N.B. I believe Reidy died on Monday night, and that evening I gave his wife 4d.

COPY of CONSTABULARY REPORT referred to in the foregoing Report.

December 17, 1847.

I HAVE to report that on the 12th instant, about 12 o'clock noon, John Reidy, aged 50 years, died suddenly at Acres.

He was by trade a labourer, but had not received any employment since the termination of public works in this district, and had no land or other means of subsistence; he had a wife and three children, and applied twice during the last fortnight for relief or admission into the poor-house, to John Lillis relieving officer for the parish of Kilmacduane, who it appears neglected his application, the consequence of which was, that he died from want.

An inquest was held on view of the body, 14th instant, by John Lucas, Esq., coroner, when the following verdict was returned, viz.:—"That John Reidy came by his death at Acres on the 12th day of December, 1847, from starvation."

The circumstance has been reported to Colonel Vandeleur and Captain Kennedy, Poor Law Inspector of this Union, who remarked that said John Lillis was very culpable in neglecting deceased's application.

WILLIAM CHANNER.

1st Sub-Inspector.

The Inspector-General,
&c. &c. &c.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 30, 1847.

I ATTENDED the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, and for their proceedings have the honour to refer you to the usual minutes.

The medical officer and Committee, after due examination of the house and hired premises, consider them fitted to contain the following numbers:—The house, 1100; temporary fever hospital, 150; hired house, 80; making in all 1330. I consider this a very reasonable estimate, when the house is properly managed.

The total in the whole premises this day was 1222. About 20 able-bodied paupers, with their families, have claimed their discharge this day, which will reduce the number about 80.

These persons came in for the purpose of qualifying for out-door relief, and finding no immediate probability of succeeding in their object, left the house voluntarily, without it. A large number have quitted during the week from the same causes and on the same conditions. The being put to work, and obliged to observe personal cleanliness, are conditions they will not submit to, unless they are absolutely destitute.

Every day's experience convinces me of the danger of giving out-door relief to any of this class, and the necessity of resisting to the utmost limit which prudence or humanity will justify.

No out-door relief has yet been given to able-bodied in this Union, and as the house becomes crowded, I purpose, with the assistance of the Chairman and Committee, to discharge a few daily, as necessity may arise, and thus have the house available for all new applicants. This mode of dealing with the able-bodied class will prevent the general rush which would surely result, either from a closing of the house or their discharge in large number. It will also enable me to get on by degrees the undoubtedly destitute of the able-bodied class, instead of being at once swamped by numbers, as in some of the neighbouring Unions.

I had difficulty in inducing the Guardians to adopt this system; trouble to the officers, irregularity, danger of infection, &c., were urged against it. The results have, however, convinced my most stubborn opponents. They are in consequence, become more hopeful and act more efficiently.

Almost all the impotent (who are destitute) are now on the out-door relief list. There has been no serious increase of number since my last report. They receive relief in food only, and are quite content with their allowance of meal. Their habitually wretched scale of existence renders them content with anything, and fuel fortunately costs them nothing.

Kilrush Union.

While the expenditure is being kept right within reasonable bounds, I am straining every effort to get in the rates.

The rate-collectors are doing their duty most satisfactorily. At the audit on the 28th instant, 763*l.* had been collected in little more than a week, which I consider a very good collection in such a district.

The relieving officers are working fairly, but still improper objects get upon their lists. To rectify this, I have induced the Guardians to have printed lists of those receiving relief placarded in each district, with an invitation to the rate-payers to point out any improper cases to the relieving officer or clerk of Guardians. I anticipate this will act as a most wholesome check.

There is a growing and disgraceful tendency, on the part of children who have ample means, to throw their aged or helpless parents on public relief, frequently after the parents have given them up their land.

I have brought the matter under notice of the Guardians, who are determined to enforce the law in this respect.

I have received funds from the British Relief Association for the relief of destitute children attending the schools, and I hope to commence issuing rations as soon as the schools re-assemble after Christmas.

Fever and dysentery are on the increase, and are making extensive ravages. Two relieving officers, the matron, and assistant master of the workhouse, are all stricken down in fever. The illness of three officers under present circumstances, adds seriously to my labours.

I have been witness to some wretched scenes during the week, in the rural districts. Such is the popular terror of infection, that once attacked the helpless patients are deserted by their nearest kin in many instances. The utmost assistance they receive is some water and a scanty supply of food left at the door by their mis-called neighbours, till they are found by the relieving officers, when their case is all but hopeless.

I went into a house with a relieving officer a few days since, and found the mother and three children stricken in fever at one side of the cabin; the father, with a child who had been dead three days, at the other.

These horrors are too frequent, and almost impossible to prevent.

The mortality is certainly very great. On visiting the fever hospital a few days since, I found eight dead, the mortality of one night; the nurses, attendants, &c., are all scared, and are with difficulty induced to perform their duties. I fear we shall soon require further accommodation. I cannot conceal from myself that numbers must perish in spite of every effort; they linger on in their miserable unventilated hovels, till their cases are beyond hope, before they apply for relief or admission. The difficulty of ascertaining the truth also adds to suffering; for there are hundreds of cases simulated with a view to imposing upon relieving officers.

Funerals, which were formerly a popular pastime and re-union, are now hardly attended by relatives. Wakes are of rare occurrence. Fear of infection and want of novelty have reduced them to the number only sufficient to carry to the grave and bury their dead.

Some activity is being shown in agricultural matters, innumerable patches are preparing for potatoes, and I have no doubt they will plant this crop to the utmost extent of their ability. I expect also to see a large proportion of beans planted.

Much of the prevalent dysentery is, I am confident, induced by the use of half-cooked Indian meal. No effort or instruction will induce them to boil it, or steep it sufficiently. I found difficulty in making them do so, even in the workhouse.

We are collecting funds satisfactorily, and I trust and believe disbursing them judiciously, and with as much economy as such a deplorable state of things will permit.

I would beg to be put in communication with the proper authority to secure an efficient schoolmaster from the training school, which the Guardians have authorized me to do: 20*l.* per annum and rations are the terms offered.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 1, 1848.

ON the other side is the copy of a notice found posted on Colonel Vandeleur's gate last night. It will no doubt reach the Commissioners through another channel, and I deem it proper you should have the earliest intimation of it, as they have honoured me by a notice. It speaks for itself. I, of course, treat it with the most sincere contempt, and do not desire it to be noticed in any way; with me it is "all in the way of business," but with Colonel Vandeleur it is far different. He devotes his time almost exclusively to Union business in the most untiring manner, and certainly deserves a far different return from the cowardly vagabonds who have thus threatened his life. He has, since I came here, done his duty, as Chairman of the Guardians, conscientiously and fearlessly; without him the Board would fall to pieces.

As for myself I intend following the instructions laid down for me, and persevering in a conscientious performance of my duty; I heed their miserable threats as much as I despise their popularity, which is only to be gained by an abandonment of duty.

ENCLOSURE.

VERBATIM COPY of a NOTICE posted on Colonel Vandeleur's gate on the evening of 31st December, 1847.

TAKE NOTICE Crofton Vandeleure if you dont change your mind and give Relive to the Young as well as the Old, and not to put a stop to the Publicke Worke as you are, and also Captin Kenidy if ye dont be said by this Notice believe me I will do with you as I did with Pirce Carriage, so have your Wills made in time.

REPLY to the above:—January 3, 1848.

I AM to express the deepest regret of the Commissioners at learning that any attempt should have been made, by a threatening notice, to intimidate Colonel Vandeleur, the value of whose services, as Chairman of the Kilrush Board of Guardians, the Commissioners highly appreciate.

The Commissioners also regret that you yourself should have been exposed to a similar attempt at intimidation.

The Commissioners will send a copy of the notice and of your report to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 4, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 3rd instant, and with reference thereto beg to add the following particulars for the Commissioners' information.

Four persons, James Hearse, John McMahon, Michael Duggan, and Laurence Shanahan, were this day committed to Ennis Gaol to take their trial for posting a threatening notice, and conspiring to shoot C. M. Vandeleur, Esq., and myself. One of the party, Brooks, a pedlar, is still at large.

The evidence against them is a man named Curtin, corroborated by an elderly woman, a lodger in his house. The following is a summary of his evidence, as taken by Mr. Bell, R.M.

Curtin states Brooks and Duggan came to his house about a-week ago, and borrowed a pistol. Curtin asked for what purpose? they replied he would hear about it before long. On the night the notice was posted, Curtin took his donkey to drink at the river which runs by Mr. Vandeleur's gate, and while so occupied saw five men together close to the gate, three of whom went forward and posted a paper upon it.

On retiring they discovered Curtin, and one of the party, thinking they had been watched, pointed a pistol at him, when he was recognised by Duggan, and saved from violence on his declaring he had seen nothing.

Some hours after this the whole party went to Curtin's house, placed him on his knees and swore him, that he would never divulge what they supposed he had seen, threatening to shoot him if he did so. They then communicated their intention of shooting Mr. Vandeleur, if public work were not immediately given, as they believed he had stopped it; and also to shoot me if I did not give relief to young (i. e. able-bodied) as well as old. They were sure the country would be better without us both. Two of the party undertook to settle us, and the plan proposed was, as they knew Mr. Vandeleur and myself.

Kilrush Union.

never left the workhouse till seven or eight o'clock, P. M., on Board days, and generally came into the town together, one of their party was to watch us leaving and run before to tell the two who were to lay in wait for us.

Curtin's evidence is clear and circumstantial, and I entertain no doubt of the intention of these miserable miscreants.

Mr. Vandeleur has done Curtin a kindness in supporting his wife and family while he was long sick in hospital, and to this he probably owes his life.

I went into the Bridewell this morning and immediately recognised all four as persons who had applied for out-door relief; two of whom made themselves remarkable by being unusually importunate, and one, if not two, had left the workhouse voluntarily. They were all of the able-bodied class.

The fact of some neighbouring Unions giving out-door relief to able-bodied makes our position here more difficult. One sturdy vagabond applied to me the other day, I explained the law, and offered him the workhouse; he replied, "They all get the Government relief at Ennis, and if we had Father Shechan, (Roman Catholic curate, Ennis,) we would all soon have it here."

I may remark that no proper object has been refused relief either in or out of the workhouse.

I very much fear, that some persons are inducing the popular belief that Colonel Vandeleur and myself are the only obstacles to general and indiscriminate relief.

While the Commissioners approve of the line I have adopted, I am very indifferent to threats which I have no fear of being executed.

REPLY to the above:—January 7, 1848.

THE Commissioners will send a copy of your report to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 5, 1848.

I ATTENDED the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians this day. The Chairman, C. M. Vandeleur, Esq., was absent for the first time since I came to the Union, being confined to the house by illness. The marked change in the demeanour of the Board was striking.

Much practical and most important business was left unattended to, and about 100 all but naked applicants left shivering in the cold, while tenant-right was being discussed.

Some stormy and threatening speeches relating to the removal of the workhouse master were indulged in, and one member of the Board (Mr. Gibson), called upon the reporter, who was present, to publish the names of all those members who differed from him on the subject of a proposed increase of salary to the medical officers.

Popular execration and intimidation are the two great engines here. Deprived of their chairman, the Board is entirely unmanageable, and unequal to the discharge of any public business; very few of them are even imperfectly acquainted with the law they are called upon to administer or the regulations they are to observe. A marked and senseless hostility to the Commissioners is evinced upon every opportunity.

After a day's violent brawling and speech-making, all took their departure, leaving two Guardians and myself till a late hour to do the business and admit the paupers.

The number in the house this day, amounted to 936; of this number 169 were in fever and 40 labouring under other diseases. The admissions were, I think, under 100; many of this number will probably leave to-morrow, having come in expecting "out-door relief."

Many complaints are preferred against the relieving officers, alleged with bitterness and defended with partiality. The difficulty of arriving at facts is incredible, and even those whose duty it is to inculcate truth and charity, are frequently wide of both.

The mortality in Killeard, Kilmurry, and Kilmacduane divisions is startling. Many alleged cases of starvation, and undoubted cases of coffinless burials stated.

Yet, I believe, the relieving officers of these divisions do their duty fairly, and offer the workhouse to those whom the law does not warrant them in relieving out of doors.

The mortality in the temporary hospital is also very serious, and, to me, unaccountable. I frequently see patients, who appear to be in a fair way of recovery in the afternoon, dead the following morning. Coffinless burials in the country are becoming daily more frequent, as well as a matter of greater indifference; and the law does not afford any means that I am aware of, to remedy the matter. Resident gentry and charity are scarce.

I find the greatest difficulty in preventing landholders from taking temporary shelter in the workhouse or getting out-door relief, as the case may be; and I can only prevent the relieving officers being influenced, by holding out a threat of immediate dismissal by the Commissioners in any case I can bring home to them.

The rates are still being satisfactorily collected, and without any general or serious opposition.

The suffering and privation the people will undergo, sooner than have recourse to the workhouse, are wonderful; cleanliness and discipline are less supportable than poverty. The destitution and suffering cannot be well over-rated; but still, while the workhouse is available, and none refused who apply for admission, I do not feel justified in recommending out-door relief to able-bodied, which the Guardians have the necessary authority to grant when required.

The poor of this Union suffer severely from want of clothing, particularly the fishermen and the convalescent fever patients. I would apply to the Society of Friends in their behalf, if the Commissioners approve of my so doing.

Every public officer of the Union is overtaxed, and several suffering from fever.

Nothing has been done with reference to the master, nor did I think it expedient to press it in the absence of the chairman. The duties are being carried on by his son, who is, I believe, intended by his friends and partisans to replace him; I, however, see some grave objections to this arrangement as a permanent one.

The present assistant-master is, in my opinion, a very eligible person, active, systematic, and well educated. He is, however, independent, has no friends, and would, I fear, be strenuously opposed. He has exposed some jobbing, and discovered overcharges in tradesmen's bills.

Very many of the Guardians are evidently intimidated, and two of the ex-officios threatened with being shot. They have done me a like favour, but without producing the desired result.

REPLY to the above:—January 8, 1848.

WITH reference to that part of your report in which you state that the fishermen and convalescent patients suffer severely from want of clothing, and that you would apply to the Society of Friends in their behalf, if the Commissioners approve of your so doing, I am directed by the Commissioners to inform you that they have no objection to your making the application you propose.

I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners have instructed their Inspector, Mr. Phelan, to proceed to Kilrush at his earliest convenience, and to make a special inquiry and report to the Commissioners relative to the mortality in the temporary fever hospital, to which you advert.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. PHELAN:—January 8, 1848.

I AM directed to forward to you the enclosed extract from a report which they have received from Captain Kennedy, the Temporary Inspector in charge of the Kilrush Union, relative to mortality in the temporary fever hospital of the workhouse; and I am to request that you will be so good as to proceed to Kilrush at your earliest convenience, and make a special inquiry on this subject, and report the result to the Commissioners.

Kilrush Union.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 13, 1848.

I ATTENDED the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, and I have the honour to refer you to the minutes of their proceedings.

The Chairman was absent; and a great portion of the time was consumed in the discussion of speculative and irrelevant matter, to the exclusion of necessary and practical business.

The number in the house yesterday was 995. It will be remembered, that the number of inmates on the "1st January" amounted to 1768. Since that period the able-bodied class have been gradually discharging themselves, some additional ground having been taken to employ them upon. It is most discouraging to see the deep-rooted habits of indolence chargeable to this class; their disinclination to work cannot be over-rated.

There has been no pressure this week for anything but "out-door relief;" but the Commissioners will observe that the order authorizing "out-door relief to "able-bodied" has not been acted on; and I consider the Guardians are acting wisely in deferring it as long as possible, as the lamentable want of truth and shame would render it a matter of great difficulty, to distinguish between the really destitute and the shameless beggar. The workhouse and hospital have never yet been closed against any applicant, and while these are available, I discourage and resist every suggestion for out-door relief.

I have no doubt whatever, that many of the able-bodied class have got themselves upon the infirm list for out-door relief. To remedy this, I propose having a scrutiny of each relief district, making all those in receipt of out-door relief attend at the workhouse for this purpose. On completing this scrutiny, I have suggested the expediency of having the relieving officers' lists made out afresh, and arranged by "townlands," which will greatly facilitate the duties of all parties, and enable each Guardian to scrutinize the list of his own locality at any time; for which purpose he must now examine a whole book. I anticipate much benefit from this measure, as it will act as a wholesome check upon the relieving officers, and show at a view the amount of pauperism in each locality, and upon each property.

Many of those who quit the workhouse voluntarily, suffer severely, but the Guardians cannot be held justly responsible.

Many of those also, who hold small portions of land are suffering deeply; they cling to them most tenaciously, though they can neither cultivate or live upon them, and I am confident that many will starve sooner than relinquish them.

The mortality is still very great, there being upwards of 70 deaths during the week, in the house and hospital. I visit the workhouse almost daily, and the hospital two or three times a-week, when I see and inquire of the patients, without, however, being able to account for this great mortality. Many, certainly, come in who appear to be almost beyond the reach of medical aid, but the hospital is comfortable and well ventilated.

There is absolutely no employment, and very little being yet done upon the land, with the exception of numerous small patches being prepared for potatoes. The apathy of all classes on this head is astounding; those who could afford to give employment, are more intent upon verifying their own predictions of the failure of the law, than ready to assist its working. Where employment is given, the remuneration is generally miserable. I have for some days watched a man turning up a field by task-work, and though hard working and industrious, I have calculated that he cannot earn more than 3*d.* per day. Very many give their labour for their food alone. There is a wide and most profitable field for improvement in this Union; but all classes seem afflicted with a hopeless blindness to their own interests. The land is not made half productive, while the population is wholly unemployed.

The people are beginning to understand the difference between the late "Relief Act" and the present law; and there is, in consequence, a daily improvement in the working of it.

The rates are still being satisfactorily collected.

The Guardians are very thankful for a donation of about 40 tons of Indian corn.

A handsome donation has been made by the British Association, to the Ladies' Society of Kilrush, of which Lady Grace Vandeleur is the zealous patroness.

These grants, together with the issue of rations to the children attending the schools, will, I trust, alleviate much suffering.

I have not been able to give that attention to the books and office part of the workhouse that I would wish, and I fear the late master has been far from regular or systematic.

I enclose a form of weekly abstract for relieving officers, which I propose to lay before the Guardians, for the purpose of showing, at a view, the expenditure of each electoral division and the numbers relieved; and this I think will have a beneficial effect in showing the Guardians what they have to provide for—which few of them have any idea of, at present.

The matron of the house is progressing towards convalescence; but the assistant-master, a very valuable officer, is still in a dangerous state.

REPLY to the above:—January 17, 1848.

WITH reference to your statement, that the time of the Board was consumed in the discussion of speculative and irrelevant matter, to the exclusion of necessary and practical business, the Commissioners having observed statements of a similar nature in some of your previous reports, now desire to state that if the Board of Guardians, as a body, do not properly discharge their duties, you should make a formal separate report on the subject, specifying the instances in which they have failed to carry out the intentions of the Legislature, and you should recommend the dissolution of the Board of Guardians.

The Commissioners have read your statement regarding the mortality in the workhouse with the deepest concern, and they have forwarded it to their Medical Inspector, Mr. Phelan, whom they have already instructed to inquire and report on the sanitary state of the workhouse.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain KENNEDY:—January 15, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you the enclosed Constabulary Report, which has been transmitted to them by the Under Secretary, relative to the death of Mary Browne, at Kilrush; and I am to request that you will be so good as to inquire and report thereon to the Commissioners, and return the enclosed document to this office.

ENCLOSURE.

County Clare, Kilrush, January 7, 1848.

SUB-INSPECTOR CHANNER reports that Mary Browne, aged 11 years, died suddenly at Kilrush, on the 6th instant. The verdict of the inquest was, "That Mary Browne came by her death from a fit of epilepsy, brought on by want of food."

Her father is a poor man with a wife and three children, and applied for relief to Michael O'Donnell, the Kilrush relieving officer, but was refused.

Inspector-General,
 &c. &c.

Kilrush Union.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 17, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 15th instant, relative to the death of Mary Browne, together with the accompanying copy, which I have the honour to return.

The father of the deceased is a boatman, in constant employ; and deceased and her sister were in regular employ at the lace factory, earning 2s. 6d. a-week between them. If the father did apply for relief, he only did what seven-tenths of the population of Kilrush have done since I came here, and was, in my opinion and according to my instructions, properly refused.

The family does not come within any class legally relievable out of doors; and they never were refused admission to the workhouse. I do not believe them to be fit objects for either.

With every respect for the medical knowledge displayed by the coroner's jury, I am of opinion that "epilepsy" and "want of food" had nothing to say to the girl's death, as a medical gentleman who had an opportunity of judging, assures me the girl died from worm disease of long standing, though the termination was sudden.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 20, 1848.

I ATTENDED the weekly meeting of the Guardians yesterday, and have the honour to refer you to the minutes for their proceedings.

Owing to the absence of many at the Special Commission and Quarter Sessions, the attendance was small, and but little business was transacted.

The number in the workhouse yesterday was 948, and the applicants for admission were but few in number,—this number shows a decrease of 50 during the week, or since the date of my last report. Families numbering 55 have discharged themselves during that period,—almost all of the able-bodied class. Having ascertained that admission to the workhouse is by no means a sure passport to out-door relief, the great pressure from this class has ceased, and with judicious management, I do not anticipate any greater trouble than is necessarily attendant upon the relief of absolutely destitute, as the cases may arise.

The disinclination to labour is of the most marked description; and the able-bodied, when put to reasonable and moderate work, discharge themselves. Any well devised and well superintended system of labour will keep the relief list within moderate bounds. The knowledge that additional ground has been taken by the Guardians has worked wonders.

The fever hospital contains 179 patients, being an excess of 29 over the number sanctioned by the Commissioners—its accommodation was, in my opinion, underrated.

It is by no means over crowded, and the medical officer is of the like opinion. The mortality has decreased considerably; the deaths during week ending 15th instant being only 35. A re-arrangement of the hospital premises would afford more accommodation, and I will immediately take steps to do so should the necessity arise.

The rates are still being satisfactorily collected—but the expenses are daily increasing. The system pursued will, however, prevent anything like a general rush, and the necessities will be dealt with as they arise, without creating any popular sensation.

I contemplate suggesting the use of rye, instead of whole meal for the bread in the workhouse, which would effect a very great saving; I have had some baked, and would be well content with it for my own use.

I will commence rationing the school children on Monday next. I have had many local difficulties and differences to contend with; and deferred beginning till I could make a good start, and insure success in detail.

I fear I must recommend the removal of the relieving officers, to whom I have given another week's trial—they are unequal to the performance of the duties they have undertaken.

The assistant master and matron are recovering—the general state of the house has suffered by their absence.

I have been subjected to several written and practical insults, indicating both cowardice and want of decency—I leave both unnoticed as being the most likely mode of defeating the intention of the writers and perpetrators.

All circumstances considered I am well satisfied with the progress I have made, and the general state of the Union.

Kilrush Union.

REPLY to the above :—January 24, 1848.

WITH regard to your remarks regarding the number of persons that can be accommodated in the fever hospital, I am to state that the Commissioners think that the number to which that building is limited by their sealed order, should not be exceeded.

If you think the building can properly contain a greater number than that specified in the order, the Commissioners will be prepared to take the subject into their consideration with the view of altering the order, on receiving a report from you on the subject, but while the existing order remains, the Commissioners must request you not to permit the number specified in it to be exceeded; as, however, Mr. Phelan is now engaged in an inquiry into the causes of the recent mortality in the workhouse, it may be advisable not to take any further step in the matter until his report shall have been received.

With reference to your observation regarding the relieving officers, I am directed by the Commissioners to state that, they will give their immediate attention to any report you may make on the subject of their fitness for their situations.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 29, 1848.

I ATTENDED the weekly meeting of the Kilrush Board of Guardians on the 26th instant. I was detained till so late an hour that I was unable to prepare my report.

The Board ordered an investigation of the circumstances attending the death of James Gallagher, a pauper, who died suddenly in the workhouse on the 10th instant, and whose death was reported on the minutes of the 12th instant, as having resulted from the ill treatment of the assistant master. Though I had the advantage of Dr. Phelan's assistance, this investigation occupied me the whole of the 27th and 28th, which, I trust, will offer a sufficient excuse for the delay in forwarding my weekly report.

The usual minutes will show the amount of business transacted at the weekly meeting of the Board.

Some letters, couched in very strong language, were read, relative to alleged denunciations and interference of the Roman Catholic clergyman with a Guardian and a relieving officer, which led to some stormy discussion, recrimination, and intemperate language. It was proposed to have these letters and rejoinders put on the minutes, and an investigation ordered. I resisted both, as being irrelevant and unnecessary, and the matter was left for settlement out of doors.

Dr. Phelan made a statement to the Board on the general state of the workhouse and hospital, the health and diet of the paupers, and offered many valuable suggestions for the better management of both, which I will consider it my duty to see carried out.

The election of a master for the workhouse was further postponed, pending the inquiry into Gallagher's death (reported on minutes of 12th instant), which it was thought might implicate the acting master, who is, I believe, the only candidate.

The schoolmaster sent from the Education Board was duly appointed, but had not arrived.

The numbers in the house have not varied much since my last report, being 958 on the 25th instant, and the admissions on the 26th were few. The fact is, I regret to say, no indication of the extent of real and undoubted destitution throughout the Union. I speak from my own personal observation when I say, it is fearful in extent, and appalling in character; yet, with 8500 persons receiving out-door relief, at an expenditure of over 300*l.* weekly, and the workhouse still available for 300 persons, I do not feel justified in recommending out-door relief to the able-bodied. Such a proceeding would, I think, be unjustifiable and ruinous, and I take every pains to overcome the prejudice and repugnance to the workhouse, as I know that many defer applying till their health and constitution are broken down beyond repair.

Kilrush Union.

An increase of destitution and consequent expenditure must be expected daily; and the Commissioners have now the data to calculate the duration of our funds. I inculcate the necessity of economy in every branch, and intend suggesting the use of rye meal bread, instead of whole flour, in the workhouse, which will make a saving of 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ per ton. I have established a bakery for the school children under Count Strzelecki's auspices; and I find the rye bread succeeds admirably. It is palatable and wholesome.

The mortality is but little decreased. I have been in daily communication with Dr. Phelan during the last week, inquiring and examining into this lamentable subject, and will see all his suggestions immediately carried out. He will of course report fully to the Commissioners, which obviates the necessity of my doing so. I may, however, remark, that the startling mortality is by no means confined to the workhouse and hospital. In the divisions of Killara, Kilmurry, and Kilnihil, it is beyond anything I have known or seen, though there is no means of accurately ascertaining its amount. It is, however, no longer a novelty, and elicits but little notice. I believe that equal numbers are buried without as with coffins. The corpses are wrapped in straw, and swathed round with a "sugawn" (straw rope). I met a wretched man, a few days since, carrying his two dead children to the grave in a cradle. He and all his family were receiving out-door relief, and he made no complaint of a want of food. I believe the mortality is attributable more to a protracted insufficiency of food than active disease. Want of clothing and long privation have broken down the constitution of the people, and made them an easy prey to the most trifling ailment.

I am painfully alive to the responsibility devolving upon me in relation to this subject. I always visit the hospital and examine the patients two or three times a week, and often daily, adopting any suggestion to save life and alleviate suffering.

I calculate the mortality at 29 per cent. upon the number of admissions, and I regret to say that Dr. Phelan rates it still higher.

About 170 are now in the hospital, and unless there be a speedy decrease in the numbers, I must suggest and provide more accommodation—a very difficult matter.

The collection of the rates is satisfactory, though, I regret to say, many immediate lessors and a few Guardians are in default. I forward a return of their names, and amount, by this post. I stated to the Board that I intended to suggest the publication of all defaulters' names after the 1st February.

During the last week there has been a move in preparing the land, but only to a trifling extent; and I fear those employed are only receiving "their bit" (diet) in return for their labour. Advantage is cruelly taken in many instances of the wretched labourers' circumstances to get his labour for nothing, and is frequently exacted for the rent of their miserable cabins.

Some idea of the poverty of the district may be formed from the fact, that numbers bring a horse-load of turf eight or nine miles, and sell it for 9 d . in Kilrush.

Want of discipline and irregularity prevail in the workhouse, and amendment is hopeless till an efficient master is appointed. I have represented it to the Guardians, and will report specially, if necessary, after their next meeting.

REPLY to the above:—February 2, 1848.

With reference to the investigation of the circumstances attending the death of James Gallagher, I am to state, that the Commissioners are desirous of receiving a copy of the evidence taken by you on the death of Gallagher.

With reference to that part of your report in which you state that an increase of destitution and consequent expenditure must be expected daily, and that the Commissioners have now the data to calculate the duration of the funds, I am to state that the Commissioners do not know to what you refer in this passage. If the expenditure must be expected to increase daily, the Commissioners have no means of calculating how long the funds of the Union, including the present uncollected rates, are likely to last.

Captain KENNEDY to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 30, 1848.

Kilrush Union.

WITH reference to the minutes of the Kilrush Guardians of the 12th instant, reporting the sudden death of James Gallagher, a pauper in the house, on the 10th instant, I have the honour to inform you that the Board ordered an investigation, which took place on the 27th and 28th instant.

I was assisted by Mr. Phelan, and took the evidence upon oath, which was sufficiently contradictory on many points.

The opinion arrived at is recorded as follows:—

“ We, the undersigned, having carefully considered the foregoing evidence, are “ of opinion, 1st. That James Gallagher came by his death from natural causes ;
“ 2nd. That there is no evidence to show that deceased received any personal “ injury or violence from the assistant master ; and that the assistant master is “ completely exonerated from any blame imputed to him in the report laid before
“ the Guardians on the 12th instant.

“ DENIS PHELAN,
“ A. E. KENNEDY,
“ W. FOLEY, M.D.”

Colonel Vandeleur and Mr. Keane, J.P., were present.

REPLY to the above:—February 3, 1848.

I AM to express the satisfaction of the Commissioners at the result of the investigation ; but I am at the same time to state that the Commissioners are desirous of having a copy of the evidence taken, and they will feel obliged to you to cause a copy to be forwarded to them accordingly.

ATHLONE UNION.

Mr. S. W. FLANAGAN to the COMMISSIONERS—Dissolution of the Board of Guardians:—January 16, 1848.

At a meeting of the Board of Guardians of this Union, held yesterday, the 15th, a resolution was passed by a majority of ten to four, calling upon the Commissioners to accept their resignation, and alleging as a reason for it their inability to collect the rates.

This resolution has put beyond all doubt the incapacity of this Board, and the necessity which I have already pressed upon the Commissioners, of dissolving it.

A reference to the returns furnished to the Commissioners will show, that out of a gross rate little exceeding 8000*l.*, upwards of 6000*l.* were uncollected in the month of December; that, while the current expenditure of the Union during the month of December, amounted to nearly 600*l.*, the amount of rate lodged with the Treasurer did not amount to 300*l.*

A reference to the minutes of this Board will likewise show that, upon the 11th of December, a resolution was (at my instance) passed, calling upon the collectors to furnish lists of all defaulters owing more than a certain amount of rate, with a view of compelling the collectors to do their duty, and of exposing several members of the Board whose names would have appeared in the list.

From that day to the present, no such list has been furnished; and the collectors' books will still show the names of several of the Guardians (amongst others, one if not two of the four dissentients at yesterday's meeting) in arrears for their rate.

I have further to report, that several hundred unfortunate beings, apparently in most extreme destitution, pressed for admission to the workhouse yesterday; but from the want of ordinary foresight, and gross neglect of their duties by the Guardians, the greater number were obliged to return unrelieved, there being neither beds, bedding, or clothing ready for them.

I would most earnestly press upon the Commissioners the absolute necessity of dissolving forthwith this Board of Guardians, and entrusting the administration of the affairs of this Union to others willing and able to carry out the provisions of the law, and secure to the many distressed poor of the Union that relief to which they are legally entitled.

The COMMISSIONERS to the CLERK of the UNION —January 22, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under their consideration a report from Mr. Flanagan, Poor Law Inspector, in which he draws their attention to a resolution passed at a meeting of the Board of Guardians of the Athlone Union on the 15th instant, by a large majority, calling upon the Commissioners to dissolve the Board.

In reference to that resolution the Commissioners have to observe, that the grounds upon which the Commissioners are empowered by the 18th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, to dissolve a Board of Guardians are quite irrespective of a desire on the part of the Guardians to be released from their duties; still the resolution of the Guardians has led the Commissioners carefully to consider the present state of the Athlone Union, and the Commissioners have determined to dissolve the Board of Guardians on the ground, that the Guardians have failed to discharge effectually the duties which are devolved on them by the law. On this head, the Commissioners draw attention to their letters of the 10th and 31st December last, and of the 14th instant.

It appears by reference to the returns of the Union funds, that from the 5th December, 1846, on which day a rate of 8,955*l.* was made in the Athlone Union, the Guardians collected only 6,576*l.*, leaving arrears uncollected to the amount of 2,379*l.*, while at the same time, the debts of the Union amounted to no less than 3,948*l.* It also appears that, although a new rate was ultimately made on the 11th ultimo, amounting to 15,450*l.*, and although the net annual value of the Union is as much as 103,708*l.*, the Guardians caused to be collected and lodged with their treasurer during the month, only about one-half of the amount necessary to defray the current expenditure, on a scale of relief wholly inadequate to the extent of destitution which the Guardians are bound to relieve.

It further appears by the minutes of the Guardians' proceedings on the 11th December, that a resolution was passed calling upon the collectors to furnish lists of all defaulters owing more than a certain amount of rate, with a view of compelling the collectors to do their duty, and of exposing several rate-payers, including members of the Board of Guardians, whose names would have appeared on the list. No list has, however, been furnished in accordance with the resolution referred to, and Mr. Flanagan reports that the collectors' books will still show that several of the Guardians have not yet paid their rates.

Mr. Flanagan reports that several hundred persons, apparently in extreme destitution, pressed for admission into the workhouse on the 15th instant; but that from the want of ordinary foresight and palpable neglect of the duties of the Guardians, the greater number were obliged to return unrelieved, there being neither beds, bedding, or clothing ready for them.

The Commissioners feel, under such painful circumstances, that they should not be warranted in longer permitting the administration of relief to the destitute poor of the Athlone Union, to depend upon the present Board of Guardians; and they have accordingly resolved to issue an order for the dissolution of the Board, and they will proceed at once to appoint paid officers to administer the affairs of the Union.

COPIES of the COMMISSIONERS' LETTERS referred to in the foregoing, addressed to the CLERK of the UNION.

*Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
December 10, 1847.*

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland desire to state to the Board of Guardians of the Athlone Union, that a memorial has been addressed to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, by inhabitants of the parishes of Saint Peter and Drum, in which it is represented that if relief be not speedily afforded, hundreds of persons in those parishes will die of starvation; that the poorhouse is full; and that the Guardians have no funds for administering out-door relief.

The Commissioners have ascertained that there is much destitution among the poorer classes of the Athlone Union; and they observe, that of the rate still in course of collection, which was made in December, 1846, there was outstanding on the 31st of October, a sum of 312*l.*, and that the debts of the Guardians at the same date amounted to 370*l.*

Under such circumstances, the Commissioners feel bound to call upon the Board of Guardians to proceed, without delay, to make a new rate; and whilst the books are in preparation, to urge on the collection of the rates outstanding; so that the amount of arrears to be carried forward to the new books, may be diminished as much as practicable, before they shall be in readiness for the insertion of the arrears.

The Commissioners trust, however, that in the preparation of the new books, there may be no further delay than is actually necessary, for making the requisite entries.

It is to be lamented that in the meantime, there is no fund available for enlarging the means of relief possessed by the Board of Guardians, now solely charged with the grave responsibility of providing for the support of the actually destitute poor of the Union, of which the Guardians can only acquit themselves by strenuous exertions for levying the requisite funds, and carefully superintending the administration of relief.

*Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
December 31, 1847.*

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to state for the information of the Board of Guardians of the Athlone Union, that the Commissioners have received a letter from Collector Charles Kelly, in reply from one to this office, requiring him to account for the comparatively small amount collected by him out of rates amounting to 3102*l.* 8*s.* 7*d.*, made on the 5th December, 1846, of which there was still outstanding, on the 25th instant, 1188*l.*

The Commissioners consider the statement of Mr. Kelly to be very unsatisfactory.

They also regret to observe that the progress made in collecting the rates through the Union generally, denotes a want of due exertion, and an absence of that stimulus which should have been applied by the Guardians to render their officers' exertions commensurate with the necessities of the Union.

The total rates struck on the 5th December, 1846, amount to 8955*l.* 19*s.* 9½*d.*; of this sum there remained uncollected on the 30th ultimo, 2662*l.* 11*s.* 5½*d.*, and notwithstanding the increase of destitution, and the crippled state of the Union funds, the collectors brought in during the last month only 458*l.* 5*s.* 2*d.*

The Guardians being responsible for the due collection of the rates and the providing of means of relief for the destitute poor of the Union, the Commissioners feel themselves now imperatively called upon to state, that if the legal provisions for these objects be not actively carried into effect by the Board of Guardians, the Commissioners will be bound to consider their own responsibility under the laws for the relief of the poor, more especially the 18th section of the Act 10 Vic., cap. 31.

*Poor Law Commission Office, Dublin,
January 14, 1848.*

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have had under consideration, minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians of the Athlone Union, on the 1st instant, containing a notice of motion to request the Commissioners to dissolve the Board, and appoint paid Guardians to manage the affairs of the Union; and I am directed to state that with a view of avoiding unnecessary discussion, the Commissioners desire, in reference to this notice of motion, to inform the Board of Guardians that the dissolution of a Board can only occur under some of the circumstances, and in the manner pointed out in the 18th section of the Act 10 Vic. cap. 31.

In reference to the application for a loan on the credit of the new rate, for the purpose of affording out-door relief to the 7th March, the Commissioners desire to state that there is no longer a fund out of which advances can be made on the credit of poor-rates.

The Commissioners recommend the Guardians to afford assistance to their clerk to enable him to complete the new rate and collection books with the least possible delay. It is also recommended, that when the books of one division can be completed, the collection should then be proceeded with, without waiting for the completion of all the books.

Preparatory to the collection, the Commissioners further recommend that only active and competent men, who will undertake to devote their whole time to the collection of the rates, and to conform strictly to the existing regulations, should be appointed as collectors.

The Commissioners must again remind the Guardians that they are legally responsible for having the rates collected, and that if they fail in this duty, on the effectual performance of which the support of the destitute poor now wholly depends, the Commissioners will be bound, as already stated in their letter of the 31st ultimo, to consider their own responsibility to see the law fulfilled, under the 18th section of the Act 10 Vic. cap. 31.

With respect to the proposal for letting a building in Mardyke-street, Athlone, as an auxiliary workhouse, the Commissioners desire to state, that they will be prepared to accept it in pursuance of their powers under the Act 1 and 2 Vic. cap. 56, on being supplied with the document, addressed to themselves as by law necessary, accompanied by a full statement of particulars as to the premises.

As regards the cheque for 120*l.* given to the workhouse master to purchase supplies, I am to state that the practice of issuing money to the master for purchasing supplies is very objectionable; and that supplies should be provided on contract.

The Commissioners request a reconsideration of the proposed change in the dietary, and of the medical officer's protest against the adoption of the same kind of diet, as proposed for every meal.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 28, 1848.

HAVING been appointed under your seal to administer relief to the destitute poor of the above Union, we beg to lay before you this our first report.

Our first step on arrival was to ascertain the state of the house, which we have to report generally filthy and disgusting, and quite devoid of system and regularity; classification but ill observed, and many of the wards diverted from their original purposes. There was no place for provisional admissions, the probationary wards being occupied by tailors on one side, and filled with old pauper clothing on the other, above and below.

The kitchen, laundry, dining-hall, and nursery, presented nothing but filth and irregularity; the proper hours of meals unobserved, and the usual workhouse rules seemed quite suspended.

The dormitories were tolerably clean, but not at all ventilated. Nearly all the beds required straw, which we learned was on the premises; we therefore ordered its appropriation immediately.

In the infirmary we found a great many children crowded together, ill of various diseases, and lying together heads and points, four to six in the ordinary beds; and in some cases the beds were closed up together, forming one continuous couch, with 10, 15, or more occupants.

Ventilation was here quite neglected, as the stench too plainly told.

The schools were in good order, except the floors, which require to be re-made (as, indeed, do most of the floors of the house, particularly the nursery). There are no tablets, and scarcely any books. Education seems to have been but a secondary consideration. The children seemed healthy, well clad, and well cared for, particularly in the female school.

The boys' school has been removed to an auxiliary house hired by the Guardians, about half a mile distant, at a rent of 50*l.* for one year. 225 boys are located in it under the care of the schoolmaster; and we found those lodged in 54 beds, rather more than four in a bed, one-half of which was almost devoid of straw; and here, too, we had this want at once supplied, and a better disposition of the sleeping wards made. In one room, not quite 10 feet square, we found 23 boys slept on loose straw. There was no window, and the door was locked nightly for 12 hours. Were it not for the fire-place, an inquest would doubtless have been necessary after the first night in this "black hole."

There is a good range of out-houses attached to this building, and, with little outlay in repairs, capable of affording ample accommodation, all of which are unoccupied; and here we have the same remark to make of several of the upper wards in the workhouse, while other portions are very inconveniently crowded.

The conversion of those out-buildings into dormitories and day-wards, will occupy our immediate attention.

The workhouse grounds, containing about four statute acres, are in a perfect state of waste, badly fenced on all sides, and perfectly fenceless on the north. The grounds, yards, and grave-yards exhibit sad neglect.

The house is remarkably free from fever, but three or four cases of a mild type existing. These are lodged in the idiot wards. (There does not appear to be any of the latter class in the house.) The physician informed us that the late Board would not admit any fever cases into the house, treating those only which arose amongst the inmates.

There is a new fever hospital built on the workhouse grounds, capable of containing 45 to 50 patients. It requires but furniture to render it available. Out-offices to it have been contracted for, but are not yet begun. The contractor's bonds only arrived this day. There were fever sheds in the town under the Relief Committee of last season, but they have been dismantled.

The paupers are all well clad. There seems to be an abundance of clothing, and clothing materials of the best description; but a sad deficiency in bed-ticks and beds. We learn that a contract has been made for bed-ticking, which was daily expected to be delivered.

The financial department of the Union next occupied our attention. We summoned the rate-collectors to attend, and ascertained from the books that there was an arrear of rate, in amount 2140*l.*, existing on the last levy, made 5th December, 1846, the total of which was 8955*l.*; of this account a very large amount is due by extensive proprietors for their tenants under 4*l.*, many of whom are resident, and some absentees. Several of the late Guardians are defaulters for considerable sums.

The rate-collectors' books present a mass of error and confusion. Some have paid in much beyond what appears collected in their books, whilst others are defaulters to a considerable amount. One has been criminally proceeded against; and those who have paid off, or nearly so, complained they had not been paid any poundage these two years. In no instance has the order of the Commissioners, with regard to their books, been complied with.

The liabilities of the Union amount to 3949*l.*, of which 925*l.* is due to the treasurer of the National Bank; and cheques have been issued, but remain unpaid, to the extent of 2185*l.*

Law proceedings against the Guardians had been instituted some time back, and pleas of confession given in three cases; and we have this day received notice that executions are pending for upwards of 400*l.*, and the solicitor threatening sale of the furniture, &c.

Under these circumstances, we did not hesitate to seek a further loan from our treasurer, and have therefore addressed him a note to that effect, for a sum of from 600*l.* to 800*l.* on the security of the rates; which request he promised to forward to the Board of Directors in London without delay.

An uniform rate of 3*s.* in the pound was declared by the late Board on the 11th September last, and the arrears have been added by the clerk. Sixteen of those books are now ready for signature, and the remainder are in progress, and only retarded by the state of one of the collector's books, who held a fourth of the Union, and is seriously in arrear.

We found the Union divided into seven collecting districts. Two of the collectors held nine divisions out of 19, and those the largest in point of value and population, comprising more than half the Union. We deemed it necessary to curtail those districts, and increase the number of collectors. We therefore advertised for collectors for each division of the Union, and will select 10 of the most eligible that offer; having divided the entire into 10 nearly equal districts, an arrangement which, we trust, will facilitate the collection of the rate, and give greater security against fraud or neglect.

Athlone Union.

The relieving officers, 10 in number, were elected last September, but never called into action. We had them before us; and having ascertained from our contractor, the possibility of obtaining a supply of Indian meal on credit, for distribution in out-door relief, we did not hesitate to place the books in their hands, with strict injunctions to insert only the most destitute, until we were in funds to warrant further relief.

Two of the relief districts are vacant, one from death, and one from resignation; we have therefore advertised for those districts anew, and will proceed to elect next week.

Of the amount of destitution existing in the Union we are scarcely yet in a position to speak, but it is evidently very great. At our first meeting numbers presented themselves for admission, but we were not, unhappily, in any position to relieve them.

Two inquests have been held within the last week, and verdicts of "death from starvation" returned. We have been waited on by several Roman Catholic clergymen, whose representations of the state of the poor were most harrowing, deaths from want being of common occurrence; but our perfect want of funds, and the disorganized state of the affairs of the Union generally, rendered refusal on our part, for the present, but too painful a duty.

In conclusion we can only add, that our predecessors have left us but a legacy of debt and destitution, that will demand our utmost energy to surmount. However, the Commissioners may rest assured that no amount of exertion shall be spared by us to correct the abuses and alleviate the miseries of the poor.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—February 2, 1848.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have read with much interest your very explanatory report on the state of the workhouse of the Athlone Union, when you took charge as Vice-Guardians; as well as on the collection of the rates, the liabilities of the late Board, and the extent of destitution existing in the Union.

The Commissioners approve of the step taken towards obtaining a loan from the treasurer, to meet the urgent creditors of the late Board; also your arrangements for collecting the rates and arrears, and calling into action the services of the relieving officers.

The Commissioners have full reliance on your proceeding to carry into execution all your powers as Guardians, with energy and discretion.

CAVAN UNION.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 6, 1848.

WE had, this day, information sworn against one of the late rate collectors; to-morrow we intend proceeding against another for gross frauds committed against the rates of the Union. We trust this prompt proceeding under the advice of a respectable solicitor, and with the concurrence of the resident magistrate (Mr. Wilcox), will prevent similar dishonesty hereafter, and show the rate-payers we are determined to protect their property.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 11, 1848.

HAVING in our last report laid before you the state of the Union on our arrival, and the measures adopted by us for remedying the existing evils, we now proceed, as briefly as possible, to report progress.

The balances in the hands of the late rate-collectors, appearing on our first examination of their accounts, have all been paid in; but, as it has since been discovered that three of the collectors returned arrears which they had received and applied to their own purposes, we have had informations given, in order to arrest them and make them amenable to justice.

The collection of the present rate is progressing satisfactorily, and already 4184*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.* has been lodged with the treasurer.

The collectors do not anticipate any serious difficulty in obtaining the remainder within the given time.

We have paid all the liabilities of the Union up to the 31st December, 1847.

The necessary arrangements for fitting up the house at Butlersbridge having been completed, we, on the 22nd ultimo, detached 85 children out of the poor-house, there to remain till further orders, under charge of a wardsman; and the outhouses having since been fitted up, we, yesterday, added 80 more of the children to that number. Accommodation has also been provided for 100 girls, in the immediate vicinity of the workhouse, under the charge of the school-mistress. Both these detachments are regular, clean, and healthy.

We have also removed 30 fever patients to the large store, prepared in the neighbourhood of Cavan for that purpose.

The medical officer has reported that those cases of fever remaining in the poor-house, will be convalescent in five or six days.

We have, accordingly, directed that all fresh cases of fever are to be immediately removed to our temporary hospital, and thereby hope, in a very short time, to be entirely free from it in the workhouse, the effects of which have been most disastrous, not only to the paupers, but likewise to the officers, as we have to record the death of our matron, who died on the 5th instant, being the third who has fallen a victim to the disease within the last 12 months.

The trades we proposed in our last report for giving employment to the boys in the house, are now in progress under qualified masters.

We have forwarded to the Commissioners, for their approval, a report on the imperfect state of the sewers and ventilation of the workhouse, with plans and estimates for remedying the same, which, on being returned, will receive our immediate attention.

We also forward a report, which we called for from our medical officer, relative to an alteration in the dietary, by the use of a larger quantity of rice, which we have no doubt will tend both to economy and the health of the inmates.

The Vice-Guardians having reason to believe that the existing contracts were not on the most advantageous terms, gave due notice that some (with the exception of milk) would be discontinued; have advertised for, and accepted others, which will ensure a cheaper and better description of supplies in future.

We continue a minute scrutiny and revision of the relieving officers' books, and regret to be obliged to add that distress is greatly on the increase. Relief was given for the

Cavan Union.

Week ending 25th December last, viz.:—

814 families, representing 1673 persons, cost per head 7½d., amounting to 51l. 7s. 10d.

Week ending 1st January, 1848, viz.:—

1194 families, representing 2497 persons, cost 6½d. per head, amounting to 63l. 18s. 6½d.

We have lately been overwhelmed with applications from the able-bodied, and have given to this subject our most attentive and anxious consideration, with a view to discover if the distress was of so urgent a nature as to render it imperative on us to apply to the Commissioners, for an order to grant relief under the 2nd section of the Extension Act. We do not consider the necessity for such a step exists at present.

The relieving officers report that a great number of this class of applicants would not come into the workhouse, but merely demand relief, knowing that we have no room, in the hope of being allowed some provisionally, till next Board-day.

Finding, therefore, that the children and fever patients already removed out of the house insufficient to enable us to test the able-bodied applying, we, on the 4th instant, directed that all the paupers in the house who were entitled to out-door relief under the 1st section of the Act, should be forthwith discharged, and receive a weekly allowance from the relieving officer of their own district, of six pounds of meal and two-pence for lodging for adults; three pounds of meal and one penny for children per week. We have thus procured room for 130 more able-bodied in the house, and hope, by continuing this practice, we shall be able to admit such numbers of able-bodied as will deter any but the really destitute, from applying for relief.

Having received a certificate from the Board of Health as to the necessity of procuring temporary hospital accommodation for the electoral divisions of Arvagh and Ballinagh, we have caused a communication to be addressed to his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, requesting an order to reimburse the two Committees of the aforesaid divisions, and select one Committee from the two, to manage the temporary fever hospital of that district.

We have succeeded in renting a house in a central position for that purpose, which will be prepared against Saturday-week, and which, we regret to state, is absolutely necessary from the many cases of fever in the district.

We have this day appointed a revising valuator, at an annual salary of 35l., whose duties will be to attend constantly on the Board, check the collectors' accounts, examine into and report on objections from rate-payers, which, we apprehend from the negligent manner in which the late revising valuator did his duty, will be most numerous.

We continue to receive the most cordial co-operation from all parties resident in the Union, who unanimously express their satisfaction at the measures adopted by us, to which they attribute the good effects already visible, and state their fervent hope that they may never again have to deal with a Board of local Guardians.

ENCLOSURE.

Dr. COYNE to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—January, 1848.

IN reply to letter of the 6th ultimo, addressed to me as medical officer of the Cavan Union, I beg leave to offer the following suggestions:—

That, after a careful consideration of the present dietary of the Cavan Union workhouse, and after six years' experience of its results on the health of the inmates, I consider the introduction of rice a most decided improvement.

I would suggest the use of rice instead of Indian meal, in the following proportions, viz.,

Adults.

Breakfast—3½ ozs. oatmeal, half a pint mixed milk, with 1½ ozs. rice properly prepared and made into stirabout.

Dinner—1 lb. brown bread and half a pint mixed milk.

N.B.—The interval between breakfast and dinner I consider too short, and would consider that breakfast should be at 9, dinner at 4 o'clock.

Children 9 to 15 years of age.

Breakfast—2 ozs. oatmeal, 1 oz. rice, half a pint mixed milk.

Dinner—8 ozs. brown bread, half a pint mixed milk.

Supper—8 ozs. flummery boiled, 1 noggin new milk.

Children 2 to 9 years of age.

Breakfast—1½ oz. oatmeal, ¾ oz. rice, 1 noggin new milk.

Dinner—6 ozs. brown bread, 1 noggin new milk.

Supper—6 ozs. flummery, 1 noggin new milk.

Infants under 2 years of age.

Breakfast—1½ oz. oatmeal, ¾ oz. rice, 1 noggin new milk.

Dinner—4 ozs. white bread, 1 noggin new milk.

Supper—4 ozs. flummery, 1 noggin new milk.

The foregoing is what, I think, should be adopted as a dietary for the general house. It includes my answer to the second and third paragraphs of your letter of the 6th ultimo; I think it will be found to conduce to the general health of the house, particularly amongst the children, with whom I have found the former dietary very objectionable, the mixed milk and stirabout tending to increase the disposition to relaxed bowels in scrofulous habits, a disease very prevalent amongst the lower orders in this country.

With regard to the clothing:—

I have never considered the material now in use (fustians) for trowsers beneficial either as regards economy or comfort, and would feel inclined to recommend dark coloured cord, which never requires washing, and will be found a much more durable article; the bedding and bed clothing are deficient in quantity, but in quality good. As regards any suggestions of mine respecting any improvement tending to advance the general health of the inmates, I would observe that Mr. Hague's plan of altering the sewerage is most advisable, and that the system of ventilation recommended by Mr. Phelan on his last visit appears to be most essential.

P.S.—If possible I would prefer frieze trousers during the winter and spring months, and I understand it would not be more expensive than our present arrangements, but much more healthy, particularly amongst the old and ailing young.

REPLY to the above:—January 17, 1848.

I AM to transmit herewith a copy of a form of order, authorizing out-door relief to certain classes not included in section 1 of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, and to state that, should the accommodation now provided by you not be found sufficient, the Commissioners will be prepared to issue an order in this form, to enable you to make still more room in the workhouse, by relieving any persons now in it, who belong to the classes adverted to, by means of out-door relief.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—January 21, 1848.

THE Commissioners perceiving from your recent reports on the Cavan Union, the improved state of the finances of that Union, and that you have paid nearly all the liabilities of the Union up to 31st December, 1847, I am directed to call your attention to the advance of 300*l.*, made by the British Relief Association, in December last, with a view to the repayment of the amount as soon as the funds in hand, from the collection of the rate, admit of such repayment.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. REDINGTON:—January 19, 1848.

WITH reference to a constabulary report, dated 1st instant, transmitted to the Commissioners, relative to the death of a woman named Mary Clarke, on the 30th ultimo, in the Cavan Union, I am directed by the Commissioners to transmit, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, a copy of a report, dated the 11th instant, of the Vice-Guardians of Cavan Union, to whom the Commissioners referred, on the subject.

CONSTABULARY REPORT referred to in the foregoing.

Ballyjamesduff, January 1, 1848.

I HAVE to report the death of Mary Clark on the 30th ultimo, when on her way to Cavan poorhouse.

The following is a copy of the verdict:—

We find that the deceased, Mary Clark, of Toher, a widow, aged 55, died from cholera produced by eating raw turnips, which might not have had the same effect had she not suffered from previous want, and we do acquit James Brady, relieving officer, of any neglect of duty towards deceased.

H. TROTTER,

Head Constable, 2nd Class.

The Inspector-General,
&c. &c.

Cavan Union.

VICE-GUARDIANS' REPORT above referred to :—January 11, 1848.

WE have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, enclosing a copy of a verdict found on Mary Clark, and enquiring if any application had been made for relief on the part of the deceased, and we have to report, for the information of the Commissioners, the following circumstances:—

Mary Clark applied for relief on the 26th November, to the relieving officer, James Brady, who offered her a ticket for the workhouse, which she refused. On the 24th December she again applied for relief, stating her distress and her willingness then to enter the workhouse, on which the relieving officer gave her a ticket and 7lbs. of meal as provisional relief, for herself and her child, till the following Tuesday, which was three days.

She came on the following Monday to the workhouse, and was informed there would be no room till the next day (the regular Board-day); and on her way here on Tuesday, it appears, she fell ill and died. Part of the meal given by the relieving officer on the previous Friday was found in her house after her death.

From all enquiry we have made we do not consider that any blame can be attached to the relieving officer.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 19, 1848.

THREE cases of rescue of cattle distrained by collectors have lately taken place in this Union. We forward the statement of the collectors herewith for the information of your Board.

In the case of Robert Buchanan, collector, we caused summonses to be issued for the petty sessions in Cavan, where one of the Vice-Guardians attended. The magistrates received informations in the case of Peter Coby; and in the case of Andrew Galligan allowed it to remain over until next court day, the 26th instant, on the application of the defendant.

In the case of Peter M'Donald, collector, he reports that the magistrates at sessions in Belturbet appeared desirous of giving time to the defendant, with a view to a compromise, which we consider a dangerous example, and likely to obstruct the collectors hereafter.

We then caused Buchanan, the collector, to swear informations, to ground an application to the magistrates to grant him the protection of the police in the discharge of his duty. We tendered them to the Bench; but the Court declined to interfere, or grant the aid required, referring us to the Government. We forward Buchanan's informations.

We submit the foregoing, and take leave to suggest to the Poor Law Commissioners to obtain from Government the aid required; also that the nearest resident magistrate be requested to attend on next Saturday at Belturbet, on which day many cases of parties being in arrear, and summoned by a collector of the name of Reilly, will be heard.

We regret to be obliged to add, that some of the magistrates are not desirous of giving to the collectors of the Poor Rate, that assistance in the discharge of their duty which they require.

ENCLOSURES.

Mr. BUCHANAN to the VICE-GUARDIANS of the Cavan Union :—January 17, 1848.

I BEG leave to report that on Friday, the 14th day of January instant, I proceeded to the lands of Deumore, in said Union, and then and there seized upon a cow, the property of Mary Coby, of said Deumore, for the sum of 3*l.* poor rates; whereupon her son, Peter Coby, came forward in a most violent manner, armed with large stones, and then and there rescued the said cow from me, for which outrage I will this day apply to a magistrate for a warrant against the said Peter Coby.

And furthermore, I beg leave to report that on Saturday, the 15th day of January instant, I proceeded to the lands of Black Bull, in the said Cavan Union, and then and there ordered my man, James M'Mahon, to loose out a cow which was then tied in a byre; whereupon Andrew Galligan and his wife, of said Black Bull, came violently and struck the said James M'Mahon, and knocked him down twice; and said Andrew dragged myself, and would not let me drive off said cow for poor rates—amount 3*l.* 4*s.*

Mr. M'DONALD, Collector, to the VICE-GUARDIANS of the Cavan Union :—January 17, 1848.

I BEG leave to report that on Friday, the 14th instant, I went to the lands of Drumcro, and seized two cows for poor rate due off said lands, which cows were rescued from me by Phill. Fannon and others. The said Phill. Fannon I caused to be taken before the bench of magistrates at Belturbet on the 15th instant, and they postponed the case until the 22nd instant, that in the meantime the landlord would have it settled.

County of Cavan,] The information of Robert Buchanan, of Carrig, in the county of Cavan. to wit. Informant saith, that in the month of December, 1847, he was appointed by the Vice-Guardians of Cavan Union, in said county of Cavan, collector for the electoral divisions of Denn and Kilnaleek, in said county, to collect such poor rates and arrears thereof as were then returned to him in a certain book now in informant's possession. Informant saith, amongst other persons returned therein as due and owing poor rate to the said Vice-Guardians is Mary Coby, as due and owing the sum of three pounds, out of the lands of Deumore, in said county. Informant further saith, that repeated applications for payment of same were made, but without effect. Informant saith, that on the 14th of January, 1848, he went to said lands of Deumore, so in possession of said Mary Coby, and distrained a cow, her property, for said sum of three pounds, being the amount of poor rate due and payable by her out of the said lands to the said Vice-Guardians of said Cavan Union; but on informant making said seizure, said cow was rescued by Peter Coby, the son of the said Mary, who threatened that if informant persisted in taking away said cow, he would inflict serious injury on him, he being at same time armed with stones, and used such threats and language as prevented this informant from completing said seizure, or discharging his duty towards the said Vice-Guardians. Informant further saith, that without the assistance of a police force he will be unable to levy the various amounts of rate to be by him collected, as informant has heard, and verily believes, every opposition will be given to the collection of same; and without such assistance informant's life will be endangered.

ROBERT BUCHANAN.

Sworn before us this 19th day of January, 1848.

THEOPHILUS THOMPSON, J.P., } Justices of the Peace
 R. ERSKINE, } for the Co. Cavan.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS in reply to the above:—
January 21, 1848.

THE Commissioners having communicated with the Government, they are informed that Mr. Holmes has been written to, directing his attendance and aid at Belturbet, but it is feared he will not receive the letter in time.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 20, 1848.

WE have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, of the 17th instant, enclosing a copy of a form of an order from the Commissioners, authorizing out-door relief to certain classes not included in section 1 of the Irish Extension Act, and stating that the Commissioners will be prepared to issue an order in that form to us, should we require it.

We have now to report, for the information of the Commissioners, that the accommodation provided by us in out-houses, and the numbers already discharged from the house, have proved insufficient to enable us to test the many able-bodied still applying for relief, and we have, therefore, to request that an order in the same form may be issued for this Union, which will enable us to make still more room in the workhouse, by relieving any persons now in it, who belong to the classes adverted to, by means of out-door relief.

COMMISSIONERS' ORDER for Out-door Relief under Section 2 of 10 Vic. c. 31.

To the Paid Officers acting in execution of the duties of the Board of Guardians of the Cavan Union; to the Clerk or Clerks to the Justices of the Petty Sessions, held for the Division or Divisions in which the Townlands and Places comprised within the said Union are situated, and to all others whom it may concern.

WHEREAS it has been shown to our satisfaction, that, by reason of the want of room in the workhouse of the Cavan Union, adequate relief cannot be afforded to destitute poor persons, being widows with one child dependent on them respectively; or to destitute poor persons, being children whose parents are both dead; or to destitute poor persons being able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families, dependent on them for support, are affected by severe sickness or serious accident.

Now therefore, we, the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, do hereby authorize and empower the paid officers acting in execution of the duties of the Board of Guardians of the said Union, for the period of two months from the date of this order, to administer relief out of the workhouse in food to such destitute persons as aforesaid, being widows with one child dependent on them respectively; or being children whose parents are both dead; or being able-bodied men, one or more members of whose families, dependent on them for support, are affected by severe sickness or serious accident.

Cavan Union.

Sealed with our seal, this twenty-fifth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight.

E. T. B. TWISLETON.

(Countersigned)

W. STANLEY, Secretary.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 24, 1848.

WE have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st instant, calling our attention to an advance of 300*l.* made to this Union by the British Relief Association, and in reply, we beg to state that the financial affairs of the Union are so flourishing, that we have it in our power to repay the sum in question, and are prepared to do so on receiving instructions from you, as to the mode of making such repayment.

The COMMISSIONERS to Count STRZELECKI:—February 14, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to inform you that they have received a communication from the clerk of the Cavan Union, in which he states that the Vice-Guardians have forwarded the sum of 300*l.* to Commissary-General, Sir R. J. Routh, in repayment of the loan made by the British Relief Association to that Union.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 13, 1848.

WE beg to submit, for the information of the Commissioners, our report on the general progress of affairs in the Cavan Union since we last had the honour of addressing you.

The finances, we are happy to inform you, are in a most flourishing condition, upwards of 11,000*l.* of the new rate having been collected and lodged with the treasurer in the short space of six weeks. This has enabled us to pay off all liabilities, including a loan of 300*l.* from the British Relief Association; to meet the current expenses of a crowded workhouse; give out-door relief to 5300 daily, and there is now a balance to the credit of the Union of upwards of 4000*l.*

The unfortunate illness of our clerk from fever, the death of our matron, and the resignation of our master, have of late greatly increased our labours; but we have nevertheless every reason to be satisfied with the gradual improvement in the state of the house.

We are rigidly enforcing the strictest discipline and regularity in the classification and management of the paupers, according to the intentions of the Poor Law, which appears hitherto to have been in a great measure set at nought. This we trust will make the poor-house what it should be, a test of destitution, and none but the really destitute will wish to avail themselves of it.

We have procured ample supplies of clothing, in which articles the poor-house was lamentably deficient, so much so as to account, in a great measure, for the continuance and prevalence of disease; this will be readily understood when we inform you, that the inmates were allowed to remain on many occasions for a month and five weeks without a change of linen. The master, tradesmen, and paupers employed under them, assisted in making the clothing.

Three hundred and fifty paupers are at present accommodated in houses taken in the neighbourhood for that purpose, and you will be glad to learn that these establishments are well conducted and healthy.

The excellent plan for ventilation recommended by Mr. Wilkinson, has been carried into effect since the removal of the fever patients to the temporary hospital in the vicinity ; and we have, since our last report, discovered that the imperfect sewerage was principally caused by the contractor for emptying the same, not properly performing his duty. Measures have been adopted for remedying this evil.

We now come to the subject of out-door relief, and have every reason to congratulate ourselves in having succeeded, after much anxiety and labour, in obtaining a most trustworthy and efficient staff of relieving officers, who are performing their arduous duties with the utmost zeal, activity, and firmness, under very trying circumstances. We are most particular in making a weekly examination of their Application Books, and in visiting the depôts as often as our more urgent duties will permit. We can safely state that the intentions of the Legislature are being carried out to their full and beneficial extent in this Union, and no person need now starve. Out-door relief was given for the month ending the 5th February to upwards of 5300 persons daily, coming under the 1st and a limited portion of the 2nd section of the Irish Extension Act, at a cost of 5½*d.* per head per week ; total cost of out-door relief for one month, 521*l.* 0*s.* 1*d.*

So far our humble efforts have been crowned with success ; we cannot however conceal from ourselves the anxiety and apprehension with which we view the state of the able-bodied in this Union, and our prospects for the next four or five months.

The greatest possible distress prevails throughout the entire Union ; there is (except in a few praiseworthy instances) a total want of employment. The able-bodied who have hitherto supported themselves on the produce of their gardens, and on small patches of turnips and cabbages which they had raised, and who would submit to any privations to stop out of the poor-house, have exhausted their slender means, and have nothing now to look to but employment or the poor house. They daily offer themselves in numbers, and no greater proof can be adduced of the extreme distress, than the willingness with which many give up their holdings to entitle them to relief.

We have availed ourselves of every means in our power, to arrive at a true knowledge of the condition and resources of the Union ; it may not be out of place here to detail the result of our observations, and the causes which in our humble opinion, have led to such a lamentable state of destitution in so wealthy a Union, and one possessed of so many natural advantages.

The extent of the Union is 178,723 acres, the population 97,211 ; the net annual value 114,996*l.*

It will be perceived that the population is considerably over that of other Unions, as compared with the extent ; the land is subdivided to a frightful degree ; the number of holdings under one acre, 2200 ; over one acre, not exceeding five, 1661 ; over five, not exceeding ten, 2854. Fifty-acre farms, so common in adjoining counties, are rarely to be met with in this Union. Agriculture is notoriously backward ; the wretched system of taking potatoes and oats from the land till it will bear no longer, has been carried to its fullest extent, and the proper rotation of crops is altogether untried and unknown. Few Unions in Ireland present greater facilities for drainage, or are more in need of it, yet this important step has been almost entirely neglected ; a complete apathy seems to pervade all classes.

In such a Union as above described, what could be expected when the potatoes failed, but the misery and destitution which it has been our painful duty to relate. Even the agricultural society, formed some time back in this part of the country, has been allowed to fall to the ground from want of proper encouragement. What assistance it might now have afforded to the small classes of farmers had it continued in existence !

We have made and are still making, every exertion in our power to meet the applications from the able-bodied ; we have discharged from the house all those under the 1st section giving them out-door relief ; we have removed 350 of the children into houses taken in the neighbourhood, and endeavoured in every way to reserve the workhouse solely as a test for the able-bodied. All has proved insufficient to accommodate the number of this class of applicants, and we have this day taken another large house which will hold the remainder of the children, and make room for 500 more able-bodied in the workhouse.

If, however, the landowners and farmers of the Union do not immediately exert themselves, and co-operate with the Poor Law by giving ample employment, the means for which are now so advantageously offered by Parliament, though we may for a few weeks obviate the necessity of applying for an order authorizing out-door relief to the able-bodied, that expedient must ultimately be adopted.

Notwithstanding the distressing circumstances under which this country is labouring, we calculate if the co-operation alluded to were afforded, a rate of from 4s. to 5s. in the pound would meet the expenses of the Union for twelve months. Should it be withheld, one at least double that must be the consequence.

Deeply sensible of the sacred and important trust confided to us of providing for the support of the destitute, on the one hand, and of protecting the property of the rate-payers on the other, we submitted to the latter our views on this subject, in an address shortly after our arrival.

We called upon them to choose between supporting the poor in idleness or in profitable employment, and regret to say they have not as yet profited by our suggestions, humbly but earnestly offered; if they continue to disregard advice, the benefit of following which is so obviously to their own advantage, on themselves alone will rest the awful responsibility of the result.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. BATES, Vice-Guardian:—February 24, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to acknowledge the receipt of a report made by yourself and your late colleague, Mr. Robinson, as Vice-Guardians of the Cavan Union, on the 13th instant, and I am to express the Commissioners' satisfaction with the contents thereof, which, so far as they relate to the measures hitherto adopted by yourself and Mr. Robinson, satisfy the Commissioners that you have acted with the utmost prudence and propriety in the discharge of your difficult duties.

The Commissioners lament the existence of so much distress among the able-bodied poor in the Cavan Union, which your report shows to be increasing, in the absence of due employment, on the part of the proprietors and occupiers of land throughout the Union. Should the workhouse and additional workhouse become full in consequence, the Commissioners will be prepared to authorize relief to the able-bodied under the 2nd section of the Relief Extension Act, whenever that step may be shown to them to be necessary.

Strade ditto	1,457	15	1½
Total uncollected	9,577	5	4½

None of the large proprietors have yet paid the rate. The collector has been engaged in making out the charges against them, and many of them have been served. Some of these gentlemen are disposed to meet their liabilities, and to facilitate matters. The collector has had interviews with several.

The collection commenced on the 27th October, and upwards of 600 notices have been served, principally in the electoral divisions of Addergoole, Turlough, Strade, and Castlebar.

I have arranged that the collectors' books and accounts shall be examined weekly, and that a list of the persons to whom application has been unsuccessfully made during the week, with the reasons given for non-payment in each case, shall at the same time be produced.

These lists will be returned for reference, and instructions given to the collector respecting each case. I have, at the same time, every reason to believe that the collector will perform his duty with energy and impartiality.

The course which it seems most advisable to pursue, is to induce the large proprietors (some of whom are fairly disposed) to meet their liability, and their example may influence other rate-payers who appear inclined to oppose a passive resistance; leaving harsh measures as a last resource, to be however used when necessary, and firmly enforced.

There is another class who are inclined to conform to the law, but unable to meet the whole of their liabilities at once.

With regard to the small holders of land in the rural districts (many of whom have never paid poor-rates), the collector will have many difficulties. Some are unable to pay the rates, and others I understand, are removing their produce to avoid seizure. Delays are also occasioned by the disputes respecting liability, arising from the subdivision of the land and the mode in which leases are held, and the fact of the rate having been struck upon an old valuation.

Castlebar Union.

The revising officer having retained the latest books in his possession, in consequence of the inability of the Guardians to pay him his salary, at the time the rate in question was in course of preparation, increases the difficulty.

These, however, are points which can be met, and I only mention them in explanation of the delays which may be expected to arise, in the collection of the rate, however zealously and vigorously the collector may act, in the execution of his duty.

It may not be out of place here to allude to the good feeling generally felt, towards the Vice-Guardians by all classes in the Union. On their arrival here, they were at first unpopular with some; but their straightforward business-like mode of conducting the affairs of the Union, and their courteous bearing, have gained the respect of all: a result satisfactory to themselves, and of great advantage to the public service.

The liabilities of the Union are very heavy; on the 31st October they amounted to £4,740 15 5

(Exclusive of sums due to Government for workhouse loan, or on account of advances made by Relief Commissioners, or any loan for building purposes), viz.:—

	£.	s.	d.
Due to the Union treasurer	1,790	8	11
Ditto contractors for provision, &c.	2,725	8	2
Ditto officers' salaries, including relieving officers	224	18	4
	4,740	15	5

And as legal proceedings have been threatened by some of the creditors (a subpoena having been served upon the clerk for a claim of 600*l.* in one instance, and a letter from the treasurer's attorney, calling for payment of a similar sum, having been received in another), it is proposed that an arrangement shall be entered into, by which 50 per cent. of the rate will be appropriated, as it is collected, to meet the debts of the Union, and the remainder reserved for the current expenses of the workhouse; and the treasurer, who it will be seen is the principal creditor, having stated his willingness to meet the views of the Vice-Guardians in the matter, an interview will take place between that gentleman and the Vice-Guardians on Wednesday, in order that the details may be arranged, when they will be submitted to the creditors generally.

The applications for admission to the workhouse continue to increase. The following was the state of the house yesterday morning (the 20th):—

Males 15 years and upwards	109
Females ditto	204
Boys under 15 years	172
Girls ditto	163
Children under 2 years	27
	675
Of the above in fever	32
Other cases	55
	87

Increase in fever cases, 5.

Seventy applicants were admitted, to make room for whom 34 individuals (infirm persons or widows with two or more children) were discharged and transferred to the out-door relief list.

The house in the town of Castlebar, the Guardians had in view for the accommodation of the children, is not yet available. The occupier has promised to give up possession of a portion within a fortnight (the house to which he will remove not being quite ready), when, if the agreement for hiring the premises be completed, the necessary alterations will be proceeded with.

Notwithstanding the attention paid by the medical officer, the number of fever cases has increased. Every effort to obtain a house for a fever hospital has failed, and no alternative remains but to press forward the temporary fever sheds now in course of erection, in the workhouse grounds, one of which, to contain 25 patients, is in a forward state, but the foundation of the other is not yet completed. In the mean time, no applicant suffering from fever is admitted to the workhouse. Such cases when duly authenticated, are entered on the out-door register, and relief administered by the relieving officer. The distress in this Union will be very great; many families at present have no other subsistence than the small crop of turnips, produced from the seed provided for them by the Government or charitable associations. The pressure will, I trust, be diminished by the aid the British Association are anxious to afford to the children attending the existing schools. I have endeavoured to obtain the necessary information respecting these schools, and have visited several of the electoral divisions during the week for the purpose. Returns from some of the districts have reached me, and I hope to obtain all during the ensuing week. The aid thus afforded will be the more valuable, as it will not be susceptible of much abuse, and will have a direct tendency to improve the moral and social condition of the district.

Fever, which prevailed extensively throughout the Union, has somewhat abated, and is not generally fatal in its effects.

Castlebar Union.

REPLY to the above:—November 26, 1847.

With regard to your suggestion that a less sum than 3s. in the pound might be demanded as an instalment of the rate, I am to state that the Commissioners do not feel warranted in authorizing by their sanction, the acceptance of any less amount, as an instalment of the rate due. The Commissioners rely upon the Vice-Guardians taking the most active and vigorous course which is open to them, for the speedy and effectual collection of the rates, from all classes throughout the Union, having regard only to the means of payment and the wants of the Union; and they have no doubt that the efforts of the Guardians will be continuously directed to this important point.

With regard to the course which the circumstances of the Union have obliged the Vice-Guardians to adopt, with regard to the debts of the late Board of Guardians, I am to enclose herewith for your information, a copy of a letter which was addressed to the Vice-Guardians on the 24th instant.

The Commissioners trust that the temporary sheds which are being erected on the workhouse premises, for the occupation of fever patients, will be speedily completed, as without an order of the Commissioners, under the 5th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, the relieving officer can only provide medical relief provisionally, under the 7th section; but ordinary relief in cases of destitution by sickness, may be afforded under the 1st section of the Act.

The VICE-GUARDIANS of BALLINROBE, CASTLEBAR, and WESTPORT UNIONS to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 22, 1847.

We have the honour to inform you that we have received a letter, signed H. A. Dillon, 87, Lower Gardiner-street, Dublin, stating that the writer had received instructions from A. and G. Clendinning to take proceedings against us, as Guardians of the Castlebar Union, for recovery of 668*l.* 11*s.* 9*d.*, due to them as treasurers. We deemed it but right to seek an interview with Mr. Clendinning, and induced Captain Farren to accompany us to Westport. Mr. Clendinning was from home, but we saw Mr. Howard, the sub-agent of the bank, and left a message with him for his principal, to the effect that we fully recognised our responsibility to discharge every just debt of the late Board of Guardians; but that he must be aware of the impossibility of doing so on a sudden, but we proposed to request a meeting of the creditors of the Union, and to offer them payment of 10*s.* in the pound of their demands out of the present rate, and the remaining 10s. out of the next succeeding rate; and that, of every lodgment made by the collectors in each Union, one-half should be reserved to meet this engagement, until discharged. Mr. Howard said he thought the proposal a fair one, and that the creditors would accept it. Mr. Lynch, the Inspector of the Westport Union, undertook to see Mr. Clendinning, explain our views, and point out to him the injurious consequences of wasting the funds of the Union in law costs, when no intention existed of evading or repudiating the just demands of the creditors. On our arrival in Ballinrobe, we found a similar letter applicable to that Union; and since our return here, Mr. Lynch informs us that Mr. Clendinning approves of our intentions, with the addition of advising that all debts under 10*l*. should be cleared off, in full, at once, and the others according to priority. We now only want your sanction of this proceeding to call the creditors of the Westport and other Unions together, and have the proposal laid before them. This matter is urgent, as other letters, similar to those from Mr. Clendinning's attorney, have been addressed to us by gentlemen of the law, on the part of creditors for large amounts; and proceedings and costs may be stayed, by affording an understanding satisfactory to the parties. Our minutes of Saturday's proceedings will have informed you of the position in which we stand with respect to Foy's Hotel. We have urged the present occupier, as much as possible, to evacuate the premises, but cannot expect he will do so in less than a fortnight, and, even after that, some time must be consumed in alterations, to adapt the house to our purposes. We greatly fear that, ere long, great destitution will pervade this country. There is but little appearance of employment, and scarcely any preparation for employment. Should things continue much longer as they at present appear, the promise of a future wheat crop will not be worth calculating on. Could any plan be devised for assisting the small landholders to dig their land, by giving them some small allowance for every acre turned up, and selling them seed at a reduced price, on their joint notes, or on giving security? If the land continues to be left idle from year to year, destitution must increase, and the prospects of the country become more and more forlorn. We have lately learned that there is a great source of employment in the immediate neighbourhood of Castlebar, which only awaits the order of the Board of Works to be put in operation. It is the drainage of the Saleen Lake, which would employ 200 men through the winter, and consequently feed a thousand individuals, if, as it is said, every necessary form has been fulfilled and the proper security entered into. It is a grievous loss that this extensive source of support for an almost starving population should not be acted on. By and by, we fear some great expenditure of gratuitous relief will have to be engaged in; and far better would it be, when money must be spent, that some return should be had for it, and particularly in a case such as this alluded to, where the outlay must be refunded.

Castlebar.

Castlebar Union.

REPLY to the above:—November 24, 1847.

I AM directed to express the Commissioners' approval of the second course proposed in your letter for the payment of the creditors, namely, to pay off at once the debts under 10*l*., and the others by two instalments, one of 10s. in the pound, out of the rates to be now collected, and the other, of equal amount, out of the next rate to be levied; the debts to be thus paid off according to the priority in which they were incurred, so that instalments on account of those longest due may be issued first in order; and only one-half of the amount collected for each rate to be thus applicable to the discharge of debts.

With reference to that portion of your letter relating to the drainage of the Saleen Lake, I am to state that the Commissioners will request the Board of Works to have the Saleen drainage commenced immediately, if the arrangements for that purpose are complete.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 28, 1847.

Owing to delay arising from notices having been given to the collector, requiring his attendance elsewhere, he did not produce his books for examination until a late hour on Friday afternoon, and no return of unsuccessful applications was handed in by him.

Opposition has been offered to one of the collector's officers in the execution of his duty. James Malley, the individual in question, reports to the collector, that "on Tuesday, the 16th instant, he proceeded to the village of Kilmullagh, electoral division of Addergoole, to serve notices on persons subject to poor-rates. After serving four notices, he was opposed by several of the inhabitants, who said that if he did not forthwith withdraw they would have his life. He was struck with stones, and hunted out of the village." And he adds that, "these persons sent him an account, that if he again went there for the purpose of serving the said notices, that they would take away his life;" and that they owe the previous rate, and withstood the former collector of rates, and are notorious for opposing all legal assessments."

As this report was only shown to me on Saturday (yesterday) evening, I have not had an opportunity of making inquiries respecting it. I shall take an early opportunity of visiting the district.

Yesterday I attended the ordinary meeting of the Board of Guardians. The following was the state of the house :—

Males, 15 years and upwards . . .	118

95 of whom, being the most distressed cases, were relieved in the following manner, viz., 47 were admitted to the workhouse, and 48 infirm persons, widows with two or more children, and fever cases, were placed on the out-door relief list. And in order to provide accommodation in the house for the numbers above-mentioned, 27 persons (infirm and widows) were discharged from the house, and transferred to the out-door list.

With regard to the sanitary condition of the house, an increase of two only in the number of fever cases appears on the return. Dysentery has, however, shown itself, and is increasing, and the appearance of the children is not satisfactory. Regular intervals of relaxation and exercise, but in the school hours, proper clothing, and higher temperature in the school-rooms, appear to be required: and to arrest the disease alluded to, a change of diet, substituting bread for the meal of stirabout, once a-day, has been recommended by the medical attendant.

The room appropriated as a nursery is very small and crowded; also the women's day-room. All these points, and the condition of the house generally, has been reported upon by the doctor, and his report will be considered by the Guardians at the adjourned meeting, to be held to-morrow. With regard to the clothing, a supply has been received, and every exertion will be made to bring it into wear as soon as possible. The Board of Vice-Guardians, as the Commissioners are aware, have had many difficulties to overcome in this Union; and they are exerting themselves to the utmost of their ability, to meet them, and bring matters, both with regard to the establishment of the house and the financial affairs of the Union, to a satisfactory state.

On Wednesday, the Guardians, the Inspector of Westport Union, and myself had an interview with the treasurer, who agreed to accept, as far as he individually is concerned, the arrangement proposed for meeting the debts contracted under the former Board of Guardians, and a meeting of the creditors will be accordingly called to obtain their consent to the arrangement.

REPLY to the above :—December 1, 1847.

With reference to the opposition which has been offered to the collector's deputy when serving notices for poor-rate, I am to state that, if an information is duly sworn before a magistrate, the Commissioners cannot doubt that due protection will be afforded to the collectors.

With reference to the number of destitute persons applying for relief, I am to state, that if in your opinion, and in the opinion of the Vice-Guardians, an order authorising out-door relief to the able-bodied is become necessary, the Vice-Guardians should formally record the grounds of that opinion in their minutes, and make application accordingly for such order, to the Commissioners. Copies of orders for out-door relief, which have been issued in a few instances, are enclosed herewith for your information.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 30, 1847.

Castlebar Union.

WE have the honour of informing you, that Captain Farren last night showed us a copy of a letter from you, addressed to us, relative to your sanction of the plan we proposed for liquidating the claims on the funds of the three Unions under our charge. The original of this letter never reached our hands. However, satisfied by the evidence conveyed by the document forwarded to Captain Farren, we have called meetings of the creditors for Ballinrobe on Friday the 10th, Castlebar, Monday the 13th, and Westport, Tuesday the 14th of December.

On Saturday last, the pressure for admission here, and at Ballinrobe on the previous days, was considerably increased; and as the houses at both places are full, and all the inmates comprised in the three classes set forth in the Extension Act have been cleared out on the out-door relief, we were compelled to reject a very large number of claimants entered on the relieving officers' books, as well as a crowd of others who assembled in front of the houses. Yesterday, again, at our adjourned meeting, the gathering was renewed. Those assembled were all evidently in a state of great destitution.

REPLY to the above :—December 1, 1847.

THE Commissioners have given directions for the preparation of an order authorizing you to administer relief out of the workhouse in the Ballinrobe and Castlebar Unions, to destitute poor persons, not being persons permanently disabled from labour by reason of old age, infirmity, or mental defect, and not being persons disabled from labour by reason of severe sickness or serious accident, and thereby deprived of the means of earning a subsistence for themselves and their families, who they are liable by law to maintain, and not being poor widows having two or more legitimate children dependent on them.

I am at the same time to state, that as it is intended that no relief should be given out of the workhouse to able-bodied men except in return for work, the Commissioners request the Vice-Guardians to take measures for employing, as far as is possible, able-bodied men in stone-breaking by task-work in return for food.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—December 3, 1847.

WITH reference to the order for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, dated the 2nd instant, authorizing you to afford out-door relief under the 2nd section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, in the Ballinrobe and Castlebar Unions, I am directed by the Commissioners to draw your attention to the circumstance that no relief under this order can be legally given to persons in employment, that such relief must be in food only, and that no able-bodied man should receive relief except in return for work.

With regard to the nature of the work which should be offered to able-bodied men, the Commissioners have to state that the making of roads, and stone-breaking, are two modes of labour which have been suggested as expedient for employing persons receiving out-door relief.

In reference thereto, I am to state that the Commissioners are desirous that the question of employing the able-bodied paupers of the Union on the roads left unfinished by the Board of Works, or on the making of any other roads, should not be raised at the present moment.

And as road-making has been proved, on a very extensive scale, to be no adequate test of destitution, the Commissioners would strongly recommend another test, which has often been found effectual. The Commissioners advert to stone-breaking, and they suggest the making preparations for obtaining a large supply of hard stone, and for employing able-bodied paupers at stone-breaking by task-work in return for the rations to be supplied by the Union.

The Commissioners are anxious strictly to prohibit and prevent the granting relief on account of the insufficiency of wages, to persons occasionally in employment during the week.

It appears to the Commissioners that there is no rule of greater importance in the administration of out-door relief to able-bodied men, than that they should be maintained either wholly by their employer, or wholly by the Board of Guardians, and that the strongest line should thus be drawn between relief and wages.

In setting able-bodied men to stone-breaking by task-work, as a condition of relief, much will depend on the knowledge, firmness, and discretion of those who may be appointed to superintend stone-breaking, and the Commissioners cannot too strongly urge you to be peculiarly careful in permitting yourselves to be influenced by no other considerations than those of personal fitness in selecting candidates for that highly important office.

The Commissioners will take this opportunity of observing, that in specifying the period of eight hours at least in the day during which every able-bodied pauper should be required to work, they have made allowance for the present season of the year, and for the possible circumstance that some of the able-bodied paupers may come to the stone-breaking from a considerable distance. It is not, however, by any means intended to prevent the Guardians from requiring work during a still longer period of time. The period of eight hours is, in fact, merely the minimum space of time in the day during which every able-bodied pauper should give the value of his labour to the Union.

In conclusion, the Commissioners desire to remind you that the out-door relief order is merely temporary, and that you should in the meanwhile use every possible exertion to obtain separate workhouse accommodation for the pauper children, in order that the workhouse may be made available almost exclusively for the relief of able-bodied men.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 5, 1847.

THE collector not having attended at the Board-room yesterday for the examination of his accounts, I am not in a position to inform the Commissioners of the progress made, in the collection of the rate during the past week.

I brought this neglect of duty on the part of the collector, in not producing his books and accounts for inspection on the day appointed for the weekly examination by the clerk, to the notice of the Board of Vice-Guardians yesterday, and the clerk has been directed to call upon the collector for an explanation.

The tide of destitution may now be fairly considered to have set in; and the energies of all engaged in working out the operations of the Poor Law in this Union, will be required to meet the pressure.

In consequence of the number of applicants seeking relief at the Board-day on the 27th ultimo, I deemed it advisable to address a letter to the agent of the British Association, requesting temporary assistance for the destitute able-bodied class, until the house for which the Guardians are now in treaty, would be available for workhouse accommodation, being anxious to postpone the official application to the Commissioners for their sealed order as long as possible; but the Board of Vice-Guardians having yesterday received a sealed order, authorizing out-door relief to that class, I have informed the Count de Strzelecki that the necessity of aid from the Association on these grounds, has been removed.

A progressive and considerable increase has taken place in the numbers on the out-door relief lists.

On the 13th November the number discharged from the workhouse to out-door relief was	7
20th November, ditto ditto	34
(And a number of fever cases ordered relief.)
27th November, discharged to out-door relief	27
Passed in books of relieving officers	48
4th December, discharged to out-door relief	14
Passed on books of relieving officers	327
The total number now receiving out-door relief being about	472

Hitherto this mode of relief has been confined to infirm persons, widows with two or more children, and cases of fever. Its extension to the able-bodied opens a wide field, and its administration will require the closest attention.

The attention of the Board of Vice-Guardians has been directed to the necessity of providing an extra staff; and they are seeking for persons eligible for the situation of relieving officer, the number at present employed (five) not being sufficient for this Union. The qualifications of claimants for the office will be considered on Saturday next.

Castlebar Union.

The state of the workhouse yesterday was as follows:—

Males, 15 years and upwards	121
Females, ditto ditto	209
Boys under 15	172
Girls ditto	168
Children under two years	26
Total	696

Of which, in fever	25
Other cases	49
Total	74

The number of applicants on the books of the relieving officers was	364
Of which there were admitted to the workhouse	23
And transferred to out-door relief list	327

And, in order to make room for those admitted, 14 individuals (infirm persons and widows with children) were discharged from the workhouse, and transferred to the out-door relief list.

With regard to the sanitary condition of the workhouse, I am happy to report that a decrease in the number of fever cases has taken place, the number of cases now under treatment being nine less than on the preceding Saturday; there are, however, 43 cases of dysentery, the number of new cases of that malady during the week being 18.

With reference to the statement of the medical officer of the establishment, alluded to in my report of last week, the Board of Vice-Guardians have caused an alteration to be made in the school-houses of the children, affording longer periods for relaxation and exercise; also arrangements for the better ventilation of the school-rooms, &c.; and have recommended a change of diet, substituting bread for the meal of stirabout once a-day. These arrangements will, doubtless, work a beneficial change, and, with regard to the children, an improvement is already perceptible.

Defects in the discipline and interior economy of the workhouse (notwithstanding the anxiety and the orders given by the Board of Vice-Guardians on the matter) having attracted my attention, I have frequently visited the establishment, and have endeavoured to enforce a system of general responsibility, from the master and matron down to the orderly men or women of each room, and the result has been satisfactory, a decided improvement in the cleanliness, &c., of the different apartments of the house having been apparent, at the inspection yesterday.

Since writing the foregoing report, I have been informed that the collector has explained to the Board of Vice-Guardians the cause of his absence on Friday, and that he has handed a sum of 300*l.* to one of those gentlemen, with a request that he will lodge it with the treasurer of the Union at Westport, when he proceeds to that place on Wednesday next.

REPLY to the above:—December 10, 1847.

WITH reference to the sum of 300*l.*, which you state the collector of poor-rate has handed to one of the Vice-Guardians, to lodge with the treasurer in Westport, I am to state that the Commissioners consider that it is not advisable there should be so large an accumulation of rate in the collector's hands. The collector is bound to lodge, not only weekly, but whenever he may have 50% collected, which he may do by remitting half notes.

Castlebar Union.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 12, 1847.

THE progress made in the collection of the rate during the last fortnight, as shown by the collector's books, has not been considerable.

The amount obtained was 137*l.* 9*s.* 1½*d.*, viz., from the following electoral divisions :—

Addergoole . . .	£ 5 11 11½
Breaffy . . .	8 8 9
Castlebar . . .	88 16 1½
Drum . . .	12 0 9½
Turlough . . .	22 11 6
	137 9 1½

To this, however, should be added the sum of 100*l.* received from the agent of the Earl of Lucan, which was not entered in the Abstract, or in the Rate Receipt Book, as the collector did not know the items for which the payment was made. He has been instructed to ascertain the same forthwith, give the necessary receipts, and make the required entries.

The total sum collected (including the 100*l.* in question, and previous receipts) is 753*l.* 16*s.* 10½*d.*, leaving uncollected in the following electoral divisions :—

Addergoole . . .	£ 884 0 2
Balla . . .	851 4 1½
Ballintobber . . .	708 14 8½
Breaffy . . .	406 10 5½
Ballyhean . . .	749 17 7½
Castlebar . . .	2,153 17 4½
Drum . . .	887 0 3½
Islandeedy . . .	486 0 10½
Strade . . .	1,453 9 5½
Turlough . . .	712 11 1
Total uncollected . . .	9,293 6 0½

Many of the large proprietors not having yet lodged the amount they have been respectively called upon to pay, the Vice-Guardians have placed a minute on the books, this day, calling upon the collector to lay before them, on the next day of meeting, a list of ten of the highest rate-payers in the Union, with observations of the position in which they stand on the subject of their payments, and such list to be continued from week to week.

With reference to the opposition shown to one of the collector's deputies, in the townland of Kilmallagh, electoral division of Addergoole, alluded to in my report of the 28th ultimo, the collector proceeded to that district last week, and having met with no resistance in any other part of the division, he did not deem it advisable to seek magisterial assistance. The matter was confined to one townland, and from the arrangements made, and the co-operation offered by the Roman Catholic clergyman of the parish, who I am happy to say has exhorted his flock to pay the rate, further opposition is not anticipated from that locality.

On Saturday I attended the meeting of the Vice-Guardians.

The following was the state of the workhouse:—

Castlebar Union.

Males, 15 years and upwards . . .	122

Total 88

There was a decrease of two in the number of new cases of fever, and also of two in the new cases of dysentery, during the week, as compared with the return of the preceding Saturday.

A crowd of applicants, destitute and misery-stricken, assembled at the workhouse. The number of individuals entered in the Application and Report Books of the relieving officers, amounted to 1469; of these there were admitted to the workhouse 37, and 1425 placed on the out-door relief lists; 38 individuals (infirm persons, and widows with children) were discharged from the workhouse, and transferred to the out-door relief lists; and on this day (Monday) a further discharge also took place of 41 persons, of the same classes, but who had been authorized to receive lodging money, (6*d.* a-week,) in consequence of having no place of abode.

There are now nearly 2000 persons receiving out-door relief; the numbers have sprung in one week from 472 to 1919, being an increase of 1447.

Arrangements have been made for employing the able-bodied at stone-breaking. An assistant to the relieving officer, in each electoral division, has been appointed, for the purpose of supervising the gangs, checking the tasks, &c.; points in each electoral division, have been selected as depôts, where the labourers will assemble and break the stones, which the county surveyor will purchase, a supply being required for the maintenance of the roads in the Union. The county surveyor also states that he has a large supply of implements, hammers, crowbars, &c., belonging to the Commissioners of Public Works, in his possession, which were procured for the labourers employed on the Public Works. A portion of these, if authorized by the Board of Works, could be handed over as a loan to the Vice-Guardians, whereby expense to the Union would be saved. The Chairman of the Board of Vice-Guardians has addressed a letter to the Poor Law Commissioners, upon the subject.

The application of the labour test to the able-bodied, is a subject of much importance, and much will depend upon the efficiency of the persons appointed as assistants to the relieving officers. I have drawn up a form of labour roll, in which the quantity of work performed each day, by each labourer, will be shown, and this will be checked at the end of each fortnight, by persons appointed by the county surveyor, to measure the work. I shall myself visit the gangs as frequently as possible, and observe closely the conduct of the assistants in question. I trust this test when properly carried out, will remove from the relief lists, any doubtful cases which may be placed upon them, and by the sale of the produce of the labour, lessen the charge upon the Union for the relief supplied.

With regard to the debts of the Union, contracted by the former Board of Guardians, a meeting of the creditors took place this day, when those present acquiesced in the arrangements approved by the Commissioners, for the liquidation of their claims, viz., that out of the rate at present in progress of collection, 10*s.* in the pound, shall be paid on the full amount of their admitted claims, and the residue, viz., second 10*s.* in the pound, out of the next succeeding rate, to be struck; the Union debts under 10*l.*, to be paid off in full; and all other debts according to the priority in which they were incurred, so that instalments on account of those longest due, may be issued first in order; and that out of the rates paid into the hands of the treasurer, from and after 1st January next, one-half, or 10s. in the pound shall be reserved by him, in order to fulfil this agreement, and the other half, only, be applied to the purposes of the Union.

Castlebar Union,

The Vice-Guardians directed that this agreement should remain upon the table of the Board-room for some days, in order that all the creditors may have an opportunity of signing it.

Some of the books of the Union are not in a satisfactory state. Those in charge of the clerk, owing to the neglect of the clerk to the former Board of Guardians, are much in arrear. I allude to the ledger. The accounts for the half year, ended 25th March last, have not been closed, and many items under the respective heads of expenditure, not brought out. Not a single entry has been made in the ledger for the half year ended 29th September.

The Vice-Guardians have directed a communication to be made to the late clerk, calling upon him to complete the books within a week, or they will cause an accountant to be employed for the purpose, at his expense.

No blame can be attributed to the present clerk, who is most anxious and attentive in the performance of his duties, and who cannot bring up his portion of the work until the arrears of former periods are completed.

REPLY to the above:—December 16, 1847.

YOUR report appears to the Commissioners in the main satisfactory, with the exception of what relates to the collection of the rates. The Commissioners observe, that the whole sum collected in the week ended was only 137*l.* 9*s.* 1½*d.*, and the Commissioners cannot but think that the collectors might have received a larger sum, if they had actively discharged their duty. At the same time, the Commissioners are desirous of receiving your own observations on this very important point.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 19, 1847.

THE collector's books show a considerable increase in the amount of rate obtained during the week, as compared with former weekly periods.

The amount obtained was 301*l.* 15*s.* 0½*d.* (being more than double the receipts of the preceding week), viz., from the following electoral divisions:—

	£.	s.	d.
Addergoole	10	2	5
Balla	56	19	7
Breaffy	23	14	9
Castlebar	47	0	0½
Drum	137	15	3
Islandeady	10	10	10½
Turlough	15	12	2
	301	15	0½

The total amount of rate now collected is 1055*l.* 11*s.* 11*d.*, leaving uncollected in the following electoral divisions:—

	£.	s.	d.
Addergoole	873	13	9
Balla	794	4	6½
Ballintobber	708	14	5½
Breaffy	382	15	8½
Ballyhean	749	17	7½
Castlebar	2,106	17	4
Drum	749	5	0½
Islandeady	476	10	0½
Strade	1,453	9	5½
Turlough	696	18	11

Total uncollected £8,992 6 9

More than one half of the amount collected has been obtained from the electoral division of Castlebar. Some of the proprietors have paid the demands made upon them. Others have paid the portion which they conceive, they are legally called upon to discharge, and have objected to the remaining items as being erroneously charged to them,—the occupiers of the lands holding under leases. In such cases, they have been requested to state the numbers objected to; a day will be appointed for inquiry, and in the event of the objection being sustained by the production of leases, the collector will be instructed to demand the rate from the occupiers. This does not refer to arrears due by immediate lessors, no appeal having been made by them.

Adverting to my report of the previous week, and the Commissioners' remarks thereon, relative to the collection of the rate, considering all the difficulties arising from the incorrect state of the rate-books, which were unavoidably drawn up from the old books, I have reason to believe that the collector (there is but one for the Union) is using all the exertion in his power. At the same time, seeing the small amount received during the week ended 12th December, I requested the Vice-Guardians to place a minute on the books calling upon the collector to lay before them at the next day of meeting, a list of 10 of the highest cess-payers, with observations as to the position in which they stood with respect to the payment of the rate. This list has not yet been furnished, but the collector has promised to produce it at the adjourned meeting on Monday.

The Commissioners may rely upon the closest attention being paid to this important point. The books and abstracts of receipts are examined every week by myself, and I have had repeated interviews with the collector upon the subject. Yesterday I attended the meeting of the Board of Vice-Guardians.

The following was the state of the house:—

Males, 15 years and upwards	105
Females, ditto	181
Boys under 15	157
Girls ditto	153
Children under 2 years	23
Total	619
Of which in fever	28
Other cases	72
Total	100

The number of fever cases under treatment are the same as on the preceding Saturday; of the others, 60 are cases of dysentery, the number of fresh cases during the week being 13.

The pressure of applicants seeking out-door relief has increased nearly three-fold within the last seven days; the number on the Application and Report Books of the relieving officers being 3270.

In dealing with these cases, the value of the workhouse, as a test, was shown in a very decided manner. Every exertion had been made to create as many vacancies as possible, by transferring to the out-door relief lists such of the inmates as were eligible. The result was, that numbers who were eager and pressing for relief outside, refused to enter the house; and thus, out of the whole number of applicants in question, 1322 only, considerably less than one-half, were placed on the out-door relief lists, and 141 were admitted to the workhouse. Several of the latter have, I understand, since left the house.

The number discharged from the workhouse to out-door relief was 60. Additional workhouse accommodation would evidently be of great value, at the present time; fresh difficulties have however sprung up to obstruct the arrangements of the Vice-Guardians on this point; a universal feeling of hostility having arisen amongst the inhabitants of Castlebar against the appropriation of the house for which the Vice-Guardians were in treaty, for such a purpose. Legal proceedings have been threatened, and a memorial forwarded to the Lieutenant of the county, for presentation to the Commissioners. This memorial, it appears, has been returned by the Earl of Lucan, and as the house is merely intended for the children, the Vice-Guardians have determined upon taking possession.

With regard to the employment of the able-bodied, I am not yet in a position to report upon the effect of the labour test. I visited two of the electoral divisions during the week, but as the tools had only been obtained the evening before, and, in some instances, on that morning, the assistants were employed in collecting the men; written instructions have been given to the assistants, and a form of return showing the work performed, to be filled up weekly and handed to the clerk of the Union.

The relief afforded by the British Association to the destitute children attending the schools, has been brought into operation in the town of Castlebar, where 380 are fed daily; 180 in the electoral division of Ballyhean will be added to the number to-morrow; and arrangements have been made for extending the relief to the other electoral divisions as soon as the school Committees have completed their portion of the preliminary details.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 26, 1847.

OWING to difficulties encountered by the collector in one of the electoral divisions, and the period of the season (Christmas week), the amount of the collection of the rate since my last report has been but trifling.

The sum received, as shown by the Rate Receipt Abstract Book, was £124 12 11½ viz., from the following electoral divisions:—

	£.	s.	d.
Addergoole	0	17	6½
Castlebar	119	11	10½
Turlough	4	3	6½
	£124 12 11½

(100% of the above was previously received from the agent of the Earl of Lucan, but as the items were not then known, the amount could not be entered in the Rate Receipt Book).

Making the total sum now collected 1080 4 10½

Leaving uncollected in the following electoral divisions:—

Breafy	382	15	8½
Ballyhean	749	17	7½
Castlebar	1987	5	5½
Drum	749	5	0½
Islandeedy	475	10	0½
Strade	1453	9	5½
Turlough	692	15	4½
Total uncollected	£8866 18 0½

The collector states, that when he visited the electoral division of Islandeedy on Tuesday, for the purpose of making arrangements with the rate-payers, every disposition was shown to oppose the payment, and threats were held out to him. As a combination exists in this locality (a mountain district) against the payment of the rate, the assistance of the constabulary will be required to enforce the collection, and arrangements will be made with the resident magistrate accordingly.

Legal measures (distrain and seizure) are also in contemplation against other and more wealthy rate-payers, who have not yet complied with the collectors' demands, or signified their intention of meeting the charges against them.

Saturday being Christmas-day, the Vice-Guardians held their meeting yesterday (Monday), when I attended.

The following was the state of the house :—

The pressure for out-door relief is still increasing; the crowd of applicants in front of the workhouse yesterday was greater than on any former occasion; and the number of applicants on the books of the relieving officers was greater by about one-fourth than on the previous Board day.

The number of individuals entered on the Application and Report Books was 4007.

Of which, there were placed on the out-door Relief Lists 3440.

And, as the workhouse was crowded, 23 of the inmates were discharged and transferred to the out-door Relief Lists.

The total number now receiving out-door relief in the Union is 6821.

The following table shows the number of applicants yesterday, the number placed on the out-door Relief Lists, number discharged from workhouse, and total number now receiving out-door relief in each electoral division :—

All that portion of the peasantry who hold less than a quarter of an acre of land are pressing for out-door relief, and many of those who possess a larger quantity are adopting every expedient, handing over their land to their sons and relatives, and in some cases offering it to their landlords to make their claim good also. The relieving officers are doing their best to meet these attempted evasions of the law, arising in some cases perhaps from real destitution, though in many, doubtless, from the attraction of a food allowance obtainable out of the workhouse. The prospect of the labour test does not appear to have been sufficient to check applications from the latter class. The workhouse may be considered the only efficient check.

The cost of supplying so large a number of individuals is a serious consideration, and any diminution which can be made in the expense of the ration is most desirable. At present one pound of Indian meal is issued to each individual above nine years of age, and half a pound to those under nine; the cost of a pound of meal is little more than one penny. Rye bread, a higher standard of food, and which would have the advantage of being cooked food, could probably be issued at a cheaper rate, though some inconvenience might attend the details of the distribution. Rye bread is supplied to the schools in this Union, relieved by the British Association; and at Castlebar the cost of the bread is three farthings per pound, and I have made a contract in the electoral division of Addergoole, at the rate of seven-eighths of a penny per pound. I have brought the subject under the consideration of the Vice-Guardians, and should the arrangement be successful in the relief afforded to the schools, it will be applied to the out-door relief, under the Poor Law.

With regard to the work performed by the able-bodied receiving relief, I visited some of the electoral divisions during the week and found the system in operation. Yesterday I examined the books of the assistants, whose duty it is to oversee the gangs. Owing to the inclemency of the weather and other causes, the amount of work returned was not considerable. The names of 15 labourers were struck out of the Relief Lists for non-attendance at the work, they and their families to be deprived of their rations in consequence. It has been impressed on the assistants that a greater quantity of work must be executed, and that they will be held responsible for its performance.

REPLY to the above:—December 31, 1847.

THE Commissioners regard, with some apprehension, the small progress which has been made in the collection of the rates in the Union.

The present rate was put in course of collection on the 25th October last, and it appears from your report that only 1080*l.* 4*s.* 10½*d.* has been collected up to the 26th instant.

The Commissioners think it necessary to draw your special attention to this point, and they wish to be furnished with a list of the immediate lessors who have not yet paid their rates, stating their places of abode.

The Commissioners trust that by a regular and careful scrutiny of the circumstances in each case of application for relief, and the application of the workhouse test as far as practicable, as well as a more strict enforcement of the labour test, the Vice-Guardians will be enabled to detect cases of simulated distress.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 6, 1848.

IN consequence of the illness of the collector, his accounts were not examined on Friday last, the day appointed for that purpose. I saw the collector on Monday at the meeting of the Board of Vice-Guardians, and learned from him that the amount collected during the week was trifling. He stated that he had just returned from the electoral division of Addergoole, where he had gone by appointment to meet the ratepayers, and that many failed to attend—the amount paid to him being about 6*l.* He handed in a list which had been called for on the preceding Saturday, containing the names of the immediate lessors in the Union who have not paid their rate; and the Vice-Guardians directed their solicitor to write forthwith to each of the persons named in the list, requiring immediate payment, and stating that in default thereof the necessary steps to enforce the same would be adopted.

Measures have been in contemplation, as stated in my report of last week, for enforcing the collection, but the Vice-Guardians have been hitherto unwilling to have recourse to them, as many of the gentlemen, and the agents of others, had promised payment to the collector, and in some instances had even named the day; knowing also the doubtful state of the rate-books, which were unavoidably compiled from the old books, it was deemed only prudent that the time allowed for objections should be permitted to pass. The period for appeals having now expired (two only have been lodged, which will be tried immediately), the promised payments not having been made, and the sum lodged by the collector not being sufficient to meet the current expenses of the week, the Vice-Guardians feel that the time for energetic measures of a legal nature, has arrived; and with reference to the 2nd section of 6 and 7 Vict., c. 92, are desirous of obtaining the sanction of the Commissioners to proceed by action or suit in the case of those immediate lessors, in which the letter from the solicitor above alluded to, shall have proved unsuccessful in inducing the payment of the rate. It is desirable that the sanction should be afforded as soon as possible, as the writs, to be available for this term, should be returned on or before the 11th instant.

On Saturday and Monday last, I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians. Castlebar Union.

An increase of 3 in the number of fever cases, and 7 new cases of dysentery, during the week. An increase of 25 in the total number of sick in the hospital, as compared with last week's return. The prevailing epidemic, influenza, has also appeared, and a considerable number are sick in the house, in addition to those in the hospital.

The number of applicants for out-door relief was considerably less (by nearly one-half) than on the preceding Saturday. The removal of a portion of the female children (all who were able to leave the house) to the auxiliary workhouse, having created vacancies in the main establishment, the Vice-Guardians were enabled to apply the workhouse test to the cases before them. Many did not answer their names when called, and others refused to enter the house, so that about one-eighth only of the individuals entered on the application books, was admitted to relief.

Number of applicants, 1st and 3rd January	.	2469
Admitted to workhouse	.	110
Placed on the out-door relief list	.	173
Discharged from workhouse to out-door relief	.	7

The total number now receiving out-door relief is 6798, being 19 less than during the preceding week—the difference being occasioned by the number of families struck off, in consequence of the non-attendance or idleness of the able-bodied members, at the stone-breaking dépôt.

I examined the work-books of the assistant relieving officers on Saturday and Monday; the work done in some of the electoral divisions was satisfactory, in some instances the labourers had been idle, and in one, collusion had evidently existed between the assistant and the men. The former was dismissed at once by the Board, and told that his salary for the week would not be paid. The names of 61 labourers, who either did not attend or were late and idle at the work, were struck out of the lists, they and their families being thus deprived of rations. These measures will convince all parties of the necessity of performing their respective duties.

As the numerous cases on the relief lists, since the commencement of the out-door relief, were, in consequence of the pressure, necessarily disposed of rapidly, and frauds may have been committed and abuses arisen, the relieving officers have been directed to visit the house of every individual now receiving relief, and to obtain further particulars respecting each, with a view to a revision of every case on the books; and the Vice-Guardians will authorise no relief to any family unless the relieving officer certify that he has visited the house, and testify to their destitution, and the truth of the particulars respecting them.

Owing to the pressure of destitution, the districts now allotted to the relieving officers have been found too extensive. Each officer at present, has charge of two electoral divisions, containing an area of upwards of 40,000 acres, and a population of 12,000 persons. It is therefore, proposed to augment the number of these officers, assigning one to each division; and that such officers should be appointed temporarily with a weekly salary, so that should any prove inefficient, dismissal may at once follow.

The following table shows the districts at present allotted to each relieving officer, the area, population, &c.

Districts.	Electoral Divisions.	Population.		Area Statute Acres.

Two appeals only have been made against the rate in this Union, they are for small amounts; the cases will be tried immediately, and the solicitor of the Union has been directed to defend them.

I beg to add, that indisposition has been the cause of the delay in forwarding this report.

REPLY to the above:—January 8, 1848.

WITH reference to the proceedings proposed to be instituted against immediate lessors of property in the Union, for recovery of the poor-rate due by them, I am to state, that the Commissioners have addressed the Board of Guardians, in reference to the proposal to proceed in the superior courts against all immediate lessors, who will not pay the rates claimed, and for which application has been made by a solicitor.

The Commissioners, under the circumstances of urgency to which you refer, have conveyed their sanction to the Guardians' proceeding in the superior courts, where, on consideration of the Commissioners' letter of yesterday's date, they shall deem such course to be necessary.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS:—January 6, 1848.

IN reference to the 10th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, relating to applications for relief on the part of persons occupying more than a quarter of an acre of land; the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, request that you will be good enough to inform them how far cases to which the provisions of this section may apply, have come before you as Vice-Guardians, and that you will state the course which you have taken in regard to such cases, and to the surrender of the land where persons applying for relief were at the time occupying more than the quarter of an acre; you will also be so good as to state, whether difficulties have been experienced by you in acting on the 10th section, and how you have usually dealt with such difficulties.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 10, 1848.

WE have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 6th instant, and have to inform you, that it was our intention to have written to you this day, on the subject submitted to us therein.

In our admissions to out-door relief, individual cases have come before us where the parties avowed, that they had surrendered their land, but retained possession of their houses and offices. To all such we have refused assistance, conceiving such a surrender to be a mere evasion of the law, and have uniformly stated to them that they must make an absolute surrender of the whole before they can come, in a properly qualified condition, to receive relief. Again, that we have no desire to raise insuperable obstacles in the way of relief to the really destitute who may be holders of land, and, therefore, should not object, on their surrendering in toto to the proprietor, to allow them to get back into their houses as lodgers, or caretakers: but we ask, should not the evidence of a stamped document be produced, that such arrangements as we have stated were bonâ fide transactions? May not collusion exist between parties, the one to give, and the other to take, a nominal surrender, and having tided over the difficulties of the winter and spring, resume their former relations when better times came on. In cases of this description, the rate-payers would be called on to support men and their families who had but temporarily thrown off the character of landholders and rate-payers, and who would resume them again at their convenience.

We trust that, in reading the foregoing remarks, you will not suppose that we allude to the gentry or landed proprietors of this county, as capable of having recourse to any such subterfuge or evasion of the law—we have no such persons in our minds. In the very limited intercourse we have had with the gentry of Mayo, we have found them kind, humane, and affable, never shrinking from the tremendous abyss which appears to yawn before them; satisfied that the destitute should be supported, let the consequences to themselves be what they might. No; we allude to the petty middlemen, to whom it would be utter ruin to part their small tenantry, and who might be heedless of encountering public odium were their evasions discovered.

There is no doubt, that among the landed proprietors many are accepting surrenders from their small tenantry, and restoring them their houses with portions of land, within the stipulated quantity; but these are open, positive arrangements, and entered into for the double purpose of getting up the land, which the tenantry could not crop, and of placing them in a position to receive relief from the rates. In Ballinrobe, on our last Board-day, one of our relieving officers handed in a long list of names of persons who had tendered a surrender of their land to the proprietor, but we thought the affair too vague to take any notice of it. But another, and a well defined case, has arisen on Lord Oranmore's estate, and having received his Lordship's permission, we think it right to mention it to you. His Lordship stated to us, that on his Castlemagarrett estate he had 135 tenants paying under 10*l.* per annum rent; that he had made a review of their condition, and satisfied his mind that not more than 30 would be able to stand their ground, and crop their land; that he intended to take a surrender from all the remainder, and re-let them their houses and a statute quarter of land, and thus place them within reach of assistance from the poor-rates. Now there is no doubt this is a fair, open, manly movement, and if Lord Oranmore finds a difficulty in enabling his small tenantry to maintain their ground, the course he has adopted is open to him; but should this course be generally pursued, the numbers on the out-door relief lists will surpass those of last summer.

REPLY to the above:—January 13, 1848.

THE Commissioners are fully sensible of the difficulty of acting on the 10th section of the Act referred to; still, as that section is of extreme importance, the Commissioners desire to express their opinion upon it, for your information and guidance.

The Commissioners think that the words of the Act should be strictly adhered to, by which no one who occupies more than a quarter of a statute acre of land shall be deemed, and taken to be, a destitute person. Hence the Commissioners think that the bonâ fide cessation to occupy more than a quarter of a statute acre, is the only point which should be looked to by the Guardians in the construction of the clause; and that no additional unbending condition should be insisted on, such as a certificate of surrender from a landlord, or the cessation to occupy even a quarter of an acre, or any land of still less extent.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 11, 1848.

I ATTENDED meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians on Saturday and yesterday, and examined the collectors' accounts on the Friday preceding.

	£.	s.	d.
The amount of rate collected during the week was	163	9	2½
The total amount now obtained is	1,243	4	10½
Leaving uncollected	8,703	8	10

In consequence of the receipts not keeping pace with the expenditure, the Vice-Guardians found themselves yesterday in a difficult position: no funds being available to pay the contractors' bills, to two of whom about 440*l.* was due for provisions supplied for out-door relief; and as one of them is a creditor for articles furnished to the late Board, it was at one time doubtful whether provisions would be forthcoming to feed the thousands already on the relief list, and the crowd of applicants then outside anxiously awaiting their turn to be called before the Board. The Board having turned to me, I explained to the contractors the position in which matters were with regard to the rate; the small amount already collected; the certainty that the rest, or a considerable portion, would be forthcoming; that legal measures had been already put in train, and that all the powers placed in the hands of the Vice-Guardians, would be exerted to the utmost to enforce the payment of the rate. After some hesitation, the contractors consented to furnish a supply for another week. I also let it be distinctly understood, that no assistance would be afforded to the Union until it had been proved that its resources had been exhausted; and that no excuse whatever would be received for non-payment of rate.

With reference to the list of immediate lessors who have not paid the rate, alluded to in my report of last week, I now enclose a statement showing the places of residence of the gentlemen in question, and containing the observations of the collector on each case. A copy of the former list was handed over to the solicitor of the Union, who has written to most of the gentlemen concerned, and has received replies from some—there has not been time for all to have reached him. In the event of his application being unsuccessful, measures will be taken to enforce payment, either by suit in the superior courts under the sanction contained in your letter to the Board of Guardians, or by complaint and summons, whichever may be best suited to the circumstances of each case. The solicitor has been urged to make no delay.

In the mean time, the collector has prepared a list of numerous occupiers to whom he has made unsuccessful application for the rate, and they will be summoned to appear before the magistrates on next Thursday week, upon which occasion the resident magistrate has promised to attend; and that gentleman accompanies the collector to-morrow to the electoral divisions of Balla and Drum, to enforce the collection by seizing the property of certain other wealthy rate-payers who have taken no notice of the collectors' applications. To avoid all risk of opposition, a body of constabulary and a party of infantry, with a few dragoons, will be in attendance.

These measures will break the spell of passive resistance, and bring in the rates more rapidly.

The two appeals against the rate have been arranged without a trial before the assistant barrister, and the rate now stands on sure grounds. I am satisfied that a great portion can be collected—though doubtless its pressure will, in some cases, be severely felt.

The number of applicants for relief is still very great.

The number placed on the relief list on Saturday and Monday was 1560.

The number now receiving out-door relief is 8401.

That the whole of these are actually in a starving condition may, I think, be doubted; and although the deep-rooted aversion of the peasantry to the workhouse, causing them almost to starve before they will enter it, will, in some measure, lessen the force of the following comparative statement, still the facts are sufficiently marked to give a colour to the supposition.

On Saturday when the Application and Report Books of six electoral divisions, viz., Addergoole, Islandeady, Balla, Drum, Castlebar, and Breaffy—were under consideration, the number passed for out-door relief was 261: whilst on Monday 1299 were passed in the four remaining divisions, viz., Bellyhean, Ballintobber, Strade, and Turlough. On the first day there were vacancies in the workhouse by which the destitution could be tested; and numbers refused to enter the house; and on Monday there were no vacancies. As the parties appeared with their families, and the relieving officers asserted their destitution, the Vice-Guardians had no alternative but to afford out-door relief.

Should the Commissioners approve of the proposition to appoint an additional number of relieving officers, I shall suggest to the Vice-Guardians to employ them at first in making further and strict inquiries respecting the parties now on the relief lists, in the hope that some reduction in the number may be made. The pressure on the relieving officer at present, is very great.

The labour-test is applied as closely as possible, to the able-bodied; 31 men were struck off the lists for non-attendance at the work, or for idleness during the week; their families thereby losing their rations.

The relief afforded by the British Association to the children attending the schools in the Union, is now extensively in operation. 25 schools obtain relief, and 3297 received rations of rye-bread; and in some of the schools broth also, during the last week. The bread, when baked, costs three farthings per pound, and the broth twopence per gallon.

Dated at Castlebar, the 10th day of January, 1848.

REPLY to the foregoing :—January 17, 1848.

Castlebar Union.

THE Commissioners have addressed the Vice-Guardians on the subject of the appointment of additional relieving officers in the Union.

I am, at the same time, to state, that the Commissioners approve of your suggestion as to the duty upon which the relieving officers should first be employed.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 19, 1848.

ON Friday I examined the Collector's Books and Accounts, but the collector not being present to state the amount of lodgments, they could not then be closed. I subsequently saw the collector, who informed me that about 400*l.* had been collected during the week; this is the largest sum yet obtained in any weekly period. Scarcely sufficient time has, however, yet elapsed to show the full effect of the measures taken for enforcing the collection.

On Wednesday the collector proceeded to the electoral division of Balla, accompanied by the resident magistrate, and parties of constabulary, infantry, and dragoons, for the purpose of distraining the lands of several defaulting rate-payers. Some of the parties paid, but it was found necessary to bring to Castlebar 18 head of cattle, which were subsequently released upon payment by the proprietors of the demands made upon them.

Numerous individuals, in the electoral division of Castlebar, have been summoned to appear before the magistrates on Thursday, to answer for non-payment of rates, upon which occasion the resident magistrate will attend; and the collector will distrain other parties as soon as arrangements can be made with the resident magistrate.

The solicitor of the Union having been absent attending the sessions in various parts of the county, I have not had an opportunity of ascertaining from him the result of his applications to the parties included in the list of immediate lessors placed in his hands. I understand from the collector that some of them have paid the rate, and others have named a day of settlement. I hope to see the solicitor on Thursday upon this subject.

On Saturday and Monday I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians. Mr. Bourke, Poor Law Inspector, was present on the former day.

The following was the state of the workhouse :—

Men	146
Women	224
Boys under 15	192
Girls	78
Infants	27
Total	667

The pressure for out-door relief still continues.

The number on the Application and Report Books, amounted to nearly	4,000
Of which there were admitted to the workhouse	36
Placed on out-door relief lists	3,221
The total number now receiving out-door relief is	11,358

Castlebar Union. being upwards of one-sixth of the population of the Union, according to the Census of 1841.

There can be little doubt of the fact, that the whole of these persons are not in a starving condition; the marked result, alluded to in my former reports, of the workhouse test, individual cases of imposition which have come to my knowledge, the assertion of the poor themselves, (from whom, however, I can never obtain the names of the parties, as they will not turn "informers," as they call it), and the statement of persons of undoubted veracity, confirm this. Indeed the majority of the lower orders seem to have lost all sense of self-respect, and the honest pride of independence, and they are now as eager to obtain a share of the rations from the Poor Law Guardians as they were importunate for food and work during the late measures of Government relief.

With so much of shameless imposition is mixed up, at the same time, the dire misery and destitution; the most harrowing scenes are witnessed in front of the workhouse, every Board-day. Crowds of squalid, wretched creatures, wrapped in rags, the covering probably just snatched from the bed of fever, rendering the air foetid with the poisonous emanations of disease, side by side with the man, who, not destitute, asserts his claim to relief with as much energy as his starving neighbour.

The difficulties arising from this state of feeling are such, that the truth is almost a sealed book to the relieving officers, only to be arrived at after repeated inquiries and corroborative evidence; and the pressure upon them is so great, that it is in some cases impracticable altogether. They assert that they visit the houses, but even here they are baffled. The relieving officer in this town has resigned, and only acts until another is appointed. He is followed by a crowd through the streets, and when he unexpectedly visits a house to make inquiry, his presence is known in a moment, and he is at once surrounded by a clamorous crowd, thus setting all his attempts at investigation at defiance.

With such a feeling prevailing so universally amongst the lower classes, the only course appears to be, to meet the pressure by calling in the aid of the rate-payers and all well-disposed persons; not in the selection of persons for relief, but to bring their opinion to bear upon the mass, by inducing them to afford information of the abuses and impositions existing; with a view to this information being used by the Vice-Guardians in revising and checking the relief lists. I have, therefore, suggested to the Chairman of the Board, who, at once, adopted the proposal to post up in the most conspicuous places in each electoral division, lists of the persons now receiving out-door relief, showing their places of residence, number in family, and number of rations issued daily. Also to publish these lists in the local papers, accompanied by an appeal to the magistrates, rate-payers, and all well-disposed persons; earnestly requesting them, for their own sakes, to afford the Vice-Guardians all the information in their power regarding any cases which may come under their observation, of persons who have improperly obtained relief, and to transmit such information (embodied in a form also to be published) to the clerk of the Union. These lists to be published periodically.

The dread of publicity, will, it is to be hoped, then deter the non-destitute from making applications for relief; and the lists of persons receiving out-door relief, thus in the possession of the rate-payers, will at once enable them to place a finger upon an abuse, and notify it to the Board of Guardians for correction. A stimulus will, moreover, be given to the relieving officers.

I need not inform the Commissioners of the unceasing anxiety of the Board of Vice-Guardians, to administer this relief in the spirit of the law, and I have made this statement solely, to put the Commissioners in possession of the many difficulties attending its execution, and of the efforts made to meet and overcome them.

REPLY to the above:—January 22, 1848.

As regards your suggestions to have the names of the persons in the receipt of out-door relief posted up throughout the several electoral divisions, and published in the local papers, with a view to prevent imposition, the Commissioners recommend that the lists of persons receiving relief as paupers should be only posted, as publication in the newspapers would be attended with very great expense, in lieu of which it would appear sufficient to publish the proposed appeal of the Vice-Guardians to the magistrates, clergy, and rate-payers, referring to the posted lists, copies of which might, with advantage, be given to the relieving officers for distribution.

Castlebar Union.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 23, 1848.

I BEG to transmit the accompanying statement, showing the weekly expenditure for in-door and out-door relief in the Castlebar Union, the amount of liabilities, &c., by which it will appear that the cost of the maintenance of the inmates of the workhouse, and salaries of officers, amounts to 93*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.*; the value of provisions for out-door relief, 323*l.* 15*s.* 7½*d.*; and that the total weekly expenditure amounts to 416*l.* 19*s.* 11½*d.*

The amount of rate struck in October last was 9947*l.* 2*s.* 11*d.*

Supposing that 9000*l.* will be collected, which I fear is beyond the mark, and deducting 1125*l.* for collectors' fees, the sum of 7875*l.* becomes available; of this however, 1600*l.* has been already expended, leaving 6275*l.*

The liabilities of the Union incurred by the late Board of Guardians, as far as can be ascertained, amount to 3966*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.*, one-half of which, viz., 1983*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*, the Vice-Guardians have agreed to pay out of this rate.

The liabilities since incurred, amount to 1445*l.* 14*s.* 11*d.*, which two sums deducted from 6275*l.*, leave only 2945*l.* 16*s.* 2*d.* actually available to meet the current expenses of the Union, a sum which (even supposing the numbers on the out-door relief lists to remain stationary, the reverse of what may be expected) would not suffice for the outgoings of two months; and this with rates in course of collection, varying from 3*s.* 1½*d.* in the pound in some electoral divisions, to 4*s.* 7*d.* and 5*s.* in others.

Notwithstanding that every exertion is made to collect the rate, the highest amount yet obtained in one week was 400*l.*, and that on only one occasion; and as the Vice-Guardians are bound to reserve 50 per cent. of the rate as collected, to pay off the liabilities incurred under the former Board; and the other arrears, principally for provisions, being of a pressing nature, the balance of the weekly lodgments will do little more than liquidate the expense of salaries and maintenance of the inmates of the workhouse, particularly as the cost of in-door relief will be augmented, when the completion of the fittings in the auxiliary workhouse will render that building available for more extended accommodation, leaving the amount of out-door relief (now 323*l.* per week, with a certainty of its increasing), totally unprovided for.

Under these circumstances, I feel that the time has arrived for me to bring the condition of this Union under your notice, and to certify that the Board of Vice-Guardians having made every effort in working out their arrangements, the extent of the distress really exceeds all their powers duly and fully exerted. I therefore beg to recommend the case of the Union to your favourable consideration, in order that an appeal may be made to the British Association in its behalf.

Castlebar, January 23, 1848.

R. T. FARREN, Captain 47th Regiment,
Temporary Poor Law Inspector.

REPLY to the above:—January 27, 1848.

THE Commissioners have made application to Count Strzelecki for an advance of 300*l.* for this purpose.

I am at the same time to state, that the Commissioners are desirous of being informed whether you are able to certify that the rate-payers of the Union will not be able to meet their liabilities, and that they are making such exertion, as can reasonably be expected from them.

The Commissioners also request that, you will be so good as to report specially, on the following points:—

1st. What is the sum total of the poor rates paid in the Castlebar Union since the Vice-Guardians were appointed, and to how many shillings in the pound on the net annual value does it amount?

2nd. What is the obstacle to the rate being collected? Is it that there is negligence or dishonesty in collectors or rate-payers? Is it that the crops have failed? Are the means of the proprietors and occupiers exhausted, or likely soon to be exhausted, and if so, how is this proved?

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain FARREN:—January 26, 1848.

THE Commissioners are desirous of receiving from you, a detailed report as to the arrangements for the employment of paupers receiving out-door relief in the Castlebar Union, with a statement of the numbers so employed, the amount of labour exacted from each, the rate of remuneration to each, and the kind of work (if any) in addition to stone-breaking, on which such paupers are employed.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 26, 1848.

I REGRET that I cannot report that the collection of the rate is progressing favourably. On Friday, I examined the collector's books and accounts, and found that the amount collected during the week, as entered in the Rate Receipt Abstract Books, was

£115 18 6½
That the total sum now collected is 1,599 9 11
And that the amount remaining uncollected is 8,347 13 0

In my last report I stated that the collector had summoned numerous individuals to appear before the magistrates to answer for non-payment of the rate, and that the cases would be heard on the ensuing Thursday. Upon that day, it appears, the Court was closed at an unusually early hour, before the arrival of the resident magistrate, who, however, arranged that a special meeting should be held on Monday for the purpose. Accordingly, on that day the resident magistrate and two other magistrates attended. Deeming it advisable that support should be given to the collector, the chairman of the Board of Vice-Guardians and myself were also present. After disposing of one case, it was discovered that no signature was attached to the block notices produced in Court, and that the collector had not himself signed those served on the individuals summoned. The solicitor of the Union was therefore obliged to withdraw all the cases (which were very numerous) amidst the delight of the whole Court. Fresh notices must therefore be served, and delay thereby occasioned.

This unbusiness-like proceeding in so simple a matter will show the Commissioners the difficulties which the Vice-Guardians have to contend with here. The collector, who is also collector of the baronial cess, does not appear to have sufficient clerical assistance in his office. On inquiring from the solicitor of the Union the result of his proceedings in the cases of the immediate lessors who have not paid their rates, he stated that in almost every instance his communications have been met by an application for a detailed statement of the items of rate demanded from them, and that delay is experienced in the collector's office in furnishing those detailed accounts. The collector, in the first instance, furnished to the parties an account, showing the amount due for each townland, not specifying the separate items in the rate book.

The collector has been urged to use despatch in this matter. A communication to him from the Commissioners would be of service.

Some of the lessors included in the list of defaulters have since paid the rates. Writs have been obtained by the solicitor for service on others. The request for a detailed statement of account appearing only reasonable, proceedings in cases of such application have been stayed, but will be resumed in the event of the demands remaining unpaid after the receipt of such accounts.

Castlebar Union.

Whilst on the subject of the rate it should be stated that the necessity of a revision of the rate books before a new rate is struck, becomes more manifest every day. The distribution of the rating, originally very defective, and augmented by the changes which have since taken place, is a source of constant complaint on the part of the rate-payers, and embarrassment to the Board of Guardians. The latter are quite convinced of its necessity. The almost impossibility of obtaining a properly qualified unprejudiced person for the office is the great obstacle in the way of its accomplishment.

On Saturday and Monday, I attended meetings of the Board of Vice-Guardians. The pressure for relief was not so great as at the meetings of the preceding week.

The number of applicants was	1741
(Being about one-half that of the preceding week.)
Of which there were admitted to the workhouse	32
Placed on the out-door relief lists	1424
Some individuals were also discharged from the workhouse to out-door relief, to the number of	21
The total number now receiving out-door relief is	12,450

The lists of persons receiving out-door relief in four electoral divisions have been received from the relieving officers, and ordered to be printed, for posting in the electoral divisions, and for distribution amongst the rate-payers. The lists for the remaining divisions will be given in on the next Board day. This measure, it is hoped, will have a good effect.

As it would appear from a communication received by the Vice-Guardians, that an impression exists on the part of the Commissioners that the labour test is not carried out in a sufficiently stringent manner in this Union, I think it right to mention that the able-bodied are compelled, except in cases of sickness, to attend at the depôts fixed for stone-breaking in each electoral division, and a task of work is exacted daily from each. The overseers have each a book in which every labourer's name is entered, and his absence or presence recorded daily; also the quantity of stone broken by each during the week. These books are produced and examined every Board day; and a return giving the total number of days and work executed by each gang, is also handed in and retained by the clerk of the Union. In the event of the absence or idleness of any labourer, his name is struck out of the relief list, and himself and family lose their rations. As the work performed will be tested by the measurement of the county surveyor's assistant, who will purchase a portion of the stone for some of the roads—and an example having already been made by the dismissal of one of the overseers who had entered into collusion with the labourers—the depôt, moreover, being inspected by myself as frequently as my duties will permit, these officers, in the event of a dereliction of duty, cannot escape; they do therefore report in their books the absence or illness of the labourers, and the result has been that 261 men, with their families—from 1300 to 1500 individuals—have been struck out of the relief lists for this cause, and thereby lost their rations.

Without in any way attempting to controvert the wishes of the Commissioners, whose recommendation upon the subject of a daily issue of provisions to the able-bodied in return for a daily task of work performed, must be carried out, and to effect which every assistance in my power shall be afforded to the Vice-Guardians, I venture, from the experience I had an opportunity of acquiring in this county during the last fifteen months, to submit that collusion between the overseer and labourer may be dreaded, when the latter knows that the daily ticket in the possession of the overseer will procure him his rations, and every process of intimidation will be resorted to on his part to oblige the overseer to issue the same; whereas, at present the labourer feels that it is the Vice-Guardians who strike him off the list, and that he has no alternative but to obey. It is difficult to explain this feeling, but those acquainted with this district will readily admit its existence.

I visited the workhouse frequently during the week, in order to give assistance and advice to the newly-appointed master and matron, whose proceedings lead me to imagine they will become useful and valuable officers.

REPLY to the foregoing:—January 31, 1848.

Castlebar Union.

I AM to express the great regret of the Commissioners, at the omission of the collector of poor-rate to sign his name to the notices served on the rate-payers, against whom proceedings had been taken for non-payment of the poor-rate.

The notices should have been signed by the collector, otherwise the cases could not be proceeded with. The particulars of the rate should likewise be furnished always to the immediate lessors in the first instance.

With reference to the appointment of a revisor of valuation, the Commissioners will endeavour to obtain the services of some competent individual in Dublin, and will communicate on the subject with the Vice-Guardians at an early opportunity.

As regards the employment of the persons receiving out-door relief in the Union, I am to state, that if on a fair trial of the system recommended by the Commissioners, the consequences result which you anticipate in your report, the Commissioners will not object to the Vice-Guardians returning to the old system; but the Commissioners are convinced that the plan which they suggest is founded on correct principles, and that it should not be lightly departed from.

WE have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th instant, No. 82, referring to our having omitted to furnish a weekly report relative to the collection of the rates in the Union under our charge.

We regret exceedingly that you should have had to reproach us on this subject, and hope that the cause will not occur in future.

The collection for the week ending the 27th January, amounts to 41*l.* 4*s.* 2½*d.* only. This has been caused by the proceedings in the Petty Sessions Court at Castlebar having been quashed by the informality of the notices served by the collector on the parties summoned; and also, in one of the rural districts, in consequence of the Court there having ruled that it was necessary for the clerk of the Union to be present to prove the signature of the chairman to the warrant in the collector's book; and, in addition, no results have as yet been produced by the proceedings instituted by our solicitor in the superior courts against some of the large defaulting ratepayers. We are, however, aware that since the books were officially made up by the collector, upwards of 200*l.* have been lodged, which of course will be included in our next week's report.

REPLY to the above:—February 4, 1848.

I AM to request that you will inform the Commissioners whether the magistrates in the Petty Sessions Court in one of the rural districts of the Union to which you advert, of themselves called for evidence of the signatures to the warrants of the collector, or did so at the suggestion or desire of the defendant: I am also to request that the Commissioners may be informed whether the magistrates that adjudicated in both of the cases mentioned in your report had themselves paid the rates charged against them.

Captain FARREN to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 2, 1848.

I REGRET that I cannot report an improvement in the progress of the collection of the rate.

	£.	s.	d.
The sum obtained during the week, as shown by the Rate Abstract Books, examined on Saturday, (the books not being forthcoming on Friday, the appointed day,) was only	41	4	2½
The total amount now collected is	1640	14	1½
Leaving uncollected	8306	8	9½

The temporary triumph obtained by the parties summoned for non-payment of rate (detailed in my last report) in the withdrawal of the cases on Monday week last, in consequence of an informality in the notices, has increased the difficulties of the collection, and I fear deepened the feeling too generally prevailing of "paying only upon compulsion." I regret also to state that up to Monday last the collector had not repaired the error which overthrew the proceedings in question, fresh notices not having been served up to that day.

Castlebar Union.

These delays and omissions on the part of the collector are of moment, at a time when large sums are due to contractors and others for provisions, and an increasing amount of destitution to be provided for.

The non-preparation of the accounts in detail of the immediate lessors whose cases were handed over to the solicitor of the Union, having been a subject of difficulty with that officer, the collector was urged to use despatch, and on Saturday he produced the greater part of the accounts, and stated that he would compare them with the rate-books at once and hand them over to the solicitor, and that the remainder, about eight, would be drawn up immediately.

With regard to the cases in the hands of the solicitor, I enclose a statement (marked A), showing the progress made, the solicitor's observations being given in each case, by which it appears that the sum of 306*l.* only has yet been paid; that

In 6 cases a promise of payment has been made;

2 cases proceedings have been commenced;

4 cases writs have been issued;

1 case about to be sued;

1 case to be sued;

1 case proceedings about to commence;

7 cases receivers on property to be applied to, and where no funds in hand, application to be made to Master of the Rolls for order for payment;

1 case estate in hands of trustees for benefit of creditors;

1 case insolvent;

3 cases applied to, and no answer;

7 cases address not known;

2 cases not applied to.

The detailed accounts handed over to the solicitor by the collector will enable him to bring matters in many of the foregoing cases to an issue; and in cases where payment is not made after receipt of the accounts, proceedings will be instituted.

It appears by another statement (marked B.) which I enclose, that the collector attended at the Petty Sessions at Ballyvany on the 28th instant, and obtained 29 decrees against parties in the electoral divisions of Strade and Turlough, who were summoned for non-payment of the rate.

The collector has been urged to put these decrees in force without delay, and the necessity of completing and issuing fresh notices in lieu of the defective ones before alluded to, has also been impressed upon him.

It is hoped that by these means the collection will be enforced; but as passive resistance is encountered at every step, time will necessarily be consumed in overcoming that resistance by the legal processes suited to each case.

In the meantime, whilst these difficulties occur in the collection of the rate, the pressure of destitution still continues.

The number of applicants on the books of the relieving officers, when examined on the Board days of Saturday and Monday, amounted to	2,113
Of which there were admitted to workhouse	13
Placed on out-door relief lists	1,416
There were also discharged from the workhouse to out-door relief	3
The total number now receiving out-door relief is	13,114

Although a considerable number of the able-bodied receiving out-door relief have been struck out of the lists for idleness or non-attendance at the work depôts, little effect seems to have been made in diminishing the amount of applications for relief.

I visited these depôts in some of the electoral divisions during the week, and at one—that of Donamona, in the electoral division of Drum—found a considerable number of the men absent. On questioning the overseer, he stated "they had completed their tasks;" but on examining the heaps of broken stone, it did not appear that such was the case; moreover, his written instructions stated that the labourers must attend at work at eight in the morning, and remain until four in the afternoon, allowing one hour for meals. I took his book and called the roll, when at least 50 men were found absent. I ordered their names to be handed to the relieving officer, in order that their rations might be stopped, and brought the case before the Vice-Guardians on Saturday, when the overseer was dismissed. It is exceedingly difficult to obtain overseers who will do their duty honestly and fearlessly. This is the second instance of an overseer being dismissed for neglect of duty and collusion with the labourers.

The following is the Labour Return for the last week :—

Electoral Divisions.	No. in Gangs.	Total Days' Work.	No. of Boxes of Stone Broken.	No. of Labourers Struck off.	Observations.
Addergoole . .	114	605½	445½	2	Overseer cautioned and labourers, that if a larger task was not performed in future, names should be struck out, rations stopped, and overseer dismissed.
Balla	68	340	272	2
Ballintubber . .	117	437	211	2
Ballyhean . . .	150	365	101	17
Breafty	67	269½	146	2	Ditto ditto ditto.
Castlebar . . .	77	318½	..	..	Employed in workhouse grounds, quarry having been refused by owner.
Drum	150	761½	1,005½	54	Overseer dismissed.
Islandeedy . . .	65	256	204½	8
Strade	123	489	632	18
Turlough	57	227	212	35
	988	4,087½	3,289½	140

This return only shows the quantity of stone broken; portions of the men were employed in quarrying the stone and preparing it for the breakers. The weather was very unfavourable.

On the examination of the books, 140 labourers were struck off for idleness or absence from the work, by which they and their families, from 700 to 800 individuals, lost their rations.

The Vice-Guardians have caused notices to be circulated, calling upon them to submit tenders for the supply of rye-bread in the electoral divisions for the able-bodied paupers receiving out-door relief, and next week I trust arrangements will have been made for issuing daily rations of that description of food to the able-bodied in return for the daily task of work performed.

I am happy to state that the drainage of the Saleen lakes near Castlebar, on the property of the Earl of Lucan, has been commenced, and will afford employment to a considerable number of men. His Lordship affords employment to upwards of 300 men in this Union, in addition to the above, and I understand has also applied for advances for other works, under the Land Improvement Bill.

There is ample room in this Union for the employment of the able-bodied poor in productive and remunerative works; the area of the Union contains 155,524 acres, and the population amounts to 61,083 (including the town of Castlebar), thus giving upwards of 2½ acres to each individual. There are extensive tracts of mountain land in various parts of the Union, crying aloud, if I may use the term, for reclamation—abounding with limestone gravel, and very little depth of bog on the surface, in many instances even now affording rough pasture; many acres of rich bottom land are annually covered with the winter floods, which might, to a considerable extent, be prevented, by deepening the rivers. Surface drainage is most defective, and the cultivation of the land is carried on in the rudest manner.

The inducements, however, held out by the Land Improvement and other Acts, have, with very little exception, not been taken advantage of. Indeed there are but few proprietors who are in a position to do so. Many of the estates in the Union are under the Court of Chancery, and many are weighed down with debts and difficulties; other proprietors do not reside in the Union, so that the whole burden of the destitution is thrown upon the poor-rates.

The preparation of the land for future crops is not as satisfactory as might be hoped; the visit of one of the lecturers from the Royal Agricultural Society would be of much service at the present time, as the small holders are much in need of advice and instruction in agricultural matters.

REPLY to the above:—February 4, 1848.

THERE appears reason to apprehend that the collector of poor rate is wanting in zeal. The omission to sign his notices, and his permitting a week to elapse without serving fresh notices, also his delay in supplying information necessary for the solicitor's proceedings against immediate lessors, manifest a very serious want of exertion.

The Commissioners request that the collector may be urged on decisively to a more energetic discharge of his duties.

As it is observed that in several cases, the present residence of the immediate lessors cannot be ascertained, and that in others the estates are in charge of receivers who plead want of funds, the Commissioners recommend that in all such cases notice should be served on the occupiers, under the 3rd section of the Act 6 and 7 Vic., c. 92, at the proper time, as auxiliary means of recovering the rate.

As regards the number of labourers who were absent from work, when you visited the dépôt in the Donamona electoral division, the Commissioners recommend that the provisions of the 100th section should be enforced against the overseer, in which case the form of complaint 43, on page 489 of Compendium of Poor Law Acts, may be adapted to the circumstances.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS:—February 3, 1848.

WE have the honour to transmit, for your inspection, a bundle of documents purporting to be certificates of surrender granted by the bailiff of Sir Samuel O'Malley to some of his tenants on Clare Island. We have good reason to believe, through the evidence of our relieving officer, that though the person who signs the papers is the acknowledged bailiff of the estate, he has no power or authority for taking surrenders, and that the proceeding is entirely one of deception and fraud, to enable the parties to receive the out-door relief; that no transfer whatever has taken place, and the parties mentioned in the papers are, and were at the moment, living in their houses, in possession and occupation of their land; but the relieving officer says—and we consider him deserving of our confidence—that should we refuse assistance to those people they must die of starvation; and the question immediately arises, as we must commit one of two evils, is it not best to err on the side of humanity. We have therefore directed the relieving officer to give the people provisional relief until further orders.

We beg to remark that those poor people are far removed from the rest of the community; shut up in their wild and desolate island, they have no opportunity of wandering off to other localities in search of food or shelter. There is no room in the workhouse to receive them; there they are, and there they must remain; and if we deny them food, they perish: still it is to be feared that a huge precedent like this will open the door in other places for fearful fraud. The chairman has written to Sir S. O'Malley to inquire if the bailiff has any authority from him to accept surrenders, and if those certified for are bonâ fide transactions.

REPLY to the above:—February 5, 1848.

I AM directed to state, that as far as the Commissioners are able to form an opinion, the documents accompanying your communication (which are returned herewith) seem to render it prima facie probable that the individuals to whom they refer have ceased to occupy the land to which the documents respectively refer.

3 M

The Commissioners desire at the same time to state, that according to their view of the 10th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act, it is merely the occupation or non-occupation of a quarter of an acre of land which is made a criterion of destitution, provided that an applicant for relief may otherwise be deemed entitled to it.

Hence the Guardians, as far as that clause is concerned, are warranted in relieving anybody who is not in such occupation; and they are not bound to investigate title at all, or to ascertain whether the tenant's interest has been legally determined by surrender or otherwise.

GALWAY UNION.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 18, 1847.

At the weekly meeting of the Board of Guardians yesterday, there were 1202 paupers in the house, 149 applicants, but 50 only could be admitted; consequently 99 persons in a state of destitution were left unprovided for at the gates, which, of itself, at once shows the distressed state of the Union generally.

The surgeon reported that 13 additional cases of fever had appeared during the week, which he attributed to the imprudent removal of blankets that had been used in the fever hospital, to the body of the house, without being previously washed, thus communicating the disease to those who unfortunately used them; and he forbade the admission of more than 1250 paupers until Straw Lodge was prepared to receive the hospital patients, of which there were 103 in the house.

The Guardians are proceeding with the purchase of materials for sheeting, and clothing for the boys and female paupers. The usual notice of a rate having been struck, has been posted. The warrants were not ready for signature yesterday; but on Wednesday next they will be ready to proceed with the collection.

REPLY to the above :—November 19, 1847.

THE Commissioners are desirous of being informed of the proceedings which have taken place at the meeting of the Guardians on the 17th instant, with respect to the appointment of relieving officers.

The Guardians would have been enabled to make room in the workhouse for relief of the able-bodied, and for testing the destitution of applicants for relief, if they had made arrangements to relieve the classes specified in the 1st section of the Extension Act, out of the workhouse; and the Commissioners request that you will have the goodness to press this point upon the consideration of the Guardians.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 22, 1847.

IN obedience to your letter of the 19th instant, received yesterday, I acquaint you that the appointment of relieving officers was not touched upon at the meeting of guardians on the 17th instant, in consequence of the Commissioners' letter of the 16th instant not reaching me till the 18th instant. It cannot therefore, now be acted upon until Wednesday next.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 21, 1847.

HAVING received the enclosed copy of a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Killanin Fever Committee, from Andrew W. Blake, Esq., J.P., and D.L., relative to the prevalent distress on the sea coast of that extensive division, it becomes my duty to lay the same before you, observing that general distress is daily increasing throughout this Union.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. HUTCHINSON, Secretary to the Board of Health (Temporary Fever Hospital Committee), to Captain HELLARD :—November 18, 1847.

I AM directed by the Committee of the Killanin Board of Health, to forward to you for your consideration and assistance, the following resolution passed by them this day :—"Resolved that we behold with the utmost sorrow and dismay, the fearful return of famine and disease to this destitute district, visiting in their destructive career, not only their former surviving victims, but hundreds besides, who had hitherto escaped their dreadful influence.

"No language can express, and the mind can scarce conceive, the awful privations which more than half our population are now calmly and patiently enduring; one well-known but melancholy fact will sufficiently describe their sad condition; that is, that we are fully assured, that many families are at this moment endeavouring to prolong a miserable existence, on one meal a-day of turnips alone, plundered sometimes at the risk of their lives, from the gardens of their more fortunate neighbours. Human life cannot be long sustained by such precarious and deplorable subsistence. The law of the land will step forth to suppress the law of nature, and in the awful antagonism, both life and property must be placed in imminent danger. To meet so dire a calamity and pressure, by all the means in our power, and to preserve the lives of our truly patient, peaceful, and heavily afflicted fellow creatures, we hereby pledge ourselves to contribute as far as our circumstances will permit, to the timely relief of the starving poor of our district, with the hope and confidence that the Government will promptly and mercifully aid our zealous but feeble efforts.

"We therefore propose, this day, to pay to our very zealous, most benevolent and efficient chairman, Andrew W. Blake, Esq., our individual subscriptions, and request our secretary to forward a copy of this our resolution, to all persons connected by property, or otherwise, with this district, for the purpose of soliciting their charitable assistance, and likewise to Captain Hellard, R.N., the inspecting officer of this Union, with a view of his obtaining some aid from the Government, or from any other source under his direction and control.

"A. W. BLAKE, Esq., Chairman.
 Rev. JAMES MACREADY.
 Rev. FRANCIS KENNELLY, P.P.
 Rev. JOHN M'CULLOUGH, P.P."

REPLY to the above:—November 23, 1847.

THE Commissioners recommend you to communicate with Count Strzelecki, after inquiry into the actual circumstances of the poor in the district referred to.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 1, 1847.

REFERRING to the letter of the 23rd ultimo, I acquaint you that after making inquiry, as therein directed, I yesterday made my report to Count Strzelecki, a copy of which is herewith forwarded for the information of the Commissioners.

ENCLOSURE.

Captain HELLARD to Count STRZELECKI:—November 30, 1847.

HAVING been directed by letter of the 23rd instant, to report upon the accompanying resolution of the Killanur Board of Health, I acquaint you, that upon inquiry along that line of coast, more particularly in the neighbourhood of Spiddal, I found a great deal of distress, there being, I may say, little or no work for the peasantry in that locality, consequently poverty must exist. On the estate of Tully, nine miles west of Spiddal, I was informed by James Blake, Esq., J. P., that he had employment for the tenantry, at which they could earn from 8d. to 9d. per day, but that they positively refused to work, "stating that they were waiting for the public roads to be commenced," which was fully corroborated by Patrick M'Nalty, steward on the estate, who also stated that the men were then idle at home, and would not hear of coming to work, although frequently requested by him to do so; therefore should any assistance be at this moment rendered the people at Spiddal, except at their schools, which will very much relieve them, I fear it would act as an inducement to keep the idlers before alluded to from profitable occupation, and encourage them to go on refusing employment from their landlord. I, however, took the opportunity of assuring the steward that Public Works would not be again resumed, and desired he would make that assertion as public as he could.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 25, 1847.

THERE were in the Union workhouse yesterday 1190 paupers; 60 were admitted, and 140 unfortunate destitute persons left at the gates unprovided for; thus again proving, in an increased ratio, the absolute necessity of additional accommodation.

The Guardians in future will meet at 11 o'clock, in order that the two first hours be entirely set apart for the examination and admission of paupers.

The payment of the cheque, signed some time since in favour of Mr. Manghan for 1100*l.*, has been stopped.

A Committee has been directed to immediately inspect premises for additional accommodation at Dangan; and a special meeting of the Guardians will take place on Saturday next to hear their report, decide upon the appointment of relieving officers, and consider a resolution brought forward by Lord Wallscourt, and seconded by Nicholas Lynch, Esq., for the appointment of paid Guardians to conduct the duties of the Union.

Mr. Thomas J. Reed was appointed an assistant clerk, at a salary of 40*l.* per annum.

Contracts for the supply of provisions and medicine, from the 25th instant to the 25th March, were entered into.

Warrants for collecting the rate were signed, and the collectors directed to proceed forthwith in the execution of their important duty.

In making this report I regret to state, that fever is on the increase, and will, I fear, progress, unless the Guardians exert themselves to carry out the Poor Law, generally. I have at every meeting reminded them of the state of the house, and the necessity of thinning it of the aged, widows, and children, as the press for admission is daily increasing; and I hope, from the steps taken yesterday, that they now see the propriety of using all their energy to meet the pressing distress of this locality.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 27, 1847.

AN adjourned meeting of the Board of Guardians took place this day, when the Committee appointed to inspect premises at Dangan and other places reported, that they considered a store belonging to Mr. John Gunning, on Wood Quay, afforded the best accommodation they could find in the neighbourhood, for either the boys or girls; which was accordingly hired for one year, at a rent of 60*l.*

It was also ordered, that contracts should be entered into for the supply of bedding by public advertisement.

The question of appointing relieving officers, as well as Lord Wallscourt's motion, will be considered on Wednesday.

Since the meeting of Guardians I have visited the store taken by the Board of Guardians yesterday, and am of opinion that it is not fit for the purposes required. It appears to have been an old malt-house, with three floors, about seven feet in height, with mortar floors; no chimneys, or other conveniences out of doors, either for cooking or exercise. Consequently, I would request the Commissioners' instructions upon this head before the meeting on Wednesday next.

REPLY to the above:—November 30, 1847.

THE building which has been taken by the Board of Guardians of the Galway Union for an additional workhouse being, as you describe it, unfit for use as a workhouse, the Commissioners do not feel warranted in sanctioning the occupation of it by the Board of Guardians.

I am at the same time to request, that you will be so good as to point out to the Guardians the circumstances which render the building unfit for the purpose to which they propose to apply it; and, possibly, you may be prepared to point out a suitable place which can be obtained.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 4, 1847.

REFERRING to your letter of the 30th ultimo, relative to additional workhouse accommodation, I acquaint you that the house and land at Dangan belonging to Mr. John Redington, is the only place I can recommend to the notice of the Poor Law Commissioners, as fit and proper for the accommodation required, and although I am of opinion that to meet the present press of destitution this step is actually necessary, still I wish it to be distinctly understood, that it is not only the situation and premises which I recommend, but that the produce of the 16 acres of land will in itself be equal to the rent, if only used as a dairy-farm for the whole establishment, the labour on which, as a matter of course, being performed by the boys under proper superintendence, and thus reduce the present very high yearly expense of milk and buttermilk; in fact, by the occupation of premises of this description, the establishment would become altogether an industrial agricultural school, instead of a workhouse retreat for idleness, which when once embarked in by youth is seldom, or never, shaken off, consequently should the Commissioners think fit to entertain my recommendation, they would thereby be adding a fair and profitable test to the youthful paupers in general, and thus tend to reduce the present rates of the Union.

Mr. Redington's offer for letting the property in question is enclosed, for which he is now receiving 145*l.* per annum for a very long lease, observing that a plan of the premises can be seen at the commanding engineer's office, Dublin.

ENCLOSURE.

Mr. JOHN REDINGTON to Captain HELLARD :—December 3, 1847.

SOME weeks ago Major Geoghagan, my present tenant at Dangan House, who holds that house and 16 acres (late Irish plantation measure) from me under a lease, wrote to me, requesting of me to take up the lands and premises, as he was desirous of leaving this part of the country, and being from home at the time, and he having gone to Dublin before I returned, I did not reply to him; however, I have no doubt he is still disposed to give me possession.

And, as yourself and, I believe, most of the Guardians think it the most suitable place in this vicinity, and so convenient to the present workhouse for an addition to that establishment, I have no objection to enter into treaty with the Government either for sale or lease of those premises. The Ursuline nuns paid me for the lands and a dwelling-house 150*l.* a-year; they expended over 2500*l.* in the erection of substantial additional buildings, all of which are available and most suitable for the purposes you require; and conceiving, very justly, that the villas erected on the other parts of my property adjoining the premises in question will be much deteriorated in value, I think that 200*l.* a-year a moderate rent for the same, provided the Government take a lease of not less than 21 years.

REPLY to the above :—December 8, 1847.

THE Commissioners are only empowered by law, to take for the workhouse purposes of any Union, 12 statute acres, under the Act 1 and 2 Vict. c. 56, and three acres under the 10 Vict., c. 31, keeping which in view, they request that you will be good enough to communicate Mr. John Redington's proposal to the Board of Guardians, for the purpose of ascertaining the Board's opinion on the proposal, modified according to the extent of additional ground which may be held if the premises were to be taken for a term of years.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS :—December 9, 1847.

YESTERDAY there were 1218 paupers in the house and 310 applicants, of whom 32 only could be admitted, leaving 278 destitute persons unprovided for, being a decrease, compared with last week, of 32; and had the late gales not prevented, I am of opinion the accommodation at Shaw Lodge would have enabled the Guardians to have taken the whole of the applicants into the house. The contractor is, however, now at work; and should the weather not interfere, I see no reason why it should not be complete by the next day of meeting.

The Guardians, after some discussion, proceeded to the election of relieving officers, appointing one to each district, at salaries from 30*l.* to 35*l.* per annum; but looking at the duties required in the extensive electoral divisions of Oughterard, Killannin, and the county of the town of Galway, they resolved to submit for the consideration of the Poor Law Commissioners, the necessity of two being appointed to each of those districts, in which I fully concur, as it is quite impossible for any one man to properly watch over the interests of the Union in those localities.

It appears by the reports from every quarter, as well as my own observations, that distress is very much increasing, particularly on the sea-side portion of the Union. The Rev. Patrick Horcon, P.P. of Gormuna, reported the extreme distress of his district. Dr. Lambert also made a similar report from Oranmore. I must, however, admit these to be the only two extreme cases which I have heard of, and upon which I will make further inquiry; for although the picture may be somewhat overdrawn, still at both those points I am quite satisfied there is great distress, consequent upon the non-residence of the landed proprietors, and the want of capital to pay for labour as it is performed.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain HELLARD:—December 16, 1847.

Galway Union,

I AM directed by the Commissioners to forward to you herewith a communication which they have received from the Under-Secretary's office relating to the decease of a poor man, named A. Carty, who is stated by the jury on the inquest held on his body to have died from want and exposure from the inclemency of the weather, and I am to request that you will have the goodness to make such inquiry into the circumstances as may enable you to report to the Commissioners as to the facts of the case, and especially whether the deceased made any application for relief either to the Board of Guardians, to the workhouse master, or to any of the relieving officers of the Galway Union.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 19, 1847.

As directed by your letter of the 16th instant, I have made every inquiry into the circumstances attending the death of the late A. Carty, upon which it appears that no application was made by him for relief, either at the Union workhouse, of the master, or relieving officer, but that he was taken before the resident magistrate at Galway, on the 6th instant, charged with having attempted to break windows; but the offence not having been committed, he was discharged from custody, and afterwards found dead on the 9th instant.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 16, 1847.

At the meeting of Guardians yesterday there were 1263 paupers in the house, out of which 160 were in hospital, 60 of whom were in fever; 209 applicants for admission; but none could be received.

The Guardians passed several resolutions, which appear upon the minutes; but they were unanimous in opposing all my efforts to effect the out-door relief for the aged and widows, under the 1st section of the Extension Act. They, however, appointed a Committee to examine and revise the inmates of the house, and ordered 70 additional beds for fever accommodation in Killannin.

The distress throughout the Union is, beyond a doubt, increasing to a fearful extent, as will appear by the state of the streets, and the number of applicants at the gates of the Union workhouse, as well as the fact of 11 boats, and several cars, loaded with destitute persons, having within the last week arrived at Galway from the west side of the Union, chiefly (as I am informed) from the property of C. St. George, Esq., M.P.; and unless the Guardians do immediately adopt the course so frequently pointed out to them by direction of the Commissioners, it will be impossible to meet the press of destitution that must consequently result. I have however used every argument to induce them to carry out the 1st section of the Extension Act, by clearly showing that it is much more economical to pension off the aged and widows; but, with all this reduced to figures, they are still determined to oppose it. I am, however, of opinion that, upon going through the revision of the house (which is in a deplorable state) as I have recommended, they will soon see the actual necessity of complying with the law in all its parts.

REPLY to the above:—December 20, 1847.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your report of the 16th instant, relating to the Galway Union; and with reference to the refusal of the Board of Guardians to carry out the provisions of the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, I am to state that if the Guardians, on revising the list of paupers in the workhouse, still refrain from acting on the Commissioners' instructions, the Commissioners are prepared to dissolve the Board of Guardians.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 19, 1847.

WITH reference to a former report, I beg leave to acquaint you that the resident magistrate yesterday committed 92 persons to gaol for a month each for begging, the majority of whom are from Connemara, and in the greatest possible distress, it appearing that these unfortunate people committed the offence in order to be sent to prison, after being refused admittance to the Union workhouse for want of room. This of itself should induce the Guardians (if anything will) to immediately carry into effect the 1st section of the Extension Act, and thus make room for the able-bodied within the walls of the workhouse.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 23, 1847.

At the weekly meeting of Guardians yesterday, the house contained 1220 paupers; 33 were admitted out of 106 applicants upon the books, setting aside 40 or 50 others at the gates. Serious complaints were made by the medical officer and chaplain, as to the dirty state of the paupers.

The Guardians as usual talked away the entire day, leaving the house in the same state as last week. Several resolutions were passed as per minutes, and the wasteful expenditure of the house admitted by Messrs. Bodkin, Blakeney, and others.

In accordance with the minute of the 15th inst., appointing a Revising Committee, I attended on Friday and Tuesday at the time named, but the Committee, for reasons unknown to me, did not meet, to which I called the Guardians' attention, and again pointed out to them the deplorable state of the inmates; in fact, I have no hesitation in stating, that unless the affairs are at once undertaken by the Commissioners, the Union will be placed in such a position as to almost paralyze their best exertions to recover it; the conflicting opinions of Guardians, as well as their want of attention, completely upsetting that routine of business which is so absolutely necessary in conducting even minor establishments, much less one of this importance to so large a portion of society. Lord Wallscourt has again brought forward his motion for paid Guardians to be considered on the 5th proximo. No steps were taken for either revising the house, or providing for the aged and widows out of it; so that the orders of the Commissioners are in truth, thus set at defiance by a body of Guardians, who appear to me determined not to carry out the law.

ENCLOSURE.

COPY OF RESOLUTIONS. December 22, 1847.

RESOLVED,—That proposals be advertised for in the Galway newspapers, and by handbills, for an additional relieving officer in each of the following electoral divisions:—

Galway	.	.	.	.	1
Oughterard	.	.	.	.	1
Killanin	.	.	.	.	1

The Poor Law Inspector, Captain Hellard, reported that he had attended on Friday at the workhouse, in pursuance of the resolution of the Board of the 15th instant, to revise the house paupers, but that only one of the Guardians, Mr. John Harrison, had attended; and that he had again attended on Tuesday for the same purpose, and but one Guardian, Mr. William Clancy, had attended, in consequence of which the house lists could not be revised.

The following notice of motion was handed in by Lord Wallscourt:—

SIR,—Take notice that, at the request of several of the Poor Law Guardians, who declared their regret to me that they had not notice of my motion on Wednesday the 1st of this month, the substance of which motion they entirely agreed to, I shall feel bound to move on Wednesday the 5th day of January next—That we withdraw ourselves from the duties of this Board, and call on the Commissioners to appoint paid Guardians.

WALLSCOURT.

Ordered,—That advertisements be published in the Galway newspapers for tenders for oatmeal, Indian meal, buttermilk, turf, and coals, to be paid weekly.

The following resolution was handed in from the Fever Hospital as follows:—

That a suggestion be made to the Board of Guardians that it would be advisable that the several Fever Boards in the Union, should be supplied with the several matters required by them under the contracts entered into for the workhouse.

Resolved,—That we approve of same.

Proposed by John Blakeney, Esq., seconded by Nicholas Killian, and unanimously

Resolved,—That we refer the apothecaries appointed under the Fever Act to the Relief Commissioners for payment of the sums now due to them for their attendance and medical services rendered to patients in the hospitals established under said Act.

The following estimate of sums required by the undernamed fever hospitals within the Union, was presented:—

	£.	s.	d.
From 1st to 28th October, Galway Fever Board . . .	141	13	8
To 11th December, Spiddal do.	44	6	7
For Spiddal do. estimated expense to 23rd December . . .	31	5	6
	£217	5	9

S. HELLARD, Captain Royal Navy.

The Board declined to pay the above, until they were first enabled to pay persons who had sold goods and provisions, and whose accounts were due and audited up to the 25th of March last.

Resolved,—That Mr. Nicholas Lynch's motion, relative to assistants being paid out of the increase of salary granted to the different officers, be postponed to this day fortnight.

Read a letter from the Poor Law Commissioners to the Poor Law Inspector, Captain Hellard, stating that if the Guardians, on revising the lists of paupers in the workhouse, still refrain from acting on the Commissioners' instructions, the Commissioners are prepared to dissolve the Board of Guardians.

The medical attendant reported 13 deaths within the week.

The Roman Catholic chaplain reported that on the evening before, the 21st instant, he could scarcely administer the sacrament to a male pauper for want of being shaved or cleansed. He further complained, that on Sunday last while celebrating Divine Service, some of the boys were employed in cleaning the windows of the house.

The medical attendant also reported the filthy state of the house, and that fever was greatly on the increase, which he principally attributed to the paupers being admitted into the house without being cleansed or washed.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD OF GUARDIANS—Dissolution of the Board of Guardians :—December 28, 1847.

THE Commissioners have had under their serious consideration the present state of the Galway Union, with reference to the proceedings of the Board of Guardians, in the discharge of the responsibility devolved upon them, of making due provision for the effectual relief of destitute poor persons applying to them for relief.

In the month of August last, the Commissioners had occasion to draw the special attention of the Guardians to the probability, that the workhouse would not be found sufficient to receive the number of persons who would apply for relief, and the Commissioners then urged the Guardians to take timely steps for carrying into effect the provisions of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, by the appointment of relieving officers and the collection of sufficient rates; and the Commissioners warned the Guardians that, in the event of their continuing to neglect their duties in these respects, it would become necessary for the Commissioners to consider their own responsibilities, under the 18th section of the Act referred to.

The Guardians did not, however, appoint relieving officers in the Union until the 8th instant; and notwithstanding the remonstrances of the Commissioners, and the difficulties created by the Union debts, the Guardians failed to take effectual steps to place the finances of the Union in a satisfactory condition.

On the 31st August, the liabilities of the Guardians amounted to 6,679*l.*, a sum equal to four times the amount collected in the eight preceding months, which appears to have been 1650*l.* only, or less than fourpence in the pound on the entire valuation. During the three following months of September, October, and November, the progress of the collection was not less unsatisfactory.

The current expenses of this period were 1390*l.*, and the amount of rate collected was only 550*l.*, or less than three-halfpence in the pound on the valuation; thus causing an addition to the liabilities to the extent of 840*l.*; and the total liabilities on the 1st instant amounted to 7492*l.*, or eighteen-pence in the pound on the valuation.

The Commissioners are aware, that a new rate was brought into collection at the close of November; but they cannot but apprehend that the postponement of the making of this rate to so late a period of the year, will have seriously interfered with the prospects of a favourable collection.

The Commissioners cannot but regard it as most unsatisfactory, that in a Union like the Galway Union, the net annual value of the rateable property in which amounts to 100,777*l.*, so small a sum as 550*l.* should have been raised in three months favorable for the collection.

Galway Union.

The Commissioners have further to observe, that so long ago as the 11th October last, they drew the attention of the Guardians to the necessity of providing a sufficient supply of bedding and clothing, for the persons to be admitted into the workhouse; yet the Commissioners find, that the inmates of the workhouse are not properly supplied with clothing.

Moreover, the attention of the Board of Guardians has frequently been called to the urgent necessity which existed for the active exercise of their powers under the 1st section of the Act 10 Vict., c. 31, and the expediency of making room in the workhouse, by discharging and affording out-door relief to the classes coming under that section, has been repeatedly pointed out to the Guardians; but the Guardians have not taken steps in accordance with these recommendations, and they have consequently been obliged, on many occasions, to reject applicants for relief from want of room in the workhouse.

The Commissioners having observed that the Guardians, on the 15th instant, rejected the applications of upwards of 200 destitute poor persons, 92 of whom were subsequently committed to gaol for begging, it was intimated to the Temporary Inspector of the Union, that if at a subsequent meeting, the Guardians still refrained from acting on the Commissioners' instructions for carrying into effect the provisions of the 1st section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act, they were prepared to dissolve the Board of Guardians.

The Commissioners deeply regret to learn that, at the Guardians' meeting on the 21st instant, they again rejected many destitute applicants for relief, and thus failed to discharge their duties effectually according to the intentions of the Legislature.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioners feel that they should no longer be justified in refraining from the exercise in the Galway Union, of the powers entrusted to them by the 18th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act. They have accordingly resolved to issue an order dissolving the Board of Guardians, and to appoint paid officers to administer the affairs of the Union; and a copy of the order dissolving the Board is enclosed herewith.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—December 30, 1847.

At the meeting of the Guardians yesterday, there were 1217 paupers in the house, and 90 applicants for admission, of whom 26 could be admitted, leaving 64 unprovided for. Fifteen deaths were reported within the last week; there being 157 in hospital, 60 of whom are in fever.

After the admission of paupers, last week's expenses were examined, and the supplies for the present week ordered, when the Commissioners' letter dissolving the Board of Guardians was read, and the business closed.

Distress throughout the Union, is becoming every day more apparent, as whole families are to be seen on the roads from Connemara, flocking into the town of Galway for shelter; and I was credibly informed on Monday, at Oughterard, that the tenantry had been driven from the villages of Gurtreva and Clusk by Mr. Christopher St. George, and that ejectments are in force against the tenantry residing in the village of Pouleeny, near to Turbough, also belonging to the same gentleman, which will at once account for the increase of distress in and about the town.

REPLY to the above:—December 31, 1847.

With reference to that portion of your report of the 30th instant, in which you advert to the large number of persons coming into the town of Galway in a destitute condition, I am to state that the Commissioners would recommend you to see that the relieving officers enable such persons as appear to be in actual necessity, to obtain provisional relief, either in-door or out-door, pending the arrival of the paid Guardians; bearing in mind however, that as yet there is no authority to give out-door relief under the 2nd section of the Act 10 Vict., cap. 31, and such authority has not been yet applied for in the Galway Union.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 4, 1848.

IN acknowledging the receipt of a letter of the 1st instant, with an extract from a newspaper reporting the proceedings of the late Board of Guardians of the Galway Union on the 15th ultimo, I would take leave to refer to my report of the 16th ultimo, which fully corroborates the printed statement in question, observing that it is not only on the sea-side west of Galway that this unfortunate clearance has taken place, but also from two villages near Oughterard (Gurtreva and Clush), and ejectments are in force against the tenantry of Pouleeny, near Furbough, the whole being tenants of Christopher St. George, Esq., M.P. In fact, the town is at this moment full of rural paupers, very many of whom, no doubt, are making a trade of begging, in preference to becoming inmates of the Union workhouse, proofs of which often come under my own knowledge, and which must, more or less, be the case in all towns similarly situated.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 6, 1848.

THERE being several widows, with one child, now in the Union workhouse, and it appearing that they cannot be afforded out-door relief without direct authority from the Poor Law Commissioners, I have to request directions may be given thereon, in order that every possible accommodation may be made available for the able-bodied.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain HELLARD:—January 7, 1848.

IN accordance with your recommendation, the Commissioners have issued an order authorizing the Vice-Guardians of Galway Union to give out-door relief under the second section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act to widows with one child, dependent on them; also to children, both of whose parents are dead.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 6, 1848.

THERE were yesterday 1202 paupers in the Union workhouse, out of whom 172 were in hospital, 48 were admitted, 62 provisionally taken in, and 82 provided for by the relieving officers for the night, there being 192 applicants.

The collection of rates this week amounted to 309*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.*, leaving the sum of 967*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* in the Treasurer's hands, at the disposal of the Vice-Guardians.

Since the local Guardians were removed, I have been occupied in examining the aged and widows, to be ready for commencing out-door relief under the 1st section of the Extension Act (which will be proceeded with this day), and in making other revisions and classifications for the general improvement of the house, and cleanliness of the paupers.

With the collection of rates I am much dissatisfied. *The collection from Oughterard, our largest electoral division, is only 1*l.* 18*s.* 10*d., thus proving the actual necessity of carrying out my former recommendation of appointing additional collectors for Killanin and Moycullen.

I have had frequent occasions to express my dissatisfaction with the state of the Union workhouse as regards the duties of the master and matron, both of whom are in my opinion unfit for the responsible situations they hold. With the former I have taken considerable trouble in endeavouring to establish an uniform system throughout, without the least possible appearance of success; and the latter is so dirty in her person, and negligent in her general duty, that nothing short of their removal can possibly establish that discipline and good order so essential in an establishment of this description.

In the Union generally, there is, no doubt, great distress, which will, I trust, as the duties of the Vice-Guardians proceed, meet with the relief anticipated by the Commissioners.

Galway Union.

REPLY to the foregoing :—January 18, 1848.

WITH reference to the means suggested by you for expediting the collection of the poor-rate, I am to request that you will have the goodness to communicate with the collectors on the subject, in the first instance.

I am at the same time to state, that it will be in the power of the Vice-Guardians to re-arrange the Collectors' districts, under the 27th Article of the General Regulations, and to assign what districts they think fit to the collectors.

If any such re-distribution of the districts be made, it will be necessary to look to the collectors' bonds, and to have them amended if necessary.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 9, 1848.

HAVING by directions of Count Strzelecki received from the Commissary General the sum of 300*l.* for the use of the Galway Union, I have lodged the sum in question in the hands of the Union Treasurer, to be at the disposal of the paid officers for the administration of its affairs.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 10, 1848.

UPON my examination of the rate collectors' accounts this day, it appeared that James Walsh had only collected 63*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* in the electoral divisions of Ballynacourty, Stradbally, and Oranmore, during the previous week; which he accounted for by stating that he had summoned 26 persons for the recovery of their rates, but that on the day of meeting at Oranmore (Thursday the 6th instant), there was only one magistrate from a distant part of the county present, who declined hearing any of the cases alluded to; consequently, the parties thus called upon have escaped payment until the next Petty Sessions, when a meeting of the magistrates will, as a matter of course, be equally uncertain as it was on the 6th instant. I would, therefore, take leave to call the attention of the Commissioners to this particular case, in order that steps may be taken to secure the proper attention of the magistracy of the division in question to this important part of their public duty; observing, that unless the collectors meet with prompt assistance, the greater part of the rates must remain uncollected; whereas, with even a little energy on the part of those in authority, I am quite satisfied a large sum may with ease be brought to account.

REPLY to the above :—January 17, 1848.

THE Commissioners have forwarded a copy of your report, for the information of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, and have requested the special notice of his Excellency thereto.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 15, 1848.

THE rate collector of the town of Galway (Patrick Martin), having been again assaulted in the execution of his duty, on Friday, the 31st ultimo, at Ballafaille, I directed him to immediately communicate with the resident magistrate, or, in his absence, with the local authorities, in order that proper assistance might be rendered him in carrying out the collection of the rates; and having myself conferred with Mr. Keenan thereon, I beg leave to forward a letter from that gentleman of the 9th instant, wherein I am acquainted that the police will afford the necessary protection; but it appears by the collector's report of the 10th instant, that the sub-inspector cannot comply with the magistrate's order, until he receives further instructions from the Government; and yesterday it was again reported to me that two or three days more must elapse before their services would be obtained, thereby affording the people who have now the means of paying, an opportunity of removing their stock, &c., off their farms, and assaulting the collector with impunity. In fact, unless prompt and immediate measures are taken to carry out this very important duty, the collection of the rates may as well be abandoned, as at this moment the loss of the last 14 days tends only to give these lawless characters confidence in their opposition, and consequently calls for more stringent orders being given to the resident magistrate thereon.

Galway Union.

ENCLOSURES.

For the information of Mr. Patt Martin, who is to communicate with Mr. Lynch, S.I.P., immediately, and follow out the instructions contained in Mr. Keenan's letter, which is to be returned to me after the service has been performed, with a written report.

Galway, January 9, 1848.

J. HELLARD, Capt. R.N.

Mr. KEENAN to Captain HELLARD.

Galway, January 9, 1848.

I BEG to state that I have received the minute of the Under Secretary on my report of the 6th instant, submitting Mr. Martin's informations. I have written to Mr. Lynch, the sub-inspector, to afford Mr. Martin the protection of a police force in the discharge of his duty; and I have the honour to request that Mr. Martin may be instructed to take advantage, without any delay, of the protection offered; to place himself in communication with the sub-inspector, and that he shall make such arrangements as will enable the duty to be performed, as little harassing to the constabulary force as possible.

Should the constabulary protection prove not to be sufficient to deter resistance, the military will, in that case, be employed in aid of the civil power, and then the arrangements of the collector must be such as will secure the coercive collection of the rate generally throughout his district.

I respectfully suggest, that the collector may be instructed to proceed forthwith on his collection, under the protection of the constabulary, so as at the end of the week to be prepared to make his report to you, and to swear an information before me of the nature of the resistance (if any) offered. I leave home to-morrow morning early; I propose returning on Thursday.

Mr. MARTIN to Captain HELLARD.

Town Court-house, January 10, 1848.

I BEG leave to inform you that I have been speaking to Mr. Lynch, S.I., on the subject of Mr. Keenan's letter of the 2th instant, concerning the police force. Mr. Lynch is not prepared to accompany me in the collection of the poor's-rate, until he has an answer from the Government to a letter forwarded by him on this day. Mr. Lynch will call on you to-morrow.

REPLY to the above:—January 17, 1848.

I AM to state for your information, that the Commissioners have communicated on the subject with the Chief Secretary, and they have reason to believe that steps will be taken to remedy the evils complained of by you.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS:—January 13, 1848.

At the weekly meeting yesterday, the Vice-Guardians were occupied the whole day in the examination and admission of paupers, hundreds of whom had assembled from every quarter of the Union, expecting to receive out-door relief; so much so, that with 170 vacancies in the house, occasioned by the removal of paupers, under the first section of the Extension Act, last week, 49 only could be admitted before dark, in consequence of the numbers presenting themselves for examination, apparently in distress, and so reported by the relieving officers, who, upon being ordered into the house, in many instances declined to enter it, stating that their object was alone out-door relief; and positively refused the asylum offered them, consequently much time was thereby lost, and the Guardians having appointed three additional relieving officers, adjourned till half-past 10, A.M. this day, after the business of which is closed, I shall have the honour of making a more detailed report of the general state of the house, and the proceedings of the week, observing, that the whole of the population appear to be encouraged to look forward to nothing but gratuitous relief, which alone caused the pressure on this occasion; and I hope the mode adopted for their examination will be the means of checking any future attempt of this description for the present, although I fear the time is not far distant when the able-bodied in this extensive and distressed Union must be relieved out of the house.

Galway Union.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 14, 1848.

THE Vice-Guardians at their adjourned meeting yesterday, admitted 153 paupers, thereby completing the numbers in the house to 1258; which I have pleasure in stating, met all the admissible applications for the week. It will, however, scarcely be believed that during the examination, several cases came under consideration where husbands had left their wives, and wives their husbands, in their cabins to perish in fever, while they sought an asylum in the workhouse; thus showing the miserable state of feeling to which these unfortunate people have been reduced, from want of the most common necessities of life. Many instances of fraud were attempted, with the view, as they thought, of obtaining a large allowance of out-door relief; and in fact, the cunning resorted to by the applicants called into action every possible precaution on the part of the Guardians, to thoroughly sift out the truth. The pressure during the first day was so great, that it was with some degree of difficulty the crowd could be kept outside; firmness, however, on the part of the officers secured something like order, until the whole had had their hearing.

This being the first week of the relieving officer's duty, some difficulties arose out of their over anxiety in the fulfilment thereof, but from their general demeanour, I am led to hope they may prove efficient and faithful servants, as no doubt the responsible duties attached to their office will for some time increase, as distress in every quarter becomes daily more and more apparent; although at this moment, there are 4466 children fed at the several schools, and these numbers will be considerably increased so soon as I am relieved from the present pressing duties at the Union workhouse.

The supplies to children this day consisted of 3379½ lbs. of rye bread, and 700 quarts of new milk.

Captain HELLARD to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 23, 1848.

I HAVE the honour to report that the Vice-Guardians were engaged on Wednesday the 19th instant, in going through the routine business of the Board, and ascertaining the number of persons that could be discharged from the workhouse, and placed upon out-door relief, under the 1st section of the Irish Relief Act, of which classes 113 were discharged on the following day. On Thursday and Friday, 186 were admitted into the workhouse, and 360, in addition to the above 113, were placed upon the out-door relief list, all of the same classes. The number in the workhouse on the 22nd instant was 1292.

I regret to say that very many persons belonging to the able-bodied class, who appeared to be in great want and destitution, were refused relief from the want of room in the workhouse. There is no doubt but that the poverty and misery of the people are daily increasing to a fearful degree. Three deaths took place in the probationary wards of the workhouse during the present week, of persons who were taken in for the night from the gate; and while this is the case, it is with great regret I have to report that in some districts of this Union, great cruelty is practised towards the poor by landlords and their agents. It has been represented by several applicants for relief during the past and present week, that on the 31st ultimo, without any authority, their houses, on the property of Mr. Patrick Blake, of Gortnamona, at Tully, in the electoral division of Killinan, were thrown down by a number of men headed by Mr. Arthur Blake, son to Mr. James Blake, of Tully, who is agent to Mr. Patrick Blake, the proprietor, and a magistrate in the district. Upon inquiry, the relieving officer, Francis O'Connor, stated that the houses had been levelled as represented. The Rev. Mr. McCullagh, the parish priest upon Mr. Blake's estate, has made a written statement to the same effect.

Mr. Kernan, the stipendiary magistrate of the district, has arranged with me to hold an inquiry at the workhouse, on Thursday next, and upon its termination, I shall forward copies of the depositions of the witnesses.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS :—January 22, 1848.

THE Commissioners have had under consideration, minutes of proceedings of the Board of Guardians of the Galway Union on the 20th instant, and they have directed me to express their approval of the proceedings of the Vice-Guardians.

I am at the same time to state that, in accordance with the request contained in the minutes, an order will be issued forthwith, authorizing the Vice-Guardians to afford out-door relief to the able-bodied.

Galway Union.

A copy of a letter which has been addressed to the Guardians of Unions, in which such an order has been issued is enclosed herewith, for the information of the Vice-Guardians. Page 1.

Mr. BOURKE to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 27, 1848.

ON my arrival in Galway this day, I heard with much regret of the serious indisposition of Captain Hellard, Temporary Poor Law Inspector; and from inquiries which I had an opportunity of making later in the day from his medical attendants, I fear that his recovery can be considered as but very uncertain. His illness, which commenced with a cold, has now turned into fever of a very malignant character; and it must be long, if he survives it, before he is restored to his usual strength.

I had an interview with the Vice-Guardians, and gave them all the assistance in my power during the short time I remained in Galway; but having appointed to be in Clifden to-morrow morning to make the report on the state of that Union, called for by your letter of the 20th instant, I could only remain for a few hours.

I also saw one of the members of the committee, which Captain Hellard has associated with himself for carrying on the relief afforded by the British Association to the schools in the Union, and requested him to summon a meeting of the members, and take measures for preventing any interruption to the system established for the purpose. But as they will be unable long to continue it without the assistance of an Inspector, I respectfully submit that it is a matter for consideration, whether some person should not be appointed to act in this capacity during Captain Hellard's illness.

The pressure for relief appears to be very great upon the Vice-Guardians for this Union; and the approaches to the workhouse were thronged with applicants of the most destitute appearance. The Vice-Guardians are acting with energy and perseverance, and have already afforded a considerable amount of relief; but I think it of importance that they should, as soon as possible, commence holding the Board in such distant parts of the Union as appear to them most destitute; for the evils of bringing large numbers of poor persons to the town of Galway to seek relief are already manifesting themselves; and besides, the sufferings of the poor themselves are much aggravated by the distance they have to travel. I mentioned the subject to the Vice-Guardians, and I think they appeared to agree with me in opinion.

REPLY to the above :—January 29, 1848.

I AM to express the Commissioners' regret at the account which you give of the state of Captain Hellard's health.

I am at the same time to state, for your information, that the Commissioners propose at once to appoint Major M'Kie a Temporary Poor Law Inspector, and that he will be directed to proceed to Galway.

The Commissioners have already issued an order, authorizing the Vice-Guardians to hold meetings at any place in the Union they shall see fit; and the Commissioners presume from your remarks that they intend to act in accordance with your suggestions, in holding their meetings at other parts of the Union besides the town of Galway.

The VICE-GUARDIANS to the COMMISSIONERS :—January 29, 1848.

WE have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 25th instant, requesting our report, weekly, as to the collection of the poor-rates, and on other matters coming under our observation in the Galway Union.

Since we came here, our attention has been particularly directed to the collection of the rates, which we consider of the first importance, but in which object we have met with some difficulties. In some cases, where six-day notices have been served and summonses issued, as at Oranmore, the local magistracy have either neglected attending at the petty sessions, or refused to adjudicate; and in a recent case, where there was in the same locality a decision in favour of the collector, the magistrate, Mr. Lynch of Lavally, refused to issue warrants until the next court day, which caused a delay of four weeks from the time of issuing the summonses. We are of opinion that this evil might be met by a direction to the resident magistrate to attend at any petty sessions within the Union, on receiving notice from the collector that he had issued summonses for the recovery of poor-rates.

We have given directions to our solicitor, Mr. Blakeney, to apply to the receivers under the Court of Chancery who have refused to pay the rates chargeable on the properties so circumstanced, and, if not paid, to apply without delay to the court.

With respect to the immediate lessors, we are of opinion that serving them with a fifteen-day notice would not be very efficacious, for reasons which are sufficiently obvious, and we think proceeding in the superior courts, would be most likely to produce the desired result.

It is not necessary to advert to the load of debt which has been allowed to accumulate in the Union, and which we conceive would have been liquidated by this time, if the present rate had been struck in July last instead of November.

For the most part, the small farmers are unable to pay their rates, as the greater part of the produce of the last harvest was disposed of before the rate was struck.

We regret to say that there will be some delay in the collection of the rate in the Galway electoral division in the coming week, in consequence of Mr. Martin, the collector, being served with a subpoena, at the suit of the Crown, to give evidence in an excise case against one of the rate-payers of the Union.

We are at present using every exertion in making arrangements to set the out-door able-bodied paupers at work. Mr. Bourke, the Inspector, has undertaken to provide the necessary implements from the Board of Works; and we have advertised for a superintendent and overseers, so as to commence forthwith.

The workhouse, particularly the dormitories has been clean, for the last fortnight. There is a great want of that discipline amongst the adult paupers, so essentially necessary for the preservation of good order and regularity, in the different departments of the workhouse.

There has been a very great deficiency in the clothing of the adult paupers; the greater number of them are still wearing the clothes which they had on when admitted many months ago. We have advertised for proper clothing, and will remedy this very great evil with as little delay as possible.

The schools are conducted with due order and regularity, and the children appear healthy and cleanly. We would here beg leave to impress on the Commissioners the great necessity that exists of having a separate building for the children, not only in a healthful, but in a moral point of view. The building offered by Mr. Redington is admirably suited for this purpose, both as to extent and situation. The house is in capital order, the roof nearly new, and the rooms are large and well ventilated. There are two excellent school-rooms, formerly used for that purpose by the nuns who inhabited the house, and the concern is capable of accommodating 600 children, with the necessary officers, &c., &c. Another great advantage would arise from getting the children out of the workhouse; namely, the room it would make for such a large number of adult paupers. The house is in so crowded a state at present, that we are unable to apply the workhouse test to those seeking for out-door relief; thus completely defeating the system to be observed in carrying out the directions of the Commissioners in that respect.

We have discharged all the infirm and aged paupers, and widows and their children, with the exception of those who were in hospital or bed-ridden.

We found it necessary to advertise for an hospital serjeant, in consequence of the great irregularity in keeping the books of the hospital, as well as in other matters connected with that part of the institution.

We consider it highly important that there should be a revision of the valuation of the Union before the next rate is struck, so many complaints having been conveyed to us from different parts of the Union against the present valuation.

We have to state that three of our relieving officers could not leave Galway, up to a late hour on yesterday evening, with bread for the out-door paupers in the Killannin, South Outerard, and Moycullen divisions, in consequence of their not being able to procure an escort during the day, there having been a bread cart plundered on the road leading in the same direction during the last week, and within a short distance of Galway.

We cannot conclude this report without expressing our deep regret at the melancholy death of Captain Hellard, R.N., Temporary Inspector in this Union; and in common with all who witnessed his undeviating zeal and exertions, deplore the sad event.

Galway Union.

REPLY to the foregoing:—February 2, 1848.

I AM to request that you will be good enough to state the reasons which lead you to consider that service of the fifteen-days' notice on the immediate lessors who have not paid their poor-rates, would not be efficacious.

As regards the number of inmates of the workhouse, who, it appears, are wearing their own clothes, I am to state that the Commissioners regard it as peculiarly objectionable that paupers in the workhouse should be allowed to wear their own clothes; and the Commissioners are glad to learn that there is a probability of the practice being discontinued in the Galway Union at an early period.

The Commissioners entirely approve of the proposal to remove the children in the workhouse, to a separate building. The Commissioners have also directed me to express their sanction of the proposed appointment of an hospital serjeant.

I am at the same time to express the Commissioners' consent to the proposed revision of the valuation of the Union.

The COMMISSIONERS to Major M'KIE:—February 1, 1848.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to request that you will be so good as to make minute inquiry, and report to the Commissioners on the cases mentioned under the head "Relief Applications," in the annexed extract from the "Galway Mercury," of the 29th ultimo.

I am at the same time to state that, the Commissioners deem it desirable that the evidence should be on oath.

Lord Wallscourt appeared to complain that on the revision of his estate he had been rated not alone for the rent received by him, but also upon the sum agreed upon between himself and his tenants for taxes. He had mentioned the matter to Mr. Martin, who had, as he (Lord Wallscourt) thought, improperly obtained an inspection of his books and rent-roll. He believed the valuation ought to have been made from an inspection of the land, and not from the books. Mr. Martin consented to pay one-half of the surcharge, provided it was found that he was wrong.

Galway Union.

Mr. Mahon said, it could not be expected a person would undertake to go over the entire Union for the purpose of personally inspecting the land for the sum allowed him, 50%.

Mr. Martin remarked, that he believed his lordship was under a mistake as to the amount of the surcharge agreed on to be refunded. What he understood it to be was, that the landlord should pay two-thirds, and the other third to be defrayed between him, Mr. Martin, and his lordship's clerk.

Relief Applications.

Mary Faherty was the first applicant for out-door relief called before the Vice-Guardians. She stated, that she lived in the village of Tully. On the 2nd of January last two men, in the employment of Mr. James Blake, came to her cabin, and told her to leave it, or the walls would be tumbled down over her head. In consequence of that threat she went out, and the roof was tumbled in.

Daniel Conneely, of Tully, made a similar statement. The destruction of the house was effected by Mr. Blake's family and the people from another village. Applicant did not leave the house until the crowbar was put under the walls. No ejectment-paper had been previously served upon him. He spent five days under the shelter of a wall, without any covering whatsoever.

John Denohue, five in family. His house was knocked down by the villagers of Bullinahown, as they said, by Mr. Blake's directions.

Mark Conneely, three in family. His house was also thrown down by the same parties. His wife is lying in fever in the ruins of the cabin.

Thomas O'Meally, 10 in family. Like case. Applicant had no land; it was taken from him without any paper being served upon him. The houses were burned, after being thrown down. The villagers are all banished now. On earth he does not know where to put his head for shelter. Is quite satisfied to work whenever he gets a bit to eat.

Thomas M'Donough, six in family. His house was thrown down in Garomna by the steward of Mr. St. George, M.P. Since the application was made, two of his children died from starvation and hardship; they slept out every night since the house was thrown down.

John Lee, his wife, and four small children, next applied. He said he had quietly given up his house. He had been in the habit of dredging for oysters, but his boat was stolen and sunk, by whom he did not know.

There were several other applications, in which it was stated by the relieving officer that as soon as the wretched creatures left their homes for the purpose of seeking relief from the Vice-Guardians, their cabins were demolished, and the consequence therefore was that when they returned they were without the shelter of a roof.

Michael M'Donough, five in family. His house was thrown down about a month ago by the steward of Mr. St. George, M.P.; an ejectment had been served upon him; is willing to work if he be allowed food.

John Donoghue, his wife, and five small children. Three or four days ago his house was thrown down by the orders of Mr. Blake, of Tully. The men came to the village at night, and his wife stated that she was nearly killed by the falling in of the roof; she added, that the poor people were endeavouring to erect huts with sticks and scraws, but as quickly as they did so they were pulled down again.

There was a great many like cases, but the above will enable the public to form an opinion of the manner in which properties are managed in Connemara.

The Vice-Guardians sat again on Thursday and yesterday.

Major M'KIE to the COMMISSIONERS in reply :—February 19, 1848.

IN compliance with the instructions conveyed to me in your letter of the 1st instant, that I should make minute inquiry into the cases mentioned under the head of Relief Applications in the annexed extract from the "Galway Mercury," of the 29th ult., I have the honour to report, for the information of the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, that having made preliminary inquiries of the Vice-Guardians, the relieving officers, and others, I proceeded on Monday last, the 14th instant, to Derrynea Lodge, Castelle Bay, being the nearest convenient place I could find to hold an inquiry. The parties were duly summoned, and the evidence taken on oath. The proceedings were held on the 14th, and continued by adjournment till the 15th. A correct copy of the proceedings is forwarded herewith. There were many others of Mr. Blake's tenants who could have given similar evidence, but I did not think it necessary to go into the matter at greater length. There are but two witnesses as to the ejectments on Mr. St. George's property, who could swear to the facts; the others stating that their houses had been thrown down when they were absent, and they could only speak as to their belief.

It would appear from the evidence recorded, that these forcible ejectments were illegal; that notices had not been served; that they were perpetrated under circumstances of great cruelty. The time chosen for the greater part nightfall, on the eve of the new year. The occupiers were forced out of their houses, with their helpless children, and left exposed to the cold on a bleak western shore on a stormy winter's night; that some of the children were sick; that the parents implored that they might not be exposed, and their houses left till the morning; that their prayers for mercy were vain, and that many of them have since died.

The witness, John Costello, states, that Mr. Arthur Blake, son of Mr. James Blake, J.P., and agent to Mr. Patrick Blake of Gorumna; Patrick M'Nalty, steward to James Blake; Edmund Walsh, and one Faherty, drivers to Mr. Blake, with several others, tenants to Mr. Blake, were the actors in these illegal proceedings; and their identity is confirmed, together with that of Mr. Richard Blake (also son to Mr. James Blake), by the witnesses Bridget Faherty, Mary Faherty, John Toole, John Magan, Mary Feeny, and others, all of whose cases were attended with circumstances of great cruelty.

I have visited the ruins of these huts (not any great distance from Mr. Blake's residence); I found that many of these unfortunate people were still living within the ruins of these huts, endeavouring to shelter themselves under a few sticks and sods, all in the most wretched state of destitution; many were so weak that they could scarcely stand when giving their evidence. The site of these ruins is a rocky wild spot, fit for nothing but a sheep-walk.

It appears from the information I have been able to obtain, that these people had many of them been living in these huts for years; renting patches of land on the rocky shore, and earning a precarious and scanty subsistence by the culture of the potato, paying even for the sea-weed to manure the land. The total failure of the potato crop left them without any means of subsistence, and being unable to cultivate the land, they had given up their holdings, but continued to occupy the huts, paying no rent.

It has been stated, and I believe with truth, that Mr. Blake and many of his tenants had lost sheep, and suffered from depredations on their turnip crops. These people having no means of subsistence, suspicion fell on them, and it was resolved to root them out.

Mr. Blake, sen., was present on the 15th, and had the perusal of the whole of the depositions, of which he took notes. He denied any knowledge of the proceedings, he being absent at the time they occurred. I asked, if, as a magistrate, he had not on his return from Dublin made any inquiry as to the acts of violence committed during his absence. Mr. Blake said he inquired of the police, who had made no report of the matter, although fully aware of it. I have made inquiry, and find this to be true; they were well aware that the people's houses were thrown down, but made no report to the Inspector.

I pointed out to Mr. Blake that the depositions implicated himself, as it had been asserted to be by his orders, and that his sons and servants were the leaders; that the depositions were on oath. Mr. Blake assured me he had not in any way sanctioned those proceedings, which he admitted to be illegal; and promised to send me an affidavit to that effect on the following day. I have not heard from him since.

ENCLOSURE.

NOTES of EXAMINATIONS taken on oath before Major P. M'Kie, Poor Law Inspector for the Union of Galway, at Derrynlea Lodge, on the 14th and 15th days of February, 1848, relative to matter which appeared under the head "Relief Applications," in the annexed extract taken from the "Galway Mercury" of 29th January, 1848.

Many of the witnesses being unable to speak English, Mr. Thomas J. Read is sworn Interpreter.

First Witness, John Costello, being duly sworn, states. I live at Invern; I applied at the workhouse in Galway for relief after New Year's day; I stated to the Board of Guardians that my house was thrown down by Pat M'Nalty, Arthur Blake, David Costello, Edmund Walsh, John Conneely, a man named Faherty, driver to Mr. Blake; all those persons were present: Pat M'Nalty is steward to Mr. Blake, Arthur Blake is son to James Blake, Mr. James Blake is agent to Mr. Patrick Blake of Gortnamona. I only know that David Costello was with Mr. Arthur Blake; Edmund Walsh and Faherty are both drivers or stewards to Mr. James Blake; I don't know in what capacity John Conneely was; Pat M'Nalty had a crowbar with which he was throwing down the house, Arthur Blake had also a crowbar and was throwing down the house, when one of them got tired he gave the crowbar to another; David Costello was throwing down the house; Edmund Walsh was present when the house was down, and along with the persons who were throwing it down; he threw three of my children out on the street; one of them was sick at the time; her name was Anne; she died last week; was near four years old; Coleman my son died on Friday last, aged ten years, from cold and hardship. My house was completely destroyed, and it was near dusk when it was thrown down; myself and my family had to sleep in the open air; it was raining and snowing that night, and it blew very hard; my wife and remaining child are now lying sick, and have a bad chance of recovery; my wife says that if she dies, she will attribute her death to the cold she got that night for want of a house; it was on the 31st December my house was thrown down; I asked Arthur Blake for God's sake to leave the house over me until that night would be over, to which he replied, that he would if I gave him a pound; Faherty and Edmund Walsh, who are both drivers or stewards to Mr. Blake, were also throwing down the house; I built the house myself about eleven years ago on a mountain garden; I had no rent to pay for that, but I had to pay three pounds and a half a crown in the year, besides a day's work every week for sea-weed and some land I held near the sea-shore; Mr. Patrick Blake was the landlord, and Mr. James Blake the agent. The land and sea-weed was taken from me about six years ago; I lived in the house ever since, and was served with no notice or ejectment to give it up until it was thrown down; my wife and child are now lying sick in a hovel I made against the ruins of the house; when my child Coleman died there was over six inches of water about him; Pat McNalty and Arthur Blake had the appearance of having taken drink; I knew by them that they had drank whiskey; Edmund Walsh came to my house first, and told me to take my children out of it; I said I would not, if they were killed in it; the others came up and threw down the house shortly after; Arthur Blake and Samuel Mullowney came to my house and searched it some nights before; they found nothing improper in it; the late and present priests of the parish can give me a good character, and so can every person on the estate; my wife nursed the last child (named Henry) that Mr. James Blake had, about nine or nine and a half years ago; I don't know why the land was taken from me; Mr. Blake said, "I would rather feed goats than ye;" I owed half a year's rent; Mr. Blake seized my corn in about a year afterwards; I paid him the half year's rent; I supported myself ever since by having a boat between myself and two others in which we fished, and I tried to earn a little; the boat and all I had were sold before I applied at the workhouse; we got 2*l.* 10*s.* for the boat; I believe I would not be alive now, but for the charity of John Hernan; I was employed with others in building a wall for Mr. James Blake; Pat McNalty is the man that hired me; I worked for a fortnight at that wall, and all I got for it was two shillings and six-pence.

Second Witness, Bridget Faherty, being duly sworn, states. I live at Tullymore; I applied at the Galway workhouse for relief last Wednesday fortnight; my house was thrown down on last New Year's eve; I was absent at Lettermore at the time; when I returned, I found my house had been thrown down; I was not served with any notice or ejectment to give it up; I held no land but about an acre of a mountain garden that I reclaimed and walled in; Mr. Blake is the landlord; I lived 12 or 13 years there; I never paid any rent for the house and garden; I held some land, and as long as I had it I paid the rent regularly; the land was taken from me six years ago, because I would not pay 104 days' duty work along with the rent to Mr. Blake, of Tully; the land was taken from me against my will; I was not served with any ejectment or legal process; after the house was thrown down I erected a shelter against the ruin walls, and slept in it with my family; the rain came in upon us through it; this hut was twice afterwards knocked down, and the timber taken away; I contrived to get a little covering, and I still continued to live in the same place; the last time the hut was knocked down, Mr. Richard Blake was along with a party of men, some of whom had crow-bars, with which they knocked down the chimney and wall of the house; Mr. Richard Blake, who is son to Mr. James Blake, ordered the men to do so; they threw down the hut or shelter I fixed, too; Edmund Walsh knocked down the wall; Tom Faherty Tom, Bartholomew Faherty, and Thomas Conneely, were taking out the timber of the roof to a cart on the road.

Third Witness, Mary Faherty, being duly sworn, states. I am daughter to Bridget Conneely; I and my brother James, who is about eleven years of age, were in our house at Tullymore on 31st December last; on the evening of that day about sixteen men, tenants of Mr. Blake, from Ballinahown, came; they said they had been sent by Mr. James Blake, of Tully, to throw down the house; they at once commenced throwing it down over my head; I had to go out, or I would have been killed; the furniture was broken in throwing them out; Coleman Folan Matthias had a crowbar, and was throwing down the house; Thomas Maherty Matthias had another crowbar, and assisted in throwing it down; Thomas Faherty Roger threw down part of it; myself and my brother had to remain that night under a wall for shelter; we made a kind of hut against the house wall on the following day; this hut was also thrown down in a short time after by some of the same persons and others, who stated it was Mr. Blake sent them there; we again built up the hut, and it was again thrown down by Edmund Walsh, Thomas Faherty Tom, Bartholomew Faherty, and Thomas Conneely; Edmund Walsh and Bartholomew Faherty are drivers to Mr. James Blake; at this time Mr. Richard Blake was with them; he directed the men to knock down the chimney of the old house, which they did.

Fourth Witness, Daniel Conneely, being duly sworn, states. That on last Wednesday fortnight I applied for relief at the Galway workhouse; I was driven there by hunger and want; I have eight in family; my house at Tullymore was thrown down on the evening of the 31st December last by a party of men from Ballinahown; they said they had been sent to do so by Mr. James Blake, of Tully; I did not leave the house until they commenced throwing out my furniture; I assisted them in removing it myself; some of the men put the crowbars into the walls, to throw down the house at once; others came in; I begged of them to leave it standing until morning, and that I would throw it down myself; they said they could not do that as they had orders to throw it down; I held three pounds worth of land, which I gave up last year, as I had no seed to sow in it; I did not leave the house until the crowbars were put into the walls to throw it down; I was not served with any notice or ejectment; my master, Mr. James Blake, was for a long time wanting to get me out of it; my wife and three children were in the house at the time; Mr. Blake claims rent, but I don't owe him any; myself, my wife, and children, had to sleep under a wall that night; the persons from the village of Ballinahown who came and knocked down my house, are 1, Coleman Folan, 2, Thomas Folan, 3, Michael Noone, 4, Thomas Faherty, 5, Coleman John, 6, Michael Folan, 7, John Waters, 8, John Faherty, 9, Pat Faherty Matthias, 10, Bartholomew Folan, 11, Stephen Faherty, and 12, Coleman Faherty; I don't recollect saying at the workhouse that Mr. Blake's son was with the other people in throwing down the house; Mr. Blake's sons were standing on the road, about a quarter of a mile away; I am now getting out-door relief.

Fifth Witness, John Donohoe, being duly sworn, states. My house at Tullymore was thrown down on the 31st of December last by the villagers of Ballinahown; they said they got orders to do so from their master, Mr. James Blake. I held land which was taken from me three years ago; the entire village was turned into pasture land. I paid all rent due for the land. The house I built myself: there was no rent demanded for the house. I was not served with any notice or ejectment. It was at nightfall my house was thrown down; and we have been since going from house to house, frequently sleeping in our clothes by the fire-side.

Sixth Witness, Mark Conneely, being duly sworn, states. I went to the workhouse for relief, and stated that my house had been thrown down. On the 31st of December last the villagers of Ballinahown came and threw down my house. I asked them to leave it standing until morning, which they refused. I assisted myself in throwing it down, so as to save the rafters, that I might be able to put them in another house elsewhere. My wife was in the house at the time. We got shelter in the next house that night. I built a kind of hut against the wall of the house thrown down; my wife and daughter got fever in it, but they are well now; we are still living in the same hut. The villagers (those named in the evidence of Daniel Conneely) did not say by whose orders they had thrown down the house; but when I asked them to save the house until the morning, they said they would throw down every house in the village. I had no land.

Seventh Witness, John Toole, being duly sworn, states. I had a house at Invern; I went to Galway to look for relief at the workhouse; on my return the house was thrown down; I was about building a hut on the ruins when I was struck and knocked down by Arthur Blake; he knocked me inside the road wall, and from the beating he gave me, I was quite insensible for a considerable time; he told me if I went there again he would have my life; every person in the whole country are afraid to let me in lest the same thing would be done to themselves; it is the general report that Mr. Blake's son gave orders that none of the persons whose houses had been thrown down should be allowed to remain in any house on the estate; and that if any of the tenants did let them in, his own house would be thrown down in like manner; I am informed that Mr. Richard Blake, son to Mr. James Blake, ordered my house to be thrown down, and that Pat Noone and John Faherty were present; I had some land from Mr. Blake, which I gave up last year, not being able to till it.

Eighth Witness, John Magan, being duly sworn, states. I live at Knockarra at present; I applied to the Guardians of the Galway Union for relief about the 15th of January last; before I applied for relief, my house at Tully, on the estate of Mr. Blake, was thrown down by Arthur Blake and John Conneely; Pat M'Nalty, Thomas Conneely, and Bartholomew Faherty, stewards and drivers of Mr. Blake, were present at the time. Arthur Blake came into the house first; he took a pot of water and threw it on the fire; he then put a crowbar under the wall of the house and threw down part of it; John Conneely went to the other side of the house and threw down the rest of it; after they left I put some of the sticks of the roof standing against the wall of the house, and covered them as well as I could with screws; myself and my family slept in that hut for a week; we were admitted to the workhouse; we left it in about a week after; my wife died last Monday night, and two of my children are so sick that I don't know when they may die; I did not strip my clothes off for the last 15 nights; I left the workhouse at my wife's request; she was only about a week at home when she was delivered of a still-born child; in three nights after she died.

Ninth Witness, Mary Feeny, being duly sworn, states. I am a widow with four children; I am now receiving out-door relief; my husband died on last Friday fortnight in the Spiddal fever hospital; on the 31st December (my husband being then in that hospital) I was in our house at Tullymore with my two children, Coleman and Ellen, both lying in fever, when, about an hour after nightfall, Arthur Blake and Pat M'Nalty came into the house; but before they did come in, Coleman Folan came in and desired me to take out the two children; that he was desired by Arthur Blake to tell me so, as he was going to throw down the house; I begged of him to ask him not to do so until morning, as my two children were lying in fever; Arthur Blake came to the other door, which he broke in with a crowbar; Pat M'Nalty came in with Mr. Blake; he took a can of water and threw it on the fire; they both knocked down the house the moment that I took out my children; I was obliged to keep them under the shelter of a wall until morning; I built a kind of hut in a room in the house; in some time after this hut was thrown down by Richard Blake, brother to Arthur Blake; my daughter Ellen, 15 years of age, died about 10 days ago from the cold she got.

Tenth Witness, James Folan, being duly sworn, states. That in or about a week after the 1st of January last, Pat M'Nalty and James Faherty, the driver and steward of Mr. James Blake, of Tully, came to my house at Ballinahown; they threw it down; M'Nalty had a crowbar, and Faherty had a spade; they knocked down the roof, which took fire and was burned; I saw several houses thrown down and burned in one day on Mr. Blake's estate; I went to the workhouse in Galway, but while waiting for admission my daughter Catherine died under the workhouse wall; we left the workhouse in some time after, because myself and my children were sick; I was swelling up; since then my son Matthias, aged five years, died; and I have heard, and believe, that since I left home to-day my son Thomas, aged seven years, died also; from the time we left the workhouse we have been lying under a little hut built against a wall, partly covered with some of the old scraws of my former house which escaped being burned; I was not served with any notice or ejectment at the time my house was thrown down.

Eleventh Witness, Thomas O'Malley, being duly sworn, states. I have a wife and seven children; had a house at Invern, which, by the orders of Mr. James Blake, I had to throw down about three months ago; I afterwards built another house at a distance opposite at Tully, on the land of Mr. Blake; I had not Mr. Blake's permission to build the house; I went to the workhouse in Galway to look for relief about three weeks ago; when I returned the house I left was also thrown down; there were several houses in the same village; all the houses to which land was attached were left standing; the rest were thrown down and burned; the houses of all persons who went to the workhouse for relief were thrown down and burned upon their return; I had land, which I gave up to the landlord, as I could not sow it.

Twelfth Witness, James Donohoe, being duly sworn, states. I had a house at Invern, which was thrown down on this day three weeks by Michael Folan, steward to Mr. James Blake, and Mr. Blake's son, Arthur; I was going to the workhouse on that day; they began to knock down the house with crowbars on one side, and I had to get out of the house by the door on the other side; the house was completely levelled. I have a wife and seven children; we now live in a kind of little hut built in a room of the ruined house; I have had no land for some years; I was under no rent for four or five years; I never heard that I was charged with stealing turnips from Mr. James Blake.

John Donohoe could not be examined, he is nearly dumb.

Thirteenth Witness, Bridget Donohoe, being duly sworn, states. I am the wife of John Donohoe, of Bunraghbawn; we had a house at that place, which was thrown down about three weeks ago by the villagers of Bunraghbawn; it was at night the house was thrown down; myself and my five children were nearly killed by the falling of the house; they smashed a loom belonging to my husband, who is a weaver by trade; we had to remain out a week after that every night under frost and snow, as we could get no house to shelter us—since then we have got a night's lodging here and there through charity. Mr. Blake assisted us before the house was thrown down—but for him we would have died; neither myself nor my husband stated at the workhouse that my house was thrown down by Mr. Blake's orders.

Fourteenth Witness, Thomas M'Donagh, being duly sworn, states. I had a wife and five children when my house was thrown down at Ballinakill, Island of Garomna, on the property of Mr. St. George; I have but two children now—three of them died since the house was thrown down; Myles M'Donagh and John Reamy, stewards to Mr. St. George, are the persons who threw it down; in the latter end of harvest it was so thrown down; I was not served with any ejectment or notice; I owed one year's rent, 2*l.*; I was living in the house at the time Mr. St. George's men came to throw down the house; I had to leave it with my wife and children; I applied at the Galway workhouse and got out-door relief; I held possession of the land under Mrs. O'Flaherty, who was tenant to Mr. St. George; the sheriff came some time before the house was thrown down, and gave the land up to Mr. St. George; I was ordered to quit, but I did not give possession of the house until the men came and threw it down; myself and my family went to my brother-in-law's house, where we remained for a week after the throwing down of the house, but we had to leave that, as the two men who threw down the house noticed my brother-in-law that if he kept us his house would be thrown down also; after that we had to sleep out under walls for several nights, without the covering of a house.

Fifteenth Witness, Michael M'Donagh, being duly sworn, states. I have a wife and three children; my house at Garomna, on the estate of Mr. St. George, was thrown down about three of four weeks ago by Myles M'Donagh, Mr. St. George's steward; I was served with an ejectment notice; I did not see the sheriff there; I was in the house at the time it was pulled down, and was nearly killed by its falling; he said nothing to me until he began to tumble the house; I never gave up possession; myself and my father and grandfather lived on the estate, and all the rent I owed was 1*l.*; I never gave up possession of the house or land; I had to sleep frequently under the shelter of walls since then; I even had to sleep out last night, having no house to shelter me.

Poor Law Inspector, Galway Union.

GORT UNION.

Captain HANLEY to the COMMISSIONERS—Dissolution of the Board of Guardians :—
February 16, 1848.

HAVING visited and carefully inspected the workhouse of this Union, I beg to call your attention to the sad state in which it is at present.

It appears to me that no part of your instructions is fairly carried out. The wards, yards, &c., present one scene of confusion, filth, and disease.

On reference to the Committee Visiting Book, I find no note of any Guardian having visited the interior of the house since the 8th March, 1847.

The dietaries are in the same state of neglect; books not kept up, and matters left to the discretion of the master and matron.

It is hardly possible to conceive a house in a worse state, or in greater disorder.

At a meeting of the Board of Guardians, on Friday last, there were 3157 applicants for relief, of which 410 were marked for in-door (200 beyond what the house could receive), 1730 out-door, and 1017 rejections.

Forming an opinion from the state in which I find the house and every matter with it connected, the want of anything like system or regularity, a debt of 4000*l.*, without a shilling in the treasurer's hands, and a weekly expenditure of over 250*l.*, I have come to the conclusion, that the only hope of correcting those evils, and affording the benefit of the law to the truly destitute of the district, would be by dissolving the present Board, which I feel it my duty to recommend, and appointing Vice-Guardians who would sit from day to day, affording relief where necessary, checking imposition when attempted, and whose sole duty it would be to attend to the neglected affairs of the Union, with a view to improvement—a result I cannot expect, under existing circumstances, from the present Board, however zealous some of the members.

The COMMISSIONERS to the BOARD of GUARDIANS :—February 18, 1848.

THE Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland have received and have had under consideration a report from their Inspector, Captain Hanley, on the state of the workhouse of Gort Union.

Captain Hanley reports that it appears to him that no part of the Commissioners' instructions is fairly carried out; and that the wards and yards present one scene of confusion, filth, and disease. He adds, that on reference to the Report Book of the Visiting Committee, he finds no note of any Guardian having visited the interior of the house since the 8th March, 1847; that the dietaries are in the same state of neglect, that the books are not kept up, and that matters are left to the discretion of the master and matron. He further observes, that it is hardly possible to conceive a house in a worse state, or in greater disorder.

In connexion with this representation of the state of Gort workhouse, the Commissioners have had under their serious consideration the state of the Union funds; and on this head the Commissioners perceive, that, owing to the very inadequate amount of rates levied by the Board of Guardians, the financial condition of Gort Union is in the highest degree unsatisfactory.

It appears that the last rate was made by the Guardians on the 24th May, 1847, at an average poundage of 1*s.* 3½*d.*, including arrears of previous rate.

This rate was calculated to yield 3464*l.*; but the collection proceeded so badly, that the total amount collected in the eight months ended 31st January last, was only 2581*l.*, being an average of only 11½*d.* in the pound on the valuation, and leaving more than a fourth of so small a rate uncollected.

As the consequence of this inadequate collection, a debt has accumulated, amounting on the 31st January last to 3538*l.*, a sum actually exceeding the entire amount collected during the preceding year (3226*l.*)

It is true that the Guardians have recently agreed to make a new rate of 7950*l.*; but as the season most favourable for the collection has been suffered to pass away without a proper rate being on the books, as the Union is encumbered by a debt which will alone absorb more more than half of the produce of the new rate, and as no money is in the treasurer's hands, it appears to the Commissioners that the Union will be involved in inextricable embarrassments, if a better management of the finances be not immediately introduced.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioners have determined to dissolve the Gort Board of Guardians, on the ground that through the default of the Guardians its duties have not been duly and effectually discharged, according to the intention of the Irish Poor Relief Acts. The Commissioners accordingly transmit herewith a sealed order for the dissolution of the Board; and they will proceed with the least possible delay to appoint paid officers to manage the affairs of the Union.

SCARIFF UNION.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS :—November 20, 1847.

As you will have learned from the minutes, that every exertion is being made to render this Union workhouse as extensively available as possible, for the able-bodied, by putting on out-door relief, the three classes enumerated in your letter of the 14th August, by advertising for a house to be converted into a fever hospital, and for premises suitable to the accommodation of all the school children, I need only briefly mention that all my exertions to procure premises have been rendered unavailing, owing to the very exorbitant rents which have been demanded. There is a large house, about a mile distant from Scariff, advantageously situated for the purpose required, and well ventilated, and after a minute inspection, I calculated that the two upper floors would afford sleeping accommodation to 300 children, and I proposed reserving the two lower floors for school and dining rooms, kitchens, &c. The present occupant has the premises, with thirty acres of land, on a lease from the Court of Chancery, at 4*l.* per acre, or 120*l.* per annum, and, although anxious to dispose of his interest in it, he demands 200*l.* per annum for the house and three acres, and thus the matter ends. I regret also to have to state, that we have met with no better success, as regards obtaining a house for a fever hospital; nevertheless, it is my firm conviction, grounded upon what I have myself already witnessed, independently of information received from credible sources, that with such a mass of destitution as we have here to deal with, the present workhouse accommodation would be altogether inadequate, even if we could now remove from it every one of its present 700 inmates. I, therefore, beg leave, in the strongest manner, to urge upon the Commissioners what I cannot but consider the imperative necessity of at once taking the necessary steps for the immediate erection on the present premises of additional permanent accommodation for at least 1000 persons; without this assistance it will not be possible to apply the workhouse test, to doubtful cases in the three classes eligible for out-door relief, much less to provide room for the able-bodied.

I would also strongly recommend that, in the mean time, temporary accommodation be at once run up, similar to the temporary barracks erected for the troops at the Cape of Good Hope and in the East Indies. Thatched roofs, with walls of "wattle and dab." The materials are to be obtained near this on reasonable terms, and the inmates of the workhouse could perform all the work, except putting the frame together. I have been thus housed for five consecutive years, and therefore make the suggestion from personal experience.

But the matter of permanent importance is the providing of necessary means, as well for current expenses during the ensuing season, as to liquidate outstanding debts. To obtain these means, I have advised the Vice-Guardians to strike an uniform rate of 7*s.* 6*d.* in the pound upon the Union.

It is my conviction that no reasonable objection can, under existing circumstances, be raised against a 7*s.* 6*d.* rate, or even to a higher one, seeing that the last collected rate was struck so far back as 14 months ago, and being only a temporary rate, amounted to but 1800*l.* in the gross; thus, the Union may be said to have enjoyed an immunity from rates, during a period when it was visited with famine and pestilence, and when unusual efforts ought to have been made by the late Board of Guardians. Had the Guardians collected a reasonable rate, and paid promptly for their supplies, I do not think that the Union would now be suffering from pecuniary embarrassment; but as supplies were purchased on credit, at double the market prices of the day, and as blank requisitions were signed, it was impossible that any proper control could have been exercised over the expenditure. I, therefore, hold it now to be a paramount duty not to shrink from having recourse to all the lawful means in our power, to promptly retrieve the Union from its present insolvent condition.

It has been calculated that about 9000*l.* will be required to provide for the wants of the workhouse up to 25th March, 1848, and to pay off the debts, amounting to 6000*l.*, incurred by the late Guardians. The gross amount of a 7*s.* 6*d.* rate will be 16,860*l.*, but after deducting the expenses of collecting it, and failures in payment, I do not estimate the net amount at a higher figure than 15,000*l.*; and the available balance of 6000*l.* will, I fear, be very inadequate to the calls we shall have upon it for the administration of out-door relief, if I may judge at all from the expenditure under 10 Vict. chap. 7, and which, I am informed, amounted to 17,000*l.* in this Union, not one farthing of which has been repaid.

After the due collection and careful expenditure of the rate which we are about to strike shall have taken place, the rate-payers may then come forward with clean hands, and appeal to Government for its aid, should our means become exhausted during this winter, or the next spring; but, until a sincere and vigorous effort has been made by those who have the duties of property to fulfil, I do not conceive that they have a legitimate right to represent the destitution existing within their Union, as an imperial calamity.

REPLY to the above :—November 22, 1847.

I AM to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 20th instant, reporting on the administration of relief in the Scariff Union; and in reference thereto, I am to express to you the thanks of the Commissioners for the information which you have conveyed to them, and I am to forward herewith, for your information, a copy of a letter which the Commissioners have this day addressed to the Vice-Guardians on the subject.

The Commissioners desire to call your attention to that part of their letter which relates to the proposed 7*s.* 6*d.* rate. If, after consideration of the subject, you and the Guardians are still of opinion that more money would be collected by it than by two consecutive rates of 3*s.* 6*d.* or 3*s.*, the Commissioners will not raise any objection to the 7*s.* 6*d.* rate.

ENCLOSURE.

The POOR LAW COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS of Scariff Union :—
November 22, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland to acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of your communication of the 19th instant, in reply to the Commissioners' letter of the 13th instant, relative to providing additional workhouse accommodation, and to the administration of relief to the destitute in Scariff Union.

In reference to the proposed rate of 7*s.* 6*d.* in the pound on the old valuation, the Commissioners desire to state that, although they do not wish to interfere with your discretion, as to the amount of rate to be struck in the Union, yet the Commissioners deem it worthy of consideration, whether more money might not, on the whole, be collected, by making, first of all, a rate of 3*s.* 6*d.* or 3*s.* in the pound, collecting that rate vigorously, and then making and collecting another rate of the same amount. The Commissioners, at the same time, wish it to be distinctly understood, that they do not in any way object to the rate of 7*s.* 6*d.* in the pound on the Union, if more money will really be levied by it than by two consecutive rates of 3*s.* 6*d.* or 3*s.*

With respect to their Circular of the 17th instant, the Commissioners desire to state, that they have come to the conclusion that some limitation should be set to the numbers in every workhouse, but they have not decided on what should be the precise limitation for the Scariff workhouse; and the Commissioners' letter to the Guardians was intended to elicit the views of the Vice-Guardians on the subject. The Commissioners having received your remarks, will refer them to their architect for his observations, and they will likewise communicate to him your request respecting the preparation of plans, together with some suggestions of Captain Hart, on the best mode of providing immediate additional workhouse accommodation.

The COMMISSIONERS to the VICE-GUARDIANS of Scariff Union :—
December 3, 1847.

I AM to forward to you the enclosed extract from a report which they have received from Captain Hart, relative to additional accommodation which he proposes for the workhouse of Scariff Union, together with a copy of Mr. Wilkinson's observations thereon; and I am to state that the Commissioners will readily sanction the erecting buildings in accordance with Mr. Wilkinson's suggestions, and that you can borrow money for the purpose, under the 35th section of the Irish Relief Extension Act.

The COMMISSIONERS to Captain HART :—December 3, 1847.

WITH reference to that part of your report of the 20th ultimo which relates to the proposed increased accommodation at the workhouse of the Scariff Union, I am directed by the Commissioners for administering the Laws for Relief of the Poor in Ireland, to forward for your information, the enclosed copy of the observations of Mr. Wilkinson on the subject, and to state that the Commissioners will readily sanction the erecting buildings in accordance with Mr. Wilkinson's suggestions, and that the Guardians can borrow money for the purpose, under the 35th section of the Irish Poor Relief Extension Act.

Scariff Union.

ENCLOSURE.

OBSERVATIONS of Mr. WILKINSON.

Scariff Union.

To erect permanent additions to the present house, to the extent of 300 additional paupers, the estimated cost is 1800*l.*; much beyond this number would render a new house advisable. The temporary buildings described by Captain Hart could be erected around the boundary walls of the site, quite detached from the present building. If carried out as proposed by Captain Hart, and done under his superintendence, the cost would not exceed 1*l.* per head, I should suppose.

Wooden buildings will cost about 30*s.* per head prepared for sleeping in.

Under the circumstances stated, and using the stable, I assume that 700 persons might safely be lodged in this house.

Captain HART to the COMMISSIONERS:—November 24, 1847.

ON receipt, this morning, of your letter of the 22nd instant, I did not fail to immediately confer with the Vice-Guardians on the subject of the 7*s.* 6*d.* rate, which it had been determined to strike upon this Union; and I now beg leave to acquaint you that, after our having given this most important question our best consideration, and viewing it again in all its phases, it is still our unanimous opinion that a 7*s.* 6*d.* rate should be adhered to, as we find that we can effect no substantial amelioration of the present financial embarrassments of the Union, or of the suffering condition of the poor, with a less sum than 10,000*l.*, which is immediately required to pay off the debts incurred by the late Board of Guardians, and to provide for present disbursements. We consider, also, that quite as much difficulty and excitement would be experienced in the collection of a 3*s.* 6*d.* as in a 7*s.* 6*d.* rate; and, such being our conviction, we are anxious to overcome our present difficulties by one vigorous effort. Moreover, it has, by some means, become generally known, and it is therefore more fully expected that a 7*s.* 6*d.* rate is to be struck; were we, therefore, now to reduce the amount, it would have the appearance of vacillation, and a bad effect might be produced.

As I previously stated, this Union has enjoyed an almost perfect immunity from a poor-rate from its first formation until the present day, for I find that in the aggregate but 3*s.* 6½*d.* has been collected: thus—

On the 8th February, 1842 . . a 5*d.* rate was struck.

9th November, 1842 . . 1*s.* 0½*d.*

5th March, 1844 . . 0 5

28th January, 1845 . . 0 10

9th September, 1846 . . 0 10

Total 3 6½

Taking this into consideration, and also that a heavy debt has been contracted in consequence of the late Guardians having purchased their supplies on credit, at double and even treble the market prices of the day (for I am credibly informed that 24*l.* per ton was agreed to be given for Indian meal, at a period when it was selling for 8*l.* per ton), I do not consider that any honourable and right-thinking person can raise an objection to a 7*s.* 6*d.* rate.

The Union is certainly in a desperate condition as regards its finances; and in having recourse to a desperate remedy—if, indeed, a 7*s.* 6*d.* rate should be so thought by interested or unprincipled parties—we have but done our imperative duty, from the responsibility of which we shall not shrink, feeling perfectly satisfied with the approbation of the Commissioners.

REPLY to the above:—November 25, 1847.

I AM directed by the Commissioners to state that, under the circumstances stated, the Commissioners do not propose to interfere with the discretion of the Guardians concerning the amount of rate which they are about to strike.

Scariff Union.

Mr. HANCOCK, Poor Law Inspector, to the COMMISSIONERS :—
November 24, 1847.

I HAVE the honour to report that Messrs. Fisher and Christy called on me at Limerick on Monday last, to consult as to the best manner of carrying into effect your instructions as to the borrowing a sum of money for the immediate necessary expenses of the Union, giving the rates as security, and the interest upon any advance to be guaranteed by his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant.

I recommended these gentlemen to make an official application to the treasurer of the Union (the Provincial Bank at Ennis) for a sum of 2000*l.*, for a period not exceeding six months, the interest to be guaranteed by his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant. The Vice-Guardians have made that application to the treasurer, and the manager, Mr. Menzies, is very well inclined to recommend the advance; but the matter has to be referred by him to Robert Murray, Esq., the secretary, Dublin.

The advantage of getting the advance from the treasurer would be considerable. In the first place, no confusion would be created in the accounts, or the awkwardness of having two treasurers, or one place of deposit for the Vice-Guardians' funds, and another for the rate of Unions. The advance to the Vice-Guardians would be paid by the rates, after the outstanding checks of the Board of Guardians have been discharged by the collection of the rates. I do not believe there are outstanding checks for the whole amount of the debts; but of this I am not sure: but supposing the whole of the debts due have had checks drawn for the amount, it appears to me the first of the rates must go to pay these drafts, as the collectors are bound to lodge with the treasurer.

I beg to recommend that an official application should be made from the Commissioners for the administration of the Laws for the Relief of the Poor in Ireland to the Provincial Bank of Ireland, recommending the advance to the Scariff Vice-Guardians, guaranteeing the payment of the interest by his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant; and if Mr. Murray should require any further security, I would recommend the Commissioners to give any guarantee which Mr. Murray may require for the repayment of the principal sum of 2000*l.* within six months. I should not venture to make any such recommendation with any ordinary Board of Guardians; but I do not see the slightest difficulty in guaranteeing the repayment of a sum so advanced by the treasurer when paid officers are in charge, who may be removed by the Commissioners.

It appears to me such arrangement would be much preferable to negotiating any advance from private individuals, or upon the personal security of the Vice-Guardians. I have had a good deal of conversation with Mr. Menzies, the Manager of the Provincial Bank here, and he is quite favourable to the proposal, and willing to make the advance; but he cannot do so without orders: hence the necessity of having a communication with Mr. Murray.

The COMMISSIONERS to Mr. MURRAY, Agent of the Provincial Bank of Ireland :—
November 27, 1847.

THE Commissioners have received a report from their Inspector, Mr. Hancock, in which he states that the Vice-Guardians of Scariff Union have made an application to the Union treasurer, the Provincial Bank at Ennis, for a loan of 2000*l.*, to be repaid within six months, with interest, but that the treasurer has referred the application to you.
